State Bows to Convicts, Fires Guards

Wyoming Governor at Prison; 3 Still Held as Hostages

By JACK BACON

RAWLINS, Wyo. (U.P.) — Eighty convicts who rioted in Wyoming State Prison won their major point Saturday night when Warden Deane Miller announced that two hated guards had been fired.

But the convicts still refused to free one of their three hostage-guards, although he was sick. And they would not agree to allow Gov. Milward Simpson into the cellblock where they are barricaded.

Simpson called up 20 National Guardsmen in the Rawlins area and added to the armed cordon surrounding the beleaguered cellblock. But he gave no indication that he intended to force the issue and risk bloodshed.

Miller talked several times by prison telephone to Norman Hodges, one of the four spokesmen selected by the rebel convicts to air their grievances and negotiate with prison officials.

Miller told Hodges in his latest telephone conversation that the Board of Charities and Reform had fired Cellblock Captain Ben Reeves and Guard Bill Coppenger, against whom the convicts vented months of suppressed fury with their impromptu insurrection Saturday morning.

Reeves broke away from the convicts who jumped him, and Coppenger was not in the cellblock when the riot began. No official comment has been made on the charges made by the convicts that Reeves and Coppenger were tyrannical malefactors who treated prisoners like "dawgs."

The convicts blacked out the cellblock and stacked mattresses near the windows. But prison officials did not know whether they were erecting barricades against an assault, or intended to burn the mattresses in another demonstration of ire.

Simpson, prison and state officials and newsmen were all gathered in the prison office while Miller made trip after trip to the switchboard trying to arrange a second parley. Saturday afternoon, the convicts demanded that Reeves and Coppenger be "immediately discharged" and spelled out a number of other grievances to Miller and other officials who submitted to search before entering the cellblock.

SPECTATORS give emergency aid to victims of car which swerved off Hwy. 101 Saturday afternoon at Sunset Beach, sideswiped a parked car, injured three persons on the beach and then plunged into bay. A total of eight persons were injured, including three teenagers in the swerving car and a woman in the sideswiped parked car. Auto Hurdles Barrier, Ends Up in Water

Driver Hurled Out, Rider Pulled From Submerged Wreck

Swerving off Hwy. 101, a sedan sideswiped a parked car at Sunset Beach Saturday afternoon, dumped out its driver and a passenger and then continued a mad uncontrolled course, plowing through bathers on the beach, hurdling a barrier and plunging into an ocean backwater, temporarily trapping a second passenger in the wreckage below the surface.

Eight persons were injured in the chain-reaction accident, three seriously.

Five other persons, including a baby in a buggy, narrowly escaped injury as the car—flying through the air after striking the barrier—hurtled over them.

This is how the accident happened:

The sedan, driven by Miss Dorothy Ann Traynor, 16, of Hollywood, swerved to miss another car on Pacific Coast Hwy. at 11th St., Sunset Beach.

Leaving the highway, the sedan sideswiped a car parked at the side of the road, injuring a woman seated in it.

Miss Traynor and one passenger, Charles Conklin, 17, of Los Angeles, were thrown from the careening car at that point.

The car caused injuries to four persons on the beach, including bathers it struck and others hurt as they scrambled to get out of its way.

Its second passenger, Andre Ward, 16, of Los Angeles, remained aboard until the car landed in the water. He was trapped for a brief period.

Mrs. Gertrude Bick, 46, of 17091 A St., Huntington Beach, seated in the parked car, suffered minor injuries.

Mrs. Bick's husband, Edward, 43, who was standing beside their car when it was hit, rushed into the water and dragged Ward out of the car to shore. Ward suffered minor injuries and shock.

Beach Jams, Rescues Beat July 4 Mark

Long Beach police and lifeguards, weary from coping with traffic and beach crowds exceeding those of July 4, braced themselves Saturday night for more of the same today.

Lifeguards, who pulled 19 floundering swimmers from the ocean, Colorado Lagoon and Alamitos Bay, estimated the beaches were jammed by nearly 200,000 bathers.

Police noted a steady all-day flow of traffic into Long Beach on all main highways, most presumably bound for the sands.

Attaches at the city's hospitals said they had been kept busy with a constant stream of emergency cases, most of them minor injuries such as cuts and abrasions received in a variety of ways.

One of these victims was Janet Wilson, 21, of Maywood, who was treated at Community Hospital for knee abrasions suffered while water-skiing at Marine Stadium. She told police she well when she skied into shore.

Ike Reaches Geneva for New Crusade

Confers With Eden and Faure Today; Hopeful of Peace

GENEVA (AP) — President Eisenhower reached Geneva Saturday night for a new and peaceful crusade in Europe.

Sunburned and smiling, the United States President arrived for the momentous Big Four summit conference this week and declared he hoped it would "lead all the world into a more tranquil, better, fuller way of life."

Other leaders of East and West, converging here for what may be turning-point talks in the 10-year cold war, also voiced optimism.

The President was cheered by a large crowd held back at the airport fence as he alighted from his plane, Columbine III.

He made a brief speech recalling "some 11 years ago I came to Europe with an Army, Navy and Air Force with a single purpose—to destroy Nazism.

"I came with the formations of war and all of the circumstances of war surrounded that journey at that time.

"This time I come armed with something far more powerful: the good will of America—the great hopes of America — the aspirations of America for peace. That is why I have come here, in this beautiful country of yours, to meet with my colleagues from other countries to see whether it is not possible to find some road that will lead all the world into a more tranquil, better, fuller way of life."

The President was accompanied by Mrs. Eisenhower and his son, Maj. John Eisenhower, who will act as his personal aide here.

He was greeted by Swiss President Max Petitpierre.

Earlier, at a refueling stopover in Iceland, the American chief executive told correspondents he hoped the "cause of peace can be advanced for all the world" in the meetings which start here Monday.

Dig Up Patio in Hunt for Missing Girl

ALAMEDA (U.P.) — Police excavated a "mysterious, shrine-like" patio late Saturday night in the yard of a University of California student as they suddenly intensified the search for a Berkeley schoolgirl, missing since April 28.

Det. Capt. L. H. Laird said the ten-foot-square patio had been constructed about six weeks ago "with no apparent explanation."

In a series of lightning developments earlier in the day, police found schoolbooks and eyeglasses definitely identified as those of 14-year-old Stephanie Bryan, daughter of a Berkeley radiologist.

Stephanie had been the object of a widespread search after witnesses said they saw a young girl struggle to free herself from a man who forced her into a car.

The unexpected discoveries were made in the home of Burton Abbott, a 27-year-old accounting student.

Early Saturday, Abbott's wife revealed that the couple had found a purse belonging to Stephanie in a box of old clothes, and police and FBI agents began a painstaking search of the white stucco house.

At first, authorities surmised the purse might have been concealed by any "one of a half dozen" persons.

But at about 6 p. m., books and eyeglasses belonging to the girl were found beneath the floorboards of the basement and immediately afterwards a girl's brassiere was found in the sand.

Meanwhile, a criminologist went over Abbott's 1949 Chevrolet sedan which closely resembled a car identified by more than a half dozen witnesses as the vehicle in which Stephanie was abducted.

U.S. to Launch Second Atomic Sub Thursday

GROTON, Conn. (AP) — The world's second atomic submarine, the Seawolf, will be launched Thursday exactly 18 months after her predecessor, the Nautilus, first hit the water.

Mrs. W. Sterling Cole, wife of the New York congressman, will sponsor the Seawolf, third submarine to bear the name.

The giant submersible is slightly longer than a football field and displaces more than 3,000 tons. Her speed is rated in excess of 20 knots submerged.

Externally the Seawolf is virtually sister ship of the 3,000-ton Nautilus, which went to sea last January and currently is on active duty with the fleet.

Fire Drives 20 Port Tots Out of Camp

PASADENA (AP) — Flames raced out of control in the San Gabriel Mountains north of here Saturday night, blackening more than 100 acres of brush and timber and forcing the evacuation of 20 Wilmington children from a summer camp.

Two U. S. Forest Service structures, Waterman guard station and Josephine lookout, also were in the path of the mushrooming fire.

The Angeles Crest highway to the Los Angeles area was closed, forcing scores of campers and picnickers in the Charleton Flats and Chilao recreation area to return home the long way via the sweltering Mojave Desert.

Forestry officials said that 400 men were battling the flames in 94 degree heat. The fire was advancing north up both sides of the Arroyo Seco, vital watershed and flood control canyon near here.

Crews checked the flames on the canyon's west flank, near a road over which fire equipment could be transported. However, crews were forced to use hand tools on the east flank, and the fire gained headway there.

The evacuated children were camped for the weekend at Clear Creek. They were taken out by bus. An ambulance was called to remove Mrs. Vivian Ambrose, wife of the camp caretaker and who was convalescing from surgery.

A ranger's family was evacuated from Waterman guard station.

Forest Service officer James Murphy said the fire started from a picnicker's gasoline stove. Murphy cited Bernard Buck of Los Angeles on charges of being in a closed area and of setting a fire outside an improved campground.

Lakewood Anti-Oil-Well Group to Petition for Poll

By BUD LEMBKE

A referendum on an ordinance which would ban oil-well drilling anywhere in the City of Lakewood will be sought by a group which has been strongly opposed to the granting of a permit for Standard Oil Co. to drill south of the intersection of Carson St. and Paramount Blvd.

Atty. Emanuel Gyler disclosed Saturday that he had been retained to draft the initiative petition for the referendum by the organization known as L.O.L.A., standing for "Leave Our Lakewood Alone."

He said legal notice of intention to circulate the petitions would be published Monday, and an affidavit of publication would be filed Tuesday with Lakewood City Clerk Nita Birch.

Twenty-one days then must elapse before the petitions may be circulated.

Signatures of 15 per cent of the city's registered voters are required to call a special election on the ordinance banning the drilling for oil. If fewer than 15 per cent but more than 10 per cent of the registered voters sign the petition, the City Council has the choice of calling a special election or placing the issue on the ballot at the next general election—in this case, in April, 1956.

After receiving the petitions and determining that they are signed by more than 10 per cent of the registered voters, the Council could also adopt the ordinance rather than place the issue on the ballot.

As of May 23, the city had 17,963 registered voters.

Gyler said he would appear before the City Council, July 26, to ask that body to adopt the ban on drilling.

"We'll give them the ball, and

George Pierce, 46, of 14733 Thornlake Ave., Norwalk, suffered back and leg injuries when he fell 15 feet from the side of a derrick on Terminal Island near the freeway bridge Saturday afternoon.

Pierce was admitted to St. Mary's Hospital. Police said he was working on the derrick when he apparently lost his foothold.

Global Galaxy of Beauties, Here, Dedicated to Good Will

By BEN ZINSER

Dedicating themselves to "friendship and good will among all people," 75 of the world's most beautiful women Saturday night made their premiere appearance in the 1955 Miss Universe Beauty Pageant.

Before an assembly of nearly 10,000 Southland residents in Veterans Memorial Stadium, the contestants, representing 32 foreign nations and most of the United States, stood and recited the Miss Universe Creed.

In the still night air they chorused: "We, representing the countries of the world in the Miss Universe Beauty Pageant, in order to further the cause of peace, justice and mutual understanding, do solemnly dedicate ourselves to the highest ideals

L.A.C. SAYS:

Mutiple Taxes

Announcement of a 23-cent county tax increase does not seem staggering by itself. Neither does a 17-cent increase in school district taxes nor a 7-cent city tax increase. But when you add just these three subdivisions together you find a combined tax increase of 47 cents for each $100 assessed valuation in Long Beach. These are all direct property taxes. In total they will cost Long Beach property owners over $2 million more in taxes than they paid the preceding year.

In addition to these property taxes it appears certain Long Beach will have a 1 per cent sales tax. This will cost Long Beach residents another $3.5 million a year. We are virtually forced to assess such a sales tax due to a state law allowing counties to assess such a tax where a city does not already have one. But adding this amount to the property tax increases, Long Beach will be paying over $5 million a year more in taxes to these three branches of government. That is about the amount of total city taxes collected last year.

Before other cities or county areas gloat over the increase for Long Beach it should be recognized that most of them already have such taxes or will be included in these increases. It is an example of how we are building up crushing tax loads by our multiple taxing system. In addition to the above, there are some increased state taxes and the state is expected to spend more money than it takes in from taxes next year. It will be spending part of the surplus built up over the past prosperous years. It is a good time to look for costly services we can do without as new needs are developed.

Some hope is held that a reduction in federal income taxes may be provided next year. But at the same time there is talk of increased gasoline taxes for greater highway construction. It is probable any income tax reduction will be offset by taxes on sales. There is little hope of reduction of over-all federal taxes as long as the cold war is a threat to our security.

There is an even greater threat of increased property taxes in the trend in force by government agencies. That is the trend whereby private capital is encouraged to build buildings or roads and lease them to the government agencies. These agencies have found it difficult, or impossible, to get bond issues voted by the people for such projects. They cannot provide the large sums from current taxes. Therefore, they make a deal with private capital to build the projects with a guarantee from the government agency to pay all the cost with interest over an extended period.

Thus a courthouse costing $10 million may be rejected by the voters when voting bonds. So the agency goes ahead and has it built and pays the private capital rent over a long period, which probably means $20 million or more, including interest. The cost is then added on to annual property taxes. The people pay the bill even though they rejected the proposition on the ballot.

It is a reasonable method of financing. But the danger is that it opens the door to almost unlimited spending by public officials. It also opens the door to graft, which might occur through rental fees and preferential deals between public officials and private capital. Actually it completely circumvents the principle whereby the people must vote bond issues for large capital expenditures by local governments.

There is no limit to the extent this system can be used. It could apply to roads, schools, public buildings, airports or harbor facilities. It can be used for almost any capital expenditure of government. A strong pressure group, working with a pliable city council, county supervisors or school board, can make such deals regardless of the public's attitude. We have no criticism of the many deals made to date by the state and county government, or the few made by our city government. But it is a dangerous trend that needs to be watched. There should be some greater safeguards placed around the making of such deals by all public bodies.—L.A.C.

Ike Reaches Geneva in Peace Crusade

and French Premier Faure, arriving earlier, also expressed notes of cautious optimism that the six-day conference will make progress in finding a way out of the decade of cold war.

Soviet Premier Bulganin, due here today, has sought to add to the atmosphere of optimism.

Preisdent Eisenhower, after leaving his plane, reviewed an honor guard of Swiss troops with a practiced eye and shook hands with the commander of the guard.

Mrs. Eisenhower was handed a big bouquet of red roses.

On his way from the airport to his lakeside villa at Creux-D-Genthod just outside Geneva, Eisenhower was cheered and applauded by crowds. All side roads along the route had been closed by troops and police.

A similar welcoming ceremony greeted Eden and Faure on their arrival.

U.S. Secretary of State Dulles and Mrs. Dulles, who had arrived a short time before the President, drove to the Geneva "White House" with him. The President then conferred a half hour with Dulles.

White House press secretary James Hagerty said the President planned to eat a light dinner and go to bed early. He will attend services at the American Church of Geneva this morning and then confer with British Prime Minister Eden, French Premier Faure and their foreign ministers. The group will have lunch with Eisenhower at the villa.

Tonight, Hagerty said, the President will see Eden alone at his villa and Faure an hour later.

There had been no move yet to bring the President together with Soviet Premier Bulganin, expected to arrive via Berlin at 10 a.m. (2 a.m. PDT) today, or with West German Chancellor Adenauer, who will arrive at the Swiss vacation resort of Muerren Monday.

Bulganin said nothing as he climbed into his plane at Moscow airport. But only Friday he told correspondents there was "no reason to believe the basis of future peace cannot be assured."

Eden and Faure arrived on separate planes from their respective capitals in a similar mood.

In most of Geneva's churches today prayers will be said for the success of the summit conference. A formal service of intercession will be held in the Protestant Cathedral of Geneva St. Pierre Monday morning under auspices of the World Council of Churches.

On Sunday night American evangelist Billy Graham will hold a special meeting in the Parc Des Eaux Vives overlooking Lake Geneva and the Palace of Nations.

Graham, who drew 30,000 Swiss to a revival meeting here last month, is returning to make a special appeal for the success of the conference. A two-continent radio hookup has been arranged for the service.

Congress Urged to Take Over Capital Transit

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress will be asked to cancel the franchise of the strike-bound Capital Transit Co. so the Washington city commissioners can operate it until the franchise legally expires a year from now.

This was announced Saturday night by Samuel Spencer, one of the three commissioners who form the District of Columbia's city government.

This development came as efforts to obtain a 120-day truce in the strike collapsed for a second time.

Washington faced its 17th day of no city buses and streetcars.

Car Plows Into Beach Crowd, 8 Persons Hurt

small baby in a buggy, were near the edge of a small bulkhead when the Traynor car bore down on them.

Mrs. Sophia Dust, 49, of 16848 Bayview Dr., Sunset Beach, suffered a back injury as she dove into the water. It was not known whether the car struck her or whether she was injured by her dive.

A companion, Mrs. Joseph Unger, 29, of 16863 Bayview Dr., Sunset Beach, said she heard the brakes squeal and turned to see the car bearing down on them.

Mrs. Unger said the next thing she knew she and her 7-year-old daughter, Candy, were in the water with Mrs. Dust. Both suffered shock.

Mrs. Unger said Mrs. Dust was lying with her head in the water and that she dragged her to the bank.

Mrs. Unger's 5½-month-old son, Tommy, was lying in his baby buggy below the bulkhead and the car flew through the air over the top of the buggy but did not hit it.

A sixth person on the bulkhead, George Ferreira, 50, of 123 Pacific Coast Hwy., suffered a broken ankle as he dove into the water ahead of the car.

Conklin suffered a concussion and Miss Traynor suffered multiple abrasions of the head and body.

All the injured, except Mrs. Bick who was treated by a private physician, were brought to Community Hospital here. Conklin, Ferreira and Mrs. Dust were admitted and the others were released after treatment.

All were reported in good condition Saturday night.

Sunset Beach volunteer fireman were on hand after the accident to handle the crowd of more than 300 people who gathered at the scene. Several skin divers swimming in the area searched the car in the water after it was erroneously reported that a small baby had been in it.

At the point where the accident occurred, the water is about 10 feet from the highway. Between the highway and the water is a soft shoulder about 6 feet wide extending to the bulkhead, which runs along the water about 3 feet from the edge.

Witnesses said that if the car had gone off the highway about 50 feet before it did it would have plunged through about 100 bathers on the beach.

One of the factors that kept the toll low was that the water off the bulkhead was posted with signs reading, "Deep Hole—Don't Swim."

Vatican Happy, Dubious at Mindszenty Freeing

By FRANK BRUTTO

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Vatican received reports of the temporary release of Josef Cardinal Mindszenty Saturday night with joy and with fingers crossed.

The news was taken immediately to Pope Pius XII, who six years ago expressed his sorrow at the imprisonment of Hungary's Roman Catholic primate before an extraordinary consistory of the Cardinals here.

There was no official comment on Budapest's announcement.

But one of the principal editors of the Vatican newspaper L'Osservatore Romano said, "We must wait and see."

This editor, noting the announcement was made on the eve of the Geneva Big Four conference, said:

"Obviously propaganda was a motive."

He also said the exact terms of the release are not yet known and that, "at best, like Alojzije Cardinal Stepinac of Yugoslavia, he would still be impeded from functioning as a prelate of the Roman Catholic Church."

"If he (Mindszenty) is not well now, that is a result of his years of jail," the editor said. "He was well before he went on trial. And as for being old—well, he is only 63."

Available Vatican sources said they did not know exactly what role Hungarian Catholic bishops played in the case.

Little of the church hierarchy in Hungary is free.

Communist Hungary announced Saturday night it has freed Cardinal Mindszenty temporarily from prison and he has been given quarters in a church building.

The official Budapest radio said the Hungarian Justice Ministry ordered the interruption of the Roman Catholic prelate's imprisonment and his temporary release because of age and failing health.

Mindszenty is the most celebrated of a group of high Catholic churchmen who have been sent to prison since World War II as an outgrowth of church-state feuds behind the Iron Curtain.

Passenger Suffers Shock in Collision

A 67-year-old woman suffered shock Saturday when the car in which she was a passenger collided with another vehicle at 7th St. and Atlantic Ave.

The victim, Mrs. Amy Appleby, of 715 E. 9th St., was taken to Seaside Hospital. Driver of her car was Don E. Appleby, 16, of 2032 Pattiz Ave., a grandson. The other driver was Alma M. Sperling, 21, of 4503 Elm Ave. Neither driver was injured.

Girls Pledge Efforts for Friendship

of sportsmanship, friendship and good will among all the people of the universe."

As the last words died away, Miriam Stevenson, the current Miss Universe, walked with lighted torch to a globe illuminated by a spotlight.

Then, with the stadium blacked out except for the globe, master of ceremonies Bob Russell and a choir of 50 voices sang:

"O, Lord, light the way;
Be Thou our beacon through the night
That we may banish the darkness of strife,
*And trust in Thy eternal life."

Russell opened the performance with a tribute to the Auxiliary to Children's Memorial Hospital, sponsor of the benefit event. He was introduced by Judy Ware, Miss Welcome to Long Beach, following the overture by the Long Beach Municipal Band.

State contestants were introduced first. They walked past an honor line of servicemen bearing flags of their respective states.

Next were the international contestants, who appeared in native costume. The flags of their nations also were borne by an honorary military guard.

Russell sang the traditional "Spirit of Miss Universe" when Miss Stevenson appeared on the stage.

Six trumpeters heralded the entrance of the contestants. Forty Long Beach Mounted Police served as an honor guard.

Mayor George M. Vermillion presented each entrant a key to the city, and Mrs. Vermillion handed each a rhinestone bandolier.

The girls in turn presented gifts to the mayor.

Some of them were:

Miss Delaware, a pass to the toll bridge at Newcastle, Del.; Miss Arkansas, an Arkansas Traveler's certificate; Miss Iowa, two ears of hybrid corn to plant in his garden; Miss North Dakota, five-pound sack of flour; Miss Oregon, a piece of myrtlewood; Miss Virginia, a Smithfield ham; Miss Illinois, a set of bookends;

Miss Missouri, a baseball with autographs of the Cardinal team; Miss Wyoming, an oil lease to 80 acres of land at Teapot Dome; Miss Tennessee, an "original" Davy Crockett coonskin cap; Miss Indiana, a model racing car; Miss Colorado, gold cuff links; Miss Massachusetts, a work of Pilgrim art; Miss California, crate of oranges; Miss Argentine, a poncho; Miss Belgium, a Brussels doll; Miss France, a bottle of champagne; Miss Germany, a bottle of cologne.

One of the hits of the evening was the presentation to the mayor by Miss Sweden of a red, white and blue stocking cap similar, she explained, to those worn in heavy snow in Lappland.

Russell reminded the Nordic beauty that it doesn't snow in Long Beach.

"One never knows," she retorted, as the crowd roared. Then she placed the heavy cap on the mayor's perspiring head.

Another highlight came when Miss Nebraska's turn came and she said her small token would be a kiss as an example of Nebraskan hospitality.

She promptly delivered the kiss, amid whistles and applause.

Entertainment acts were presented by the champion Bell Rough Riders Drum and Bugle Corps, the Otis Twirlerettes and trick riders Pat North and Vivian Dorr.

A fireworks display concluded the performance as the Municipal Band played "Saber Dance."

A LITTLE GIDDY FROM THE HEAT

Woozy from the 83-degree heat on the beach, Miss Guatemala (Maria de Rosario) is helped from photographer's stand Saturday by Bob Oliver of the Municipal Auditorium staff. Intense sun also temporarily overcame two other beauties, Miss Finland (Sirkku Talja) and Miss Israel (Ilana Carmel).—(Staff Photo)

OLD SOL AND MISS CEYLON PALS

Heat Wilts 3 Charmers

Three shapely Miss Universe constestants wilted Saturday, right on schedule.

In previous contests, the girls always weathered the first two days in good shape, but a few fainted when photographers posed them under a hot sun for the panorama bathing suit shot on the beach.

Saturday, three didn't faint but they were close to keeling over and had to be helped from their perches. The fast-paced posing schedule, popping flash bulbs and the sun apparently were a bit too much.

But, after a short rest in the shade, the three rejoined the group for more pictures.

Miss Israel—buxom Ilana Carmel, 19, of Batyam, Israel—was the first to go.

Miss Finland—19½year-old Sirkku Talja of Helsinki—was next, followed by Miss Guatemala—Maria Del Rosario Molina Cajcon of Guatemala City.

However, while the three were resting, Miss Ceylon—Maureen Hingert, 18, of Colombo—glanced at the sun and then winked at a newsman:

"This is my cup of tea," she said.

New VHF Radio Band 'Foolproof'

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (U.P.)—The continent's defenders are bouncing radio beams off unseen "ceilings" 60 miles high to signal the approach of enemy aircraft, it was disclosed Saturday.

Professor William H. Radford of Massachusetts Institute of Technology told of voice and teletype transmission that is almost foolproof at distances up to 1,100 miles.

Radford heads the communications division of MIT'S Lincoln Laboratory, the supersecret organization charged with mapping North American air defense.

Stowaway Jailed After Fare Paid

HONOLULU (AP) — Lewis A. Enstedt, 28, employe of the Hughes Aircraft Co., Los Angeles, will be sentenced Monday for stowing away on a United Air Lines flight to Hawaii.

Enstedt went to the Los Angeles Airport Thursday night to see Patricia Warren, a friend, leave for Hawaii. On the spur of the moment, he said, he went aboard the plane.

Enstedt paid his fare when he arrived in Honolulu but was taken into custody by FBI agents.

Lakewood Anti-Oil Group Spurs Drive

if they won't carry it, we'll circulate the initiative petition for the referendum," the attorney stated.

Controversy arose over the oil issue when Standard Oil Co. submitted an application two months ago for a permit to drill on 18 acres of land approximately 300 feet south of Carson and Paramount. The lease which the company holds with Lakewood Park Corp. interests expires next fall.

As provided in the existing ordinance governing the granting of drilling permits, the application was forwarded to the City Planning Commission for a public hearing.

The L.O.L.A. group, headed by Mrs. Ray Clark, 4702 Hayter Ave., circulated petitions against allowing drilling anywhere in the city limits and presented them, with 3,600 signatures, to the Planning Commission at the hearing.

The commission voted 5 to 0 to recommend denial of Standard Oil's application.

When the issue reached the Council, another hearing was conducted and the application was referred to the Planning Commission for clarification of several points. One was to investigate a charge that petitioners against the drilling "misrepresented the issue" with claims that oil wells would be placed in residents' back yards if the petition were not signed.

Questionnaires are being sent to 160 of the petition signers in an effort to determine if they were misled by the circulators.

Promises by the Council have been made repeatedly that no drilling will be permitted north of Carson.

Standard Oil representatives hold that their proposed operation would in no way be objectionable to the city and point out that it would add to the taxable assessed valuation of the city, school district and park district.

Jet Plane's Blast Stirs Alarm Here

An earthshaking explosion, apparently from a jet plane, rattled windows and shook house foundations in North Long Beach and Lakewood areas Saturday afternoon, frightening several hundred residents and flooding police and Independent, Press-Telegram switchboards with calls.

CAA tower operators at Long Beach Municipal Airport said the blast, which occurred about 5 p. m., probably came from a jet aircraft over the area starting up its afterburners while climbing.

Several hundred residents rushed into the streets in the vicinities of 5900 Lewis Ave. and 4500 Lakewood Blvd.

Police switchboard operators said they received about 40 phone calls from residents who described the explosion as "resembling an earthquake" or "sounding like a bomb."

Independent, Press-Telegram operators received about the same number of calls.

Ex-FBI Man Joins Probe of L.B. Tidelands

A former FBI man turned attorney and legislator has been named to fill a vacancy on the legislative committee to make a between-sessions investigation of the Long Beach tidelands situation.

He is H. Allen Smith, Glendale Republican, who lost the Assembly speakership by a squeak to Assemblyman Luther Lincoln of Alameda. Smith fills the spot on the interim committee left vacant by Le Roy Lyon, Fullerton, who resigned from the Legislature to represent private interests.

The five-man legislative committee has been asked by Chairman Gordon Fleury, Sacramento Republican, to meet late in August to organize for the study. The Legislature voted for the interim investigation as an alternative to adoption of the bill sponsored by Assemblyman Bruce Allen, San Jose Republican, which would have seized all of Long Beach's tidelands money. (See editorial page for discussion of committee makeup.)

Slain Bandit's Name Revealed

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Police have identified a gunman slain in a liquor store robbery Friday as W. Bruce White, 21, a resident of a Los Angeles hotel.

He was killed by Detective Charles King, who was staked out with another officer in the rear of a Figueroa Street liquor store.

Soap Box Derbyist's Car Injures 3 Tots

SAN DIEGO (AP)—Three young children were injured Saturday when a Soap Box Derby entrant lost control of his racer and it ran into a line of spectators. Daniel Lloyd, 3, who suffered a skull fracture, was taken to a hospital for surgery. Thomas Lockwood, 7, and his brother, James, 4, suffered minor injuries.

Global Beauties, Ninth Graders All the Same to Pageant Nurse

While other first-timers in backstage jobs at the Miss Universe Pageant wonder whether they can stand the strain of the coming activities, Rose Geckler, 41 Corinthian Walk, feels right at home.

"I'll just be doing the same things I do the rest of the year," explains Miss Geckler, Long Beach public school nurse who is looking after the health of the beauty contestants for the duration.

"My ninth graders at Washington Junior High are close to the age of these girls, and I expect the same kind of first aid complaints," the nurse said.

"Blisters from new shoes, fainting from excitement, emotional disturbances, headaches and maybe a sore throat," she predicted. "That will about cover it, and in case there's anything serious we have a board of physicians on call.

"Sunburn will be a problem, too. Some of these girls aren't used to our clear California skies."

Opening day of the pageant was a particularly restful one for the official nurse.

"I guess the girls were too busy registering and having their pictures taken to feel sick," she said. "The only one who came in for treatment was a United Press man with a sore finger. He told me he cut it shaving while half asleep."

"I feel sorry for those girls," she continued. "They have such a busy schedule — some days they start at 9 a.m. and keep going till midnight.

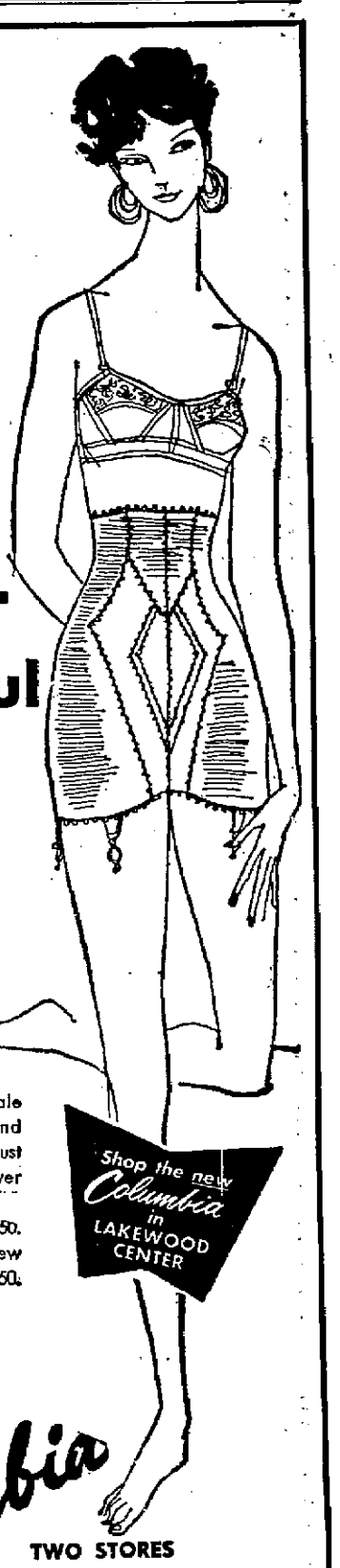

"It must be a terrible strain with the eliminations night after night. We'll begin to get some of the nervous cases before the middle of the week. By the final night they'll all be so keyed up anything can happen."

The nurse paused and reflected for a moment.

"Come to think of it," she added, "things get pretty hysterical at school around report card time."

U.S. Faiths Praying for Big 4 Meet

By Associated Press.

The prayers of his countrymen followed President Eisenhower across the Atlantic today and offered him added strength in the quest for world peace.

Clergymen of all faiths responded swiftly to the President's dramatic, pre-departure suggestion for a demonstration of the "depth of our aspirations for peace."

Across the country, rabbis, ministers and priests made quick changes in their weekend services to add their congregations to what the President had termed "a mighty force."

Some, like the Very Rev. James A Pike, dean of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine (Episcopal), in New York, had anticipated the President's idea. Not only were five peace services to be conducted in the cathedral today, but special prayers for the success of the Geneva conference were offered last Sunday.

The World Council of Churches and the National Council of the Churches of Christ in the U.S.A. already had appealed for special prayers.

And many Americans who could not join in special observances this weekend, without doubt, agreed with the words of Rabbi Maurice Goldblatt, of Indianapolis, who said:

"Those who feel the significance of the President's request will do it instinctively, if not in a house of worship then in their homes."

The Protestant Council of the City of New York submitted to its member clergy a "petition" to be made part of the pastoral prayer during this morning's worship by the city's millions.

"Almighty and eternal God," it said, "Father of all mankind, source of all peace, wisdom, justice and love, we pray Thee to give unto the leaders of the four nations meeting in Geneva a spirit of dependence upon Thee, that their hearts and minds may be open to Thy guidance and Thy will.

"Remove them from the limitations of fear and suspicion and endow them with the power of faith in one another and complete trust in Thee.

"May righteousness and honor, patience and forbearance, undergirded by Divine Grace, bring them to a point of understanding that will produce for our world peace with love."

Baptists Hear Archbishop of Canterbury

LONDON (AP) — The Jubilee Congress of the Baptist World Alliance was told by the Archbishop of Canterbury Saturday that the growing movement for Christian unity offers great hope for mankind.

Welcoming the 7,612 delegates from 60 countries, including 3,600 from the United S ates, Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, ranking Anglican prelate, referred to the Geneva conference of the Big Four leaders and its impact on history.

"But no less important, and in the end perhaps more important, to the working out of human history," he said, "is this drawing together of the churches of Christ in this ecumenical movement."

The Rev. Luie D. Newton, vice president of the Baptist World Alliance and minister of the Druid Hills Church of Atlanta, Ga., responded to the welcoming addresses of the archbishop and other United Kingdom churchmen.

Newton recalled that the Baptists' first world congress was in Royal Albert Hall, here, 50 years ago.

"In a world left drab and dreary by militarism, materialism and humanism," he said, "our hearts cry out for the living God. We believe the theme of this congress offers the way—the only way—up and out from darkness into light."

Dr. Fisher, the first archbishop of England's established church ever to address the Baptists, spoke in his capacity as president of the British Council of Churches as well as primate of England.

He said the move toward a closer relationship between churches is designed "not to get rid of differences but to examine them and then bring them together as a whole contribution to the teachings of Christ which should be exemplified in His church."

He advised that this movement cannot be unduly hurried, saying it might be better "to go a bit slow—to digest the meal we have taken."

Thurmond Hits High Court

WASHINGTON (UP) — Sen. Strom Thurmond (D-SC) Saturday attacked the Supreme Court for "violating states' rights" and called on southerners to use "every legal means at their command" to retain racial segregation.

In a press release labeled "Special Segregation Statement," he said recent federal court decisions against segregation were without color of law under the constitution.

"Instead, the decisions hinged on the testimony of sociologists and psychologists in the school segregation case," he said. "Now it is clear that the lower courts feel bound to follow the political decision of the Supreme Court in the school cases."

He referred particularly to a decision Thursday by the Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals in Richmond, which held that South Carolina could not enforce racial segregation on buses within the state.

Two Miss New Yorks Pageant Rivals but They Like Each Other

There are two Miss New Yorks at the Miss Universe Beauty Pageant. But make no mistake; one is Miss New York STATE and one is Miss New York CITY.

One is a very tall blonde and one is a medium tall brunette.

And they are good friends.

"We never met before we got to Long Beach," explained Patricia Ann O'Kane, 19, Miss New York City, and Janet Kadlecik, 18, Miss New York, "but we like each other very much."

Patricia, who lives in Valley Stream, is secretary to the treasurer of Bacardi Imports, Inc., 575 Madison Ave., New York. "We import rum and Scotch from Puerto Rico, Cpba, Mexico, Scotland and Ireland," she says.

Does she drink?

"Well, just a little."

Janet, who lives in Johnson City, is just out of high school. She is Photo Queen of the Southern Tier, which means the Southern part of New York. She was chosen from 30 finalists for the New York title in Clinton, N.Y.

Miss New York (City) is 5 feet 8 inches and wears her long blond hair around her shoulders.

Miss New York (State) is 5 feet 6 inches with short dark brown haid.

It is recalled that Jackie Loughery, Miss New York (State) was chosen Miss United States in the first Miss Universe contest, three years ago.

Other "pairs" in this year's Miss Universe contest include Miss Philadelphia and Miss Pennsylvania, Miss St. Louis and Miss Missouri and Miss Miami Beach and Miss Florida.

Typhoon Strikes Kyushu but Loses Strength Rapidly

TOKYO (AP) — A typhoon hit Kyushu Island Saturday, then lost much of its whirling fury as it traveled westward across Japan's southernmost island at about 35 miles an hour.

It was expected to blow itself out completely in the East China Sea, before it reaches China.

Weather trackers said an earlier typhoon which wrecked 280 homes and sank fixe small vessels at Miyako Island, south of Okinawa, blew itself out Saturday along the China coast.

REGIONAL POLITICS

Hosmer Tells GOP to Back Ike Policy

By The Lookout

Rep. Craig Hosmer of Long Beach Saturday night warned an eastern audience of Republicans that the party has some catching up to do if it wants to match President Eisenhower's popularity.

Hosmer spoke at the convention of the Federation of Republican Women of Maryland, in session at Ocean City, Md.

The Long Beach lawmaker put it this way:

"The Republican party may not be the party of a majority of the American people, but our Republican President and his Republican program are favored by a majority of the people. To build a stronger party, Republican candidates, Republican leaders and Republican workers should associate themselves with and support wholeheartedly the leadership and program of our Republican President."

The Democrats are without issues for 1956, according to the Long Beach congressman, who predicted the entire campaign would turn the question of continuing Eisenhower foreign and domestic policies or returning to policies and programs laid down by former President Harry Truman.

"In 1956," Hosmer asserted, "we shall have a showdown battle between those who would nationalize and socialize basic American economic institutions and those who would continue the American economic policies which have been put into effect by this administration and which have worked so well."

Non-White Housing Lack Builds Up Pressure Here

By HERB SHANNON

With the non-white population of Long Beach increasing five times as fast as the areas in which Negroes are permitted to purchase homes, residential segregation is fast creating an explosive social pressure.

This in a nutshell is the conclusion of a minority housing survey conducted for the Civic League by John Hepler, 30, sociologist and former Jordan High School teacher.

The recently-completed survey and its recommendations for speedy integration of non-whites into presently closed neighborhoods is scheduled to be presented to the City Council early next month.

The survey points out that there is no lack of demand for new housing among Negroes here. Nearly four out of five of the families questioned in the 15 sample blocks of a California Ave. district indicated they wished to buy homes.

There is also no lack of ability to pay, according to the survey findings. The median family income was $4,350, ranging up to $6,000. The majority signified willingness to make down payments up to $2,000.

Preference was for new homes or those constructed within the last five years, but some said any home in good repair would be satisfactory.

Location was no great object among the families seeking homes, with preference distributed chiefly between the central area, Lakewood-Los Altos and North Long Beach. Lesser interest was expressed in the Belmont, west Long Beach and harbor areas.

JOHN HEPLER
No Room to Grow

Almost none of the family spokesmen expressed any objection to being the first non-white to enter a new area.

The problem is wholly one of supply, the survey report concludes.

Although 300 single family homes would be required to satisfy the needs of those in the survey area who can make down payments, the canvassers could find only 10 units for sale in areas open to nonwhites.

Negroes seeking homes in Lakewood have been told that nothing is available and are advised to try Compton or Signal Hill, the report states. The principal reason given for refusal in all areas covered was that the seller "knew" his neighbors would object.

Another obstacle to integration is the hesitance of banks and loan agencies to assist Negroes to enter an all-white area.

The denial of benefits of multiple listing, the difficulty in securing mortgage credit and the prejudices of sellers account for the increase of segregation in Long Beach, the survey declares.

The principal district in which non-whites are able to buy homes has increased in area by 18.3 per cent since 1950, the survey states, while the non-white population increased 92.9 per cent.

The report assembled by Hepler from information provided by survey workers from the Civic League, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and the sociology department of Long Beach State College recommends a program of education and civic action to solve the problem before it becomes a crisis.

Hepler urges formation of a commission on intergroup relations, a speakers bureau to address interested groups and the establishment of a branch of the Urban League here.

The program of action should attempt to develop community acceptance of non-whites in accordance with Urban League policies, the report declared.

Hepler announced that representatives of groups interested in social problems will meet Tuesday evening at 2712 Petaluma Ave. to discuss the minority housing report.

W. Miller Barbour, western regional director for the National Urban League, will attend to advise on formation of a Long Beach branch, Hepler said.

Buenos Aires Tense After Peron Edict

BUENOS AIRES (U.P.)—This city's slimmest Saturday papers in years gave major play Saturday to President Juan D. Peron's "swan song" speech and preliminary estimates of its effect on Argentina.

Peron announced Friday he is resigning as head of his powerful Peronist party and restoring constitutional freedom to the country, ending the restrictions imposed on liberty during his 12-year "revolution."

Peron announced his decision to become the non-partisan "President of all Argentines" a month to the day after an abortive revolt by Navy units created a major threat to his regime.

Travelers from Argentina reaching Montevideo said the atmosphere in Buenos Aires is still tense despite the failure of the revolt.

Newspapers averaged only six pages, compared to the eight usual on Saturdays in recent years. They were devoted almost entirely to reports and speculation on Peron's decision.

The big independent newspaper La Nacion received the President's speech with reserve, pointing out that opposition parties are waiting to see whether there will be "full and free play for democratic activities" in the new situation.

The Peronist organ Democracia said Peron's declaration was a plea for "peace," and the union organ La Prensa said the president's stand will be "loyally and fraternally supported" by government-sponsored labor groups.

New Chinese Railway

TOKYO (A.P.) — Peiping Radio from the Red Chinese capital Saturday reported completion, six months ahead of schedule, of a new railway running northwest through the mountains topped by the great wall. The new line is 65 miles long.

Man Overboard in Race Costs Yacht First Place

HONOLULU (A.P.)—Peter Grant's sloop Nalu II lost her chance of taking first place in the transpacific yacht race when she had to put about to rescue a crewman who fell overboard, it was learned Saturday.

The Nalu II, a 46-foot craft from Newport Harbor Yacht Club, finished the 2,225-mile race from San Pedro Saturday, in an elapsed time of 12 days, 1 hour, 58 minutes and 48½ seconds. Her corrected handicap time is 9 days, 4 hours, 4 minutes and 43½ seconds.

She thus is second in fleet standings by 55 minutes to the Class A Constellation, owned by Frank Hooykaas of Los Angeles.

The crewman who feel overboard from the Nalu II, a Class C boat, was Joe Grant, a brother of the owner-skipper. He fell overboard Friday afternoonwhile taking a bath. He said he slipped on the soapy deck and was picked up 20 minutes later, still clutching the bar of soap.

In putting about, the Nalu II lost her big spinnaker and, when she resumed course, had to do so with a smaller sail.

The Constellation was considered to be weakening in her hold the lead in the race.

They include:

Staghound, owned by Ira P. Fulmor, Newport Harbor Yacht Club, and winner in 1953, appeared likely to nose out Constellation on a corrected-time basis.

Esprit, owned by Joel B. Cox, Waikiki Yacht Club, Honolulu.

Sea Mist, Elmer Hitchcock, Elkhorn Yacht Club, Salinas, Calif.

Sea Queen, Fred Harris, Los Angeles Yacht Club.

Bali I, Jack Helm, Voyagers' Yacht Club.

An unofficial Coast Guard report put the Staghound 150 miles from the finish and due in at 7 a.m. today. She has until 2:11 p.m. to nose out the Constellation.

The challenge to Constellation's lead lies in the fact that some of the Class C and D boats have handicaps running up to five days.

Mark Twain Earns Money From Grave

REDDING, Conn. (A.P.)—Mark Twain still is earning money—a considerable amount of it—although he died here 45 years ago.

The annual income of the renowned American humorist, whose real name was Samuel L. Celmens, is higher than that of many a living, breathing author who pounds a typewriter daily.

Publishing houses, motion picture companies and literary agencies paid Twain's estate a total of $11,655.82 in 1954 for the use of his works which are not yet in the public domain.

U. S. Can Win Over Far East by Aiding Asians Attain Their Goals

Walter T. Ridder, chief of The Independent, Press-Telegram Washington Bureau who recently made a fact-finding tour of the Far East, sums up his impressions in two articles for The I, P-T. This is the first.

By WALTER T. RIDDER

The strongest impression gathered by this visitor to the Far East is that the battle for Asia is by no means lost. True, the fight hangs in precarious balance—more precarious in some countries than in others—but that balance need not necessarily be tipped against the free world.

What's needed more than anything else is an American foreign policy which clearly states and which clearly acts that what's good for the Asians is good for the United States; that the U. S. will strive to help Asians attain their legitimate aspirations, and that the ultimate goals of the Asian people are the same as are the ultimate goals of the whole free world.

This can't be done by sending warships and troops to Pacific countries or having jet planes fly over Asian cities.

The U. S. would do well to tone down its military blusterings and emphasize instead its interest in helping the Asians to get what they want.

Far too often present U. S. policy places the U. S. either in direct or in seeming opposition to the desires of the Asiatic people.

Take, for instance, the burning question of colonialism which the Asian people are, with varying degrees of success, seeking to uproot. Despite thousands of honey-eyed words emanating from our side of the Pacific Ocean, the Asian is today frankly skeptical of the depth of our anti-colonial feeling. He believes (more wrongly than rightly, I think), but nonetheless he believes that the U. S. has supported the British, the French and the Dutch in their endeavors to retain control of their Asiatic possessions.

Curiously, the colonial powers believe we did all we could to help the natives in their attempts to gain independence. The net result in that the U. S. has received credit from neither side and has fallen, so to speak, between two stools.

In contrast to the suspicions which have attached themselves to U. S. policy, the Asian Communists have clothed themselves firmly in the garb of nationalism and have been successful in identifying themselves with the nationalistic aspirations of the people.

Indeed the programs of the Communists and the outright nationalists are in many countries indistinguishable and persons who are themselves certainly not Communists are promulgating the party line. By tieing themselves to nationalism—the primary political force in Asia today—the Communists have gained friends and supporters who might well have been on our side had our policy followed a more consistent course.

In that Asiatic nationalism rests perhaps the strongest bulwark against communism. It is not too late to use it. The people of the new independent countries are proud of their freedom. They don't want to be the satellites of the U. S. and they don't want to be satellites of Soviet Russia.

"We worked too hard for our revolution," said one Indonesian official, "to let our country fall again under the domination of a foreign power—whether that power be the Dutch, the U. S. or Russia." The nationalism prevalent everywhere in Asia can be quite as strong a weapon for the free world as it can be against it.

Order Restored

CHALFONT ST. GILES, England (AP)—When the police force went off to take a crime detection course, the youth of Chalfont St. Giles went on a spree of rowdyism. Street lamps were smashed, public notices torn down and public property damaged. Now Constable A. V. Gleeson is back, his course finished and all is quiet again.

Boy Can Be Out Later Than Dad

WICHITA FALLS, Tex. (AP)—An un-named sergeant at Sheppard Air Force Base here is unhappy about the separate curfews imposed by the base and the Wichita Falls city council.

Sheppard AFB imposed at 9 p.m. curfew on airmen, the city council an 11 p.m. curfew on civilian teen-agers, because of gangfights between airmen and the teen-agers.

"My 15-year-old son can stay out until 11 p.m.," the disgruntled sergeant complained to the Wichita Falls Record-News. "I have to be in the house by nine."

47,000 Japs Held

TOKYO (AP)—Seven thousand Japanese are still held prisoner in Red China, the Foreign Office reported Saturday. It added that another 40,000 Japanese, last known to be in Red China, "are unaccounted for."

DRIFT FOR YEARS

Bottles Aid in Charting of Currents

By DON BRACKENBURY

Drifting along over the vast reaches of the seas of the earth are thousands of bottles, each containing a message. Some stared their lonely journey many years ago. Others were thrown into the sea as recently as last week.

Some may carry distress messages. Some may have been cast adrift by romanticists, curious as to their eventual destination.

Most, however, were thrown overboard from ships at the request of the U. S. Navy's Hydrographic Office. Their drift helps hydrographers chart the ocean currents.

Boats in the yacht race from San Pedro to Hawaii the past two weeks, for example, dropped some 325 bottles between here and the islands. These bottles were supplied by the local branch hydrographic office at 1600 Wilmington-San Pedro Rd.

On the basis of previous reports, most of these 325 will drift to the coasts of Australia, New Zealand and New Guinea.

Some bottles make phenomenal journeys. Drifts of 4,000 to 6,000 miles are common. A bottle thrown from a ship in the South Indian Ocean back in May, 1909, was picked up three years later off the tip of Cape Horn after a trip of about 11,820 miles.

Although their courses usually follow definite patterns, the journeys of these bottles often is capricious. In 1928, a merchant vessel cast 10 bottles overboard in the Atlantic Ocean near the equator. One washed ashore on the west coast of Africa after drifting 130 days. Another landed on the coast of Nicaragua after drifting 196 days.

Why did one bottle head east and one west? And what happened to the other eight? Are they still wandering over the seas?

In 1949, a bottle finally landed that had been drifting for 47 years.

It carried a message dated June 24, 1902, and signed by the American explorer, Evelyn Baldwin, who then was believed to have died in the Arctic. Its message read:

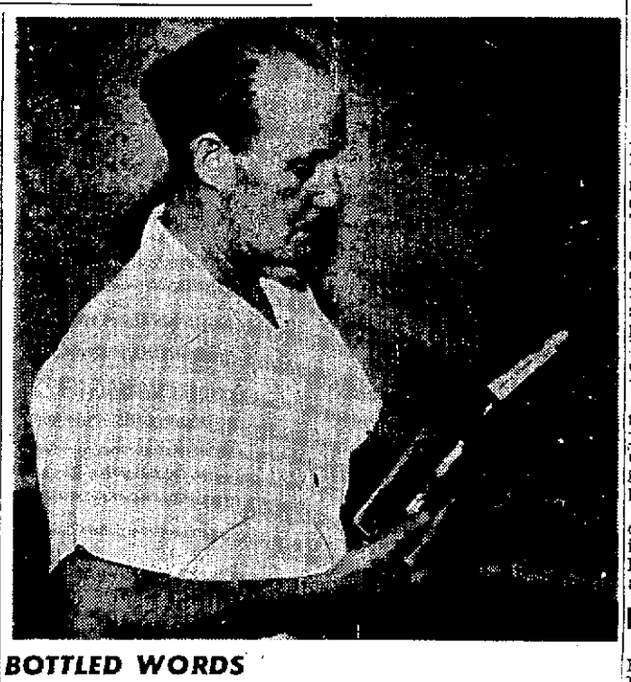

"Five ponies and 150 dogs remaining. Desire hay, fish and 30 sledges. Must return by early August. Baldwin."

Fortunately, Baldwin and his party won through to safety. He died a natural death in New York in 1933—16 years before the sea delivered his message for help.

The Navy Hydrographic Office bottles contain a more prosaic message. It is a printed form, in eight languages, which asks the finder to return the form to the main office in Washington, D.C. The forms call for the time and place the bottle was found.

The Hydrographic Office has a lot of competitors in the bottle-message business. Most of them do it as a hobby. Lt. Comdr. Earl R. Baker, who heads the branch hydrographic office here, says the Navy has no objection at all.

It asks only that persons who find a Hydrographic Office bottle send the message to Washington. There is no money for rewards, but the finder will receive a letter of appreciation and a souvenir pilot chart of the bottle's course.

Mayor Finds 'Progress' in Bus Peace

LOS ANGELES (UP)—Mayor Norris Poulson declared today that "definite progress" has been made toward reaching settlement of the 27-day-old Los Angeles Transit Lines strike.

His statement was made as union and management officials concluded a meeting in the mayor's office. The mayor had a special police guard since a telephone caller threatened his life Friday. The call was not believed connected with the transit situation.

Poulson said a "full-scale negotiation meeting" will be held at 11 a.m. Monday in the mayor's office and "I am positive we will get action as fast as hamanly possible."

Commissioner Harry Malcom of the Federal Conciliation Service also attended today's session. He has been attempting to find a basis for agreement.

Solons Probe Quickie Deals In Babies

CHICAGO (AP)—Senate investigators heard testimony Saturday of "quickie" baby adoption deals with ramifications in New York, Iowa, Indiana and Duluth, Minn.

Three mothers whose babies were subjects of transactions testified from behind a large screen in the old U. S. courthouse hearing room from where the Senate subcommittee on juvenile delinquency held its third and final day of Chicago hearings.

The mothers' identities were not disclosed. Two merely affirmed statements of their experiences read by subcommittee counsel Ernest A. Mitler.

A third mother who testified from behind the screen sobbed uncontrollably at times as she related that her baby had been taken from her by a subterfuge.

This mother testified that she was shown a death certificate actually pertaining to another child, on which her baby's name had been entered.

The testimony was heard by Sen. Kefauver (D-Tenn), chairman of the subcommittee, and another member, Sen. Langer (R-N.Dak.)

Rain Pelts East Areas, Northwest

By the Associated Press

Showers and thunderstorms were general Saturday over much of the nation's eastern half, and there was light rain in Oregon and Washington.

Amounts varied up to a two-inch accumulation at Syracuse, N. Y., in a 24-hour period. Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., recorded more than one inch.

It was mostly cloudy from the upper and middle Mississippi valley eastward to the Atlantic coast, and partly cloudy over much of the rest of the country.

Temperatures were hottest in the southwest desert region, the mercury climbing to the 104-degree mark at Needles, Calif., by early afternoon.

Need USO More in Peace Than War, Says Hall

LOS ANGELES (UP) — Adm. John Leslie Hall Jr., (USN-Ret.) said today the United Service Organization is more necessary in peacetime than during war.

"I am one of those who believe that what USO does is more important in peacetime," the admiral said. He was appointed national fund - raising chairman for the 1955 USO campaign by President Eisenhower.

"Everybody's morale is high while the fighting is on," Hall said, "but in the apathy of peace, a man in uniform feels he loses a little caste with the public," Hall said. "The USO helps correct this by providing recreation, entertainment and spiritual and moral guidance."

Sabotage Hinted in Mexico Crash

MEXICO CITY (AP)—The newspaper Ultimas Noticias said Saturday sabotage may have caused Thursday's crash of an airliner near Oaxaca in which 22 were reported killed.

The newspaper quoted Tomas Calderon, manager of the Lausa Airline, as saying a bomb exploded while the plane was in flight.

Among the victims was a newly-elected congressman. The newspaper speculated political motives might be behind the sabotage.

Tax-Dodger Convictions Up 100 Pct.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department reported Saturday that criminal convictions under the internal revenue laws in the first half of this year were more than double those in the same period of 1952.

More than 99 per cent of the cases involved income-tax evasions.

In a mid-year report to Atty. Gen. Brownell, Asst. Atty. Gen. H. Brian Holland, who runs the tax division, listed 389 convictions for income-tax and social-security-tax violation. The latter accounted for only a slight fraction of the total.

Holland said this compared with 190 similar convictions in the first six months of 1952.

George Raps House Foreign Aid Cut

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. George (D-Ga) said Saturday the House cut too deeply into foreign aid funds and he will fight to restore at least a part of the $628,000,000 slash.

George, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said he is particularly concerned by House action cutting in half a 200 million dollar fund requested by the President for Asian economic development.

The House Appropriations Committee contended that only 100 millions of this amount would be spent in the current year. Administration leaders said approval of the full amount is needed in order to set up longer range projects.

George said he regards this fund as "one of the most important" of those included under the $3,285,000,000 foreign aid ceiling previously authorized by Congress. Eisenhower asked $3,266,000,000 in actual appropriations and the House cut these to $2,638,000,000.

"I think the House cut much too deeply, even assuming that some of the cuts might be justified," George said. "I hope that some of these funds are restored and I shall work toward that end."

Quaint Old Latin Custom Frowned On in Rome Now

ROME (AP)—This city of romantic ways has started a police crackdown on pappagalli — the parrots.

That's the name in Roman dialect for sidewalk loafers whose remarks offend women tourists.

For years police overlooked it as just an old Latin custom. This summer, police headquarters sent out orders for the crackdown because the parrots were becoming more aggressive.

Russ Farm Experts Land; Hosts Plan Diplomatic Food, Not Talk

NEW YORK (UP)—Fifteen Russian agricultural experts arrived here for a U.S. farm tour Saturday and were promised that they would hear only the international language of food, not diplomatic talk, during their stay.

Following the old adage, "The way to a man's heart is through his stomach," Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Earl L. Butz told the visitors:

"If the world has any universal language, it is the language of food. We expect to speak to you in that language during your stay with us."

The 15 Russians from the land of potatoes, black bread and beets arrived en route to Iowa to see how the tall corn grows. A 12-man delegation of American farmers landed in Moscow Friday night, in the first exchange of technical missions between the U. S. and Russia since the start of the cold war.

Joe Costa, chairman of the board of the National Press Photographers' Association, welcomed the Russian delegation in behalf of the press and gave each of the 15 a 35-milimeter camera worth $50.

"Use these cameras as often as you can wherever you go," Costa told the beaming 15.

He told them that photographers believe "one picture is worth 1,000 words," and that they should take pictures of America and Americans home to their friends and families.

The Russians ranged from 39 to 58 years of age. None was identified as a farmer. All represented government groups or publications and were listed as agronomists, agricultural scientists or technicians.

"We believe firmly that it will be good for both of our nations to understand each other," Butz said in greeting the party.

He told the men they would visit "typical" midwestern farms and homes and would meet the families. American farmers are "staunchly independent," Butz told the delegation. They own their own farms, livestock and equipment, he said, and their whole way of life "typifies the American system of free enterprise."

There are "no secrets" to the American agricultural system, Butz said.

Americans Favored Guests at Exhibition

MOSCOW (UP)—A group of American farm experts cheerfully munched prize peaches, apples and cherries Saturday at the vast Soviet Agricultural Exhibition. Ordinary visitors are forbidden to touch the fruit.

The 12 Americans were driven around the exhibition grounds in seven limousines, accompanied by Acting Director A. N. Tsitsin.

Ordinarily, visitors walk through the exhibition which is in dozens of buildings in an area of several hundred acres.

The Americans visited the main exhibition hall and the building of the Georgian Republic. They were greeted everywhere by managers of the individual exhibits.

Although ordinary visitors are strictly forbidden to touch the exhibits, the Americans were offered platters of fruit and ate with relish.

They said that what they saw and ate was very good and comparable to fruits in the U.S.

Delegation leader W. V. Lambert, dean of the college of agriculture of the University of Nebraska, called the exhibition "magnificent."

He added that American state and county fairs, which receive no government subsidies, could not match this one.

The delegation, which arrived here Friday, probably will leave Monday night for Kharkov by train and start its month-long tour of the Ukraine, Caucasus and Central Asia.

Brazilians Cheer as Papal Legate Lands for Ceremony

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) Cheering Brazilians greeted Papal Legate Benedetto Cardinal Aloisi Masella Saturday as he arrived aboard the Italian liner Augustus to preside over the 36th International Eucharistic Congress.

The congress opens Tuesday. Two million persons, including 20,000 from foreign lands, are expected to participate in the 8,000 masses which will be celebrated in the five days of the congress and the two days of preliminary religious services. Eighty-eight clergymen and laymen from the United States will be on hand.

Dressed in a red silk robe with a lace surplice, Cardinal Aloisi Masella stopped several times on the ship's landing stairway to bless the enthusiastic throng. As he walked down, preceded by Vatican Swiss Guardsmen, guns of the Brazilian army and navy thundered a 21-gun salute. Four jet planes roared overhead and ships in the harbor blew their whistles in greeting.

The congress, fourth to be held in the Western Hemisphere, is one of the richest and most colorful religious manifestations in the world. It is designed to emphasize the importance of the Eucharist, or the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper, in the daily lives of men.

Dear Dr. Chan: "The day I came to your office with my mother and brother I was about to give up hope of getting rid of my asthma attacks. I spent hundreds of dollars for shots and pills, but yet found no results. After reading your advertisement, I tried you for my last resort and was thrilled to find that I responded wonderfully. After the first treatment, I was able to breathe normally and could sleep better for the first time in months. Now I am feeling fine and hoping others will benefit from my experience with Dr. Chan's Natural Method."
Signed: Mrs. Vivian Murray.

To Whom It May Concern: "For over 20 years I have been going from one doctor's office to another hopin' to find someone to help me with my asthma and stomach condition. No one knows how much I had suffered until I came to Dr. Chan. Night after night I had to sit up because I wasn't able to lie down to sleep. I was coughing and wheezing most of the night, besides my stomach was full of gas. After taking Dr. Chan's Herbal Therapy for one week, I began to improve. Now, after five months of continuous treatment, my asthma and stomach troubles are just about over. I wish to recommend this treatment to anyone who is anxious to get well. Universe Lovelies Parade Today!

LOOK out, world, here comes the Davy Crockett song.

The ballad about the guy from the wild frontier will be carried to the far corners by the Miss Universe lovelies if a steel-throated beauty from Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania named Marianne Marcus continues the vocal crusade she started on the SS Shearwater Friday eve.

Aided by some American teammates, Miss Marcus collected a group of foreign girls on the deck of the sightseeing boat taking the beauties on a night tour of our harbor waters.

It turned out Miss Marcus knew just about all the songs that Americans have been singing for a generation or two. She sang 'em, from Moonlight Bay on through, and she had the foreign lasses singing with her, regardless of their knowledge of the words or even the English language. The Crockett thing, of course, topped the bill.

Possibly the most enthusiastic participants were Claudie Petit, Miss France, and Nicole de Meyer, Miss Belgium. They left the boat humming the song about the man who knew no fear.

THERE was some Scandinavian singing, too, on the Shearwater.

Miss Sweden (Hillevi Rombin) and Miss Norway (Solveig Borstad) gathered with Scandinavian friends on the side of the craft as it passed first a Norwegian and then a Swedish ship tied up at Pier A.

And they sang, as loudly as they could so the crewmen could hear, some of the favorite songs of the north country. Nostalgia must have been pretty thick way up on those high decks, where men leaned over the rails and waved.

A BLONDE beauty on the Shearwater who said she likes enemy country was Marlies Gessler, Miss Florida.

This sweet gal told me she had to confess California isn't bad at all. But she's lived only four years in Florida, having been born in Poland and having lived most of her short life in Germany.

When Jim McGarrigle, who was present to lead a little singing himself, asked her if she liked California orange juice, she said:

"I had one drink of it and it seemed very good. But of course, I was very thirsty at the time."

ANOTHER quip from Mary Miles Daughters, Miss Texas, who was asked how come she's not six feet tall, as Texas gals are supposed to be.

"Oh, we've been having a drought in Texas," she said. "Things aren't growing quite so big."

I HAD A little talk with Dorothey Bewley, Miss Colorado, who told me how she got the news she had been chosen.

She and a flock of other contestants were on the stage of a Denver theater. Dorothey, who doubted if she had a chance, was doing a little quiet praying over at the end of the line, oblivious to her surroundings.

And then the girl next to her shook her. "You're it," she cried.

A MAN WRITES his record as he goes along, I've often said, and a part of mine rose up to mock me on the Shearwater.

It happens that a couple of years ago I was one of a panel of judges who selected a regional queen for the Amvets. Among the contestants was a little gal named Donna Schurr.

Donna placed third in that contest. This year, she was chosen Miss California for the Miss Universe pageant. I've already had a letter or two from Garden Grove asking how I would wiggle out of that one.

Well, I saw Donna on the Shearwater and disclosed my identity. "You've developed some since then," I said. "And besides that, I'm sure I voted for you in the Amvets and was outvoted by the other judges."

Donna looked unconvinced.

"Listen," she said. "This is fine. But that time, you judges kept me from a trip clear to Florida. This time, I win—and I get a trip of 12 miles."

My friends are always talking enviously to me because I get to serve now and then as a beauty judge. "It's nice work if you can get it," they say.

Nice work, all right. But it has its hazards.

15 Latin-American Girls Modest Over Title Hopes

Below Border Beauty May Be Pageant Victor

This may be Latin America's year in the Miss Universe Beauty Pageant, the pundits of pulchritude believe.

Fifteen of the 32 international entries this year hail from nations south of the border. Percentagewise, that gives the Spanish and Portuguese-speaking beauties a better than average opportunity to be represented in the finals of the 1955 contest.

The Latin girls themselves are divided in opinion as to their chances to wind up wearer of the $250,000 Miss Universe crown.

"I don't lose my hopes," remarked blond Inge Hoffman (Miss Uruguay). The Montevideo girl's blue eyes sparkled when someone mentioned the Miss Universe title.

"Not a chance," said dark-haired Rosa Merello, 18, of Santiago (Miss Chile). Senorita Merello doesn't speak English and answered in Spanish.

Her interpreter, Isabel Sarli, 25, (Miss Argentina) repeated the question. Senorita Merello then amended her answer.

"Chile says that the Latin American girls have the same chance to win," Miss Argentina said. She then added her own comment: "All the girls are beautiful."

"I would like heartily for a Latin American girl to be Miss Universe," said 19-year-old Maribel Arrieta (Miss El Salvador). "But Miss England is very beautiful," she continued.

Miss El Salvador, a green-eyed blonde who resembles Marilyn Monroe, said that Miss Brazil (Emilia Barreto Correa Lima) is another of her favorites.

"She is very elegant," Senorita Arrieta said.

Yolanda Mayen, 18-year-old brownette from Tijuana (Miss Mexico) said, "All the girls are beautiful—no exceptions."

Asked to describe the typical Latin American girl, Miss Mexico said that "she has sympathy . . . she is friendly."

Leonor Carcache (Miss Ecuador) showed no concern over the outcome of the judging.

"We are happy to be here," she said in precise English.

Even those Latin American press representatives in Long Beach for the pageant couldn't make up their minds, but Almeida Castro of the Associated Dailies of Fortaleza, Brazil, summed up the consensus:

"We are hopeful that one of the Latin American girls will win."

Walter Batista Moreno, of the Brazilian magazine, O Povo, admitted, however, that he likes Miss England.

Joao Martins, writer for another Brazilian periodical, O Cruzeino, put it this way:

"If we don't win, we are not angry. The thing is to contest, not to win."

He's such a fine guy we decided to give him his Christmas present a little early," one of his "customers" said.

USS Tucker Will Host 21 Contestants

Twenty-one Miss Universe Pageant contestants will be guests of the United States Navy this morning aboard the destroyer Henry W. Tucker.

Officers said the security guard around the ship has been doubled to make sure sailors aboard other ships at the Naval Station don't crash the party.

The girls will leave the Wilton Hotel in a bus at 9:30 a.m. and will stay aboard the ship until after chow at 11 a.m.

After eating, they will return to the hotel to prepare for this afternoon's parade.

Aboard ship, each girl will have a special escort, chosen from among those enlisted men noted for good behavior. The beauties will spend the entire time aboard with enlisted men, following a brief reception in the captain's cabin.

The invitation was extended by Capt. R. M. Ross, skipper of the Tucker. Arrangements were made by Lt. (jg) George M. Carr.

Bike Riders Start Across U.S. Monday

Two youths will leave Long Beach Monday on a coast-to-coast bicycle ride which they hope will condition them for possible participation in Olympic Games cycling events.

They are David Grebner, 20, of 2312 Carfax Ave., and Russell Phares, 23, of Philadelphia, both students at California State Polytechnic College at San Dimas.

The youths will dip the front wheels of their bicycles in the Pacific Ocean this afternoon, a ceremony they hope to repeat in the waters of the Atlantic Ocean in about 30 days.

The pair will head for Phares' home in Philadelphia, then may turn north to New York and a tour of the New England states if they have time before school opens in the fall.

Time will also decide whether they will ride the bikes back to California or ship them and return by train.

UNOFFICIAL, BUT---

Miss Nebraska Favored for Her Congeniality

The unofficial judging for the title of Miss Congeniality, to be bestowed on the Miss Universe contestant who proves to be the friendliest, is under way—and the favorite seems to be Miss Nebraska, Donna Streever.

Not unaware that the prejudging has begun, Donna has been charming all and sundry since her arrival here for the contest.

Saturday night, Donna presented Mayor George Vermillion a gift not calculated to lose her any votes.

Traditionally each contestant presents the mayor a gift, symbolic of the country or state she represents.

"I'm going to give him a kiss, from the hospitable state of Nebraska," Donna said in a pre-giving interview.

Who Is Your Favorite Girl?

The Miss Universe Beauty Pageant parade this afternoon will be your opportunity to vote for the lovely of your choice. There's a ballot on this page.

And you needn't stand to see the parade. Bleacher seats at choice locations on Ocean Blvd. will be available at popular prices. Parade starting time is 2:30 p.m. The route extends on Ocean Blvd. between Alamitos and Magnolia Ave.

Nebeker Proclaimed Jaycee-of-the-Year

Gene Nebeker, mayor pro tem of the City of Lakewood, was named Jaycee-of-the Year by the Lakewood Junior Chamber of Commerce at its annual installation dinner Saturday night in the Lafayette Hotel.

Presentation of the award was made by Jack Morgan, last year's Lakewood Jaycee-of-the-Year.

Nebeker was cited for his leadership in Junior Chamber aims and for community leadership.

During the year, Morgan said, Nebeker headed a membership drive which increased membership 20 per cent, outlined a leadership training program for the organization and was Lakewood's nominee as one of the outstanding young men of the state.

Nebeker was co-chairman of the Jaycee-sponsored Lakewood Community Fair and he sponsored legislation for mortgage holders to send receipted tax bills to homeowners.

In other award presentations, Kenneth Farrar, general manager of the Douglas Long Beach plant, was named "Boss of the Year."

Honors as the outstanding new Jaycee went to James Slaughter.

Picked as key men, "essential to the success of the organization and its projects," were Nebeker, Slaughter, Tom Just, Frank Henzel, Ted Sullivan, Art Powell and Carl Lemons.

Lakewood's five city councilmen and the chairmen of the Planning and Traffic and Safety Commissions were made honorary members.

The Independent, Press-Telegram was given an award for its coverage of Jaycee projects and activities.

City College Classes Filled at Fast Pace

Students intending to enroll in City College Liberal Arts Division day classes next fall were advised Saturday by Lakewood campus officials that nearly 100 fall class sections have already been closed.

Pre-registration of new and continuing students reached the 1500 mark last week, according to Assistant Dean Harper C. Wren. Since nearly 20 per cent of the scheduled 519 day class sections have already been filled, Wren said, only students who pre-register early can be assured of first choice in classes and hours.

First step for prospective fall semester day students in either the Liberal Arts or Business and Technology divisions is to take the College Aptitude Tests, used for counseling and program planning. Tests are scheduled from 1-5 p. m. Friday in the Business and Technology division cafeteria, 1305 E. Pacific Coast Hwy. Additional test dates are July 26, 6-10 p. m., and Aug. 5, 8 a. m. to noon.

Arrangements to take the aptitude tests may be made by telephoning 7-6481. At the same time, prospective students should have their transcripts sent either to the Liberal Arts Division, 4901 E. Carson St., or to the Business and Technology Division.

Students who have completed the aptitude tests and have transcripts on file may make counseling appointments by telephoning 5-1221 (Liberal Arts) or 7-6481 (Business and Technology). There is no pre-registration for City College evening students.

Recently discharged veterans who plan to enroll in the fall semester should begin pre-enrollment procedures as early as possible, Wren said. A veterans' counselor will be available on the Lakewood campus from 6:30-9:30 p. m. Tuesday and during the same hours on July 26 and Aug. 1.

IS YOUR DOG UNHAPPY?

Library Offers Variety of Books on Pet Care

Is your pet neurotic—unhappy with his lot in life? The Long Beach Public Library suggests that any pet will be healthier and happier with a well-informed owner who has discovered the library's books on the care and enjoyment of pets.

Popular with pet owners are the books by Leon Whitney—"First Aid for Pets" and "The Complete Book of Home Pet Care." Jack Baird's "Standard Book of Household Pets" tells how to choose, care for and enjoy the animal best suited to your way of life. Chicago Tribune columnist Bob Becker writes about dogs, cats, birds and fish in "Bob Becker's Pet Book."

Included in the library's books on animals are Margaret Shaw's "Animals as Friends and How to Keep Them," Helen Martini's "My Zoo Family," and Clifford Moore's Book of Wild Pets."

If a dog is your favored companion, the library suggests Greenfield's "Your Dog in the City," Lorenz's "Man Meets Dog," the American Kennel Club's "Purebred Dogs," Hickey's "Know Your Dog," or Kinney's "How to Raise a Dog in the City." Books on dog training are: "Judy's Training the Dog," and Saunder's "Complete Book of Dog Obedience."

"The Complete Book of Cat Care," by Leon Whitney; Lauder's "Siamese Cats" and Kellino's "The Cats in Our Lives" are but three of the library's many titles for the lover of cats.

If bird cages strike your fancy, you may want to read Denlinger's "Parakeets: Their Breeding, Training and Management," Hausman's "The Care and Training of Home Cage Birds," "Bird Keeping for Novice and Expert," by Nicholas, or Eckstein's "Canary." The fish owner will be most interested in Vondy's "Tropical Fish in the Home Aquarium" or Axelrod's "Tropical Fish as a Hobby."

Whether you have a guppy or a St. Bernard, if you suspect that you may be standing between your pet and complete happiness, the Long Beach Public Library suggests an immediate visit to the main library or the branch library nearest your home.

WHERE HISTORY WAS MADE

'For Sale' Sign Up on Bixby Residence

Old-timers, remember the Jotham Bixby house that for many years stood at W. Ocean Blvd. and Magnolia Ave.? A big, two-and-one-half-story structure, redwood painted gray?

Ten years ago it was moved from Ocean and Magnolia to 4700 E. 4th St. (Roycroft and 4th.)

Now it's for sale, yours for $22,500.

Jotham Bixby, usually referred to as the "father" of Long Beach, lived 15 years at Los Cerritos Rancho, five years in Los Angeles and built this house in the winter of 1884-1885, according to Walter Case, Long Beach historian.

For years it was the social center, and in a sense the political center of the city, because the Bixbys entertained widely. Many city, county and state laws are said to have been drafted within its walls.

The Bixbys sold the house about 35 years ago to Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Howard, world travelers who wished to settle down in Long Beach.

Ten years ago, Mrs. Laura Q. Smith bought the house and moved it to the present location. It had to be sawed in two and the attic taken off in order to be moved. Then it was reassembled. It now is covered with asbestos siding.

Mrs. Smith and Myron D. Howard were married June 14, and they find it a lot of house for two people. That's why it is offered for sale.

The house, characterized by the bay and dormer windows of the 1880's, has 14 rooms, an attic and four bathrooms. Downstairs ceilings are 15 feet high. Most of the rooms are enormous. The house is 90 per cent redwood.

Drawing room, library and dining room have fireplaces. The drawing room and library fireplaces are topped with French bevelled mirrors that came around the Horn.

If it is not sold, the Howards think they may convert the house into an art gallery. Howard's son, Stanley Howard, who served with the U. S. Air Force in England, is home with his Polish bride, Stefa. Stefa, who graduated in art from the University of Krakow, brought a great deal of art from Poland.

Try This When You Are 77

ELIZABETH AND ERNEST SEARLE
"I Think He's a Wonderful Man"

By BRYAN HODGSON

Ernest Searle, a chipper chap of 77 years who lives at 1501 Bailey Way, is a man with an unusual outlook on life—and not necessarily because he likes to stand on his head.

Searle is convinced that the only way to stay young is to keep active, and at his present pace he might make many a modern teen-ager look a little gray by comparison.

Standing on his head for 10 minutes each morning and evening is a regular part of his program.

"Nothing like it for stirring up the system," he believes, and his wife, Elizabeth, 71, who joins him in his ritual inversions, agrees.

The happy couple, who came to Long Beach eight years ago from Seattle, don't like to be confused with health faddists. They just like to enjoy themselves—sensibly.

"There's so many things for old folks to do in Long Beach that we can't keep up with them," Searle said. "We used to go to three dances a week, but we had to cut down to two a month."

In between dancing, bridge games, lawn bowling and doing energetic odd jobs around their tiny and immaculate home, the Searles manage to walk many miles a month.

"People don't walk enough these days," Searle said. "They look on it as a chore rather than a pleasure."

The Searles, who are currently waiting for their two great-grandchildren to grow up, are firm believers in moderation.

"Sure, I smoke," he confessed. "Tried to quit several times, but never made a go of it. Finally decided to roll my own—it's too easy to reach for tailormades. I drink, too, but not much and not often."

Says Elizabeth, "I think he's a wonderful man—but a bit of a fanatic in some ways."

Searle was born in London, Eng., but caught a case of wanderlust in his teens. After working in such places as Australia, Honolulu, New Zealand and Africa, he arrived in Seattle and settled down to work as a builder.

He met Elizabeth in Vancouver, B. C., while she was on vacation and they married after an energetic courtship of three weeks.

"I took her to live up there in a log cabin for 18 months to find out if she was any good," he twinkles.

After 50 years in Seattle, the Searles began to feel the need for a change, and they moved to Long Beach.

"Wonderful place," Searle chuckles. "All this sunshine has made me feel years younger."

GINA LOLLOBRIGIDA . . . Dinner Hostess

It Happened Last Night
By Earl Wilson

'GINA CAN DO EVERYTHING'

ROME—The B.W. and I felt very honored when Gina Lollobrigida invited us to Sunday lunch at her new home at 223 Appian Way.

So come along—it's a walled-in, 1½-acre plot 15 minutes out—and in the front lawn is an ancient cemetery of some Romans who died around 200 A.D.

"And here"—she and her husband, Dr. Miko Skofic, had led us to the roof of the big three-story house—"is my trap-izzzz."

"I am practice here on my ropes for my next picture, 'Trapizzzz.'"

Lollo will do "Trapeze" after "The Most Beautiful Woman in the World." She and her husband are charming hosts.

"How do you like being mistress of a big home?" I asked—for when I'd last seen her here, she had an apartment, not a showplace.

"Fine, except I have to work so hard, to pay," she pouted. "I am very tired."

Her English has improved remarkably; she's studying singing and fencing (for her present picture) and she sincerely wants to do "Serenade" on Broadway because Leonard Bernstein believes she has an outstanding voice and has promised to do the music.

"My maestro said if I studied singing with him he is willing to give me a contract with the opera," Gina said.

"But I don't need," she shrugged.

"But I think I will sing because it is possible to make much money on records without work very hard."

"Gina can do everything," her husband commented.

It seems true. She's studying fencing with a champion for a duel scene.

Gina seems to grow more beautiful and it seems that one day she must be in Hollywood and on Broadway also. Her contract trouble with Howard Hughes and RKO will be solved eventually—and then she will be even more famous than now.

THE WEEK-END WINDUP . . .

Ezio Pinza's proudest memento is the foul ball he caught at Ebbets Field . . . Farouk's selling his fabulous stamp album to get eating money.

At Rosoff's a diner offered this evidence: "Let your wife know who's boss right from the start—there's no use kidding yourself."

A huge bottle (on a sign) has been erected in Times Square, and Harry (Balmoral) Toffel knows how to launch it: smash a ship against it. That's earl, brother.

'We Shook Family Tree' Will Open Friday Evening

"We Shook the Family Tree," the Christopher Sergel comedy riot that takes audiences back to the days when boys wore knee pants, opens next Friday evening in Long Beach Community Playhouse, 5021 E. Anaheim St.

"Family Tree," selected to give teen-ager players a chance to get into the act, concerns the desperate efforts of a high school girl to get a date for the big school dance. When she convinces her mother that she's destined for spinsterhood if she misses this one prom, and the mother arranges a date for her with the school joke—the only boy in the class who wears knee pants—things really begin to happen, and the happy solution comes in a whirlwind of laughter.

Director Larry Johns said Irene Wechselberg will play the part of Hildegarde, the girl, and Bob Yantorn will have the part of Freddie Shermer, the boy in knee pants. Keith Houdyshell, an old Playhouse favorite, appears as Hildegarde's father, and Ruth Wagner as the girl's mother. Martha Knowles, another veteran of the center stage, will be seen as Mrs. Shermer, Freddie's mother.

Others in the cast: Erner Wheeler, as Mr. Shermer; Jane Carmichael, Sally Dolson; Patrick Tomter, Bob Dolson; David Day, Jimmie Dolson; Jo Dee Eilers and Wendy Wagner, Ellie May and Jill, girl friends of Hildegarde; and Trudy Crane as Paige, the neighbor girl.

A second performance of "Family Tree" will be given Saturday night and the play will continue thereafter each Thursday, Friday and Saturday evening through Sept. 3. Curtain time is 7:45 on Thursdays, 8:30 on Fridays and Saturdays.

Davy Crockett Vs. Congress!

(Editor's Note: The following report on Davy Crockett's congressional record was compiled from his own purported writings, standard reference works and the semi-official forerunners of the modern Congressional Record—Gales & Seaton's Records of Debates and Rives & Blair's Congressional Globe.

(In fairness to Crockett, it should be pointed out that in Davy's era the brag and the tall tale were the common property of many heroes of the frontier and sometimes, on their own ground, they made their boasts stick. A case in point is the Alamo.)

By ROBERT E. LEE

WASHINGTON—Davy Crockett spent six years in Congress "trying to fix up the government laws" as the legend has it, but he could have used one of his latter-day public relations experts to insure his reputation as a popular figure of the day.

Instead of being the best-liked man in Congress—as his biographers would have it—there is ample evidence that he was regarded by many as more of a nuisance.

Legend apparently has it right that he was homespun, independent and impeccably honest. But if Davy did anything constructive during his three terms, the records fail to show it.

The intrepid bear hunter spoke seldom, briefly and with little influence on fellow members. He sponsored not one piece of major legislation, voted mostly with the minority and managed to antagonize other Tennesseans in the House of Representatives so that even his pet local projects were squashed.

There is also evidence that Crockett himself would not have looked with disfavor on the idea of a press agent, since his maiden speech on the House floor appears to have been ghost-written.

This speech, on April 29, 1828, was one of his few serious attempts at logical argument. He spoke against a bill to give federally-owned lands in Tennessee to the state, a measure supported by all his Tennessee colleagues. Davy wanted the settlers, not the state, to have the land.

The scholarly flavor of the speech and its sophisticated phrasing have led some historians to question whether he wrote it himself.

"Many of our citizens who encountered the early fatigues and privations of that country are still without homes," he told the House.

"They have looked fondly forward to that period which would enable them, instead of being tenants, to which condition they have been reduced, to become owners of at least some humble spot, on which to labor and which they can call their own."

His proposal, said Crockett, "would not only make glad the hearts of the poor (but) would snatch from the vale of poverty and obscurity many a youth, and dispel the gloom of ignorance which shrouds him."

Most of Crockett's other recorded remarks were more in the "Wa'al, I reckon" style familiar to 20th Century television and motion picture audiences.

A favorite phrase toward the end of his career, when he had become almost psychopathically opposed to everything Jacksonian and sometimes had to be called to order by the chair, was:

"That don't make good sense; it don't even make good nonsense."

Often Davy complained, as debate in the House dragged on, that long speeches "have gotten to be fashionable" and he wanted to vote without further ado.

Accusing Jackson one day of talking much but not acting on cutting down government expenses, Davy said the situation reminded him of the fellow who tried to shave a hog—"a great cry and little wool."

Many of the modest portfolio of measures he introduced were lightly regarded by his fellow congressmen. One example was his resolution to abolish West Point because he thought it was the training ground for sissies.

He charged that the Point was being run "for the benefit of the noble and wealthy" and that the graduates were "too delicate and could not rough it. When they leave school they are too nice for hard service."

(Crockett's views on the Point were widely shared among frontiersmen. The history of the West is full of incidents in which Academy graduates were outmaneuvered by their Indian opponents. The most famous debacle, of course, was Custer's rout on the Little Big Horn.)

Another of his measures was an amendment to an important bill for federal funds to provide a road between Buffalo and New Orleans, via Washington. The amendment proposed a slight detour in the route—beginning at Washington and ending at Memphis, in Crockett's own district.

ON THE OTHER HAND, Davy proved himself a friend of the frontier Indian and a courageous crusader in his behalf.

He vigorously opposed Jackson's program to remove five Indian tribes to land west of the Mississippi, insisting that it was unfair to the red men and in violation of their treaties.

Crockett was elected to Congress as a Democrat in 1827. A lukewarm supporter of his party's policies during the last years of John Quincy Adams' administration, he was reelected in 1829 as Andrew Jackson rode a landslide of "Common Man" indignation to the presidency.

But Davy clashed violently with the President and other Tennesseans in the House, and lost a close vote for reelection in 1831. He came back as a Whig in 1832 and became a sort of amiable political mascot for the new party—always good for a laugh and a crack at his fellow-Tennessean in the White House. He lost his seat in 1835.

Davy hated to spend public money, unless it directly benefited his district. And he so hated Jackson, perhaps for keeping the Tennessee volunteers on the job in the Creek War years before when they wanted to go home, that he voted against many appropriations bills.

Congress should provide no more funds, he once said. It was "useless" because Jackson himself was "the government" and just "laughed" at what Congress did.

"Let's all go home," he told the House, "and let the people live one year on glory, and it will bring them to their senses and they will send us back here and teach us to make the gentleman in the White House take down his flag."

"That Don't Make Good Sense; Don't Even Make Good Nonsense."

Once he told Polk, who represented the district adjoining his and who was floor manager for much Jackson legislation:

"I was also a supporter of this administration after it came into power and until the Chief Magistrate changed the principles he had professed . . . When he quitted those principles, I quit him . . . I am still a Jackson man but General Jackson is not; he has become a Van Buren man."

ONE OF THE fascinating tall tales in the Crockett legend is that he twice rejected nomination for the presidency.

Source of this nonsense is a remarkably cruel book called "The Life of Martin Van Buren," to which Crockett's name was attached. It was part of a desperate smear campaign by which the Whigs hoped to discredit President Andrew Jackson's hand-picked successor in 1836.

Written in a first person, frontier dialect, the book frankly noted that some readers would doubt Crockett's authorship—just as his later "autobiography" is questioned by some scholars.

The point about the nominations was that if Davy could turn them down, so should Van Buren. But the Van Buren smear is interesting in that Davy was the man selected as purported author.

It is an indicator of the bear hunter's niche in American history—that of a genial, bumbling tool of the Whigs and a "showpiece of conservatism," as one historian of the age of Jackson calls him.

(It is also an indicator of Davy's popular following that his name should be linked with the presidency, however negatively.—Ed.)

It was as a Whig and a crony of Easterners that Davy made his biggest splash in public life.

In the Spring of 1834 the Whigs sent him on a speaking tour through New England and the Middle Atlantic states. The "autobiography" gives this explanation for the long junket:

"I seemed to like members of Congress who came from these parts, and wished to know what kind of constituents they had."

Crockett was 48 at the time and probably at the height of his story-telling powers. He also fancied himself quite a political pundit. Though his ego was inflated to a degree that must have made him unbearable, the trip was a personal triumph—if the "autobiography" can be believed at all.

It says that as his ship entered Philadelphia harbor, the captain ran up three flags as a signal Davy was aboard. Approaching the wharf, "I saw the whole face of the earth covered with people, all anxiously looking on toward the boat."

His admirers followed Davy up the street and into his hotel, demanding a speech. He put them off until the next day, when, 5,000 strong, they reappeared. But he had trouble getting started because "the huzzas for Crockett were so loud and long." Later, the Young Whig organization gave him a rifle.

In New York, Davy called on the mayor, visited newspaper offices and dined with the Young Whigs.

In Boston he was entertained by still more Young Whigs, "who toasted me very warmly." He saw the local sights, did some drinking with the lieutenant governor and refused to go to nearby Harvard University for fear "they might stick an LLD on me."

All along the way he told jokes, castigated Jackson and held himself up as a staunch defender of the Constitution.

But the journey backfired locally. A year later Crockett's constituents, accusing him of hobnobbing with Eastern aristocrats, ended his political career by electing one Adam Huntsman as their representative in Congress.

So Davy left it to Clay and Webster to hold the fort against Jacksonian extravagance and went off to die at the Alamo.

Cronkhite Still Missing, Last Heard From May 24

Whereabouts of John R. Cronkhite, 26, a Korean War veteran, is as much of a mystery today as on May 24 when he disappeared from his Long Beach apartment at 1500 E. 1st St., according to the Police Missing Persons Bureau.

JOHN CRONKHITE
Still Among the Missing

Last person to hear from Cronkhite appears to be Lillian Henningsen, 28, of 96 Cerritos Ave. He telephoned her from Westminster the night he disappeared.

"I hope nothing ever happens to you girls," Cronkhite said to Lillian. He referred to Lillian and her roommate, Mary Ann Foster, 21.

Cronkhite said he was driving in from Westminster and would stop for coffee. He never arrived.

The two girls had known him for about three months and considered him "a good friend," who helped them get jobs.

Another girl, Patricia Fisk Valliere, of 1631 Seal Way, Seal Beach, told police that she had gone with Cronkhite for six months prior to his disappearance and had promised to marry him.

However, on May 24, she had "a showdown with Jack," and told him that she was going to marry someone else, which she did. According to her, Cronkhite "went into an emotional tailspin." She never heard from him again.

Cronklite was employed by the General Motors Acceptance Corp., 3977 Atlantic Ave. When he disappeared he was driving a light blue 1955 Chevrolet two-door.

M. F. McCullough, manager of the corporation's office here, described Cronkhite as 6 feet tall, weighing 220 pounds, blue eyes, brown receding hair. He was injured in the Korean War and received a disability pension.

Mountain to Hold Statue of Christ

GRESSONEY, Italy (AP)—Italy, which has an underwater statue of Christ for victims of the sea, soon will erect a "Christ of the Peaks" for those who die climbing mountains. Piece by piece, the bronze statue, 12 feet high, will be hauled to the 12,489-foot Balmenhorn Peak and set up there, near the French-Italian border.

CAPITOL CAPERS

By WESLEY PEYTON and ROBERT E. LEE
(of The Independent-Press-Telegram Washington Bureau)

WASHINGTON—The first hat has been thrown into the 1956 presidential ring. It belongs to Mrs. Agnes Waters, who has distributed pictures of herself—hatless—captioned: "The only woman candidate for president U. S. A. 1956."

Mrs. Waters, who lives here, is being plugged by a pamphlet called "Women's Voice" which is against NATO, the UN and even the Bricker amendment ("it destroys states' rights").

Mrs. Waters is also against the draft. "It is absolutely unconstitutional," she testified before the House Armed Services Committee last winter, "because you cannot send our men universally all over the world to fight other people's battles."

Correspondents expect to hear little or nothing from or of Mrs. Waters during the forthcoming election fights, but she already has injected one new note in campaigning: Her pictures are inscribed "To you, with Love, Agnes Waters."

One member of the unlucky Dixon-Yates combine didn't draw a complete blank—Edgar H. Dixon won a consolation prize in the form of a new automobile at a charity event. Dixon was particularly happy because among the thousands of losers were several score congressmen who had been out after his scalp.

A Japanese politician who visited here recently had lunch with his ambassador and Clayton Fritchey, deputy director of the Democratic National Committee.

After they were seated, Fritchey opened the conversation by asking the Japanese: "Well, gentlemen, what do you want to talk about?"

Replied the Japanese ambassador: "We thought we'd ask you how you raise campaign funds."

"Funny thing," said Fritchey, "that's precisely the question I was going to ask you."

Mrs. Coya Knutson, the congresswoman from Minnesota, reports that when Burmese Premier U Nu visited the House of Representatives there was a concerted move afoot to have him meet Rep. John C. Watts of Kentucky. The members were anxious to watch a "Watts-Nu" introduction.

California congressional offices hear that the latest Hollywood fad is installation of $500 snow-melting driveway devices which circulate hot water beneath the concrete.

Rejected Surprises Gold Cup Field

REJECTED'S STRETCH DRIVE CATCHES ALIDON AT WIRE

Gordon Glisson rides the stretch-running Rejected (3) to nose victory over Alidon (5) in rich Hollywood Gold Cup Saturday. Determine (2) finished third in the mile and one-quarter chase. Time of 1:59 3/5 smashed Noor's track record.

Alidon 2nd In Record Race

By DAVE LEWIS
Sports Editor

HOLLYWOOD PARK—The King Ranch's stretch-running Rejected, reported "lame" as late as four days ago, came flying through the stretch here Saturday to nip the favored Alidon at the wire in capturing the $137,100 Hollywood Gold Cup before 48,469 screaming fans.

Longest shot on the board at 6-1 in the six-horse field, the five-year-old Rejected nailed down first money of $100,000 by the margin of a nose while the stout-hearted Determine finished third another three-quarters of a length back.

Four more lengths to the rear in fourth place came Social Outcast, which was flown out from the East for the event, while the Llangollen Farm entry of Mister Gus and Porterhouse brought up the rear.

Rejected smashed Noor's track record by one-fifth of a second in negotiating the mile and one-quarter in 1:59 3/5 with his spectacular stretch surge which found him making up more than six lengths in his furious charge through the final three-sixteenths of a mile.

The King Ranch standard-bearer returned $14.40, 5.80 and 3.30 across the board; Alidon paid $3.00 and 2.40, while Determine's show price was $3.10.

Rejected pulled up a little lame after finishing third to Alidon and Mister Gus in the American Handicap 12 days ago on July 4, which led to the report he would be unable to go in the Gold Cup.

READY TO GO

However, he squelched these rumors last Wednesday when he breezed through six furlongs in 1:14 3/5 to prove he was ready to go.

Trainer Buddy Hirsch declared Rejected "ran his finest race" in becoming the 15th Thoroughbred in racing history to earn more than a half-million dollars. His Gold Cup prize boosts his lifetime winnings to $514,000.

"I was a little worried in the early part of it because I thought he was too close up," Hirsch went on to say. "I didn't realize how slow a beginner Social Outcast was, but it worked out perfectly."

In his usual pattern, Rejected launched his bid from last place . . . but unlike recent races, his stretch rush this time rewarded him with one of his two greatest victories.

Although he was ahead of Social Outcast in the early going, he dropped back to the tail end of the pack in the run down the backstretch before cutting loose with his winning surge as they barreled into the far turn.

He was third behind Alidon and Determine . . . six full lengths off the pace, at the top of the stretch and although he was beginning to make up ground, Alidon appeared to be a shoo-in to observers at that point.

But Jockey Gordon Glisson had the brown son of Revoked rolling in high gear by then and he began cutting down the advantage of the two leaders with each stride. He nailed Determine just outside the 16th pole, loomed up alongside Alidon with only about five jumps to go . . . and then succeeded in getting his nose under the wire first in those final pulsating strides.

Although Rejected walked off with the marbles . . . the tiny gray charger from Andy Crevolin's barn, Determine, once again was the "unsung hero" while the team of Johnny Longden and Alidon proved to be the "goat."

Determine not only had to carry top weight as usual, he also drew assignment to kill off the speed (Mister Gus). He had to perform the latter chore the hard way, too, by pushing the pacesetter to 22-3, 45-2 and 1:09-2 fractions.

The weight, 126 pounds to Rejected's 118 and Alidon's 116, plus the strength-sapping chore of running Mister Gus into the ground took too much out of the little gray and he had to be content with third money of $10,000—but he was still a vital factor right down to the wire.

Alidon, meanwhile, appeared to be a cinch winner with a half-mile still to go when he suddenly made a bold move and

Houtteman Stops Bosox, 4-1; Doby, Woodling Belt Homers

CLEVELAND (U.P.)—Art Houtteman, a "spot" starter for the Indians, held the Boston Red Sox to four hits Saturday as Cleveland bounced back with a 4-1 victory in the opening game of their series.

Home runs by Larry Doby and Gene Woodling gave Houtteman his margin for his seventh victory of the season and his second as a starting pitcher.

After the Red Sox had scored their only run in the first inning on a walk to Billy Goodman, a wild pickoff throw by catcher Hal Naragon to first base, and an infield out by Ted Williams, the Indians crashed right back.

Doby hit his 15th home run of the season behind a walk to Ferris Fain in the first. The Indians picked up another run in the second on a single by Naragon, Houtteman's sacrifice and a single by Al Smith, and then Woodling cracked his fourth home run of the year in the fourth. All these hits were off Frank Sullivan, who dropped his eighth decision of the season.

On his last time at bat, Doby reinjured his right hand as he twisted away from a wild pitch by Tom Hurd and was removed from the game. Doby has been playing with the hand heavily taped since his return to the lineup on June 8.

Houtteman was also helped by good fielding. The Indians turned in four double plays behind him, Williams hitting into a pair of them.

Campy Back on Bench

BROOKLYN, N. Y. (U.P.)—Catcher Roy Campanella of the Brooklyn Dodgers was sidelined again Saturday because of a severely bruised little finger on his left hand.

Campanella, who returned to the Dodgers' lineup only Friday after missing about three weeks because of a knee ailment, was hit on the left hand while batting against Willard Schmidt of the St. Louis Cardinals.

X-rays of the finger proved negative, but it was too painful to permit Campanella to play.

Hanson vs. Suggs for LPGA Crown

FORT WAYNE, Ind. (AP) — Beverly Hanson of Indio, Calif., and Louise Suggs of Sea Island, Ga., led the field in the Ladies Professional Golf Assn. championships at the end of 54 holes of medal play Saturday. They'll face each other in 36 holes of match play today to decide the title in the $6,000 tournament.

Miss Hanson shot two par 75s Saturday, giving her the best 54-hole total — 70-75-75—220. Miss Suggs had a pair of 74s and a 75 for 223.

Fay Crocker of Montevideo, Uraguay, winner of the Women's Open, missed a six-foot putt on the 18th hole in her afternoon round and that cost her a chance to tie Miss Suggs. Miss Crocker finished with a 71-75-78—224.

She'll tee off today with the 15 who finished behind her for 18 hole playoffs to decide the rest of the prize money, while Miss Hanson and Miss Suggs vie for the title.

The same pair met in a playoff match earlier in the season at the Los Angeles Open. That time Miss Suggs took top honors.

Bombers' Lead Cut to Three

DETROIT (U.P.) — Al Kaline's 20th home run of the season in the opener and Billy Hoeft's five-hit pitching in the nightcap carried the Detroit Tigers to a 6-3 and 2-1 double-header sweep Saturday over the league-leading New York Yankees.

It marked the third time this season the Yankees dropped a double-header, and it served to tighten up the American League race. The Chicago White Sox are now only three games behind New York, with the Cleveland Indians running a close third.

Hoeft, a 23-year-old southpaw, had the Yankees blanked on four hits until the eighth, when Bill Skowron hit his eighth home run of the season with the bases bare. But the lean left-hander settled down to retire the last four batters for his ninth victory against three losses.

Whitey Ford went the distance for the Yankees and blanked the Tigers until the sixth when a walk to Harry Malmberg and successive singles by Harvey Kuenn, Bill Tuttle and Kaline produced the two runs that sent him down to his fifth loss against 10 wins.

Ned Garver, who had beaten the Yankees only twice during his career before this season, went the route in the opener to post his second victory over them this year.

Tuttle's single and Kaline's 20th four-bagger off reliefer Jim Konstanty put the Tigers ahead for the first time, and for keeps, in the seventh. Konstanty, beaten for the second time against six wins, gave up another run in the eighth on Charley Maxwell's double and a single by Garver.

NASHUA PRESSED AT CHICAGO

Coan Sold to White Sox

CHICAGO (U.P.) — The Baltimore Orioles sold outfielder Gil Coan to the Chicago White Sox Saturday for an estimated $20,000 and promptly purchased Jim Dyck, the American Association's leading batter, from the Indianapolis Indians.

To make room on their roster for Coan, the White Sox put pitcher Bob Keegan, who has a spur on the heel bone, on the disabled list. Keegan was one of Chicago's most effective pitchers in 1954 with a 16-9 record, but has compiled only an 0-4 mark this year.

Although Coan's overall average is only .240 this season, he has made nine hits in 17 pinch-hitting appearances. He also is a fleet outfielder.

Dyck, a 33-year-old outfielder who had a .381 batting average for Indianapolis at the start of the week, was purchased for a reported $30,000.

Arcaro Whips Nashua to Narrow Arlington Victory

CHICAGO (AP) — The brilliant Nashua needed a terrific stretch prod by Eddie Arcaro Saturday to score a one-half length victory over lightly-reckoned Traffic Judge in the $148,500 Arlington Mile Classic before 34,132 wildly cheering fans at Arlington Park.

In carrying the white and red-dotted silks of Belair Stud to a $91,675 triumph, Nashua had to overpower pace-setting Impromptu at the final eighth and then stave off the hard pressing Traffic Judge, who moved up from sixth place at the head of the stretch.

There was no show betting as Nashua, beaten only by Swaps in the Kentucky Derby in nine starts this year, went off a 3 to 10 favorite and paid $2.60, and $2.20.

Traffic Judge, ridden by Willie Boland, paid $5.80 to place. Impromptu, which led most of the way, finished third, a length and a quarter behind Traffic Judge.

The rest of the seven horse field trailed behind in this order: Dogoon, Jett Flame, Dedicate, a disappointing contender, and last place Munchausen.

Nashua, in swelling his two year earnings to $782,565, needed a terrific spur to cut down a fourth length lead held by Impromptu at the three-quarter mark to register his seventh victory in two years that grossed over $100,000.

The powerfully built Nasrullah bay colt, in the words of Jockey Arcaro was "not at his best, to say the least, in Saturday's race."

Nashua's time for the mile on a fast track was 1:35¼, well behind Equipoise's Arlington mile record of 1:34 2/5 set 23 years ago.

Arcaro seemed irked at the outcome of the race, snorting "why he could beat the second horse from here to the paddock. He was all out and doing his best both runs, one of which was unearned.

Gale Wade started things off with a single off Artie Wilson's glove. Wade stole second and made it to third when Gene Mauch bunted safely.

Hal Rice bounced to Frankie Austin, who fired home to catch Wade in a trap play. But in the rundown Don Eggert threw the ball away and Wade scored.

Steve Bilko walked to load the bases. Buzz Clarkson lofted a high fly. Mauch trotted home after the catch with the second run and that was the ball game.

Hatten gave up his four hits by the third inning. After that the only Portland player to get on base was Luis Marquez, and that was an error.

Once Over Lightly

Thoroughbred race horses come in all shapes and sizes and as a result their strides vary widely.

The tall, long-barreled horse generally has a long, sweeping stride while the chunky, short-coupled horses have quick, short strides.

The long-striding horse generally turns out to be the better route runner with the short-striding horse the better sprinter. The short-strider uses up more energy than the one who covers the ground in great leaps.

Incidentally, the short-striding horse usually makes a better mudder than the long-striding horse because the latter is not as likely to get a firm grip on the ground when the track is slippery.

No two horses in either of the above two general classifications stride exactly the same. Stride of each horse is as different as a human's fingerprints.

A century ago, artists depicted horses in full stride with forelegs extended almost straight from the shoulders with the hind legs extended straight out behind them. Actually, if a horse attempted to stride in that rocking horse manner, he would fall.

It has only been the last 60 or 70 years that a true picture of a horse's stride has been available. Leland Stanford, founder of Stanford University and a great horse breeder, was one of the first to photograph a horse's stride.

The average stride of a race horse in full motion is approximately 20 feet. During his stride, he has all of his feet off the ground for a split second, but at all times he has at least one foot, either in front or behind, tucked under his body ready to act as a springboard for the next stride.

The natural gait of a horse is the gallop. If left alone in a field, he sooner or later will break into a gallop . . . the same stride he will use on a race track.

Not every horse has a smooth stride. Some are quite awkward, even though they are fleet runners.

Many return from a race with their forelegs badly cut where one of their steel-shod hind feet has struck while going at full speed. Some others often strike one hind leg with the other. Because of this, horses who usually kick themselves are sent postward with bandages on to protect their legs from cuts.

Most owners and trainers, when buying at auction, will have the horses walked toward and away from them. If the walking stride is "free" and even, then it is likely that the running stride will be the same!

ONE OF THE most dreaded aliments among the horse fraternity is a sore throat.

Sore throats are much more harmful to race horses than to human beings. For instance, an afflicted horse sometimes becomes a "roarer" or thick-winded horse.

And after a horse becomes thick-winded, meaning he has difficulty breathing while running, he loses his usefulness as a racer.

One notable exception was Calumet Farm's famous Coaltown. A tremendously fast horse, he developed thick wind when he was a two-year-old. It became so bad that he fell down while working out one day in Chicago.

After that, a hood was kept on Coaltown's throat at all times when he wasn't out on the track running . . . and the colt went on to produce some great wins.

Special hoods of heavy flannel are used by trainers to sweat out sore throats. They fit over the head and ears and down around the throat. It is just about the only effective treatment found thus far.

Racing fans often have seen a fast sprinter run out in front of his field and then stop almost to a walk. This generally indicates a thick-winded horse.

A faint-hearted horse, if well out in front, will continue to run hard. He stops trying only when caught by another horse or when he is outrun coming out of the starting gate.

The thick-winded horse will continue to try as long as he can get his breath and will stop only when he starts gasping for air.

THERE WAS a time not too many years ago when a jockey not only had to watch out for the other horses in a race . . . but he also had to protect himself from rival riders, who went to great lengths to keep anyone else from winning.

However, patrol films have "cleaned up" riding to a remarkable degree in recent years.

Veteran jockeys, of course, still employ "tricks of the trade" to help clinch a victory, but seldom now do they resort to violent tactics to prevent a rival from winning as they did in the old days . . . such as holding onto a rival's saddle cloth to throw a horse off balance or slash an opposing rider with the whip as they attempted to go past.

Pictures spotlight any illegal tricks nowadays and riders must use more subtle means of outmaneuvering rivals.

Strangely enough, one of the cleanest riders at the present time, Eddie Arcaro, once was known as one of the dirtiest and roughest jockeys in the game. He wasn't above pulling every off-beat trick known to riding in order to win.

There was the time in Chicago early in his career when Eddie got to the front and appeared to be a certain winner when another horse suddenly rushed up alongside. Arcaro reached out, grabbed the saddle cloth of the other horse and threw him off

DUKE SNIDER
Settles it in Ninth

Snider's 29th, 30th Nip Cincy

BROOKLYN, N. Y. (UP)—Duke Snider hit his 29th and 30th home runs Saturday and his second one, in the ninth inning, gave the Brooklyn Dodgers a 5-4 victory over the Cincinnati Redlegs.

Snider was the first batter up in the ninth after Cincinnati had tied the score in the top of the frame. His long fly barely made the first row of the centerfield stands.

A three-run homer by Wally Post after Sam Mele and Ted Kluszewski had singled put the Redlegs in front in the third inning against Brooklyn starter Billy Loes.

Art Fowler was reached for a Dodger run in the fourth when Junior Gilliam tripled home Carl Furillo. A downpour then interrupted the game for one hour and three minutes. When play was resumed the Dodgers caught up with Fowler in the sixth.

Snider's homer, a single by Furillo and Kluszewski's error, and a single by Don Zimmer tied the score at 3-all.

Brooklyn forged ahead 4-3 in the seventh and knocked out Fowler. Don Hoak singled, and Pee Wee Reese dropped a bunt in front of the plate, but catcher Smokey Burgess' throw to second base was too late to force Hoak. Snider sacrificed and Gil Hodges was intentionally walked, loading the bases. A pop single by Furillo brought home Hoak.

Cincinnati tied the score in the ninth when Burgess doubled with one out. A wild pitch sent pinch-runner Rocky Bridges to third, and pinch-hitter Joe Brovia hit a sacrifice fly to drive in the run.

Seven-Run 8th by Pads Sinks Seals

SAN DIEGO (AP)—San Diego came from behind with a seven-run outburst in the eighth inning Saturday to defeat San Francisco, 9-4, in a Pacific Coast League series opener. The Padres sent 11 batters to the plate in the big frame.

Milt Smith led off the eighth with a double off Don Fracchia, who then walked Earl Rapp. Clarence Maddern laid down a sacrifice bunt and Fracchia threw the ball into rightfield, allowing two runs to score.

Fracchia got Ed Bailey to ground out, then gave up two walks to load the bases. Dick Sisler singled in one run. Bill Bradford replaced Fracchia and struck out Al Federoff, but Buddy Peterson doubled for three more tallies and Smith singled in the seventh run.

Gene Bearden, San Francisco starter, hit his first home run of the season and had a two-hit shutout going until the sixth, when the Padres pushed over two runs.

Nashua Barely Wins in Arlington Classic

at the end. I hit him at the eighth pole and at the finish."

Jockey Boland said of Traffic Judge, "I think if I would have gotten to Nashua earlier in the stretch we would have beaten him. I was getting to Nashua, but too slowly at the end."

The close triumph apparently did not do much toward spurring a widely-demanded match race between Nashua and Swaps. Belair Stud's owner, William Woodward Jr., stuck by an earlier announcement he would ship Nashua early this morning to Saratoga Springs, New York, for "a much-needed vacation."

Although Woodward said he personally would like to see a Swaps-Nashua match race, he added his plans for August were undecided.

In other major turf activity Saturday, Mr. Turf took the lead in the water-soaked stretch at Jamaica to win the 26th running of the $22,500 Wilson Handicap by one length and record the first stakes triumph of his career. He was a slight favorite and returned $7.40, $3.90 and $3.10.

Vimy, a 10-1 shot owned by France's Paul Wertheimer, scored an upset triumph in Britain's richest race—the 26,300 sterling ($73,640) King George VI and Queen Elizabeth Stakes—while Phil Drake, the odds on favorite, finished out of the money in the field of 10.

At Monmouth Park, Mr. First, finding the muddy going much to his liking, caught Punkin Vine inside the stretch and went on to win the $18,200 Omnibus Handicap.

HER CAT, BUT---

Fan Feeds Bums' Kitty

BROOKLYN (UP)—Now, it seems, even the cats in Brooklyn are Dodger fans.

A woman, attending Saturday's game with the Redlegs, brought along her pet kitty. At the ticket window she said she wanted two tickets, for herself and for her cat.

"That's all right lady, the cat doesn't need a ticket," said the ticket man.

"No, I want him to be comfortable," the woman replied. "I want him to have a seat all his own. And I want to pay for it."

So the cat sat—all the way through the game in his own pew.

DETERMINE HELD ON

Longden pulled up alongside Determine and Mister Gus as they started around the final turn. Mister Gus dropped back immediately, but Determine grimly refused to let him go on past for the better part of an eighth of a mile.

Only when Longden pulled out all stops at the head of the stretch did Alidon shake off Determine. But he did it in such an impressive fashion that it looked as if he could walk home.

In the 110 yards between the quarter pole and the three-sixteenths pole at the top of the stretch, Alidon rocketed into a commanding three-length lead.

But his duel with Determine plus the fact that the horse obviously "moved" too soon on the backstretch left Alidon a badly tired horse at the end . . . and in no condition to hold off Rejected's tremendous finish.

'LOT OF HORSE'

Glisson said he had a lot of horse under him all the way. "I didn't make my move with him until we hit the quarter pole because I was watching Longden on Alidon. I figured they were the ones we had to beat. When Alidon moved on the turn, I did too . . . and even though they had several lengths on us, I felt we could take it once we straightened out for the final drive."

Longden explained that he figured Alidon lost the race as they left the backstretch and headed into the far turn. "Neves' horse (Porterhouse) came out and bumped us as we were starting to move up and my horse got to running a little too soon. I couldn't do anything but go on with him."

Ray York, who rode Determine, said "They just don't come any gamer than this little gray. I was real tickled that he ran another of his really big races. We had no excuses except the same old handicap—weight!"

Eric Guerin, who piloted Social Outcast, revealed he thought things were set up perfect for him going into the far turn . . . "but he hung when I asked him to run. He just didn't try when we really needed to pour on the gas."

Rejected has been a big horse in handicap circles ever since winning the Santa Anita Handicap in 1954. However, his stirring stretch runs have been a little short on the majority of occasions since then.

He won two races last summer—the American Handicap at Hollypark and the Hawthorne Gold Cup in Chicago—but his only victory in the past 12 months came on New Year's Day at Santa Anita when he captured a mile and one-quarter event on the turf. He was seventh in this year's Santa Anita Cap and sixth in the San Juan Capistrano the following week.

He had been training exceptionally well at Hollypark until pulling up slightly lame after the American Handicap. After laying off work two days, he resumed work though and proved Saturday his legs are as sound as ever.

It was the sixth $100,000 race won by Hirsch-trained horses. Rejected has won two, Intent three and By Zeus one!

Braves Blow It on Wild Pitch in 9th

NEW YORK (UP) — Phil Paine's wild pitch in the ninth inning enabled pinch-runner Ruben Gomez to score from third base with the run that gave the New York Giants an 8-7 victory over the Milwaukee Braves Saturday and stretched their winning streak to five games.

The suddenly-aroused Giants, hottest club in the majors at the moment, rallied for three runs in the ninth to register their 11th victory in the last 13 games.

A total of seven home runs were hit in the contest, Alvin Dark, West Westrum and Don Mueller connecting for the Giants, while Del Crandall hit two homers for the Braves and Bill Bruton and Hank Aaron each hit one.

With the Giants trailing 7-5, Mueller led off the last of the ninth by homering off losing pitcher Ray Crone. After Dark doubled and moved to third on Hank Thompson's single, rookie Roberto Vargas relieved Crone and Sid Gordon, batting for Dusty Rhodes, walked to fill the bases.

Paine then relieved Vargas and Dark came across with the tying run on pinch-hitter Bill Taylor's sacrifice fly. Gomez, who ran for Gordon, moved to second on the fly, then to third on pinch-hitter Davey William's infield out. Gomez streaked across with the deciding run when Paine uncorked a wild pitch while facing Willie Mays.

Two Runs in Ninth Give Nats Victory

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Bill Harrington wild pitched the winning run home Saturday night as the Washington Senators took an 8-7 victory from the Kansas City Athletics.

The Senators had fought back to tie the score at 6-all after the Athletics had scored their six in the first inning.

Mickey Vernon and Carlos Paula hit successive doubles to put the Senators ahead, 7-6. Then Harrington walked Roy Sievers and Harman Killebrew to fill the bases before he wild pitched Paula home.

Garber Cops 14th for Stars

SACRAMENTO (AP)—The Sacramento Solons, held to two hits in the last seven innings, lost in the 10th Saturday night to Hollywood, 5-3. Bob Garber, the fourth Hollywood pitcher, nailed down the victory—his 14th of the season.

Only two of the Hollywood runs off Johnny Briggs were earned. A two base muff by Jerry Streeter on Lee Walls' pop set up the winning run in the 10th. George Prescott sacrificed the runner to third, and he scored when Carlos Bernier pumped a hit to center. Bill Hall tripled to right, scoring Bernier.

In the first inning Hollywood scored twice on singles by Dick Smith, Curt Roberts and Walls, plus a passed ball.

The other Star tally came in the seventh on Jack Lohrke's home run. Lohrke entered the game in the third inning when Smith was tossed out by Umpire Chris Valenti for throwing his bat after being called out on strikes.

Sacramento scored in the first on Al Heist's homer and two more in the third on two walks by Nelson King, a hit batsman, Buddy Heslet's single, and Nippy Jones' double.

Rams, Ft. Ord Ready Squads

Coach Sid Gillman, whose Los Angeles Rams make their 1955 debut against the Ft. Ord Warriors at Veterans Memorial Stadium here Saturday night, July 30, began a serious search for a replacement for a "definitely retired" Elroy Hirsch Saturday.

Acknowledging Hirsch's statement that he was going to stick by his announced retirement plans, Gillman brought out his alternate set of plans which included the transfer of UCLA star Bob Long to the offense. Woodley Lewis, long a defensive back of great talent, was also shifted to an offensive post at the Rams camp Saturday.

Others who will be given a chance at Hirsch's old spot are Bill Sherman, former St. Mary's back, and Harland Svare, a former center at Washington State. In other changes Saturday, captain Don Paul became a middle guard and Les Richter an offensive guard.

The club lost one of its most promising rookies Saturday with the announcement that halfback Billy Teas of Georgia Tech will enter the service. Rookies Dave Parkinson of Texas, J. W. Taylor of East Los Angeles J. C., and Buster Graves of Arkansas were released on waivers.

The Ft. Ord team which the Rams will meet at the Stadium will include such stars as UCLA's Paul Cameron, who made his pro debut with the Pittsburgh Steelers last year; Jim Powers, formerly of SC and the San Francisco 49ers; and Sam Baker, who starred with Oregon State and the Washington Redskins before entering the army. Bob Peviani, ex-SC great, will also be in the Warrior lineup.

Ollie Matson, the Warriors hero of the past two years, has returned to the Chicago Cardinals and will not haunt the Rams until later in the season.

In another 10 days, all 12 of Commissioner Bert Bell's NFL franchises will be flexing their muscles at various sites across the country. The San Francisco 49ers kicked off July 10 at St. Mary's College, and the Washington Redskins began their calisthenics July 12 at Occidental.

Washington has Notre Dame quarterback Ralph Guglielmi joining a star studded cast which already includes Charley Justice, Harry Gilmer, Rob Goode, and Vic Janowicz. But the Skins need help in the line.

Paul Brown's champion Cleveland Brown open their Hiram (O) College base July 22 to begin preparations for the annual Pro-College All-Star Game at Soldiers Field, Chicago, Aug. 12. The Browns, surprise winners of the NFL crown last year when they trampled the Detroit Lions in the title game, face the problem of a replacement for the peerless Otto Graham.

Graham, one of the finest T formation quarterbacks ever to lace on a pair of football shoes, announced his retirement from pro football after leading the Browns to an astounding 56-10 victory over Detroit last Dec. 26 in the playoff game. No. 1 candidate for Graham's job is George Ratterman, often referred to as the highest priced and most talented second string quarterback in the pro game.

Also reporting to the Browns' camp are a host of promising rookies, including Weldon Renfro, North Texas State back; Aramis Dandoy, the brilliant SC back; Sam Palumbo, Notre Dame center; Henry (model T) Ford, Pitt back, and Glen Dillon, an end from Pitt.

Besides Gillman two new coaches are going to work with the start of the training season, Red Strader with the 49ers and Ray Richards with the Chicago Cardinals.

Strader is not unfamiliar to pro football, having coached the defunct New York Yanks in the NFL. Richards probably has the toughest job of all. He has to bring along the hapless Cardinals, winners of two games last year while losing 10. Starting Monday at the Lake Forest, Ill., camp he'll look for some help for his one man gang, fullback Ollie Matson.

Another rough customer in the evenly matched Western Conference is the Chicago Bears who start Owner-Coach George Halas' last season as coach on Tuesday at Collegeville, Ind.

TWO ROOKIES AND A RECRUIT

IN THIS CORNER with DICK ZEHMS

(While Dick Zehms is on vacation, guest columnists are filling This Corner.)

By GEORGE GOODALE
Publicity Director, Los Angeles Angels

Dick Zehms picked on Angel manager Bob Scheffing the other day to do his work for him, and today he's picked on me. And that is not a break for either of us, you readers or myself.

I could be doing something else, and I'm sure you folks could be reading something else, and much better than this.

Anyhow, we're both stuck, except that you can quit reading it but I had to finish writing it.

Dick asked me to pick out some of the greatest thrills I've had with the Angels during the 10 years I've been tub-thumping at Wrigley Field.

Well, I've run the gamut from top to bottom, and several times of each, so they weren't all thrills.

The depths of despair were reached in 1949 when we finished in the cellar, and my spirits were only able to rise one notch in 1950 when we finished seventh.

Those were two seasons I try to forget, and I don't ever want to experience anything like them again.

I just wonder if you fans realize how much suffering we folks in the baseball business go through when we have a loser. I know you fans suffer, but believe you me, those of us at the ball park suffer just twice as much.

It's our bread and butter, you know.

However, let's dismiss those unpleasant memories.

NOW FOR MY greatest thrill with the Angels.

I've had lots of them, but one has to be obvious.

And that was Clarence Maddern's home run in the playoff game to defeat San Francisco for the 1947 Pacific Coast League pennant.

Naturally, that can't be topped, at least as of now.

Perhaps most of you fans will remember that game. You newcomers will not.

That was quite a game, and the pennant hung on the sudden death outcome.

And it was sudden death, for the Seals.

The teams had battled scoreless through seven and a half innings. Then to open the Angel half of the eighth, Cece Garriott got on base. Bill Schuster pulled a perfect hit-and-run and Garriott was on third and Schuster was safe at first.

Eddie Sauer walked, or was hit by a pitched ball, just which one I do not recall.

Up steps Clarence Maddern to face the Seals' pitcher, Jack Brewer.

And the result was a home run. At first I didn't think the ball would carry out of the park, but I knew it was long enough for Garriott to score from third after the catch.

Then it fell from sight—on the other side of the wall.

Well, everyone went crazy with joy, none any more than myself, or any less.

Except that mine lasted several days.

NOW THIS ONE-GAME playoff was made necessary because San Diego had defeated the Seals the day before in the second game of their doubleheader. Max West, then with the Padres, hit a homer to beat the Seals.

A couple of years later we traded Maddern for West, and all of this time we'd been heralding Maddern as the author of the greatest home run ever hit in Wrigley Field.

Now he was gone.

And here is why press agents are such horrible stinkers.

Maddern was no longer an Angel. West was. Both are great guys personally. I like both of them immensely. But in baseball one is with you, one is against you.

So—there was only one thing to do.

Start hailing Max West as the guy who hit the home run that gave Maddern the chance to hit his. Without West's homer, none for Maddern.

Well, as I said, West was with us, Maddern was not.

So that's what I did.

But both of them, bless 'em, gave me many, many thrills with home runs they hit as Angels, and that's what I started to talk about anyway, thrills with the Angels.

I hope I have a lot more, and if I have 'em, so will you good fans.

I'm sure you'll cast your vote along with me for this to happen.

Roberts Sweats Out Win No. 14

PHILADELPHIA (U.P.)—Robin Roberts, given the edge when Andy Seminick and Roy Smalley hit second inning homers, won his 14th game of the season Saturday as the Philadelphia Phillies defeated the Chicago Cubs, 5-4, for the Cubs' fifth straight loss.

Roberts, toiling in 90 degree temperature and 63 per cent humidity, survived a weird three-run first inning when Ernie Banks hammered his 24th homer and then went on to pitch his 16th complete game in 22 starts.

The homers by Seminick and Smalley off Warren Hacker put the Phils ahead to stay, although the Cubs added their final run in the ninth when Frank Baumholtz tripled and scored on a pinch sacrifice fly by Randy Jackson. Roberts fanned Hank Sauer to end the game.

Donoso Wins for Bucs, 5-1

PITTSBURGH (U.P.)—Lino Donoso, aided by a four-run outburst ignited by Dick Groat in the sixth, limited the St. Louis Cardinals to five hits Saturday to pace the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 5-1 victory.

Frank Thomas started things in the big sixth with a single but was forced by Jack Shepard. Johnny O'Brien doubled but hurt his left leg and was replaced by pinch runner Tom Saffell. Dale Long walked to fill the bases and Groat singled home two runs.

Donoso grounded to Alex Grammas, whose throw to the plate was too late to get Long. Willard Schmidt replaced Arroyo and Eddie O'Brien greeted him with a run-scoring single.

Tri-Cities Regatta Lures 100

Western divisional championships for outboarding's smallest, but among its lustiest classes— M-Hydroplanes—will be featured event next Sunday, when the South Gate Women's Club presents its annual Tri-Cities regatta on Marine Stadium.

Fittingly enough, since the distaff side is sponsoring and handling all details of the always top event, the title here will be defended by a woman driver.

Kaye (Boots) Morphy, who until this year has pretty much dominated the tiny-mity class, will drive her Miss Shooting Star in defense against a probable 13 boats.

Included among top rivals is Craig Spencer, Los Angeles driver of a boat ineptly called Way B-Hind and a third, newly-top challenger to honors, 16-year-old Mary Hubbell driving Way B-Hind Too.

Youthful Miss Hubbell has raced boats since she was 12, but not until July 4 at Cachuma Dam, Santa Barbara, had she won a race.

Officials expect nearly 100 boats will take part in the 18-heat program.

Meantime, today, the racing outboards will gather at Palmdale to try and run off the regatta which was postponed earlier this year because of bad weather.

FURY, THE Ray Crawford-Howard Gidovlenko Gold Cup challenge boat which was hauled Friday to Lake Mead, may get first serious go at trial runs today on the Nevada lake.

The 30-foot "aero-designed" boat is scheduled to go out in official APBA-sanctioned trials next Sunday and Monday for the 178.474 unlimited straightaway record held now by Stan Sayres' Slo Mo Shun IV of Seattle.

Fury will represent the Southern California Speedboat Club in the Gold Cup quest. Of interest in view of the record quest is that Donald Campbell, apparently dissatisfied with his unofficial speed of 185 m.p.h. with the jet-powered Bluebird, still has the boat up for more modifications.

HURLER TO RETIRE

A's Release Johnny Sain

KANSAS CITY (U.P.)—Pitcher Johnny Sain received his unconditional release from the Kansas City Athletics Saturday and probably will retire from baseball as he wanted to do at the start of this season.

Sain, 36, was acquired from the New York Yankees by the A's May 11 in a deal which sent outfielder Enos Slaughter to Kansas City and pitcher Sonny Dickson and an undisclosed amount of cash to New York.

Sale of Coan Backfires, Orioles Bow

CHICAGO (U.P.)—The Chicago White Sox rallied for three runs in the ninth inning Saturday to defeat the Baltimore Orioles, 4-3, and extend their winning streak to five games.

George Kell led off the ninth with a single and Bob Kennedy followed suit. The bases were filled when Wayne Causey threw wild to first base on Jim Busby's grounder.

Paul Richards called in Ray Moore from the bullpen to pitch to Gil Coan, who was bought Saturday morning from Baltimore and was batting for the first time in a White Sox uniform. Coan drove a single into centerfield, scoring Kell, Sherm Lollar was hit and then Moore walked pinch-hitter Dick Donovan, forcing in the winning run with none out.

The HOT CORNER

by VERN STEPHENS

There have been many deals completed since the June 15 trading deadline in the majors with the clubs once again pulling the old "gentlemen's agreement" routine to beat the rules. The utter foolishness of the trading deadline is demonstrated by these deals.

The way in which the clubs get around the deadline rule is by saying that the players are going on waivers.

Speaking of deals . . . it looks as if the ex-manager of the Chicago White Sox is trying to challenge his ex-boss Frank Lane as being the "Trader Horn" of the majors. Having made 63 trades in one year Paul Richards is catching up, but quick, with Lane.

IT LOOKS LIKE ANOTHER PENNANT FOR THE Yankees. Casey Stengel's team has all the breaks during the last month of the season. They will play Washington, Baltimore and the Red Sox, while Cleveland will be battling Chicago, Detroit and Kansas City. It looks like the month of September will favor the Bombers and let them home free to another flag.

ANOTHER RATHER SICKENING THING IS TO SEE the way the ball clubs are being handled and the way that they are treating the players since the players have their own representatives. It seems to us that they are trying to break down the players and trying to get them to be more lenient in their demands to the owners.

Still another beef of the players is that they are being treated like school boys after losing a game. On some clubs it is no longer a man's game where you fight back after losing or having a bad day. Now it is a case of staying after school because you did not get your lessons right.

Many of the managers who practice this method of remedying faults will be extremely sorry later this season. Many of their older players will be too tired to give their all when the blue chips are down.

Middlecoff Leads by 2

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (U.P.)—Cary Middlecoff, shooting them dead to the pin on rain-spongy greens, recaptured the lead at the three-quarter mark in the $35,000 Milwaukee Open Saturday with a 13 under par 64-67-66—197. A crowd of 14,200 braved the rain which held up play for half an hour.

Middlecoff said he "never shot better than this" at the end of his third round. "I hit every fairway but one, and I hit every green."

balance. The rider on the other horse, however, shook Arcaro off and went on to win.

The late Judge Joseph A. Murphy, who has received much credit for helping reform Arcaro, who associated with very rough company during his early days in racing, sent for Eddie after the race.

"Eddie, you grabbed that other horse's saddlecloth," he said. "Don't you know that is against the rules and is dirty riding?"

Arcaro readily admitted he was wrong and promised never to do it again.

Three days later, Arcaro again was in front when a horse galloped up to him. Out went his hand to seize the saddle cloth.

When the race was over, Murphy immediately sent for Arcaro. "Eddie, I warned you about grabbing saddle cloths, didn't I?," he snapped.

"I know, Judge," Arcaro said. "I know it's wrong and I know I promised I'd never do it again. But when I see a horse going by me I just can't resist the temptation to grab that saddle cloth and keep him from beating me."

"I'm going to suspend you for 15 days," Murphy said. "That will give you plenty of time to remember never to do it again."

It was Arcaro's first suspension . . . and he never forgot the lesson. While he has been suspended many times since then, none of the bans have been for out-and-out dirty riding!

Bartzen, Trabert Gain Final

ATLANTA (U.P.) — Defending champion Bernard (Tut) Bartzen combined a steady back court game with his opponent's errors to upset Ham Richardson Saturday and move into the finals of the National Clay Courts tennis championships against top-seeded Tony Trabert.

The fourth-seeded Bartzen, of San Angelo, Tex., set the stage for a repeat of his giant-killing role of last year when he ousted Trabert by beating the second-seeded Richardson, of Baton Rouge, La., 7-5, 6-3, 2-6, 6-4.

Wimbledon champ Trabert rallied from a bad start to defeat third-ranked Eddie Moylan, Trenton, N. J., 2-6, 6-2, 6-0, 6-2, in his semi-finals match.

The hard-stroking Trabert was bothered in the first set by Moylan's precise placement shots and chops but fell back repeatedly in the last three sets on lobs to set up his foe for passing blasts to the base line.

Richardson suffered again from the errors which plagued him week-long in his match with Bartzen and the methodical Texan took advantage of many of them.

Each held his own service through 11 games of the first set but Bartzen lofted a high lob out of Richardson's reach to take it. In the second set, they tied at two games each and then were delayed almost two hours by rain. When they returned to the court, Bartzen won four straight games to take the set.

In the women's divison, top-seeded Barbara Breit of North Hollywood moved into the finals against second-ranked Mrs. Dorothy Head Knode of Alameda, by defeating Jean Clark, Birmingham, Ala., 6-3, 6-0. Mrs. Knode whipped Yola Ramirez of Mexico City, 6-3, 6-1.

Tab Harbert to Repeat

DETROIT (A.P.) — Defending champion Chick Harbert, who will have the advantage of playing on his own course, heads a field of 142 professionals for the 37th annual PGA Golf Tournament—a seven-day endurance test which starts Wednesday at the Meadowbrook Country Club.

The 40-year-old Harbert might even be tabbed as the favorite in this blue ribbon event, for he not only is familiar with the secrets of Meadowbrook's 6,750 yards, but he is a fierce match play competitor as well.

The first two days are set aside for qualifying, 18 holes a day, with the low 63 scorers joining Harbert for the start of match play Friday.

Rockets Battle Stars, Eye Summer Crown

Having won five of their last six games, the Long Beach Rockets will be out to nail down the Summer League semipro title today when they battle the Long Beach Stars in the last regularly scheduled loop game at Recreation Park. Game time is 2:15 p. m.

The game was originally scheduled for last week, but the Stars at the last minute were granted a week's postponement to accept an exhibition date in the north. The Rockets, meanwhile, dropped an 11-inning exhibition thriller to San Pedro.

One of four "home" clubs in the nine-team league, the Rockets, however, are unbeaten in summer action. A win today will enable the Rockets to enter the playoffs.

Rocket Manager Walt Carson has Larry Jones and Bob Castleman, both strong righthanders, ready for mound action.

In a previous non-league game with the Stars on April 17 the Rockets scored twice in the 10th inning to win, 8-6. Today's rematch is expected to be another tight one.

The Stars, one of five "traveling" teams in the league, have a hard-hitting crew, including catcher Vern Highfield; a steady .300 in three years of class C minor league ball.

Rocket power hitters include Ev Pearson, Emmett Ryan and Bob Carter. Probable lineups:

LANGE SECOND

City Golf Champ Griggs Named 'Athlete of Month'

City golf champion Larry Griggs was named "athlete of the month" for June by the Long Beach Sports Boosters Club. In a sweep by the links set, City women's champion Jane Lange was a close second and junior ace Pinky Stevenson third.

Griggs, also the Recreation Park Men's Club champ, was only given an outside chance when the annual City classic began. But while the favorites began to topple, the Douglas Aircraft development inspector kept a clean record.

He came from behind to oust John McMonnegal, 1 up, in an exciting quarter-final match and after receiving a semi-final default, trounced favored Sandy Mosk Jr., 9 and 8, in the scheduled 36-hole finals.

Miss Lange swept to an easy victory in the women's City tourney. She also holds the Recreation Park Women's Club and Los Angeles City titles. The 16-year-old Stevenson captured the Southern California CIF individual bunting and was the only Long Beach area golfer to successfully qualify for the National Public Links Championship.

PAR TICULARS by JERRY WYNN

Two of Recreation Park's finest — professional Wayne Otis and junior Pinky Stevenson—have important golf dates this week.

While Otis left by plane Saturday night for suburban Detroit and the National PGA Championship qualifying, Stevenson was returning home from the National Publinx Championship at Indianapolis to take part in U. S. Junior sectional trials.

Both have tough roads ahead.

For Otis, the first Park pro to make the championship in more than 20 years, it will mean two rounds at the difficult Meadowbrook CC course Wednesday and Thursday in a field of 142 seeking 63 places (defending champion Chick Harbert the lone exemptee).

For Stevenson, a quarter-finalist last year, it's 18 holes Tuesday at equally-treacherous Riviera CC in an exceptionally strong field of 42. Only seven places are available. Other top Long Beach hopes are Dick Carmody, who's come into his own in the past few months, City Junior champion Johnny Lucas and Bobby Irwin.

Said Otis before he departed, "I'm not going just for the ride. If only my game can get as hot as I hear the weather back there is. . . ."

If Stevenson should make it, it will be back to the Hoosier state for him Aug. 3-6 where the tournament is scheduled at Purdue University.

WITH MEN'S and women's National Amateur championships coming up shortly, the USGA has issued a warning to players who intend to turn pro to stay out of the tournaments.

Four of the last five winners of the men's Amateur—Arnold Palmer, Gene Littler, Billy Maxwell and Sam Urzetta and three of the last five women's championships — Jackie Pung, Bev Hanson and Mary Lena Faulk—plus last year's runner-up, Mickey Wright, have cashed in on their amateur reputations by turning professional.

"We aren't trying to admonish anyone who isn't playing in the championship this year, said USGA President Isaac Grainger. "It's just a reminder to encourage people to declare themselves. The only ones we are interested in are the ones who already have made up their minds."

Entries for the women's Amateur at Charlotte, N. C., Aug. 22-27 close Aug. 8. Those for the men's Amateur at Richmond, Va., Sept. 12-17, have an Aug. 12 deadline.

RECENT ORANGE County club pro shifts had Jerry Hall taking over the head professional post at Willowick with young Texan, Johnny Ward, replacing Hall as Jay Nunnally's assistant at Santa Ana CC. Don Willis remains as assistant at Willowick. . . . Harry McCarthy, Frank Cormaci and Johnny Anselmo are included in the SC-PGA field for the Alondra Park Pro-Amateur today. . . . The annual 36-hole Palos Verdes Invitational and the SC-Publinx partner's best-ball tournament head next weekend's activity. . . . Mrs. Fred Hogan of San Gabriel has been elected president of the Southern California Women's Golf Assn. for 1955-56. . . . And they still tell the one about Sam Snead when he came out of West Virginia unknown in 1937 to win the Oakland Open. Shown a photograph of himself accompanying the New York Times' account of his victory, Sam commented: "How'd they ever git mah picture? I ain't never been to New York."

LESTER LAWSON, JR., 72-5, won the Virginia Men's Club Saturday Sweepstakes with a 67. Tied at 68 were Chuck DeCoudres, 79-11, and Roy Spawr, 74-6. Carding 69s were Henry Robertson, 85-11; Harry Bouchier, 80-11, and Dr. J. K. Hunter, 78-9.

Blind bogey (76) victors were Robert Sellery, Don Berry, Herb Walgren, Van Hickman and Ed Jones.

Fishin' Around

By DONNELL CULPEPPER

Call them whatever you like — Little Sports, Tackle Busters or Huck Finns—the youngsters of the city are going at this fishing business with a real purpose this year.

Three progams for boys and girls now are under way and the kids, teenage and lower, are showing up on the piers, the wharves, the rocks and even in the surf. Most of them are pointing toward one goal—the Long Beach Recreation Department's city-wide fishing rodeo at Belmont Pier Thursday, Aug. 25.

Jack Minar, the recreation dept.'s coordinator, has appointed Art Parra general chairman of the Aug. 25 event. And Parra, in turn, has named the committee chairmen, who are the following:

Dr. George Chuck, rules; Manning Moore, judging; Claude Kreider, publicity; Charlie Richard, bait, and Otto Petri, prizes.

The city's firemen and life guards will provide the committee on safety. Members of the Long Beach Sun-Fishing Club and the Alamitos Bay Sportsmen already have pledged themselves to aid all children who need help with their fishing that day.

The 1954 fishing rodeo, the city's first, attracted more than 1000 children.

The pier will be for "KIDS ONLY" on that day, and Fishin' Around is happy to join with others in asking parents of all children who want to fish to see that they get to the pier that day. If you haven't helped a boy —or girl—fish, you haven't enjoyed one of the greatest outdoor experiences any one can have.

OTHER ACTIVITIES

Meanwhile, the Outboard Boating Club's annual Huck Finn fishing derby got under way last Saturday, with Gaylord Day as chairman. The event will run through Sunday, Aug. 31, and all children from 2 to 16 are eligible.

The derby is broken down into age classifications—under 10, 10 to 12 and 12 to 16. There will be several classifications of fish and prizes for each. Grand prize for the best catch will be a bicycle.

Children may fish anywhere within the city limits. Weigh-in stations are the following: Barnes Marine Supplies, 5368 E. 2nd St.; Jerry Chrisman's, 6200 Bayshore Wk.; Beany's Bait & Tackle, Belmont Pier Co. and the Belmont Bait and Landing Co., all at or near Belmont Pier; also Stony's Tackle at Pierpoint Landing.

OBC officials are going all-out this year to interest their own children and others in the Huck Finn derby and hope to have several hundred entries before the end of the contest.

Also interested in youth activities is the Alamitos Bay Sportsmen, a club that meets twice a month in the Colorado Lagoon clubhouse. Don Mallard of the ABS is the chairman for the Little Sports and the first barge-fishing trip of the season is scheduled for Tuesday. The Little Sports meet the first and third Thursdays at Rogers Junior High School.

WEST WALKER TRIP

Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Shane, 2287 Lime Ave., and son, Ronald, are back from a week's fishing trip to the West Walker River. Shane termed the vacation one of the best and said that they caught limits of cutthroat and rainbow trout.

The Shanes stayed at Jim Kindel's Buckhorn Motel, 10 miles south of Topaz Lake and Kindel acted as guide. Shane insists that Jim is just as good a guide in fishing as he is in hunting deer.

They caught most of their fish on Heddon Hep spinning lures, white salmon eggs and Colorado spinners. The weather was good at Walker, although blustery south of Bridgeport. Shane said that a 7-pound cutthroat and a 5½-brown were taken by other anglers while they were there. He added that the river is clearing rapidly and should be good for fly fishing by Aug. 1.

OUTDOOR PERSONALS

The list of drivers in the Stockton-to-Redding 316-mile outboard race is growing each week, with the time just three weeks off. Aug. 5 and 6 are the dates for this rich classic, worth $5,000 in prizes. Top award is a $2,000 diamond cup trophy. Deadline for entering is July 30 and requests for entries should be sent to Bert A. Phillips, producer-director, Redding Junior Chamber of Commerce. Don Quinlivan of Torrance is one of the entries.

Make no mistake about that Sacramento River race — it's not easy. There's plenty of white water and the tricky currents may spell disaster for experienced drivers.

While we are in the outdoors and dreaming of northern California, let's take a look at Dunsmuir, just north of Redding. TV owners there had a community antenna and a main lead-in wire for all the sets in town. Well, it seems that a nosey bear started chewing off the insulation and the TV screens went blank. The Department of Fish and Game figured that was an emergency and issued a special permit to kill the b'ar. Now Mr. Bruin is no more and the Dunsmuir residents once again are enjoying their favorite TV programs.

Do you have a handy tip for fishermen or hunters? If so, write it in 25 words or less to Sports Afield, 959 8th Ave., New York 19, N. Y., and you'll receive a 34-page fishing and hunting handbook by Lee Wulff, containing much information on records, fishing, hunting, equipment and methods of fishing. The booklet is being made available by Ancient Age Distilling Co. through Sports Afield.

OCEAN FISHING (?)

Just in case some ocean angler accuses this columnist of neglecting local fishing, here's the season's quickest summary: It's in a periodic slump. Fish are still there, but they are not cooperating properly.

Star Aussie Duo Cinches Cup Opener

CHICAGO (AP) — Australia, relentlessly determined to recapture the Davis Cup it lost to the United States last year, breezed into the semi-finals of the American Zone tennis competition Saturday by taking the decisive doubles match that assured victory over Mexico.

The Aussies' two young stars, Rex Hartwig and Lew Hoad, fresh from their Wimbledon doubles championship, overpowered Mexico's two veterans, Gustavo Palafox and Francisco Guerrero, 6-1, 6-2, 6-4.

The decision in doubles, coupled with singles victories Friday by Hartwig and Ken Rosewall, gave Australia the decisive three points in the five-point competition.

At Baastad, Sweden, Swedish took a 2-1 lead over Chile in the European Zone semifinals Saturday when Sven Davidson and Torsten Johansson defeated Luis Ayala and Ares Hammersley, 6-0, 6-1, 6-4, in doubles.

Nicolo Pietrangeli and Orlando Sirolo won the final two singles matches, giving Italy a 5-0 sweep in its European Zone semifinal series against England.

MODERN GOLF

By DALE ANDREASON
(Golf Instructor)

Rhythm in walking:

First, let us define rhythm. It is not a fast action nor is it slow. It is a smooth flowing action of all muscles working together as a unit.

There is a word that catches the eye more and more in sports these days; it is "rhythmic motion," which means the large muscles pushing and pulling the small with no wasted motion.

Let's talk about walking correctly using rhythmic motion. When playing 18 holes the average golfer walks approximately four miles. I am sorry to say that a good 75 per cent of the golfers burn up twice the energy needed in walking their 18 holes.

The average golfer walks from the knee, thus making the calf of the leg push and pull the large muscle. In doing this the golfer takes approximately a 25 to 30 inch step.

To walk smoothly with rhythmic motion the golfer must concentrate on walking with the thigh muscle in control of the action. The thigh muscle in turn will push and pull the knee and the calf muscle which, in turn, works the foot.

The thigh muscle is easily the most powerful muscle in the human body. When in control it can carry the weight of the body easily, burning up very little energy. The stride will be closer to 45 inches so you can easily see that by working with the larger muscles of the body you have true rhythm or coordination.

You will also note that in walking in this correct manner that your heel hits the ground first and your weight moves toward the toe. This action is very helpful to the arch of the foot. You will notice that in walking from the knee the weight settles on the arch of the foot and the foot becomes tired very quickly.

Hold one hand across the lower part of the stomach and hold the other at the lower part of the back. Now concentrate on walking properly, stretching out with the thigh muscles. You will soon feel the lower back and stomach muscles being pushed and pulled, thus creating not only good tone and circulation in the muscles, but also in the organs of the body as well.

AT SAN PEDRO

Hawks Seek 14th Victory

Manager Joe Rodgers will send either Ted Carlsgaard or Jack Randall to the mound tonight when his Long Beach Nitehawks go after their 14th straight victory of the season. The Hawks meet the San Pedro All-Stars in the second game of a five-game series at Daniels Field in San Pedro at 8:15.

Friday night the Hawks scored their eighth straight shutout triumph as Leroy Zimmerman blanked the All-Stars on four hits.

George Pearson, effective in relief of Virgil Jones Friday, is the likely starter for San Pedro's NSC champions.

Crebs Cycle Club Cards Sprints Here

The Crebs Cycle Club of Long Beach will stage its annual 15-mile amateur sprint championships this morning at 10 at Marine Stadium.

Fifty riders from all over Southern California are expected to be on hand. The day's riding will consist of qualifying heats for the 15-mile main event and two consolation races.

L.B. Gets Deserved 'Metropolitan' Tag

AS ANYBODY acquainted with Long Beach knows, this city is a distinct, individual area—a center and not a satellite.

But unfortunately, for the purposes of certain statistical records Long Beach has long been submerged under the arbitrary phrase "Los Angeles Metropolitan area."

It is happy and significant news that this will no longer be the case.

As a result of negotiations between Rep. Craig Hosmer and federal officials, the Bureau of the Budget is adopting a new policy of metropolitan designations which gives Long Beach equal prominence with Los Angeles.

The new title is the Los Angeles-Long Beach Metropolitan Area.

This change is important beyond the matter of municipal pride. It is of economic importance. For Long Beach will now be officially acknowledged as a market area separate from Los Angeles.

"It should result," as Chamber of Commerce Manager D. W. Campbell points out, "in more information being available to eastern research groups, advertisers and consultants who are looking for new industrial sites and business areas. We finally are getting recognition as a major Southern California city."

Up to the time of this change Long Beach was in a peculiar and unfair position in relation to other cities on the list of metropolitan areas.

Here was a city with a city zone population of 374,000 and a trading zone population of about 1,500,000, yet it was not named on a list of 233 metropolitan areas in the U. S., although cities with population as low as 56,700 (Hutchinson, Kan.) were named as metropolitan areas. We were the largest city in the nation lacking this recognition.

And if a large national firm planned a promotional or advertising or sales campaign, concentrating on metropolitan areas, our name was not available on the official list as a distinct market area.

Where we were not before on list of more than 200, we are now named, jointly with Los Angeles, as third on the list. For the Los Angeles-Long Beach Metropolitan Area with its 5,379,800 people is third largest in the nation.

On the national business and industrial scene this should vastly enhance our prestige and give us such consideration as may previously have been lacking because of a mere technicality.

Rep. Hosmer and other local leaders who were instrumental in bringing this change about deserve the thanks of every citizen whose economic life is associated with this area.

Smith's Appointment Maintains Balance on Tide Interim Group

APPOINTMENT of H. Allen Smith of Glendale to fill a vacancy on the interim committee assigned to study the Long Beach tidelands problems maintains a meticulous balance which Chairman Gordon Fleury of Sacramento obviously had in mind when he made the original selections.

Smith, one of the leading figures of the Assembly, replaces Assemblyman LeRoy Lyon of Fullerton, who resigned from the Assembly and therefore from the interim committee a few weeks ago.

EPLEY

Like, Lyon, Smith is a Republican and was on Long Beach's side in the skirmishes over the Allen tidelands seizure bill in the last session of the Legislature. He was in fact floor leader for the pro-Long Beach forces which successfully fought for an interim study instead of adoption of the Allen bill the day the measure came up for decision.

Smith, a former FBI agent and now a practicing attorney, was the opponent of Assemblyman Luther Lincoln in the speakership contest at the opening of this year's Assembly, with Lincoln winning by the narrowest of margins.

There are five members of the "jury" which will ponder Long Beach's tidelands situation and make a report to the Assembly when it reconvenes next March.

Here's how they can be classified as to party affiliation, region of residence, and vote on the interim study issue:

Chairman Gordon Fleury, Republican, Sacramento, voted for interim.

Caspar Weinberger, Republican, San Francisco, voted against interim.

John McFall, Democrat, Manteca, voted against interim.

Allen Miller, Democrat, San Fernando, voted for interim.

H. Allen Smith, Republican, Glendale, voted for interim.

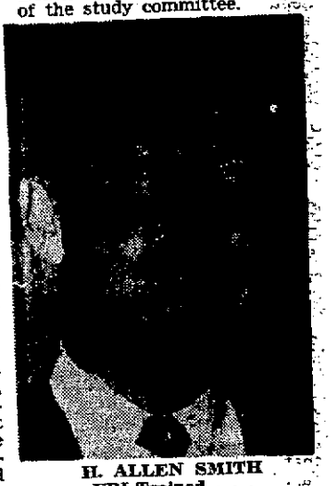

Thus, excluding the chairman, the committee consists of two northern Californians and two Southern Californians, two Republicans and two Democrats, and two who voted for interim study and two who voted against it. That's balance!

Inasmuch as the interim proposal was advanced as an alternative to the Allen bill, those who favored it were generally rated as opposed to the Allen measure, and those who voted against interim were rated as favorable to the Allen bill passage.

This is not to suggest, however, that this is a group of men with preconceived conclusions on the issues involved in this intricate matter. Chairman Fleury has assured that an open-minded and objective study will be given. The reputations of the men appointed support that pledge. All are lawyers with years of legislative and legal experience.

George Grover, the Coronado attorney appointed as counsel for the committee, is not unfamiliar with tidelands matters. He handled such matters for the state attorney general's office when he was a member of that staff before going into private practice.

The big problem before Long Beach officialdom is to prepare a complete presentation of every phase of the city's case to this "jury." Whether it is a "fair and complete" hearing depends as much on Long Beach as it does on members of the study committee.

Soviets Depending on Marshal Zhukov to 'Chat' With Eisenhower at Geneva

MOSCOW'S announcement that Marshal Zhukov will attend the Geneva conference fits in with behind-the-scenes maneuvers by the Soviets that have been going on for several months to establish a line of personal communication between President Eisenhower and the Soviet government which would not be complicated by cumbersome contacts with the other western powers.

London is frankly worried about this. Telephone conversations between this correspondent and informed persons in Britain indicate that the British government is somewhat puzzled by the latest developments and is concerned about the rumors that "Ike" and Marshal Zukov are planning to have private conferences in what appears to be an effort on the part of the Soviet government to make a "deal."

LAWRENCE

This may seem logical to the Russian masterminds and might worry some Britons but, of course, it ignores the fact that Mr. Eisenhower wasn't born yesterday and perhaps more than any other man in the world today is alert to the traps and schemes which seek to weaken the western world's armament program.

Direct contacts between representatives of two powers are not unusual. Sir Anthony Eden and Foreign Minister Molotov conferred often in private at the Geneva conference a year ago.

Ever since Marshal Zhukov became Minister of Defense in the present cabinet in Moscow there has been a studied effort to bring him into closer contact with his wartime friend, Gen. Eisenhower.

At one time Zhukov was shelved by Stalin because of a fear that the military hero would get to be too big a man in the Soviet Union. The present regime evidently not only has no such fears but deliberately invites him to accompany the Soviet delegation to the meeting "at the summit." It means that the Red Army, a real influence in Russia today, is to be represented at Geneva.

Unquestionably the Soviet leaders have been trying to figure out a way to carry on confidential conversations with President Eisenhower outside of the three daily formal conferences in Geneva. As is customary in such international meetings, from 50 to 100 persons are in the conference room at the same time. Obviously every one who speaks is on his guard and there isn't much give and take. It's not easy to make progress that way.

But in between and after the formal conferences, especially at mealtime, there is informality. That's when the real business can be done and that's when it can be determined if there is any elasticity in the Soviet position—any readiness to agree to matters of substance or to develop a procedure that could bring about such agreements later on.

Plainly the Soviets are depending on Marshal Zhukov and his friend "Ike" to do a lot of chatting. The Marshal is a member of the Communist party and must be presumed to be loyal to the military interests of Soviet Russia. He can parrot a propaganda line if instructed to do so and he can follow directions as to what to say and how to say it.

There is no question but what the Russians are after concessions. They want favors on trade — some strategic goods. They want access to raw materials. It is not known what price they would be willing to pay to obtain such things from the western powers.

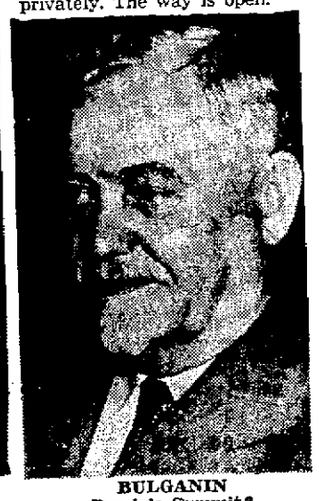

In the Russian delegation are such English-speaking officials as Andrei Gromyko, who, incidentally, is a good friend of Bernard M. Baruch. At the United Nations meetings there was many an occasion when Gromyko dined at Baruch's house in New York. It is significant that when Molotov was in the United States not long ago he went to Long Island to see Baruch at his summer home. Also, the elder statesman just happened on Wednesday of last week—one of the busiest times for President Eisenhower—to be visiting at the White House.

HEALTHY

All this can be considered healthy in a broad sense because if the Soviet leaders are really bent on making a success of the Geneva conference, they must necessarily develop a channel of communication, unofficial, informal and private, direct to the head of the most powerful nation in the world, President Eisenhower.

But channels are not so important as what is transmitted through them, and the Soviets will find that Mr. Eisenhower will rarely meet with anyone alone—he has a habit of having Secretary of State Dulles at his side and, if he is alone, he doesn't make deals or agreements. If the Soviets want to make concessions they can discreetly define them privately. The way is open.

Hot Summer Day's Peek Into U.S. Newspapers

PEEKING past page one into the newspapers in 90 degree temperature and with a critical eye, here are some of the thoughts that boil to the surface:

The columnists: Here, as the old saying goes, you pay your money and take your choice.

Tom Stokes, Doris Fleeson, Marquis Childs can be rated as "liberals" with David Lawrence, George Sokolsky, Raymond Moley and Frank Kent numbered among the "conservatives."

KNIGHT

Drew Pearson is a pain in the neck to many readers but digs up a lot of information other reporters seem to miss. Roscoe Drummond is usually "down the middle" with well balanced and objective comment.

The Alsops live in another world, writing about what they hope will happen instead of what is actually happening, Westbrook Pegler, once a master of humor and satire, is consistently tiresome of late and Eleanor Roosevelt's little homolics I can take or leave.

The scholarly Walter Lippmann has his magnificent days but you need a range finder to get his point on others.

The "humorists" in the trade are pale imitations of Will Rogers and Peter Finley Dunne, or just plain bad.

All columnists must be read with understanding since, unlike the editor, they can be thoroughly irresponsible and get away with it.

Women's Department: A lot of good reading here, if you have a sense of humor. Good sound advice on manners, how to raise children, become glamorous and solve the problems of home and sex.

If you are disturbed by the antics of "society," just charge it up to the heat.

Editorial pages: The editorialists are too often the unheralded heroes of the newspaper profession. They are charged with producing a daily fare of timely, well informed comment and opinion.

On the whole, they do remarkably well. Since editorials are read for their interest as well as for the information they contain, their readership could be increased by saucing up the content with a dash of lusty indignation.

Sport pages: Interesting, uninhibited writing with a weakness for hero worship. Not enough digging into the big time sports rackets; too uncritical of promoters who exploit young athletes.

Sports editors should remember the public has heard who won the game. What the reader wants to know is how it was won.

The recent All Star game

Comic pages: Reader interest in comics had dropped slightly but they still rank near the top. Part of the decline can be attributed to a failure to come up with a really new idea in 20 years.

Great advances have been made in newspaper photography but too few editors have the picture touch.

One outstanding picture is better than a page of routine wirephotos and posed art of ribbon cutting celebrities.

Conclusion: The American newspaper is constantly improving, both in the quality of its content and in its responsibility to the community it serves.

Read it with understanding and faith. It is the only product where the entire output is manufactured, distributed and sold in a 24-hour cycle, nearly every day in the year.

GENEVA—For a conference that Eisenhower didn't want, this has turned into quite a show.

To see the 1,000 newsmen crowded into sleepy Geneva, or to view Ike's swank villa with 150 yards of lake front, or the small army of Swiss police imported from Basle and Zurich, no one would dream this is a conference sold to John Foster Dulles by Anthony Eden only because Eden was worried sick that he might lose the British elections . . . Rather than see a Labor party came back into power and because Eden promised British support to Eisenhower around Formosa, Dulles found his Chief in the White House and told him he would have to attend a Big Four conference whether he liked it or not . . . Today the man who really put across this meeting, who nagged at Eisenhower until Ike got bored, and who coined the phrase, "conference at the summit," isn't here . . . His nephew-in-law and understudy, Anthony Eden, at first wanted to bring the old gentleman along. Eden even conceived the idea of making Sir Winston special ambassador representing the queen. But this would have made him outrank the Prime Minister . . . Furthermore, Winnie has become so deaf that it's awfully hard to carry on diplomatic conversations with him. You have to shout . . . So the new prime minister of England, who had trained for years under Churchill, finally decided to leave the old gentleman at home.

Mental Illness

TO THE EDITOR:

Society, in attempting to solve the problem of mental illness, has appointed medical doctors to study the difficulties of individuals, and to generalize as a result of their consideration of large numbers of cases.

The root of the trouble, however, is society itself, and the failure of legal systems to make simple and specific distinctions between right and wrong which can be universally applied and understood.

Governments are not established to help individuals with their personal problems, nor have they a right to invade the privacy of citizens without charging them with a specific violation of existing statutes. Legal determination of "insanity," which is simply a matter of opinion that can never be objectively verified, therefore serves no useful purpose in society.

We cannot eliminate mental illness, but we can refuse to recognize it as a valid reason for causing the involuntary confinement of innocent persons, and as a means by which individuals may escape or lessen the just punishment imposed upon them as a result of their verified criminal acts.

Chicken Pie

TO THE EDITOR:

We hear roosters, or a rooster, crowing in the early morning hours.

The owners may not realize that this can be a great annoyance, even torture, for sick people nearby, and there are always sick people.

A mechanic, who was out of work in my home, heard this crow. He said it made him shudder to hear it. For he knew, once, two sick old gentlemen, and he said it was terrible how they suffered because of this bird.

I think in such cases someone should find the owner of the bird and just kindly tell him what is happening, then the owner might have an elegant dinner of chicken pie.

I've known this very thing to happen, and everybody was happy.

MRS. BEVERLEY LANZ.

'Disgraceful'

TO THE EDITOR:

Comfortable? That's nice. This is another dig at the lack of benches in Lincoln Park at the band concerts. Recently two or three hundred people had to stand up. It's disgraceful . . .

DARRELL OLDHAMN.

Hot Dog Stand

TO THE EDITOR:

The city had built a needless hot dog stand in Recreation Park which has depreciated valuable park and neighborhood property.

You can see just off Santiago Ave. at 8th the damages of abortive action. In a park area with infinite possibilities for beauty and facing what was an established residential area of value we citizens allow this misuse of important property.

There is positively no need for this monstrosity except as through the eyes of the exploiter wanting a hamburger stand on every corner. And why, with the citizenship crying for the city's beautification should every simple tenet of decency and improvement be disregarded. No thought of environment, no design, no architectural treatment. An alleyway for garbage directly placed at the front doors of homes.

We have intelligent fine sensitive appreciative folks in this city. Why must thoughtless, stupid, destructive building like this be permitted? It can't be hidden or remedied by a few trees. Look for yourself and judge. My home is not in this area and I don't own property near there. Like you, I have hope for a better city.

Ike's Batting Average on Legislation in Slump

WASHINGTON (NEA)—The batting average of the Eisenhower administration on proposals to Congress this year is now only around .260. This is an unofficial calculation based on a list of 160 separate legislative proposals, requests and recommendations in presidential messages sent to Congress this session.

Out of this list only 42 of the President's proposals—including 10 treaties sent to the Senate for ratification—have so far been approved by Congress.

There are 10 of the President's proposals that have been passed by the House and 11 passed by the Senate, waiting action by the other chamber, and there are 26 White House measures on which hearings have been completed and bills reported out by committees. It is possible that many of these will get floor action before Congress adjourns.

What has pulled the President's batting average down so far is a lack of definite action on some 71 proposals. There are some important measures in this category, not included in the President's own list of 14 measures on which he has expressed a desire for action this year. Among them:

Customs simplification and legal authorization for the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT) administration. Juvenile delinquency control act. Aid to low income farm families. Reduction of control over Indian affairs. Revision of financing methods for new TVA expansion. Increase in postal rates to balance Post Office Dept. expenses. Revision of immigration laws. Amendment of laws governing espionage, sabotage, perjury and wiretapping. The President's proposals for liberalizing social security benefits, as distinguished from the House Democrats' own program to liberalize old age insurance benefits.

If the whole record of Congressional work done this session is considered without reference to those recommendations made to Congress in Presidential messages, it shows 131 new laws enacted and signed by the President at this writing.

The list includes 16 appropriation bills—with two more to go—which represent a lot of work and time.

Among the important measures passed are: Extension of the draft act and doctors' draft. Raising of the debt limit. Extension of the reciprocal trade agreements law. Closing of tax law loopholes. Raising of pay for government civilian workers, judges and members of Congress themselves.

What builds up the Congressional record of work done, however, is a large number of tricky-track bills. Among them:

Regulation of fireworks sale in Panama Canal Zone. Authorization of the shipping of live scorpions through the mail. Designation of May 1 as Loyalty Day. Creation of a Fine Art Commission. Invitation to hold the 1960 Olympic games in Detroit and Squaw Valley, Calif.

If all the resolutions and routine matters are included, the Congressional box score for the year shows over 700 measures passed by the Senate and over 860 passed by the House. These aren't the same measures and action on many of them will never be completed. But all this keeps Congress busy.

Serious Problem

The problems of our children seem . . . So small to us today . . . Whereas if we were young again . . . It would not be that way . . . We have forgotten what it is . . . To be of early age . . . To lift the heavy book of life . . . And slowly turn each page . . . To grasp the meaning of this world . . . And grope our way around . . . To be dismayed, and yet to keep . . . Our feet upon the ground . . . If only we would help them now . . . As once we needed aid . . . To teach their hearts to understand . . . And never be afraid . . . Their problems are important and . . . They make a lot of sense . . . And we should help them all we can . . . With our experience.

Mexico Abandons Hope for 27 on Ship

VERACRUZ (UP) — The Mexican Navy abandoned hope Saturday for 27 persons missing from the coastal steamer which sank in stormy waters of the Gulf of Mexico Tuesday night.

A Navy Ministry spokesman said the five bodies recovered and 33 survivors were "probably all" that would be accounted for of the 65 persons believed aboard La Flecha when it went down nine miles off shore.

Nature's Medicine Fights Polio Spread

By ERNEST BARTON

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—A Tulane University scientist says nature's own forces will continue to do much of the work in the fight against polio.

Dr. John P. Fox of the Tulane School of Medicine says the Salk vaccine shows promise of being the most effective weapon against polio since the disease was first isolated.

But the protection built up by infection during childhood will be needed to help reinforce vaccine immunity, Fox says.

Fox and other Tulane scientists started a study two years ago of natural immunization to polio.

The study, aided by the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, will concentrate now on learning about the possible spread of infection among vaccinated children, even though the vaccine prevents paralysis.

In the past, Fox says, most people became immune to polio safely and naturally by being infected with polio virus.

Usually this infection was encountered in childhood and about once in approximately 300 cases it resulted in paralytic disease.

Fox says the Tulane project was aimed first at learning when and under what circumstances natural infections occurred.

Besides providing a better understanding of how polio viruses are spread, "it seemed natural that the project would show the circumstances which distinguished the safe, natural infection from the rare infection which resulted in disease," Fox says.

To do this, Fox and his staff studied 155 babies and their households during 1953. The subjects came from New Orleans, Baton Rouge and Evangeline area and represented all classes, both white and negro.

The 155 babies and their households have been checked monthly for two years. The checking included information as to family movements and health and collections of blood and stool specimens—to be tested for polio virus and antibodies.

"We have seen polio infection enter 85 households and have seen more than 200 persons, newborn babies, older brothers and sisters become immune," Fox says.

"In most cases the infection did not result in illness. In the balance of the cases, illness was not significant."

Fox says he and his associates hope to continue the research on the project for another 2½ years.

The children in the 155 study households of the Tulane project will be offered the Salk vaccine, Fox says.

Then, the group will study the natural occurrence of infection in artifically immune children.

"Last year's evaluation program indicated that the vaccine prevents disease but it had no bearing on the problem of infection," Fox says.

He adds it is important to know if general vaccination affects the spread of virus in a community.

"If not, then the person who is vaccinated can probably count on later natural infection to reinforce immunity through life.

"If the spread of virus is largely suppressed, then vaccine-induced immunity may fall off and children will become susceptible again.

"This would mean periodic revaccination," he says.

New Summer Records Set in Playground Attendance

Summer recreation program attendance in Long Beach, Lakewood and Signal Hill is at an all-time high, according to playground officials. Swarms of youngsters are participating in the aquatics program. Land playgrounds are jammed, too.

Free swimming lessons are attracting hundreds of boys and girls to the Colorado Lagoon, Bayshore aquatic center and to 59th Pl. and Bayshore Wk.

The three high school swimming pools are hosts to scores of other eager youngsters.

Landwise, the summer playground softball race is under way with boys competing in four classifications, by age, and girls in two classes.

Walter L. Scott, major domo of the summer playgrounds program, says handcraft, puppetry, drama, rhythms and other special classes are packed with children at all areas.

"In all, we are off to the greatest summer recreation season in the city's history," Scott said.

Construction of big-league backstops at junior high school baseball diamonds throughout the city is one of the major improvement programs of the year.

Free tennis instruction, special sessions in model boat building, and rejuvenation of the Tackle Busters—sport fishing clubs for boys and girls—are other attractive features of the summer play program.

The summer recreation program will run until Aug. 26. Meanwhile 67 municipal and school playgrounds are operating on a daily schedule of 9 a.m.-5 p.m. with veteran recreation supervisors in charge at each area.

New Home Cost in Sharp Climb

Building costs of a $10,000 house were $290 higher in April than they were a year ago and costs of home building continue to mount, it was reported yesterday by Walter W. Keusder, president, Home Builders Institute, Los Angeles, trade association of larger firms in the home building industry.

Current prices of new homes, the HBI president said, do not yet reflect the increased costs because builder-members of the Home Builders Institute are attempting to hold the price line "by employing every known production technique to effect economies."

"In face of increased costs of labor, materials and land, the new homes being offered for sale represent the best values offered the public in many years," Keusder said.

"There are no present indications that the upward trend in home building costs will be halted, and unless it is, prices must soon begin to move upwards, too," the HBI president added.

Keusder pointed to FHA survey figures which disclose that land costs have doubled since 1946 and have gone up nearly 20 per cent during the past 12 months. He added that materials, including lumber, cement, hardware and plumbing equipment advanced in price from three to 15 per cent between April 1954 and April 1955.

Exceptions, he noted, are gypsum products which have not yet shown a price increase and heating equipment and millwork, costs of which are down slightly during the survey period.

Labor costs have risen 1.5 during the year, Keusder stated, and new wage increases are in the making both locally and nationally.

READY TO BUILD

Work Started on 120 Palos Verdes Homes

Situated on one of the Palos Verdes rolling hills, which affords a breathtaking view of the harbor, Larga Vista Homes, an exclusive 120-home development has been started.

Attending the groundbreaking ceremony were Homer Bale, president; George Chacksfield, vice president, and William Dunlap, sales manager, of the Property Management Corp., developers of Larga Vista; Ivar O. Hansen, general manager of Ranchos Palos Verdes Properties, developers of the 7,000 acres, manager for the Capital Company, co-owners with the Great Lakes Carbon Corp. of Rancho Palos Verdes.

Rancho Palos Verdes, located west from downtown Long Beach, and one of the most scenic locales in Southern California, is to be developed, during next 10 years, into a community of restricted homes, under a master plan which calls for completely integrated school, shopping, park, sport and recreational facilities. Initial installation of utilities and other facilities is now in progress.

With half-acre home sites, Larga Vista homes, of contemporary design with modern comfort conveniences, will be priced from $17,450. Homes will feature three or four bedrooms and two baths. The developers, who have built more than 3,000 homes in Los Angeles since 1940, have designed these spacious dwellings in keeping with the Palos Verdes master plan, which features many homes in the $25,000 to $50,000 range. They will have such desirable accomodations as architecturally styled fireplaces, built in gas ranges and ovens, colored crushed rock roofs, open beam ceilings, two-car garages, oak floors, forced air heating, stall showers, breakfast bars, walls of glass overlooking the scenic view, coordinating decorator colors and wood exteriors.

Realty Sales Soar L. B. Survey Shows

Through the recent survey of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, Barbara Moss, real estate counselor with the Harold K. Steele organization, has made comparative analysis of Long Beach with that of the nation.

Major factors in the retail property market—prices, transfers, rents, vacancies and loans for purchase, here in this area as well as nationwide, show the market to be stable and healthy, she states.

The survey forecasts stable prices for retail business properties in most places. Rising prices are predicted for 23 per cent of the cities.

Numbers of transfers of these properties have been about the same in 58 per cent of the central city areas and have increased in another 19 per cent compared with a year ago.

Most areas throughout the country have an ample supply of loan money for "preferred risk" properties—those in prime locations or those occupied by organizations having nationally accepted credit standings. The dominant interest rate is 5 per cent.

In the Long Beach area the sales have continued to mount. Home owners are spending for the privilege of living in the American way, she declares.

It is to be noted that because of the intense interest in the Los Altos area which is east of Clark and south of Spring St. (where some 750 homes have transferred ownership during the past six months) and for purposes of showing this real development, Miss Moss has segregated the sales of Alamitos Circle and Los Altos. Previously in her monthly reports this area was included in east Long Beach.

For many years the public has demanded a map showing the various subdivisional heads. Because of these requests they are now available by calling 40-1125, where a map will be forwarded showing the residential areas, some 47 districts, such as the boundaries of California Heights, Naples, Belmont Shore, Lakewood Plaza, etc.

BUENA PLAZA

Shown is one of the many four-bedroom, two-bath home designs offered in Aldon Construction Co.'s 1956 "Triumph Series" dwellings now rising at Buena Plaza, Miller St. and La Palma Ave., Buena Park. New series also features many three-bedroom, two-bath stylings.

Two Weeks Sales 146 in Buena Plaza

Huge crowds and sale of 146 of Aldon Construction Co.'s new 1956 "Triumph Series" of 3 and 4-bedroom, 2-bath homes in the past two weeks assured the success of next year's models, it was reported by Aldon officials following the introduction of the new series.

The builders reported the crowds were the largest for any two weekends in the history of the firm as a steady flow of visitors saw the display of 5 model homes at Valley View and La Palma Aves., south of the Santa Ana Freeway in Buena Park, near Knott's Berry Farm. The models are furnished by Aaron Schultz.

Features finding favor, it was reported by E. (Billy) Hamburg, general sales agent, included floor-to-ceiling brick fireplaces, built-in Western-Holly gas ovens and ranges with copperized hoods, king size stall showers with 6-foot walls of ceramic tile and glass doors, full size bathtubs with showers and 5 feet of marlite over tubs, and 70,000 BTU forced-air heating systems.

Other features include sliding glass walls, rich oak block floors, natural finish birch cabinets with custom hardware, big double sinks with coved plastic tops, asphalt tile kitchen floors, Waste King garbage pulverators, Dish-Whiz semi-automatic dishwashers, and folding partitions separating kitchens from service areas.

Hamburg reported buying had been stimulated by nothing down terms to vets, except for costs and impounds, and monthly payments from $66.67, principal and interest.

Property improvements include wide paved streets with parkway trees and ornamental street lights, curbs, gutters and sewers. Many streets are cul-de-sac to offer traffic protection for children and pets, it was stated.

State Asks Bids on College Cafeteria

Assemblyman William S. Grant announced that the State Department of Public Works is advertising for bids for the construction of a cafeteria building at Long Beach State College. Funds are available for the project in the amount of $325,000.

The cafeteria will be a single story, flat-roofed building with partial basement for mechanical equipment, a loading dock, and an areaway.

The Division of Architecture designed the building as a dual purpose facility. While it will be used primarily for serving food and refreshments to students and faculty, it will be utilized also for group meetings and other on-campus activities.

Accommodations for serving meals to about 300 persons have been provided in the main dining room area. When cleared of tables and chairs, the room may be converted into a social hall of considerable size for large gatherings. In addition, an all-purpose room has been planned to accommodate smaller group meetings. This room will also provide the necessary storage space for unused tables and chairs. A separate, independently operated, snack bar may be closed off for special occasions.

Kitchen services have been centralized to permit direct access to each dining area. Because it is anticipated that the student population at this institution will greatly increase during the next few years, the kitchen has been designed large enough to handle the maximum work loads anticipated.

The cafeteria will be surrounded by over 10,500 square feet of concrete terrace of which about 3,500 square feet will be covered. When weather conditions permit, the sheltered patio may be used to augment the inside dining facilities and will almost double the space available in the main dining room area.

REALTOR OF WEEK

Don Killen Headed Here as Tot, Finally Made It

DON KILLEN
Yearned for West

A cowboy's sombrero his trademark and the ability to make and hold friends a natural accomplishment, Donald P. Killen, the Long Beach Realtor of the Week has a droll humor appreciated by all.

When asked about his history, Killen casually remarked: "Not much of a story—let's see—it all happened 41 years ago on the East Coast and from the very first I had the urge to go West.

"We got as far as Ashville, N. C., where dad decided to settle down on a farm near the edge of town. So the formative years of three sons were spent there."

He continued to narrate how his father became a building contractor. When Donald was 12 his father died and the responsibility was left on his shoulders. The urge to head West continued to hold him and he ventured as far as Chattanooga, Tenn., where he went to Southern Junior College, working his way through. He then changed his course and went to Florida for two years, working at the Dr. John Harvey Kellogg resort. There, he said he gained much valuable knowledge and headed West again.

In 1932 he began work in a Southern California airplane factory and then enrolled in a course in aviation mechanics. When, he added, Uncle Sam asked for volunteers for 1 year of service in aviation he signed up but by the time his tour of duty was over it was 5 years and he had climbed from a buck private to captain.

He captured the first Jap prisoner for his division in New Guinea and received a citation and later a Bronze Star.

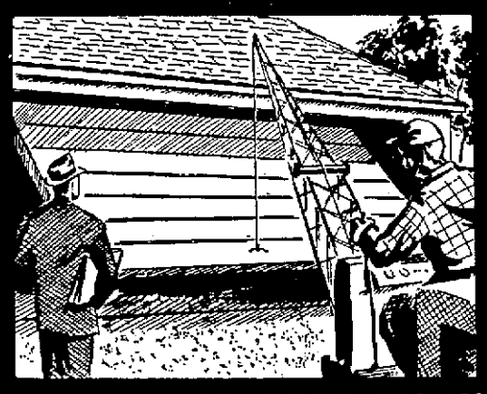

He had married just before going overseas and when in 1945 he returned home he decided to give up aviation and enter the "biggest business in California, real estate."

Within a few months he became a broker and has followed the profession since. He followed the growth of real estate in the Southland, starting in southwest Los Angeles in the Leimert Park area and looking into the future, ventured into Lakewood before the May Co. did.

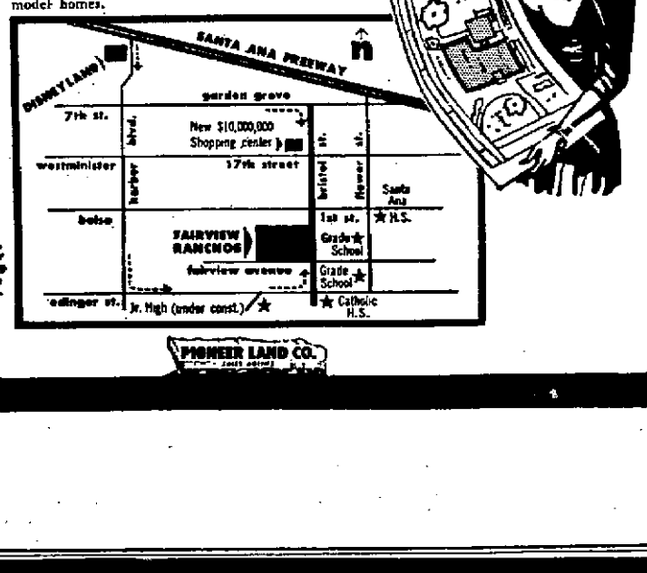

Killen is associated with the Lakewood Housing Corp., 5001 Cherry Ave., and lives at 3753 Candlewood. They have three children. "I came here to make a killin'," he laughed. I made three, Killens instead," continued, nodding to the children.

Don is a natural salesman and the past 30 days has made 9 sales.

FEATURE BUILT-IN
Exemplified above are 148 three and four-bedroom, two-bath Champion Park homes at East and North Sts., Anaheim, which features many built-ins, including gas oven, range, inter-com music system, barbecues and combined buffet-desk-dinette.

Champion Park's Opening Is Today

Arnold Construction Co. announced the grand opening this weekend of Champion Park in Anaheim, new 3 and 4-bedroom quality homes with such features as Musicall intercom systems which pipe music between a master control panel and four speakers.

Furnished model homes will be ready for the thousands of visitors expected at the new development at East La Palma and North East Sts., a spokesman for the developers said.

"Noteworthy in Champion Park Homes," he said, "are the nine different floor plans scientifically designed to meet individual needs, and the avoidance of 'tract appearance' by giving buyers a choice from among 18 different exteriors."

"Living rooms," he added, "have sliding walls of glass opening onto terraces, with built-in brick barbecues, while draperies for the wide-expanse of glass walls come with the homes in a choice of six colors."

Terms for vets are nothing down but costs and impounds with monthly payments from $6.70 for principal and interest. Non-vets may buy on low FHA terms.

Other features of the new homes icluding built-in range and ovens, 70,000 to 75,000 BTU thermostat-controlled heating, 40 to 50-gallon gas water heaters, ceramic tile pullman tops in both baths, stall showers in some models, natural beech kitchen cabinets, Waste King garbage pulverators, wide overhangs, redwood fencing, front and side lawns and shrubs, and two-car garages with extra storage space.

Downtown Los Angeles is only 45 minutes away via the Santa Ana Freeway, it was noted, while beaches, mountain and desert resorts are only a short distance from Anaheim which has a smog-free climate and a low tax rate.

Champion Park is reached by following the Santa Ana Freeway to Lincoln Ave., which becomes Center St. Center is followed through downtown Anaheim to East St., where a left turn leads to the property at East La Palma and North East Sts.

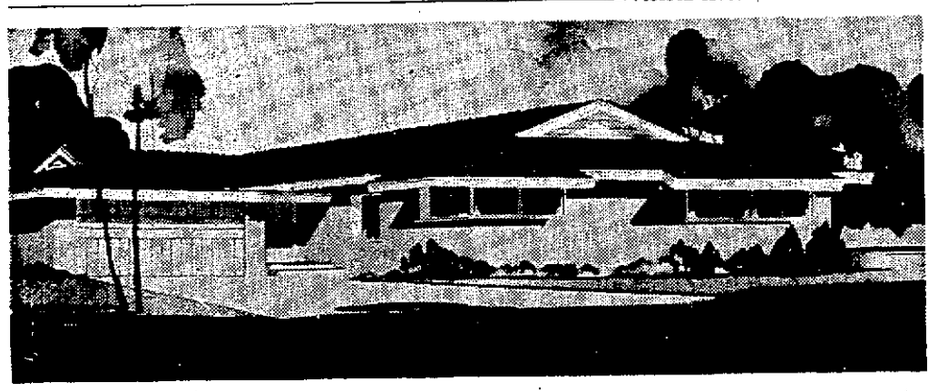

Offer Homes to Non-Vets on $295 Dn.

"Sound construction, attractive architectural design and ready accessibility to industrial areas in Long Beach and metropolitan Los Angeles are factors that appeal to buyers of Artesia Sunshine Homes," S. V. Hunsaker, builder, said recently.

A limited number of these homes built exclusively for non-vets are still available on terms of $295 cash down followed by monthly payments as low as $68.75 including principal and interest.

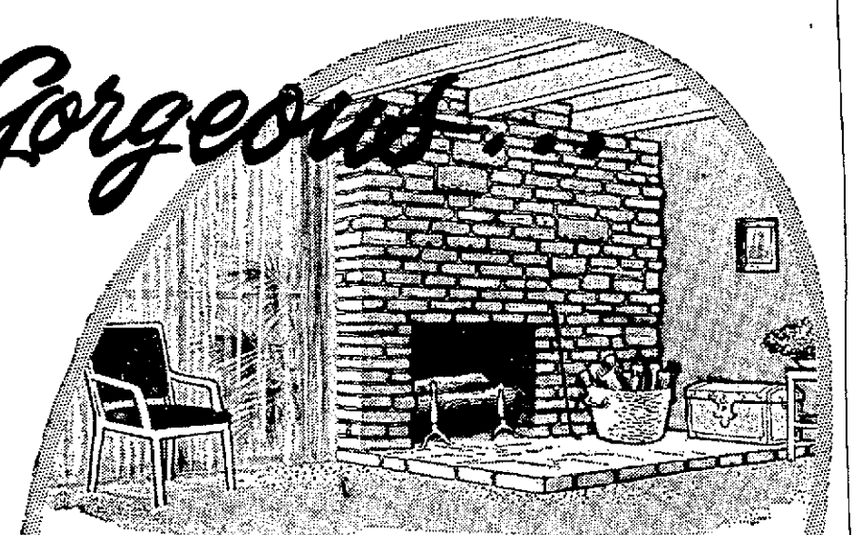

Artesia Sunshine Homes offer prospective buyers spacious rooms, functional design and interiors attractively finished in decorator colors. These three-bedroom homes feature two baths, large 40-gallon water heaters, natural birch cabinets and plenty of closet space. Buyers have a choice of front or rear living room. Colorful rock roofs with wide overhangs add to the comfort and eye-appeal of these charming homes.

Furnished models are open to visitors from 9:00 to 9:00 daily at Del Amo and Violeta in Artesia. The homes are readily reached from Long Beach by driving east on Carson to Pioneer, north on Pioneer to Del Amo, then east on Del Amo to Violeta Ave.

Crowd Attends Beverly Gardens Opener

With an overflow crowd in attendance, George J. Heltzer, president of his 30-year-old Southern California construction firm last Sunday officially opened Beverly Gardens in Garden Grove by dedicating a street of 14 model homes. It is believed to be the first time a whole neighborhood of so many exhibit residences has been offered the home-buying public at one time—an event that resulted in more than $500,000 in opening day sales.

Event also marked the opening of builders' "Gateway to Quality" home show, which will continue for several weeks, according to David Berman, Heltzer associate in charge of construction of this new community of conventionally-constructed, traditional, modern and contemporary prestige homes that offer a choice of either 3 or 4 bedrooms, all with 2 full bathrooms.

Offering 20 floor plans and 33 exteriors, all homes have real log-burning, floor-to-ceiling fireplaces in choice of clinker, slumpstone or scratch construction; genuine No. 1 oak hardwood floors on solid conventional subfloorings wood joist construction; genuine red wood sidings; select cedar shingles and weathered brick facias; forced-air heating, 75,000 BTU; garbage disposers; hardwood paneling in living room; "spatter" linoleum in kitchens; genuine formica drainboards with monoform edges; 50 and 40-gallon water heaters; semi-automatic dishwashers; large wardrobe closets; natural-finish as slab doors throughout; natural-finish beechwood kitchen cabinets; copper hood, light and exhaust fan over range area in kitchen; rockwool insulation, and separate service porches.

Priced from $14,000, homes are available to veterans who qualify for VA financing, on terms of nothing down except impounds and closing costs. Monthly payments range from $72.10 including principal and interest, officials of Power Realty Co., sales agents, explained. Non-veterans can take advantage of easy FHA terms for a small down payment, and monthly terms that range from $61.35 that include principal and interest, they said.

Beverly Gardens can be reached from Long Beach by taking Seventh St. (which runs into Garden Grove Blvd.) and turn left on either Ninth or West St. to Chapman and West St. and sales office. From Harbor Boulevard, turn right on Chapman to model homes on West St., open from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m.

BUILT BY HALTZER

This is one of the many offerings in Beverly Gardens which drew an overflow crowd at opening last Sunday. Sales the first day reached over $500,000.

First Uranium Ore From New Mines

WALSENBURG, Colo. (AP)—The first commercial shipment of uranium ore from Huerfano County was made last week—ore from mines discovered when a packhorse stumbled and spilled a Geiger counter on an exposed ore vein.

The shipment was 17 tons of ore from the Stumbling Stud mines north of Badito. It was trucked to Grants, N.M., at the direction of the Atomic Energy Commission. J. A. McClung, contract operator of the 16 properties, took the ore shipment to the mill.

Discovery of the ore first became known in April when the AEC promised to purchase "selected ore" from the Stumbling Stud mines.

Chapman-Magnolia Park Final Unit Now Opened

Grand opening of the final unit of Chapman-Magnolia Park in the choice residential section of suburban Garden Grove, is today, according to Ajax Construction Co., builder-developers of this community of spacious California contemporary and modern four-bedroom, three-bedroom and a den and three-bedroom homes, with one, two and three baths. They are priced from $11,600 to $13,900, and are available to veterans for no down payment, no impounds and no closing costs, with monthly terms that range from $61.41 to $73.39 for principal and interest.

Country-life features of homes in this final unit, themed as "distinctive rustic," are interiors where wall space, windows and generous use of floor space make effective and restful decoration and furnishing simple and inexpensive, if desired.

Other comfort appointments and conveniences are built-in gas ovens and range tops in a virtual rainbow of colors and hues, complete with automatic timing device and controls; spacious built-in breakfast nooks; large "new-view" picture windows.

To inspect the furnished models on exhibit from 10 a. m. to 8 p. m., home-seekers from Los Angeles should drive out the Santa Freeway to Highway 30 (Grand Ave. in Buena Park); turn right and drive south to Chapman; left on Chapman to models. From Long Beach, drive east on 7th St., past the Veterans' Hospital to Highway 39; north one-half mile to Chapman, and east one-mile to Chapman-Magnolia Park.

R. & W. CONSTRUCTION CO., BUILDERS

New Route Advised to Glenn Dell Park

Because of the opening tomorrow of Disneyland, West St., leading directly to the third and final unit of Glen Dell Park, D. & E. Corporation's newest residential development in Garden Grove, may be temporarily made into a one-way highway, according to officials of Pioneer Land Co., sales agents.

Therefore, home-seekers from Long Beach planning to visit this new community of conventionally - constructed 3-bedroom and 2-bedroom-and-a-den home today or next week, are advised not to try to travel directly on West St. or even Chapman Ave., but to drive out Seventh St. (Garden Grove Blvd.) to Euclid Ave.; turn left on Euclid to Katella, right on Katella to West St., and then right on West St. to development.

Built around the popular center-hall plan, Glen Dell Park homes offer either front or rear living rooms, two bathrooms, and a choice of attached or detached two-car garages. There are 23 exteriors, and a variety of decorative redwood-trims as well as other attractive exterior appointments.

Homes are available to qualified veterans for no down payment except impounds and closing costs, and on monthly payments that range from $58.75, and include principle and interest, Pioneer officials state. Homes are priced from $11,595.

An important sales stimulant, it was pointed out, is the mortgage-payment insurance protection policy, with premiums paid for one full year, which is given each buyer at no additional cost. Policy provides enough money to take care of monthly payments for at least one year should the home-buyer become unable to work because of an insured disability.

Other popular features are genuine oak hardwood floors laid over diagonal sub-floors; geniune lath and plaster walls; separate service porches; covered concrete terraces; "convertable" dining nooks; double sinks with ceramic tile drainboards; garbage disposers; natural-finish wood kitchen cabinets; copperized rangehoods with exhaust fans; inlaid "spatter" pattern linoleum in kitchens and bathrooms; 40-gallon water heaters; coralite tile in bathrooms, and sliding glass doors that lead directly onto garden patios.

IN GLEN DELL PARK

Because the opening of Disneyland may result in temporary one-way traffic on West St., Garden Grove, visitors to Glen Dell Park were advised to take a new route to the homes today. Visitors may drive on Euclid to Katella, left to West St. and then right to reach the homes where the design above is one of the models.

Throngs of Visitors for Delhi Gardens

The three furnished model homes and three flexible floor plans designed to make suburban living a happy blend of convenience and beauty drew hundreds of visitors and potential buyers to Delhi Gardens, new Godbey Development Co. community on Delhi Rd. at Lowell St. in the new "miracle mile" section of southwest Santa Ana, according to spokesmen for Pioneer Land Co., sales agents.

Homes' big white fireplaces, made of Texas sandstone, and designed with raised hearths in such a manner as to dominate the big, open-beamed ceilinged rooms, prove to be one of the high points of interest, sales officials explained. Complete wall of glass that looks out onto the concrete garden patio and separates the "family room" from the rest of the house also won high public approval, it was stated.

Kitchens, which include built-in gas wall ovens and range tops at comfort levels; garbage disposers, and aerodynamically designed range hoods were developed especially for Delhi Gardens homes by Mrs. Olsten, wife of the designer — Clif Olsten. Her design for these kitchens has received such high praise that they have been named for her, builders reported.

Moderately priced from $12,999 and requiring no down payments of veterans except usual closing costs and impounds, low monthly payments range from $66.94, builders point out, and include principal and interest. The homes are large, some four-bedroom.

Adding to attractiveness are birch kitchen cabinets, Formica drainboards, American Standard bath fixtures with Hallmark fittings, glass-enclosed stall showers, built-in dressing table in the master bath in some, and deep walk-in closets.

Other popular features are 75,000 BTU forced-air heating, ash slab doors throughout, sliding aluminum-framed windows with aluminum screens, custom-designed lighting fixtures, insulated ceilings, asphalt tile flooring, insulated slab doors, complete weathershipping; landscaping, with front and side lawns planted and growing, and decorative redwood fences.

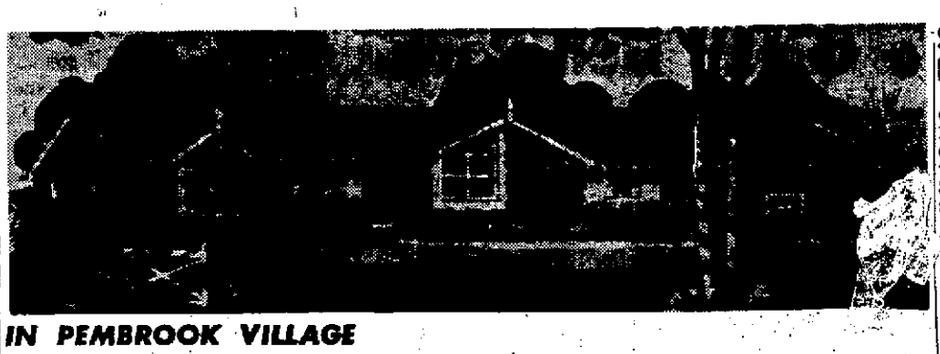

Delhi Gardens may be seen by taking the Santa Ana Freeway to Main St. in Santa Ana; turn right on Main St. to Delhi Rd., and right on Delhi to model homes at Lowell St.

DELHI GARDENS

IN PEMBROOK VILLAGE

Rustic California architecture featured in Pembrook Village. The popular Garden Grove development on Harbor just south of Chapman has been enthusiastically received by home buyers. Among the many features are shake roofs, hardwood floors, a compartmentalized bath and the convenient "MusiCall" intercommunication system.

Heavy Sales in Pembrook Village

"Since the grand opening of Pembrook Village No. 5 a few weeks ago, buying enthusiasm has gone far beyond expectation. This, of course, is due to the many 'extra' features specifically designed for the complete enjoyment of our Southern California way of life embodied in these distinctive, rustic, Early American homes," explained Bruce Bartleson, sales director for the Pembrook Co., builders of the Garden Grove development.

"In addition, we are indeed gratified to learn that many buyers choose Pembrook Village because it offers seclusion and, at the same time, easy accessibility to all the conveniences of city life, including proximity to the famed Disneyland, only three minutes away," he continued.

Just a limited number of these popular homes has been built to insure complete and proper supervision of construction.

When the managers of Pembrook Village use the slogan "Old Fashioned Charm in a Modern Setting," they mean it, for, included in the array of attractive features are: real brick fireplaces, Musicall intercom system, compartmentalized baths with sliding doors that make it possible for five people to use the facilities in complete privacy, and forced-air heating.

Circular floor plans, roomy efficiency kitchens with garbage disposers and fans, sliding glass doors to patio area, golden hardwood floors, large dining areas in all models and service porches are just a few of the popular features offered.

Pembrook Village No. 5 is on Harbor just south of Chapman. From Los Angeles take the Santa Ana Freeway to Harbor and turn south. From Long Beach go out Seventh St. (Garden Grove Blvd.) and turn north on Harbor. Look for the Ojai Stone Gate on the east side of Harbor.

British Exports Show Big Drop

LONDON (AP)—British exports during June fell by 90 millions pounds (252 million dollars) from the April-May average, the Board of Trade disclosed.

The dock and railway strikes during that period were primary cause of the sharp decline.

Recorded exports were 157 million pounds ($439,600,000) imports went down only slightly thus creating a sharp trade gap.

The excess of imports over reexports was 128,800,000 pounds ($360,640,000), compared with an average of 47,900,000 pounds ($134,120,000) for the April-May period.

Exports to North America took a severe beating, totalling 17,800,000 pounds ($49,720,000) a reduction of more than one-third on the April-May average.

Attend Confab

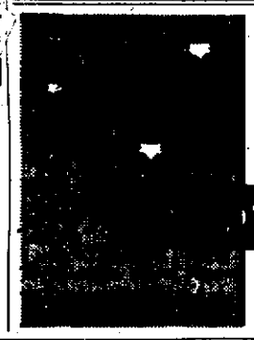

Long Beach women in the liquor industry were recently represented at the 8th annual convention of the Women's Association of Allied Beverage Industries, Inc. in New York City by Virginia Adams, newly elected president of the Los Angeles area chapter. Also attending the convention was Marie Koch, past chairman pro tem of the local WAABI chapter.

New Orange Terrace Unit Draws Crowds

IN NEW COMMUNITY

Here is one of the models at Orange Terrace Unit III, W. I. Wilkie's newly opened community of three and four-bedroom, two-bath homes on Flower St., just south of Chapman Ave., Orange. Terms to vets are nothing down but costs and impounds.

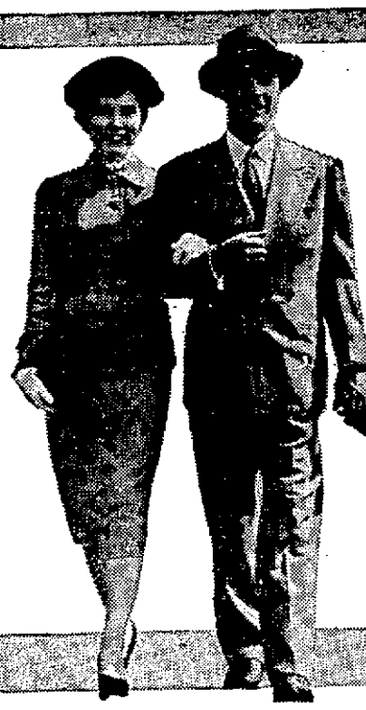

A steady flow of visitors all last weekend at the newly opened third unit of Orange Terrace, on Flower just south of Chapman Ave. in Orange, resulted in the highest sales total to date, according to W. I. Wilkie, developer of the community of 3 and 4-bedroom, 2-bath homes. Terms to veterans are nothing down but costs and impounds, while non-vets are offered FHA terms with down payments from $1,450.

Mrs. Faith Coulter, who heads an all-woman staff for Walker & Lee, sales agents, said yesterday both visitors and sales have continued heavy at Orange Terrace Unit 3 during the week. Focal point of interest, she stated, is the exhibit of furnished models decorated under supervision of Mrs. Marie Wilkie, wife of the developer.

There still are a few homes left in the second unit of Orange Terrace, according to Mrs. Coulter, who disclosed that GI's still may buy these dwellings on the same terms in effect prior to the April 28 restrictive order issued by the Veterans Administration. The Unit II houses are available only because of credit rejections, she said.

Among the many added luxury features offered in the new homes at Unit III are open brick fireplaces and built-in Western Holly ranges and ovens. In addition, there are sliding glass walls; ceiling-high picture windows; Higgins oak block floors; Formica decks, natural birch cabinets, double sinks with garbage disposers and Vinyl tile floors in the kitchens.

To reach Orange Terrace take the Santa Ana Freeway to Chapman Ave., turn east, go to Flower St. in Orange, and turn south.

Hundreds of Southlanders attended the grand opening last weekend of Royal Crest, new three and four-bedroom development in Garden Grove. This is one model.

Royal Crest Terms None Down to Vets

Knights in armor and mounted on steeds with ornate saddles, directed hundreds of home-seekers to Royal Crest in Garden Grove during last Sunday's grand opening.

Lances bearing the Royal Crest flag pointed the way to the 3 and 4-bedroom "country estate plan" community.

Available to veterans on no down payment terms, the homes are built on extra-wide lots and are priced at $61 per month, including principal and interest.

As a especial offer, buyers will be given a $100 gift certificate redeemable at any May Co. store to help furnish the new home.

Those purchasing new Royal Homes also are given a choice of a built-in Roper gas range and oven in color, a built-in Hotpoint automatic electric dishwasher, a Westinghouse automatic clothes washer or a Rheem-Wedgewood automatic clothes dryer. The appliance is included in the purchase price of the particular plan selected.

Interiors of the homes feature 20-foot walls of glass, natural brick fireplaces with log lighters and ash receptacles, genuine oak hardwood floors, sound-absorbing ceilings, breakfast nook areas, covered Laminart sink tops, forced air heating with summer conditioning and built-in television antennas.

Other features—Waste King Garbage Pulverators, 40 or 50-gallon water heaters, double porcelain enamel sinks, exhaust fans, spacious patios, extra heavy natural rock roofs and over-size garages. Purchasers receive one-year signed warranties on the construction of the homes.

Six models furnished by the May Co. may be viewed by those taking the Santa Ana Freeway from Los Angeles to Harbor Blvd.; turn right on Hazard to Royal Crest.

From Long Beach, follow Westminster past Stanton, then turn right on Newhope to the model homes. Milton Gordon Co. is sales agent.

Few Homes Remain in Harmony Manor

A warning was issued yesterday by the Heftler Construction Co. that only a few Harmony Manor homes with the unique "Jack and Jill" rooms remain to be sold.

Spokesmen for the developers gave credit to the special children's rooms and other features such as built-in ranges and ovens, walls of glass with sliding doors, and built-in serving bars for the steady sale of the three-bedroom, two-bath Garden Grove homes.

Louis Lesser, sales agent for the new residential community just off the Santa Ana Freeway at Magnolia Ave. and Ball Road, explained that the whole family appreciates the "Jack and Jill" rooms, which save separate sleeping quarters for two children and a common play area. There is a separate entrance from the outside, too, permitting youngsters to run back and forth without tracking through the rest of the house.

While liberal terms are given non-vets, vets may move in immediately without paying a cent, he said, adding that these special terms for vets of no cash down, not even for costs and impounds can apply only to homes built or building due to the recent ruling of the Veterans Administration. Monthly payments for vets are $61.35 for principal and interest.

Other features of Harmony Manor which is located in a well-developed area near schools, churches, shopping and recreation centers, are covered breezeways, electric garbage disposers, natural finish hardwood kitchen cabinets, aluminum louvred windows, and large two-car garages.

Model homes furnished by C. Tony Pereira are open daily and Sunday. Visitors from Los Angeles should follow the Santa Ana Freeway to Magnolia Ave. Harmony Manor is south of the freeway on Magnolia at Ball Rd.

Landscaping Is Provided for Ranchos

At Fairview Ranchos—newly opened D. & E. Corp. home development on Bristol St. at Fairview Ave. in the new residential "miracle mile" of Santa Ana, the minimum of three verdant, bearing orange trees and full-grown shade trees planted where necessary have been enthusiastically received by home buyers and visitors alike and will in the height of their beauty and effectiveness the weekend, according to spokesmen for Pioneer Land Co., sales agents.

Planned as part of the completely landscaped gardens of their conventionally constructed homes, appropriately called "California's Garden Homes," complete front and rear lawns are planted and growing except the playground area in each patio, which has been specifically set apart for children's play equipment.

Landscaping in each of the basic areas—lawns, ground cover, patio garden, play and service areas—is registered and detailed on a comprehensive "plot plan" given each buyer at the time of purchase, sales officials explained.

Centered in the rear garden area is a 120-square-foot concrete patio with decorative redwood dividers, and an attractive redwood planter box and seat facing the patio.

Surrounding the entire garden area is a 5½-foot-high redwood basket weave fence with a decorative gate, assuring patio privacy.

Available to veterans for nothing down except costs and impounds, Fairview Ranchos homes are attractively priced from $12,850, with monthly payments that range from $65.11 including principal and interest, Pioneer officials explained.

Development is easily reached from Long Beach via 7th St. (Garden Grove Blvd.) to Bristol St. in Santa Ana; turn right on Bristol to model homes open daily and Sunday from 10 a. m. to 9 p. m. for the convenience of home-seekers employed during the day. Three distinct types of interior decor—modern, Early American and California Contemporary—are featured in the exhibit homes, which were decorated by C. Tony Pereira.

Throngs Attend Opening of New Midland Meadows

Brisk sales accompanied the grand opening of Midland Meadows in Fullerton last weekend when large crowds viewed such style-setting features as full-sized masonry fireplaces, built-in ranges and ovens, 5-feet wide sliding walls of glass, a spokesman for the builders, Midland Properties, announced.

A steady stream of visitors passed through the 4-bedroom, 2-bath "Young Executive" model homes, he reported, adding that the display models remain open daily from 10 a. m. to 8 p. m. at West Orangethorpe and Richman Aves. Furnishings are by the Four Star Furniture Co., Whittier.

As an extra feature, he said, Midland Meadows homes have an olive tree on each lot, shrubs, and lawns at no additional cost.

Milton Gordon Co., sales agents, announced that non-vets are buying on liberal terms, while vets pay nothing down except costs and impounds with monthly payments of $74.68 for principal and interest. Vets earning $375 a month net may qualify, they added.

Planned by architects Palmer & Krisel, A. I. A., to allow buyers to choose from a wide variety of exterior stylings and floor plans, Midland Meadows is located in smog-free Fullerton, close to schools, churches, shopping areas, and transportation. Los Angeles Civic Center is 45 minutes away.

Forced-air heating, paved patios, and outdoor barbecues are popular features, according to the sales agents. Others are exposed rustic beam ceilings, center hall plans and rear living rooms, interior ash planters and doors, parquet laminated block oak flooring in entry hall, living and dining areas, stall showers with glass door and ceramic tile floor and walls, and large 2-car garages with storage space.

Visitors are directed to follow the Santa Ana Freeway to Orangethorpe Ave. Midland Meadows is approximately three miles east at Richman and Orangethorpe Aves.

BURBANK (U.P.)—An aircraft executive predicts that by 1956 air travel will jump 125 per cent and piston-engine planes still would carry a majority of passengers.

Burt C. Monesmith, vice president of Lockheed Aircraft Corp., said in 10 years air travel would be up 125 per cent over last year's 32,000,000,000 revenue passenger miles.

FHA Finds Few Vacancies Here

The Federal Housing Administrator has completed a survey of the vacancy situation in multi-family rental projects with FHA mortgage insurance in force and located within the jurisdiction of the Long Beach insuring office.

In announcing the results of this sixth annual occupancy survey, H. V. Davidson, director of the FHA office, with responsibility for supervising all FHA activity in the southern part of Los Angeles County and all of Orange County, stated that of the units covered by the survey approximately 1.9 per cent were identified as vacant at the end of March.

This compares with a ratio of 7.1 per cent reported at the end of March 1954.

Davidson pointed out that these figures cover FHA-insured projects in his entire jurisdiction and would, of course, be subject to variation among the various localities in the area.

Norman P. Mason, Commissioner of the Federal Housing Administration, recently announced that for the nation as a whole this survey covered over 517,000 dwellings units of which less than 23,000 or about 4.4 per cent were reported as vacant.

This national vacancy ratio of 4.4 per cent under all of the rental project insurance programs combined, represents an increase from the 3.5 per cent reported for the same date in 1954 and the 2.8 per cent reported in 1953.

Mason pointed out, however, that this latest rate was below the 7.2 per cent reported in 1950 and the 5.8 per cent reported for 1951.

Dale Park Selling in Fast Pace

Closeness to Long Beach, and ease of driving to and from the popular beach cities of Long Beach, Huntington Beach, Newport and Balboa have been strong factors in the fast selling pace established in Unit No. 2 of Dale Park in the west side of Garden Grove, reported spokesmen for Walker and Lee, sales agents for this new Murray-Sanders "Achievement Home" series of modernly-styled 3-bedroom, 1-bath and 4-bedroom, 2-bath residences located just minutes from a library, post office, park, bank, major shopping center and school area.

Offering 14 contemporary exteriors with as many variations of 3 basic floor plans, and positioned on its lot to capture a maximum of sunshine, create privacy and distinguish it from its neighbor, Dale Park homes boast an individuality appreciated by today's homeseekers, sales agents point out.

Luxury features included in all models are natural beechwood kitchen cabinets; kitchen ventilator fan; semi-automatic dishwasher; formica and textolite GE sink tops; birch-paneled wall in living room; garbage disposers; large workshop and storage area off double garage; concrete garden patios; colored bathroom fixtures; rockwool insulation; TV aerial lead-in plug; electric and gas refrigerator connections, and tub and shower in each bathroom.

Encompassing all the benefits of modern, contemporary design and construction, homes are available to veterans who can qualify for a VA loan for nothing down except impounds and closing costs. Prices range from $9,688 to $10,971, and payments are from $49.96 to $56.65 including principal and interest.

Conveniently located approximately 15 minutes from Long Beach, Dale Park may be quickly and easily reached by driving east on Seventh St. to Huntington Beach Blvd. (Highway 390; turn left (north), and go to Chapman Ave., then turn right and drive approximately 200 yards to furnished model homes open from 10 a. m. to 9 p. m. each day.

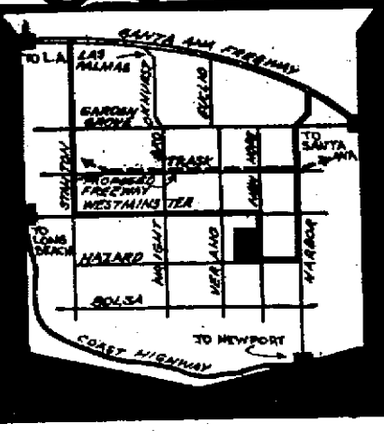

MORE NEON ON AUTO ROW

B & B Motor Sales, Long Beach firm which features near-new Cadillacs, opened a second sales location last week at 2259 American Ave., adding another colorful bit of neon along Automobile Row. Claude Bowling owns the firm with his No. 1 lot at 437 E. Anaheim St. Robert Lee and Bert Wheeler are managers.

Expects Price Hike on Appliances Soon

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—James H. Carmine, president of the Philco Corp., said recent price increases in steel and other raw materials probably will result in higher retail prices for appliances, especially refrigerators and air conditioners.

In a telegram sent to the company's distributors and field personnel, Carmine said:

"Higher prices have had to be paid for steel, aluminum and other raw materials. These, plus higher wages, are contributing to another round of higher production costs. It will be impossible for manufacturers of finished goods to absorb these increased costs.

"This applies especially to refrigerators and air conditioners, which are heavily plated with steel and copper, which is in extremely short supply.

"The values offered today may never be duplicated. As soon as the materials and components bought at today's prices are fabricated, their higher costs inevitably will be reflected in higher prices to the consumer."

Weymouth Knolls Sales in Palos Verdes Soaring

More than half a million dollars in sales was noted last week at Weymouth Knolls, distinctive Palos Verdes community, by Pelton and Zahler, builders.

The executives explained that a panoramic view of hillside and harbor sets the keynote at the development, which is located adjacent to the stylish Miraleste district.

These deluxe dwellings are open for immediate occupancy, and are available to veterans without down payment except costs and impounds.

Decorated in a modern motif in line with the contemporary theme of the development, a model home is on view daily and evenings. Frank Brothers of Long Beach furnished the styling.

Highlighting features are raised-hearth and floor-to-ceiling type fireplaces, forced-air heat, select oak floors, exceptional closet space, sliding glass doors, folding doors, abundant built-ins, disposals, central hall plans, insulated roofs, and landscaping.

Completely smog-free, Weymouth Knolls escapes much of the usual coastal fog. Just a few block's walk from Peck Park, the community is conveniently close by shopping districts, churches and schools.

To see Weymouth Knolls, drive from Long Beach west on the Pacific Coast Highway to Western Ave., then south on Western approximately 3 miles to Crestwood, right one block to MacArthur St., then 2 blocks to models.

Report Good Week in Villa de Flores

Featuring all-electric Hotpoint kitchens including built-in comfort-level ovens, range tops and electric dishwashers, Villa de Flores, Brainard Construction Co.'s new development of 108 custom-styled California modern and ranch-type 3-bedroom-and-a-den and four-bedroom residences, just off the Santa Ana Freeway on Flower St. in Santa Ana, today enters the second week of its grand opening with sales already past the one-third million-dollar mark, according to officials of Walker and Lee, sales agents.

Priced from $14,500 to $15,400, qualified veterans may move in on terms of nothing down except impounds and closing costs, with easy FHA terms also available for non-veteran buyers, they explained.

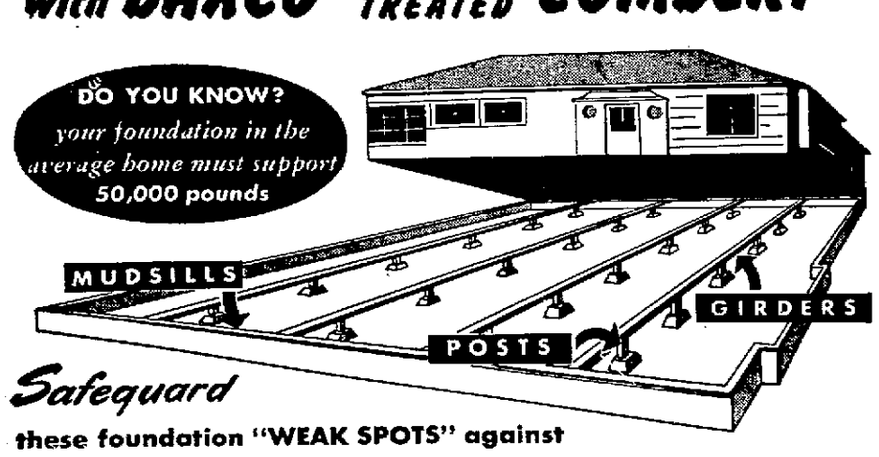

The all-electric kitchens also feature copperized range hood and large ash hardwood cabinets. Other luxury appointments are floor-to-ceiling real log-burning fireplaces offered in a choice of used brick, Roman brick or slumpstone; sliding glass doors; genuine plaster walls; conventional foundations and sub-floors; oak hardwood floors; forced air heating; walk-in wardrobe closets; convenient separate service porches; asphalt concrete driveways and concrete walks; and big, 2-car garages with 309 cubic feet of storage space.

With 3 basic floor plans and 9 exteriors from which to choose, scientific room coordination has been achieved by "zoning," builders state. All models have 2 large baths, it was noted.

Furnished exhibit homes, open daily from 10 a. m. to 9 p. m. may be reached by driving out the Santa Ana Freeway to Folwer Street; turn right to the first street (Orange Road), then right again to Villa de Flores. New community parallels freeway on the west.

Safeguard
these foundation "WEAK SPOTS" against
TERMITES · WOOD-ROT · EARTHQUAKE DAMAGE

WHY PRESSURE TREATING?
Only pressure treating, which drives and deposits the chemical preservatives deep into the wood cells, results in maximum protection. Over 100 years experience in pressure treating railroad ties, telegraph poles, bridge timbers and dock piling has proven its effectiveness. Building Codes stipulate "pressure treating" for approvals.

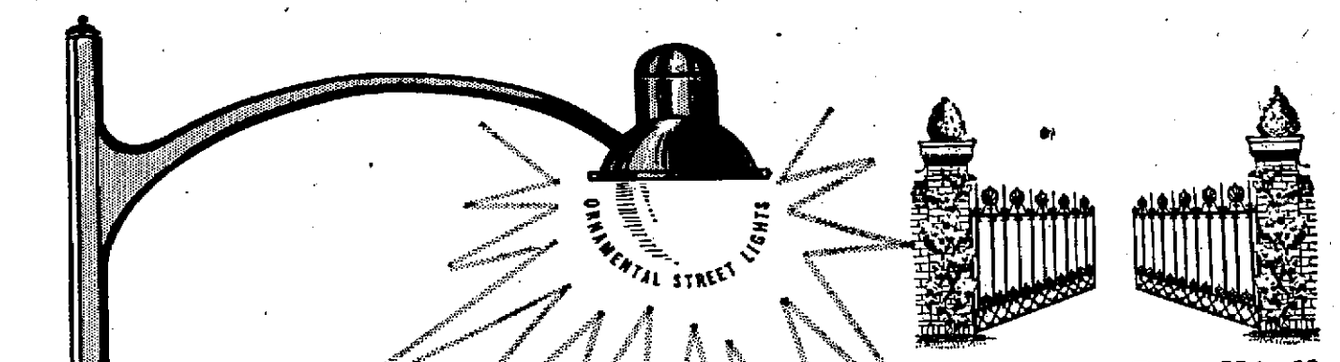

Every year thousands of home owners are faced with huge, sudden repair bills, caused by termites or decay. Working unseen these wood destroyers often go undetected for years . . . then damage repairs can run into hundreds of dollars.

BE SAFE—and insist on Baxco Pressure Treated "Chemically Preserved" Foundation Lumber up to and including the first floor joists—it will add less than one half of 1% to your total building cost.

BE SURE—if your home is built on a concrete slab, laid on the ground, that all sills are pressure treated—it will save you money in the long run.

See your lumber dealer for complete information.

Sun Estates Opens New Unit in Anaheim

A preview of the second unit of Sun Estates with easy financing arrangements has been set for this week-end according to spokeman for Walker and Lee sales agents for the Anaheim development.

The contemporary styled ranch homes are available to vets for a total of only $40 down and to non-vets for only $995 down, with no hidden costs or impounds the sales agent stressed.

Situated in the choice East Anaheim residential area, it was pointed out that the homes were away from heavy freeway traffic but near main traffic arteries to bring shopping conveniences within minutes of the location.

Custom draperies throughout the homes, fireplace, and forced air heat were among the luxury features pointed out plus built-in range and oven and breakfast bar in the spacious kitchen.

To visit the models, viewers may drive straight out Carson (Lincoln) to Center St. in Anaheim. Stay on Center St. through Anaheim to Placentia Ave. Turn right on Placentia one-half mile to Sun Estates.

No More Coal

ORIENT, Ill. (U.P.)—Orient No. 1 coal mine of the Chicago, Wilmington & Franklin Coal Co. which was closed down permanently here March 21, produced 40,000,000 tons of coal in 40 years before coal veins around it were exhausted.

Saved, Arrested

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (U.P.)—It was out of the frying pan and into the fire for two panic-stricken boys who had to be rescued from a 300-foot ledge on East Rock. Alfred Secondino and John Duess were promptly arrested for violating a park rule prohibiting mountain climbing.

Magnolia Estates Opens Another Unit

R. H. DOREMUS
Announces New Unit

Grand opening of the "Forward Series," new third unit of custom-styled homes at Magnolia Estates in Anaheim today will mark the completion of $150 million worth of quality dwellings in the last two decades. it was reported yesterday by Richard H. Doremus, vice president in charge of planning and construction for Exhibit Homes, Inc.

Commenting on the newest group of Exhibit Homes, which are rising on Magnolia Ave., south of the Santa Ana Freeway, between La Palma and Crescent Avenues, Doremus noted:

"Veterans and non-veterans alike will have their choice of 122 three and four-bedroom, two-bath homes in this new third unit—homes which contain all the features proven to be most desired by buyers in all our recent surveys.

"To be able to include these features, plus other new ideas, required more than a year of consultation with architects — time which our firm considered well spent, indeed."

Describing Anaheim as "now the center of fine home building," Doremus cited that Magnolia Estates is most fortunately located in a highly desirable section, close to all community conveniences.

Designed by Architect Daniel L. Dworsky, the homes are typified for visitors by four model dwellings tastefully furnished by C. Tony Pereira. Terms for vets are nothing down but costs and impounds and $63 a month, for principal and interest, while non-vets pay $995 down, plus costs and impounds, with small monthly payments.

Among the many special features are thermostat-controlled forced-air heating, all metal sliding glass doors, steel sash windows, lath and plaster construction, picture windows and stall showers with ceramic tile floors, large dining areas, rock-wool insulation, chrome bath fixtures, 40 to 50-gallon automatic gas water heaters, natural-finish kitchen cabinets, ceramic tile counters in the kitchens, and pantry closets.

Cox Refrigerated Homes Sales Termed Phenomenal

"The modern woman is keenly aware of the importance of comfort and conveniences in the home to assure the health and well-being of the family," Morris Crawley, sales manager for the Henry C. Cox organization in Garden Grove commented. "The phenomenal sales of Lifetime Modern Refrigerated Homes during the past week reflect the homemaker's influence in choosing a home that offers the maximum in easy and comfortable living."

Spacious and refreshingly unique, these 3 and 4-bedroom homes at Champan and Brookhurst, Garden Grove, provide cool comfort throughout by means of a Weathersphere air conditioning unit that doubles as a forced air heating unit. This "climate-conditioning" plus judicious use of floor space, excellent construction and the finest of built-in equipment are factors that have special appeal to prospective buyers.

Large, inviting living rooms feature fireplaces and indoor planters. Glass gables and sliding glass walls provide dramatic daytime lighting and enhance the sense of spaciousness. Other features include Touch-Plate lighting, aluminum framed sliding windows, ultra-modern built-in electrical ranges and two lavishly tiled baths plus stall shower.

Qualified vets may purchase these unique homes on terms of no down and $73.50 monthly, including principal and interest. FHA terms of $1,850 down are available to nonvets.

Visitors are invited to inspect the furnished model homes at Chapman and Brookhurst, Garden Grove.

Excelsior Village Vet Terms Attract

The low monthly payment of $64.39 which includes principal and interest has met with the approval of the score of vets who are selecting Excelsior Village as one of the most outstanding home values of Orange County, Don Coleman, sales agent, reported this week.

The low move-in costs combined with the low monthly payments, and ideal location have been received enthusiastically by vet buyers.

The homes, which include forced air heat, built-in range and oven and Fire-Bell Alarm system are part of a completely planned community with a centrally located school and shopping area with parking. A school already in existence is within walking distance of the homes.

Excelsior Village is the most modern development nearest the Long Beach area, says Coleman.

To see the furnished models, visitors from Long Beach may drive out Westminster Blvd. to Brookhurst Ave. or out Garden Grove Blvd. to Brookhurst Ave. Turn south on Brookhurst Ave. through Garden Grove to Excelsior Village.

IN EXCELSIOR VILLAGE

Shown is a portion of the spacious living area of the Excelsior Village homes and Orange County planned community. The low monthly vets terms of $64.39 which include principal and interest make these one of the outstanding home values ever offered in this area, according to Don Coleman, sales agent.

Buena Berry Park Offers Easy Terms

Just 20 minutes driving time from Long Beach, and 25 from downtown Los Angeles, Buena Berry Park's close-in location is proving a main sales factor, according to Don Coleman, sales agent for the Moss Building Corp.

Low monthly terms, starting at $58.92, are an added inducement, he said. No down payment is asked of qualified veterans, and non-vets also are in line for special financing.

Buena Berry Park is located just one block east of famous Knott's Berry Farm, in Buena Park. The 3 and 4-bedroom, 2-bath homes have a contemporary theme.

The much-acclaimed model homes at Buena Berry Park boast imported Scandinavian furniture. Decorated by Mogensen Combs of Brentwood, they have Danish, Swedish and California modern motifs.

De luxe features are headlined by raised hearth fireplaces, thermostatically controlled forced air heat, built-in oven and range, and central hall plans in some models.

There are natural wood beamed ceilings, breakfast bars, glass sliding doors to the terrace, exceptional closet space and many other items.

Landscaping at Buena Berry Park is enhanced by full-grown, fruit-bearing Valencia orange trees, which are found on every lot.

Futura Homes in Anaheim Are Priced From $12,900

The new "Futura Homes" of Brookhurst Plaza are ideally located in desirable and fast-growing Anaheim, Frank R. Hart, sales manager for Walker & Lee, Inc., pioneer Lakewood Realty Company, said.

Priced as low as $12,900 with payments from $66.44, these 3 and 4-bedroom, 2-bath homes are a real investment in quality construction and a future of good living, Hart explained.

Built by R. & W. Construction Co., Brookhurst Plaza incorporates all the excellent features home buyers of today seek. Included in these "Futura Homes" are: built-in Western Holly oven and ranges, natural birch cabinets, electric exhaust fans, G. E. garbage disposals, double compartment sinks and breakfast space in the kitchens.

In the bathrooms there are colored fixtures, Pullman lavatories, tiled showers with glass enclosures, Terraza bases and electric heaters. Inlaid linoleum with top-set bases is in the baths and kitchens.

Double sliding wardrobes are provided in the large master bedrooms. There are No. 1 hardwood floors with 2-inch tongue and groove sub-flooring, insulated ceilings and weather-stripping throughout.

Three-bedroom homes have 75,000 BTU furnaces, with 100,000 BTU in the 4-bedroom homes. Sliding windows with French doors lead to patio areas, and there are wood-burning fireplaces in the living rooms. Roofs are No. 1 cedar shingles and Dolomite, and there are two-foot overhangs, decorator colors inside and out, two-car garages, and landscaped front yards.

New FHA financing gives non-veterans 30-year terms, and veterans can move in with nothing down.

Brookhurst Plaza is on Brookhurst Ave., just north of La Palma. From the Los Angeles-Lakewood area viewers may drive out the Santa Ana Freeway to La Palma, then east to Brookhurst and north to the model homes. From Long Beach, drive out Carson (Lincoln Highway) to Euclid Ave., turn north, cross the Freeway to La Palma, west to Brookhurst and north to the model homes.

TV Tele-Vues

by TERRY VERNON

This is the day that Disneyland opens to the press for a special preview and also the day that 90-minutes of entertainment will come from the huge amusement center near Anaheim.

Starting at 4:30 p. m. the telecast will tour the park, pick up many stars who'll be present, and in general give viewers a chance to see Disneyland park and what there is to do there.

Irene Duane will christen the paddleboat "Mark Twain," Art Linkletter will be co-host with Walt Disney; Fess Parker and Buddy Ebsen, the Davy Crockett and friend, will be on hand at Frontierland; Danny Thomas and his TV family, Jean Hagen, Rusty Hamer and Sherry Jackson will be seen in action; and there'll be many other notables around during the tour.

They'll be using 24 cameras to cover the show and the whole thing starts off with Disney and Gov. Knight chugging up in one of the famous little trains that Disneyland built to scale. There'll be six spectacular parades, some 500 children from Anaheim Sunday schools opening Fantasyland, plus visits with many of the top movie stars who'll be present.

There is just so much planned for the hour-and-a-half that it takes some 50 pages to list all so just tune in and get the whole thing (7) at 4:30 p. m.

THE SUMMIT—A special commentary on the Geneva conference is set (4) at 5 p. m. with Romney Wheeler and Joseph C. Harsch being flown in from Europe just for this show. The hour-long explanation of the Geneva conference and its background will also feature a scale model of the hall where the international conversations will take place . . . Over on 2 at 6:30 p. m. there'll be a report on the conference with Howard K. Smith in charge of the show. Movie film will be used to show the principals in the conference and the hall in which they'll meet.

UNIVERSE PARADE — At about 3:45 (11) they'll take a break in the "Jalopy Derby" to switch to cameras set up on the lawn of the Wilton Hotel for coverage of the Miss Universe Parade. Sort of a hit-and-miss deal with the parade coming in between races. Better tune in at 2:30.

DRAMA—Warren Stevens has the starring role in a baseball story on TV Playhouse at 9 p. m. (4). At the age of 34 a ball player wants to get into the major leagues and has to face the taunts of his wife and the reality of his own advanced (for baseball) years. The manager of his minor league team double-crosses him in a way and the results are not quite what anyone expects when a scout comes looking for a big league replacement. . . . A mother who professes she is not prejudiced is tested to the core when her GI son returns home with his Japanese war bride on the Cameo Theatre at 10 p. m. (4). . . . The pilot of a small commercial plane, fighting a heavy storm over the Rockies, momentarily forgets his peril when he hears over his radio that an armed desperado has escaped from prison. He has three passengers and any one could be the man on "Appointment With Danger" at 10 p. m. (2). . . . Howard Duff has the lead in "The Whistler" story (11) at 10 p. m. He is released from jail and is followed by a girl. When he realizes this and catches her she tells him her reason for tagging his every step.

GUESTING—Ethel Merman will substitute for vacationing Ed Sullivan on "Toast of the Town" at 8 p. m. (2) and one of the guests will be Mrs. Catherine Kreitzer of "$64,000 Question" fame who'll read from the Bible. She has been signed by Sullivan as a regular on the show and beginning in October will appear each Sunday. Other guests are Russell Nype, Gloria Lane, Professor Backwards, the Rhythmettes from Las Vegas, the Pierce Brothers jugglers and DeLarge and Shirley, magicians. . . . Jacob Lateiner, American pianist, will be the star on the final "Television Recital Hall" at 8:30 p. m. on (4). . . . Elroy "Crazylegs" Hirsch will be the guest on "Teen Age Trials" at 4 p. m. (4) and Judge Leroy Dawson will be the jurist.

TELE-TIPS—"Gordon's Garden" (7) at 4 p. m. will be devoted to showing the horticulture at Disneyland park. Gordon Baker Lloyd will use photos to show the flora and fauna collected for the park. . . . There'll be an abduction of a girl on "You Asked for It" at 7 p. m. (7) as Art Baker stages a kidnaping just to show how easy it can be done. . . . "Let's Take a Trip" (2) at 2:30 p. m. will feature a visit to the "long lines" department of the telephone company in New York. This will tell just how "long distance" works. . . . The signing of the Declaration of Independence will be seen on "You Are There" at 6 p. m. (2).

Words and Music

By JOHN B. CALLAGHAN

After a few days of fussin' and fuedin', Tom D'Andrea and Hal March, co-stars of the new "The Soldiers" TV show, made up and decided to stay together as GI buddies. Hal is also emcee of the suspenseful $64,000 Question Show and pal Tom thought he wasn't devoting enough time to the new GE project which has a tremendous potential. March will commute between Hollywood and New York each week, between the comedy series and the big money quizzer.

Television producer Ivan Tors, a stickler for authenticity, demanded real live insects for "The Termite Story," an episode in the Science Fiction Theater TV series. He bought 500 jars of termites in Chicago for $15 a jar . . . and then worried for weeks for fear some of them would escape and bring the TV studio down on top of him.

One of Britain's leading Shakespearean actors, Laurence Harvey, does the first dramatic show when British TV goes commercial Sept. 1. His co-star will be Margaret Leighton. British TV has one unique practice . . . it goes off the air from 6 p. m. to 7:25 p. m. every night . . . giving viewers time to eat and tuck the very young kiddies into bed! You'll be reluctant to turn off a C. B. S. TV picture. You'll just want to keep on watching when you own a C. B. S. . . . on display at PENNY-OWSLEY MUSIC CO. OF LONG BEACH, 4334 Atlantic Blvd. Phone L. B. 40-7406.

U. S. GIs in England Out-British British

LONDON (AP)—The Evening Standard says American servicemen at U. S. Air Force bases in Southern England are beginning to look "more British than the British."

They are joining local tennis, lawn bowls and rowing clubs so they can wear—off duty—a British club tie with matching handerchiefs and scarves. Real neat, with their British blazers. The local English lads are wearing hand-painted American ties.

It's the popular special sedanet and if you don't like dynaflow you'll like this 'cause it hasn't got it! However it does have the big radio and heater. Just came in on trade and after driving it we decided that with a paint job and whitewall tires we would have a perfect car to sell. We're planning to paint it black but if you get here in time we'll paint it any color you desire. The car is perfect mechanically. Remember—you buy it, the paint job, whitewalls and all for only $595.

Strike Halts Auto Ferries in Michigan

ST. IGNACE, Mich. (U.P.)—Ferry crewmen at the Straits of Mackinac went on strike for 15 hours Saturday, leaving many vacationers stranded in Upper Michigan for hours.

The workers—who want higher pay—finally agreed to return to their jobs on the state-owned ferries after the State Civil Service Commission agreed to meet next week to listen to workers' demands.

The ferries provide the only means of transportation across the seven-mile straits which divide Michigan. The walkout left many motorists without any way of getting from Lower Michigan to Upper Michigan, or vice versa, without driving hundreds of miles out of their way.

Cars backed up for miles here and across the straits at Mackinaw City. The impatient motorists, most of them not realizing what was happening, set up a bedlam of tooting horns and yelling, demanding that service be resumed. Most of the cars had been ferried across the straits by late afternoon.

Douglas to Build $4 Million Plant at Culver City

CULVER CITY (AP)—Douglas Aircraft Co. has announced plans for a four million dollar building program on a 10-acre site which was formerly the Culver City Stadium.

The company yesterday filed a building application for two subassembly plants which it estimated would cost two million dollars. Bids for the new plants will be taken July 21, the company said. Other plants will be built later.

The company is expanding its production line in order to fill an order for 225 twin engine planes, it was announced.

Turncoat Afraid to Name Others Seeking Return

YOKOHAMA, Japan (U.P.)—William C. Cowart, "spokesman" for three American turncoats, said Saturday other former American soldiers who want to leave Red China would be "doomed" if he identified them.

Cowart, of Dalton, Ga., said he was "responsible for the lives of many Americans." He said he would reveal the names of other turncoat Americans who want to get out of Communist China only to the "proper authorities in Washington."

Phones to Learn About Own Fire

ALTON, Ill. (AP)—When Mrs. Donna Ramsey, Alton Telegraph switchboard operator, heard a fire truck siren, she took the routine step—a call to the police switchboard to ask, "Where's the fire?"

"It's at the Telegraph," Mrs. Maude Koch at the police switchboard told her.

The fire was news to everyone at the newspaper. A passerby had turned in the alarm. The blaze was confined to a chimney.

Ghost of Little Eva Enthralls Argentina's Faithful Peronistas

(Editor's Note: Almost three years ago, one of the most dynamic and controversial female figures of modern times died in Argentina. She was Eva Peron, blonde and beautiful wife of President Juan Peron. Here is the story of this remarkable woman whose influence still makes itself felt, above the political turmoil).

By SAM SUMMERLIN

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—The telephone buzzed impatiently in the dim newspaper office. Outside, a half-moon glowed.

"Evita!" an excited voice blurted in a reporter's ear. "Evita! her face!"

La Prensa, Argentina's once-great newspaper, listened to many similar calls that evening. All claimed the same vision—the likeness of the late Eva Peron etched on the moon.

The morning edition said the face was cast by a curious combination of shadows. Mused La Prensa:

"The people, who show in every detail their profound respect for the martyr and who keep indelible her memory, saw in these outlines the beloved image of Eva Peron."

That moon has faded, but Eva Peron, a one-time actress as dramatic in death as she was in life, still smiles down on Argentina's millions. The public sees at every turn the picture of this pale-skinned, dark-eyed beauty with straight blonde hair drawn back in a tight bun.

Alongside her handsome husband, Juan Peron, dictator, general and president, she adorns street and subway walls, government offices and vestibules, store windows and private homes.

Eve's name is never out of sight. La Prensa carries a daily "Eva Peron Labor Page" decorated with a profile drawing and her oft-quoted pledge: "Alive or dead, I will always be with the workers."

And Democracia, staunchest press friend of Peron, displays on its front page masthead a profile ringed with a wreath of her words: "A thousand times, I would do it for Peron and for my people."

La Plata, a city of 300,000 and capital of Buenos Aires province, was renamed Eva Peron. And Eva Peron is the name of a province, an oil well, uncounted streets, school houses, parks, soccer championships, a luxury passenger liner—and unending stream.

Her birthday, May 7, is "Saint Evita's Day." Across the land, her faithful lay fresh flowers at the foot of countless busts and statues of the woman who loved to be called "Evita" (Little Eva).

Eva once declared: "Without fanaticism, one cannot accomplish anything." Imbued with this spirit, the vibrant, 5-foot, 2-inch figured stormed out of poverty to prominence on the screen and radio and on into the arms of a husky army colonel, Juan Peron. Ten years ago they wed and moved on to the nation's "Pink House" to start a man-and wife reign probably unmatched since Ferdinand and Isabella.

EVA PERON . . . Her Face on the Moon?

At the pinnacle, Eva seized all Agentina—richest country in South America—as her stage. She played the role to the hilt for seven years. And the ghost of Eva Peron carries on, keeping the curtain up on her strange drama.

Juan Peron, ending a tragic vigil, snapped off the light beside her bed at 8:25 the eevning of July 26, 1952. Eva Peron, at the age of 30, had been cut down by cancer, tasting defeat for the first time in her young life.

As the light went out, a nation wept. Queen Elizabeth cabled her condolences to Peron at "the premature death of your brilliant and devoted partner." The Pope sent his sympathies.

Tens of thousands thronged the cold, wet streets of Buenos Aires, waiting up to 10 and 12 hours in Argentina's mid-winter to pass her bier.

July 26 became a day of national mourning. Torches by the thousands light yearly memorial processions through the capital. On the 26th of every month, her worshippers gather at the Eva Peron shrines. And every weekday night of the year, all the nation's radio stations switch to a government announcer at 8:25 and he gives the news "at the hour in which Eva Peron entered immortality."

Eva's critics chuckled the Monday night after Argentina's bloody June revolution. The government broadcaster came on the air five minutes later than usual, skipping for the first time in almost three years the traditional mention of her passing. The army sat in the saddle during those early post-rebellion days and this incident—too delicate to be a mere oversight—sparked speculation that Eva had slid into the shadows with her husband.

But both Perons bounded back by the next nightfall. Juan Peron regained his coveted dominance. And the nation's radio listeners heard the government announcer as of old at 8:25, honoring the hour of Eva's death.

It is a mystery where her body lies now. But the tallest funerary monument in the world is rising in the heart of Buenos Aires as a tomb for Eva Peron. The 460-foot memorial will tower higher than St. Peter's in the Vatican, New York's Statue of Liberty or Egypt's pyramid of Cheops.

Many of the nation's youth may never have had the chance to see Eva, but they will not soon forget her. Her autobiography, "The Reason for My Life," was required reading in all the nation's schools for three years.

In her book, Eva skirted the early years. She saved her pages for the life she shared with the magnetic, sports-loving "Strong Man" for whom she rallied the workers on an October day 10 years ago in a sudden, startling show of force which swept Juan Peron out of prison and to the threshold of power.

Eva wrote adoringly:

"Peron is God for us and we cannot think of Heaven without Peron. He is our sun, water and air. Peron is life to our country and people. I cannot commit the heresy of comparing him with Christ, but I am sure that imitating Christ, Peron feels a profound love for humanity and this, more than any other quality, makes him great, magnificently great."

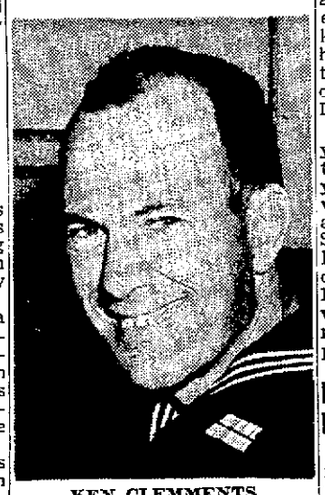

Her only wish, she penned, was to have history say:

"There was at Peron's side a woman who was dedicated to carry to the president the hopes of the people."

Naval Editor Presented Man-of-Month Tribute

Negroes Ask Schools Delay Integration

MATADOR, Tex. (AP)—At the request of Negroes, schools in this west Texas city will not be integrated until next year.

Superintendent of Schools Bert Ezzell said the Negroes want to continue, for this year, their practice of opening their schools early so that time can be taken from classes later for cotton-picking. Ezzell said one Negro father also told the school board he can't afford now to buy clothes for his children so they won't feel conspicious among white children.

CAFE'S OWNER WILL FILL NEXT 48-EGG ORDER

PIERRE, S. D. (AP)—Chris Dam has ceased being a skeptic.

A stranger came into his cafe Friday and ordered four dozen soft-boiled eggs and a cup of coffee.

Dam suggested that the kitchen crew start with a dozen. The customer polished them off with dispatch and demanded the rest of his order. Before he was through, he bought and paid for three dozen. He was willing to forgo the fourth.

Crop Surplus Perils GOP in Corn Belt

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Agriculture Department issued a crop production report this week that indicates possible trouble for GOP campaigners for farm votes next year in the corn belt.

The report forecast a corn crop that would be the second largest of record and bumper harvests of other livestock feed grains. These crops would come on top of large supplies in storage from past years.

These big crops could well carry to the corn belt a bitter taste of surplus problems that have been centered heretofore largely in cotton and wheat producing areas. They could bring greatly reduced feed grain prices and much lower incomes.

The midwestern farm vote has figured prominently in many recent national elections. It was credited with giving President Truman an upset victory over Thomas E. Dewey in 1948.

At that time, farmers were disgruntled with a drop in grain prices. The Democrats charged the Republican-controlled 80th Congress was to blame because it failed to provide storage facilities for surplus grain that had no place to go except to markets where it depressed prices.

This week's forecast of the big feed grain crops came shortly after the department reported a sharp expansion in hog production is under way. This expansion, government economists say, is expected to be followed by severe reductions in hog prices.

In last year's congressional elections, Republicans fared well in rural districts in the big corn-hog region extending from Ohio west to Nebraska and embracing Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, and Minnesota. Hogs were riding high pricewise.

But there is the possibility that by late this year, hog prices will drop to levels where farmers will complain and possibly demand government action to improve their markets. The government does not maintain price supports under hogs.

There are supports for corn, but many midwestern growers will be ineligible for this type of government asssitance because they did not comply with the department's corn program. This agency allotted planting shares in an effort to hold down corn production. Only those farmers who complied with their allotments will be eligible for price support assistance.

Hawaiian Urges Central Control of Schools Here

LOS ANGELES (U.P.) — Dr. Hubert V. Everly of the University of Hawaii Saturday recommended centralized control and financing of public schools to avoid "double-shift" attendance in California.

Everly, an associate professor of education teaching at the University of Southern California summer school, said such a system worked in the islands where there was a population problem equal to that in California.

"Hawaii, with its centralized financing, has an average per pupil expenditure that is one-third less than that of California," Everly said.

Trend Grows Toward More Home Privacy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Labor Department reported Saturday the trend is increasing toward more home privacy.

Construction of one-family housing units was up 28 per cent during the first three months of 1955. Apartment building unit construction, on the other hand, was down 10 per cent from last year.

For the first half of this year 679,000 dwelling units were put under construction. This is 19 per cent above the 569,500 units started during the first six months of 1954 and only 4 per cent below the January-June volume in the record 1950 home-building year.

Housing starts declined seasonally last month to 129,000, but exceeded June, 1954, by 11 per cent.

The Veterans Administration reported a 25-per-cent decline in June in requests for appraisal of proposed new homes, but said only a slight decline from May figures was shown in requests for appraisal of existing homes.

South Sea 'Magic' to Cast Spell for Bachelorettes

LOVELY WAHINES, Beverly Scott, Mary Halbert and Lee Ann Shumway, cast a little island magic of their own as they practice a hula in preparation for the Bachelorettes' informal charity dance Saturday, July 30, at White's Point. South Sea islands will provide the motif at the gala party when couples will dance from 9 p. m. to 1 a. m. at this attractive setting along the ocean's edge. Mary Kukura is in charge of arrangements for the event.

Charity Inspires Annual Dance

Star-studded skies, a full moon and a warm tropical breeze have been ordered by Bachelorettes for Saturday evening, July 30. This is the date set by the popular social group for the annual summer charity dance.

As in the past, Bachelorettes again are staging this successful event at picturesque White's Point along the ocean edge near San Pedro.

The South Seas will provide the motif for the decor. Fish netting entwined with colorful flowers will fall from a palm tree and extend over the dance floor to the water. Twinkling candles will glow along the hillside and around the dance floor, and fresh tropical flowers will provide a backdrop for dancing.

As guests arrive, Bachelorettes will present them with leis to complement their casual dress attire. Music for dancing from 9 p. m. to 1 a. m. will be provided by recording artists from Hollywood studios.

Arrangements for the event are being completed under the supervision of the vice president, Mary Kukura. Beverly Scott is in charge of publicity and Virginia Garvin is handling decorations.

Preceding the dance, several members including Marilyn Van Dyke and Beverly Scott, will entertain at cocktail parties.

Bids may be obtained from members or at the door. Besides members, alumnae and candidate members home from college, the public is invited.

Gay Southland Informality Captured at Coffee Hour

Mrs. George Paap opened her gracious home at 275 Nieto Ave. Wednesday and, with Mrs. Lynn Hossom as co-hostess, entertained at a delightful coffee hour—during the late morning hours—capturing perfectly the informal spirit of the Southland.

The hostesses used delicate and cool bouquets of white daisies and green Bells of Ireland in basket arrangements on the refreshment table as well as on the quartet tables placed invitingly around the pool in the garden. Umbrellas, tilted at gay angles against the slant of the sun, protected the 85 guests bidden who chose to chat and enjoy the party's delicacies outdoors.

Asked to assist Mrs. Hossom and Mrs. Paap were the Hossom daughters, Sherry and Linda, as well as Miss Harriet Odell of Palo Alto, Mrs. Seth W. Smith of Van Nuys and Mmes. George Trammell, Joseph Ball, George Badenhuasen, Ansel Olson, Stillman Loveren and Jonah Jones.

Dual Parties Planned by Two Hostesses Tuesday

Hand-etched invitations, conversation pieces in themselves, have been received by friends of Mrs. John Rowe and Mrs. Mildred Brayton bidding them either to a brunch in the morning or a tea during the afternoon on Tuesday in the Rowe home, 17 Temple Ave.

The brown and yellow invitations, reflecting the Rowes' attractive brown home with its friendly yellow front door, bore either the likeness of a coffee pot and a gay invitation in rhyme to the morning affair or an etching of Mrs. Brayton's handsome antique silver tea service with its matching rhyme bidding those who received them to be present during the afternoon.

Informality will mark the morning brunch which will be enjoyed both indoors and in the gardens. A rose and white checkered tablecloth will cover the dining room table which will be centered by an arrangement of fresh fruit. Yellow and white checked cloths will be used in the garden where Mrs. Rowe is planning to officiate at the making of fresh, miniature doughnuts in the patio while Mrs. Brayton greets the guests at the door.

The afternoon tea will change gracefully to more formal decor with a snow white cloth to be used on the refreshment table centered with a bouquet of garden blossoms.

Asked to assist the hostesses have been Mmes. Robert McClain, A. C. Malone and Robert Ritner for the brunch and at the tea, Mmes. Harry Pritchard, James Kiepp, Theodore Miles and Frederick Kellogg.

FISH NETTING entwined with colorful flowers will fall from a palm tree and extend over the dance floor to the water at the summer charity dance to be given Saturday, July 30, by Bachelorettes at White's Point, San Pedro. Above Margaret Cortenson, Patty Morgan and Stephanie Boylan, from left, arrange tropical decorations for the affair which promises to attract many of the Long Beach younger social set. Music will be provided for dancing from 9 p. m. until 1 a. m. Cocktail parties will precede this social event.

Coffee Hour Will Honor Active DGs

Mrs. Ronald W. Heath will open her lovely home at 5454 East Ocean Blvd. Saturday morning at 10:30 a. m. for a Long Beach Delta Gamma alumnae coffee hour honoring active Delta Gammas in this area who are home from their college chapters for the summer.

Actives expected to attend are Misses Sue Merritt and Joan Kerr from the University of Oregon; Ann Moore and Barbara Bakken from UC, Berkeley; Louise Tripeny and Patricia Ulrich from UCLA; Sandra Hubbell and Mrs. Don K. Wells from USC; Marilyn Van Dyke from San Jose State College; Andrea Herreid of Westminster from Colorado College, and Patsy Lee Powell who is attending Long Beach State College

Chairman of the event is Mrs. Charles P. Lupher. She will be assisted by Mrs. Richard Pearsall and Mrs. Harold J. Reed. All senior and junior Delta Gamma alumnae are invited to attend. Reservations may be made with Mrs. Lupher.

CHARITY-MINDED Bachelorettes have scheduled their annual summer benefit dance Saturday, July 30, at White's Point, San Pedro. All proceeds will go toward philanthropic projects. Above from left, Mary Lou Cahoon, Marilyn Lawson, Beverly Kreitzer and Marge Swanson discuss the party which will feature a South Sea island theme. Bachelorettes will present guests with colorful leis to go with the casual cotton attire. Alumnae, candidate members home from college and the public have been invited.—(Al photos on page by staff photographer H. S. Melvin.)

Bid Farewell to Durnins With Cocktails and Buffet

The patio of Dr. and Mrs. William Rhorer's home at 5330 El Prado was bubbling with excitement Wednesday evening when the Rhorers and co-hosts, Dr. and Mrs. Lee Wiltse, entertained at a cocktail party and buffet supper for Dr. and Mrs. William Durnin.

Talk centered around the Durnins sojourn in the east where Dr. Durnin will do research work at Harvard Medical School. They plan to leave around Aug. 1.

Guests at the party were orthopedists and their wives. And so the hostesses arranged decor to carry out the appropriate theme. Invitations showed a bandaged man badly in need of the guests' services, and the centerpiece was a maze of crutches and other orthopedic appliances.

Bidden were Drs. and Mmes. Harry Alban, Gustavus Bock, Edward Thorstenberg, J. Gordon Bateman, Seymour Alban, M. John Rowe, Edward Wiater, Arthur De Nio, Todd Mulford, Donald Blanche, Richard Hall, Owen Walker and Dr. Lewis Newman.

Visit Mexico

Mr. and Mrs. Bud deCannis 3967 Knoxville Ave., have returned from a three-week trip to Mazatlan and Acapulco. They travelled on the SS Mazatlan.

Compliment Miss Shank

Balmy summer breezes gently playing through the lovely garden added to the relaxed mood in evidence Friday morning when Miss Margaret Shank whose marriage to Allan D. Scherer of Milwaukee, Wis. will be solemnized on July 29, was complimented at a linen shower.

Co-hostessing the delightful brunch for Miss Shank in the Francis B. Settle home, 4412 California Ave., were Mrs. Settle, Mrs. Fred B. Clarke and Mrs. Jay Reed.

Festoons of pink and white wedding bells on the front door greeted guests as they arrived for the party, and were repeated over the doorway leading into the garden.

Southern Visitors

Talk — southern talk — fills the home of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Andrews of 229 St. Joseph Ave. Their house guests include Mrs. Andrews' mother, Mrs. Hartwell Oliver Cook of New Orleans, La., and her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Stewart Moffett and daughter, Mary, of Pensacola, Fla.

Wild Waves Say

By IOLA MASTERSON

THERE'S A GREAT WAILING and a fearful gnashing of teeth in many sections of town and the cause of it all—Mary Jane and Bill Durnin—haven't even attempted to look contrite about it! The two, drat it, are moving themselves—lock, stock, barrel and children—away from here for a solid year. And a solid year, unlike other years, such as 1954, is a long time.

Naturally when a popular couple like the Doc and M. J. let loose a lightning bolt like "good-by now," there are plentiful parties of farewell in their honor and among them will be the coffee hour Stella Kellogg will hostess in her home, 5830 Bayshore Wk., Wednesday for all the peninsula gang.

Invitations, hand designed by Corcoran, were among the smartest yet with a perky drawing of the Durnin station wagon toting their trailer. Depicted tumbling (or almost) out of the windows of the car were the two youngest Durnin boys with the older children peeking out in more decorous manner. In one corner were sea shells and beach, indicating Long Beach, and in the other fir trees and a sketch of the skyline of Boston, for whence they leave Aug. 1. Bill will do six months medical research at Harvard and then the Durnins will travel for another six months in Europe before returning here.

Assisting Stella with farewell coffee-hour duties will be Betty Wentworth, Elizabeth Jones, Midge Sink and Bea Vincent.

WITH SALT TABLETS, sun helmets and quizzical what-in-heaven's-name-are-we-doing-this-for? expressions on their faces, Mary Lou and Dick Zehms and house guest, Bill Martley of Grass Valley, plan to leave tomorrow for Scorch Hollow, sometimes referred to as Las Vegas. Bill, who is editor of the G. V. Union (formerly owned by W. F. Prisk), and Dick have remained close friends since those days when they fought the battle of the Persian Gulf together during World War II. They figure four days in the desert will be enough, then they'll head for cool mountain meadows to end their vacation.

THIS IS THE STORY of a big game hunt. Only the native porters and the sound of their drums-that-talk are missing. The names you are about to read are true except for the villain, who shall remain anonymous to protect his relatives! Besides, he wouldn't give us his initials. He was dead.

Bob White was stacking firewood at his Palos Verdes home last Sunday when, yikes! The biggest rattlesnake he'd ever seen lay coiled at his feet, beady eyes all threat and malice. Quick, man, think! What to do? Of course! Call neighbor Paul Westerlund—cool, level-headed Paul. Good, old Paul. He does own a gun, doesn't he? Yep. Here he comes now, eyes like a hunter's, at half-mast in the sun, anyway, it's a little early for Sunday. .30-30 in hand, Paul sizes up the situation, raises the gun—

FROM THEIR BAILIWICK on the peninsula, one of the coast's envied vacation territories, Betty and Palmer Wentworth are trying on an "at home vacation for size and discovering it fits beautifully! Loafing, swimming, fishing and growing sleek and tan in the process.

INCIDENTALLY, ABOUT that rattlesnake. Paul killed the snake. Got it dead center pop between the eyes. Said it was all in a day's work for an attorney and good practice for next year when he plans a real safari into deepest Africa.

THERE'S SO MUCH pulchritude in town right now it hardly seems worth getting up in the morning for some of us. Not as far as Amanda West Lewis, Miss New York (j.g.), is concerned. Sweet as Pepsi-Cola, this charmer is here visiting, carefully chaperoned by her parents, Gary and Laurie Lewis. Amanda, debonair in the manner of a 5-month-old, has been dividing her time between grandmother Ginny Melton's home and Hattie and Hal Lewis, 3851 Linden. But tomorrow her parents are taking her home to New York. Imagine! Even before Miss Universe competition begins.

TEATIME TODAY will find the Brightman home gay with young voices and pretty faces as Helen and Lath's daughter, Martha, with co-hostesses Nancy Nettleman and Joyce Griffiths, entertain at a patio tea party and miscellaneous shower for sweet Joan McMillen Butler with 65 of their sorority and school friends bidden. Tonight Janie and Gil Brown's home will reverberate likewise with excited young voices as their daughter, Sally, and Maryce Brightman are co-hostesses at a linen shower for Elore Herbert, who has a wedding date with Paul Merrill end of August.

ARE THEY HERE? Have you seen them? Barbara and Lt. Frank Schlosser were expected yesterday by Barbara's parents, Olive and Leslie Smith, on their way to Monterey where Frank has been selected to attend the Navy's Post-Graduate Engineering School for a three-year course. Barbara and Frank, who will visit here for a few days before continuing up the coast, have been living in Groton, Conn., while Frank was attached to the USS Spikefish. Three-and-a-half-year-old Johnny and three-month-old David will stay with Olive and Les until their parents find a home and get settled up thataway.

LUXURIATING in a lovely mountain apartment on the spacious and exclusive Hamilton estate, Hamiltaire, at Lake Arrowhead, have been Nancy and Bill Brooks, who are due home today from three weeks of just lazing in the sun and pampering their mile-high appetites.

LETTING CALIFORNIA drizzle all over them and loving it are Anne and Daulton Lee, back after a year in New York while Daulton interned. They returned last week end with the children, Lucinda, Daulton and Mary Anne. They're looking for a house while staying at the Clarke family manse on E. Ocean Blvd. before Dr. Lee begins duties as assistant pathologist at Seaside.

BUFFET PARTY last Sunday was wonderful fun for guests of Mickey and John McWhinney when they entertained in a farewell gesture for "Doc" Wilson, who left Tuesday with all the other boys in blue for the Far East with Admiral Tyree. Now Rosemary Wilson is keeping her fingers crossed, along with all the other fleet wives, hoping he'll be back by September—er, October—ah, November? Well, Sam, make it at least by Christmas!

WITH WHOOPS of "surprise!" party planners descended on Vonda and Al Cassidy's new home on 64th Pl. last week end to give their cute place a first-class housewarming. Peg and Neal White, the sly ones, invited the Cassidys out for dinner and that was the gimmick to keep them home till the gang arrived. And among those who brought casserole dishes and stuff were Bunnie and Bev Riley, Mary and Ray Copeland, Lou and Claire Dingler, Perry and Helene Rutherford, Hortense and Wayne Sloss, Jane and Gil Brown, and Margaret and Sam Chase.

PEOPLE WERE SNIFFING the air in the neighborhood of 790 Santiago Ave. last Sunday like beagles on the prowl and what was causing all the snuffling was the delicate, delicious aroma of barbecuing chicken wafting from the patio of Marietta and Walt Jordan's home as they got the family together for a big back yard do. Inspiration for the gathering was Marrietta's "kin," Edith and Hadley Limbaugh, here for a visit from Idaho, and invited to join the fun were her mother, Mrs. Mary Limbaugh; Walt's folks, Mr. and Mrs. Newell Jordan, as well as Ray and Lois Limbaugh and son, Richard; the Ronald Limbaughs, and next door neighbors, Norma and Bill Harris. Figured they better include the Harrises. Bill is a master chef with chicken over charcoal and he'd have come over anyway to make sure Walt was doing it right, invited or not!

MEET THE HANSSENS

Two months in Long Beach and already the Win Hanssen family is acclimated to Southern California living! Win is new manager of the Municipal Auditorium and Stadium. Jean, 8, stands before her mother, while the other two-thirds of the younger Hanssens consists of Suzanne, 11, and Vicky, 5. The family came from Waterloo, Ia., and are making their home at 2441 Ostrom Ave.—(Staff Photo.)

We Welcome . . . . .

Iowa Family Follows Sun West

By JEAN MOORE

Probably the only persons in town wishing the Miss Universe contest were over are three little girls and their mother. LeahBelle Hanssen and her blond daughters, Suzanne, Jean and Vicky, want to see more of Southern California. They want to help paint around their house at 2441 Ostrom Ave., too, but the person who is best at driving a car and who is handiest with the paint brush is all tied up with the production and management end of the beauty pageant.

He is Win Hanssen, new manager of Municipal Auditorium and Stadium, husband of LeahBelle and father of the three blonds who look like future Misses Welcomes to Long Beach themselves.

There has hardly been time for golf and bowling since Win got out of the Air Force after serving three years. Just as he has become immersed in Long Beach pageants and conventions since his arrival April 30, so was he embroiled in long hours as public relations director for the National Dairy Cattle Congress and the manager of the Hippodrome in Waterloo, Ia.

Climbing the rungs of achievement, Win began his career with study of journalism and agriculture at Iowa State College in Ames. He was a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity on that campus.

He left school to become managing editor of a weekly paper in Cherokee, Ia. Continuing in the field of communications, he had a stint of radio announcing in Marshalltown, Ia. Then followed an affiliation with Dun & Bradstreet in Des Moines and Cedar Rapids, before the service sent out its feelers for him.

That he has an affinity for his present work was demonstrated last year in Long Beach when the annual meeting of the International Assn. of Auditorium Managers voted him one of its two outstanding managers of the organization.

Eagle Grove, Ia., was LeahBelle's home town, and until this week was home to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Hudgins. Like many an Iowan, they are due to arrive soon in the Long Beach area to establish permanent residence.

LeahBelle was a nurse for several years at Des Moines' Methodist Hospital after completing training there.

"If I have any hobbies at all, I guess they would be sewing and cooking," she says. She makes dresses for her little girls, which pleases them. But they go into ecstacies over her hot breads. Mama doesn't use a package mix. They can tell the difference. Any variation of hot rolls, especially the cinnamon twists, brings shrieks of delight from the little Hanssens. They are beginning to help with the kneading and baking.

Suzanne is 11 and will enter the seventh grade at Stanford Junior High School in the fall. Jean, 8, will study at Emerson Elementary School and Vicky will be joining her at that school, branching off to the kindergarten class.

Church groups, PTA and Girl Scout leadership interested LeahBelle during her midwest residence, while Win was active in Kiwanis, Masonic orders, Boy Scouts and American Legion before pressure of his schedule.

Courses in advanced sewing and ceramics now intrigue LeahBelle. She hasn't enrolled yet, but has it uppermost on her must-do list.

On Sundays the Hanssens attend Lakewood First Presbyterian Church.

Travel Memoirs Fascinating

"And now we are on our way home," pens Mrs. Earl Burns Miller, prominent local socialite and author, from London, Eng. Mr. and Mrs. Miller, who are no strangers to world travel, are completing a four-month tour of Europe which will end upon return to their Long Beach home next Sunday.

Continues Mrs. Miller in the lilting style of the accomplished writer: "We have followed the spring month and everywhere we have found flowers—from the brilliant red poppies of Italy to the little white wild anemones beyond the Artic Circle. Everywhere we have found church steeples and everywhere we have found friendly people. With flowers and churches and friendly people, there surely must be hope for the world!"

The Millers began this trip very early in April and before going overseas paused in New York to enjoy that city's fabled Easter Parade where, still in memory, the sight of a French poodle wearing a straw hat trimmed with huge red poppies poised rakishly over one eye persists.

Mid-April found the travelers in England and in Stratford-on-Avon where Mrs. Miller's diary record reveals: "This afternoon, near Woodstock, we drove through a triumphal arch and saw 'the finest view in England'—Blenheim Palace across a lake. On the dresser of the room in which he was born were displayed some little curls from the head of baby Winston Churchill. Someway, I had never thought of him as a baby with red-gold hair."

By May Mr. and Mrs. Miller were in Italy—at Paestum where "we saw, against a gray sky, beyond a fence covered with pink roses the softly golden Grecian temple of Neptune in all its perfection—Doric columns, wonderful in proportion—the soul of the architect written in stone. It was built about the time of Parthenon by the colony of Greek Sybarites."

"May 23, Paris. We flew from Milan today. Unforgettable experience, flying over the Alps with their mile upon mile of jagged white peaks rising above a sea of clouds. We rode serenely over Mt. Blanc and saw the tracks of the capricious wind in the snow. May 25. Cocktails and dinner with Della and Lester Lawson at the Ritz then on to Ciro's where we were surrounded with violin music. A Hungarian gypsy girl with coal-black hair and chalk-white face danced in a swirl of vivid draperies. Our attention was divided between her and the Duke and Duchess of Windsor who sat with two friends at a table or so away. They look a little worn, a little weary of night clubbing."

Note-sketches from Mrs. Miller's diary are picked up again as she and her husband visited Amsterdam. "Visited Rembrandt's home in the old Jewish quarter. Many of his etchings are there, a revealation to us who had thought always of his marvelous paintings. One etching of the feet of Christ, pierced by the nails, cupped in the hands of Mary (who was trying to ease the pain, we thought) haunts me."

By June 7 the diary picks up again, this time in Odense, Denmark. "In a small low-ceilinged room of Hans Christion Andersen's birthplace we saw mementoes of his life. Among them were pressed flowers given to him by a little beggar girl at Paestum and a trick mirror from Jenny Lind whom he hopelessly loved." In Copenhagen she wrote, "Gray, rainy day. Ruth Craig Merrell and Jack Merrell's friend, Gorm Bremmer, took us across to the site of the Vikings' settlement of 1,000 years ago at Trelleborg. Now, within the stony outlines of excavated barracks, sheep graze peacefully, undisturbed by the ghosts of former warriors, the once proud conquerers of England."

"June 18. Stockholm. Earl and I wandered through Riddarholm Church, the "Westminster Abbey" of Sweden. In a little chapel we found the tombs of Carl Johann (Charles XIV) and Desidera (Desire, of book fame) as founders of the present dynasty. Imagine the little French girl in such regal splendor! June 19. In old Uppsala this morning we entered a small church on a site where Odin used to be worshipped. Just within the vestibule was the very spot where sacrifices were offered to Odin and Thor.

In Oslo Mrs. Miller found much of interest. "We taxied to the hills overlooking the fjord. Thousands were walking or riding to hilltops for a view of the midsummer night bonfires, blazing on the mainland and the small islands. It is an annual custom to welcome summer by burning away the debris and darkness and snow of winter. It was beautiful—pine tree branches silhouetted against the pink-rose of the sunset; the color of the sky and leaping flames reflected in the water. And radiant the look on the faces of the people."

In Bergen on June 24 she penned: "Wonderful ride on the train from Oslo—waterfalls everywhere, snowcapped peaks, frozen lakes, birch trees with trunks gleaming white among the firs. Most wonderful surprise for us! At Al, Haldis Hertzog's native village, four of her relatives met us at the station—a cousin and his wife wore the gorgeous embroidered costumes of Hallingdal (at Haldis' request!). We could not understand their language, nor they ours, but our hearts were warmed with their smiling friendliness. We boarded the train laden with beautiful gifts of Norwegian handicraft and a nosegay of daisies from Haldis' sweet aunt."

During the third day of Mr. and Mrs. Miller's North Cape cruise, which began late in June, Mrs. Miller wrote in her diary: "At 1:30 p. m. we passed Hjalmoy, the bird sanctuary. The cliffs and a high pillarlike rock were covered with birds, thick as snow. As the ship's deep-throated voice awakened the echoes, clouds of them—gulls sea-maws, terns and puffins—flew out from caverns and away from ledges to circle and then drift back to their respective places."

These are but brief excerpts from a store of rich memories which the Earl Burns Millers will bring home with them to share, in retrospect, with their friends.

Summer Tea Is Epitome of Gracious Entertaining

Gracious summer entertaining was blithely accomplished by Mrs. Harold W. Harris and Mrs. Julius C. Molina recently when they were co-hostesses at a tea given in the home of Mrs. Harris' mother, Mrs. Merritt Gordon Snyder, 4242 Pacific Ave.

Majestic yellow daisies flanked by gleaming silver candelabra holding white tapers centered the tea table. The yellow theme of the daisies, gladioli and bells of Ireland was carried throughout the home and into the garden where bright umbrellas and graceful white wrought iron tables and chairs dotted the lawn. The glass topped garden tables served as clear pools beneath which guests viewed delicate garland lacings of miniature ivy wired arrangements.

Bidden to enjoy the party either indoors or out, the 75 guests found the rose garden at the height of its fragrant bloom, a delightful background for casual conversation.

Assisting the two hostesses during the party hours were Mrs. Frank Vessels Jr. and Mrs. Irving Smith Jr., who presided at the tea table; Mrs. Philip R. Dowds, at the punch table in the garden; and Mrs. John Turner and Mrs. Charles Hughes greeted the guests at the door.

For the occasion Mrs. Molina and Mrs. Harris presented the assisting hostesses with corsages of dainty stephanotis concealing tiny demitasse spoons as gay "thank you" mementoes.

Candlelight Vows for Pair

Before an altar silhouetted against a large white double satin heart edged with fern and centered with a multitude of dainty sweetpeas, double rings were exchanged by Grace Bryan and David Lewis in recent candlelight services at the Compton First Brethren Church.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Brooks Bryan of Compton, chose a gown of white nylon lace tiered over taffeta. Matching lace edged her fingertip nylon net veil. A large white orchid centered her bouquet of mixed orchids and lilies of the valley.

In pastel taffeta and net dresses with full hooped skirts were bridal attendants Donna Harrison, maid of honor, and bridesmaids Marlene Lutz and Virginia Wright.

Others of the bridal party included Bill Quier, best man, ushers Bill Ratliff and Bob Bryan, flower girl Linda Caruthers, ringbearer Donnie Bartron and candlelighters Mrs. Betty Quier and Miss Pat Harrison.

The bride is a graduate of Jordan High School; her husband, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wylie Lewis, Compton, attended Compton Junior College. They will live in Compton after a honeymoon in Las Vegas and Palm Springs.

Couple United in Garden Ceremonies

The lovely gardens of El Adobe in San Juan Capistrano formed a romantic setting for the recent marriage of Anne Marie Gahry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Gahry of 357½ Orange Ave., and Lt. William Brayton Collins, USN.

Gowned in a dress fashioned from white satin, brocaded with a delicate orchid design, which was brought from Hong Kong by the bridegroom, the bride was given in marriage by her father. She carried a bouquet of white carnations and orchids. Her headpiece, outlined with seed pearls, caught a filmy illusion veil.

Dorothy Gahry, the bride's sister, was maid of honor in a forget-me-not blue dress of lace and nylon tulle. She carried pink carnations and wore a tiny blue lace hat. Serving as best man was a former shipmate of the bridegroom, Wilson B. Dakan, of Del Mar.

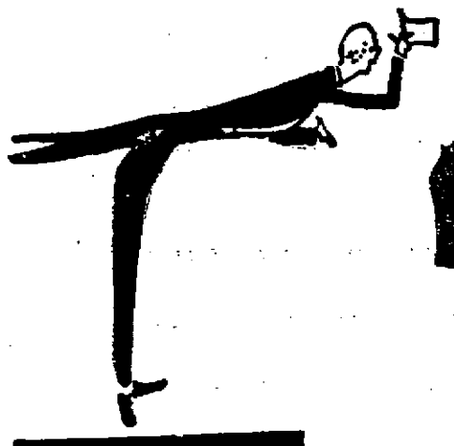

The newlyweds greeted their guests in the garden following the nuptial ceremonies.

The new Mrs. Collins is a member of the National Secretaries Assn., serving two years as treasurer; Desk and Derrick Club, and is active in Girl Scout activities. Her husband, a native Californian, received his flight training at Corpus Christi, Tex. He is the son of Mrs. Helen Collins of Costa Mesa and Capt. William H. Families Witness Heyde-Shirey Vows

Thirty members of their immediate families gathered on the morning of July 9 in Lakewood Village Community Church to witness an exchange of nuptial vows by Joan Lee Shirey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond W. Shirey, 4450 Olive Ave., and John Albert Heyde of 1020 E. Carson St. Rev. W. R. Hall read the lines.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was charmingly gowned in cocktail length pink organza with a matching hat, and carried white orchids on a prayer book.

Attending the bride as matron of honor was her sister-in-law, Mrs. Raymond W. Shirey Jr. She wore blue lace with a matching hat and carried pink peonies. Capt. Richard Heyde, brother of the bridegroom, was best man, and guests were escorted to their seats by Charles Saunders.

A wedding breakfast followed the ceremony in the home of the bride's parents. The newlyweds will be at home in Long Beach on Aug. 1 following their return from a honeymoon trip to Lake Tahoe and San Francisco.

Mrs. Heyde was graduated from Polytechnic High School, the University of Nebraska and Long Beach State College. She is a member of Pi Beta Phi and Chapter FJ of PEO. Her bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Heyde of Riverside, received his early education in Scotts Bluff, Neb., and was graduated from the New Mexico Military Institute and the University of Arizona. He is an affiliate of Theta Nu Epsilon, AIME and AF&AM.

Rhine Journey Highlights European Vacation Trip

An all-day trip down the Rhine was the high light of their trip, say Mrs. Hal Webster (Bess Settle Webster), 305 16th St., Seal Beach, and Mrs. Nina Burroughs, 4623 Livingston Dr., who returned by plane Wednesday from three months in Europe.

"We ate enough spaghetti in Italy to last us the rest of our lives—and enough asparagus," they say, "and it is good to get American coffee again. In Europe and England they gave us thick black stuff, served with pitchers of hot milk."

The two report they did not see a bathing suit or pair of slacks on their trip. "The women abroad just plain don't wear pants." They say many men and women hikers, with packs on their packs, especially in Austria and Germany. And saw foreign newspaper stories about the Miss Universe contest "in Los Angeles."

They attended services in St. Peter's Cathedral, in Westminster Abbey, and heard Norman Vincent Peale in New York.

They also visited Lisbon, Madrid, Barcelona, Palma, Nice, Genoa, Rapello, Rome, Florence, Venice, Milan, Lucerne, Montreux, Salzburg, Badgastein, Munich, Cologne, Amsterdam, Paris and London. A number of their spirited accounts of their travels appeared in the Independent and Press-Telegram. Mrs. Webster is former women's editor of the Independent and Press-Telegram.

Three Pairs Note Silver Anniversaries

A host of friends joined together to help three couples celebrate their silver anniversaries. This unusual occurrence was the incentive for a gala dinner party recently at Allen Center.

Honored couples were Messrs. and Mesdames Alvin L. Benson, R. Lee Chamness and Edward N. Halsey—all of whom are celebrating their 25th wedding anniversaries within this month.

Hosting the occasion were Mr. and Mrs. Harold A. Thompson, Mrs. Mildred Morris and Mr. and Mrs. Albert K. Mills.

The affair got under way with a cocktail party after which dinner was served. A huge white cake circled by gardenias around its base, tall tapers and arrangements of daisies and magnolias carried out the white and silver theme. The group presented the honorees with clever little gift packages each containing twenty-five silver dollars.

C. There they will visit with Mrs. De Vries' aunt, Miss Zientje Vander Meide, who will return here with the local group to spend six weeks at the De Vries' home.

On their trip the group will visit with relatives in Northern California, tour the city of San Francisco and visit in Grants Pass, Ore., at the homes of Mr. and Mrs. Gerban Stellingwerf and Mr. and Mrs. Dick Ross, and in Washington at the home of various relatives.

Celebrations Head Busy Lomita Area Calendar

By MARIE SWENSON

A clap of the hand and swirling skirts bring delightful memories to merge with present activities in the Old Fashioned Dance Club for Mr. and Mrs. George Wanee, long-time Lomita residents of 25841 Eshelman Ave., who were honored recently by both the club and their son on the occasion of their 50th wedding anniversary.

The couple were recipients of a gold candy dish and presided over the cutting of a gold-decorated cake in the club of which Mr. Wanee is now vice president and a member for over 20 years. Harbor area square dancers invariably invite him to be caller for a real hoe-down in a professional manner but with an ever-present twinkle in his eye.

Mrs. Wanee, who worked for the Los Angeles Board of Education for 27 years, retired in 1952 from her clerk-post at Fries Ave. School, where she served three years.

Married in Denver, Colo., on June 22, 1905, the couple have been residents of Lomita since 1923. Recently, an afternoon and evening open house hosted by their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Victor Wanee, at 26309 Ozone St., Harbor City, had more than 70 relatives and friends gathered to offer felicitations, including another son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Lessley Wanee, and grandson, Ronald, all from Sacramento.

Prior to coming to Lomita, the Wanees lived in San Pedro where he was associated with the post office department.

Featured during the festivities were golden candlesticks, yellow candles, yellow roses and yellow gladioli, surrounding a white-frosted cake topped with yellow roses.

With daughter Marilyn, and son, Andy, as host and hostess, about 35 members of the immediate family were present to congratulate Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Spaan, of 1609 W. 252nd St., on their 25th wedding anniversary. The couple, who were married in Lomita Presbyterian Church by Rev. Dr. Harold Ingersoll a quarter of a century ago, were recipients of a silver tree trimmed with crisp new one-dollar bills, and a beautifully decorated cake, appropriately inscribed, served from a silver appointed table.

Farewells and hellos were combined with the Spaan's preparing for a fishing excursion and vacation in Bridgeport, and Marilyn enplaneing for Michigan to attend the Mortar Board Society convention at Lansing as newly-elected president of the Occidental College Chapter where she is studying medicine. Brother Andy returned to UCLA where he is completing work toward his teacher credentials for his new career to begin this fall.

Attending the family celebration were Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Bosser, newlywed visitors from Tilden, Neb., who are spending a honeymoon trip as houseguests of their aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Steve Spaan, 2112 W. 238th St., Torrance.

Double birthdays were celebrated last Sunday by Mrs. Clarence Creery and her son Bud at their 1428 W. 255th St. residence in Harbor City. A spaghetti dinner in their patio had a table-roundup of guests including Messrs. and Mmes. Jerry Shoemaker, Jack Bolander and children, Caryn and John; Steve Cramer and son, Gary; Mrs. Diane Laney and daughters, Linda and Cinda of Garden Grove; Mrs. Creery's mother, Mrs. Jim Sowdon of Long Beach; and Bud's buddies, Teddy Martizia and Denny Richards of Harbor City.

Harbor City and the local Community Singers are bemoaning the loss of sweet Nora Titus from their midst since she has moved to Needles, Ariz., with her hubby, Will. They will stay with their daughter, Helen Dunham, to compare California sunshine with the Arizona "blaze." Nora was presented a hand-made purse from the group of singers headed by Mrs. Mildred Taylor before she left and the members are planning a real party for her when she comes to visit again.

Summer Sociality Keen in Downey-Paramount

By GERTRUDE HAGOORT

A poolside party at the Downey home of Mrs. Edgar T. Penfold, 7723 E. Second St., was one of several delightful garden affairs sparking that community's social scene during these pleasant midsummer days. Lending attraction to the setting were the colorful umbrella tables centered with garden bouquets of dahlias and other varicolored blooms serving as decor for a midday luncheon which preceded an afternoon of swimming, music and the playing of cards.

Mrs. Penfold is chairman of the garden section of the Downey Woman's Club and her guests were members of that group. In charge of planning the affair were members of the executive board, Mmes. Florence Gillings, Glenn Curtis, H. Curtiss Cassill, G. H. Fuehrer, Lloyd Lynd, Lyle Barcus and Gus Rizzo.

A lovely patio dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Hollenbeck, 8821 Tweedy Lane, was given in honor of the Hollenbeck's houseguests, her mother, brother-in-law and sister, Mrs. June Packwood and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Johnson of Oakdale, Neb.

Other guests included Mrs. Leota Bell of Los Angeles, Jay Crane of Anaheim, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Myers, Mrs. Lottie Myers, the Misses Melinda and Marilyn Myers, Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Hollenbeck and Mr. and Mrs. George Stang.

The attractive setting of the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Sweeney was the site of the lawn dinner given in honor of Mrs. Sweeney's parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Bailey, on the occasion of their 57th wedding anniversary. Participating in the outdoor event were four other sons-in-law and daughters of the honorees, Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Kinkade of Bell, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Kinkade of South Gate and Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Wilhite of Rivera. Also present were a granddaughter and great granddaughter, Mrs. L. D. Casey and Miss Sylvia Casey of Norwalk, and the Sweeney's daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Defibaugh and children, Larry, Judith and Lynne of Downey.

The preceding week, the Sweeney's entertained as their houseguests, another daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Foster and children, Jo Dean and Betty Lu, from Port Orchard, Wash.

Houseguests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Carter of 8361 E. Fifth St. has been their son and family, Maj. and Mrs. James Carter and daughter Nanette of Charleston, W. Va., where Maj. Carter is stationed with the U. S. Air Force National Guard. While here, the guests also visited at the home of his sister and family, Mr. and Mrs. James C. Shull and children of 7843 Bairnsdale, Downey.

The Paramount home of Mrs. Arnold Sorensen at 13653 Racine Ave. served as the setting for a pre-nuptial affair given in honor of Miss Dorothy Nichols, bride-elect of Pat O'Dell. Co-hostessing the affair with Mrs. Sorensen were Mrs. Howard Brown, Mrs. Dave Miller and Miss Rosemary Chaney. Green and white were the colors carried out in the decorations for the event, at which the honoree was the recipient of many lovely gifts. She will be married on August 22 in the First Baptist Church in Paramount.

Interesting houseguests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Fuehrer at 7811 E. Harper Ave. this past week have been his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Fuehrer and son Jeffrey, from Phillipsburg, N. J. The visitors, who have stopped at many scenic places on their tour across the country, have entertained their hosts by showing many lovely colored slide pictures taken during their trip. They also have taken many pictures while visiting places of interest in Southern California, which they will take back as mementos.

Engagement Told

A summer, 1956, wedding is being planned by Kay Coker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Barney Coker of Anaheim. She is engaged to John Lee Kinsman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Kinsman of Garden Grove. They plan to be married in the temple of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints in Salt Lake City, Utah.

Lange-Joy Engagement Highlights Norwalk News

By JUNE BRIDGE

High light of the social news this week is the announcement by Mr. and Mrs. David B. Joy, 14409 Benfield Ave., of the engagement of their daughter, Glenna Marie, to Kenneth G. Lange. Lange is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Gust Lange of Medford, Wis.

Miss Joy was graduated from Excelsior High School June 17, where she served as student body president during her senior year. She is the first girl to have held that office in the 50-odd years of Excelsior's existence. Lange is now serving in the U. S. Navy. No date has been set for the wedding.

Glenna Joy

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Siville, 14320 Crossdale, entertained members of the Monterey Park 20-30 Club and their wives at a swimming party and barbecue Saturday afternoon and evening. Guests arrived at 3 p. m. to enjoy swimming in the Siville pool. The hungry swimmers then filled up on hamburgers, potato salad and baked beans.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Newbrough, of 14803 Dalwood, and children, Christine and Bobby, have just returned from a camping trip at Greenhorn in the Sequoia National Forest. Fishing wasn't so successful but the family had fun trying.

Members of the Norwalk GNO club enjoyed another potluck dinner and evening at canasta. This time in the new patio of Mrs. Leonard Wallen, 13500 Stanbridge, Bellflower. Birthday guest of honor was Mrs. Al Lavers.

Turning the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Frederick, 15439 Piuma, into a gaming casino, the Junior Woman's Club held a "Little Las Vegas Night" at the Frederick home. Mrs. Cecil Hammack was chairman of the affair.

Twenty-seven members and guests had a gay time at the miniature roulette, black jack, poker and crap tables. Needless to say, all "gambling" was done with play money.

Jergins Arcade, Pine Ave. and Ocean Blvd.: Camera Club show.

All art roads, as the saying goes, lead these days to Laguna Beach for the 20th annual Festival of Arts and Pageant of the Masters which opened Saturday night and will continue through Aug. 14.

Six acres of Festival grounds, in Irvine Bowl at the mouth of Laguna Canyon, become a cultural center for the 30 days and nights of the Festival of Arts. Hundreds of gaily decorated booths, panels and working exhibits display paintings, sculpture, photographs, ceramics and handicrafts.

Highlights are an all-California exhibition of contemporary painting; a junior artists' exhibit; "free-for-all art classes" for small fry artists who are furnished equipment and smocks and encouraged to express themselves in color and line.

A fascinating adjunct is the Puppet Theater in which Don and Ivy Wilson guide their "little people" through daily performances gay with fantasy and impudent with satire.

Men, women and children of Laguna Beach act as living models to create mankind's great heritage of painting and sculpture, ranging from Leonardo da Vinci, to Norman Rockwell, in the Pageant of the Masters at 8:30 every night. Three different programs (A, B and C) are presented on successive nights.

Program A, July 16, 19, 22, 25, 28, 31, Aug. 3, 6, and 9: "Discobolus," Myron; "Virgin With Saints," Jan Van Eyck; "Young Lovers," Harunobu; "Ta Matete," Gauguin; "The Dancers," Harriet Frishmuth; "Garden of Allah," Maxfield Parrish; "Hold Still, Horace," F. Program C, July 18, 21, 24, 27, 30, Aug. 2, 5, 8 and 11: "Venus de Milo," Greek, 400 B. C.; "Adoration of Magi," Hans Memling; "Actor in Fox Dance," Buncho; "Chilperic," Toulouse-Lautrec; "Actaeon & Diana," Paul Manship; "Raftsmen Playing Cards," Bingham; "Youthful David," Andrea del Castagno; "Children Running on Beach," Sorolla; "Boating," Manet; "Lady Jean," George Bellows; bas relief, Albert Memorial; "Pinkie," Lawrence; "Tragic Muse," Reynolds; "Blue Boy," Gainsborough; "The Pole Vaulter," Tait MacKenzie; "Le Benedicite," Chardin; "Woman With a Guitar," Matisse; "Blind Man's Buff," Goya; "Lamp of Life," 19th Century Medallion; "Sunday, Women Drying Hair," Sloan; "Land of Enchantment," Rockwell; "Protection," Mario Moschi; "The Gleaners," Millet; "The Last Supper," Leonardo da Vinci.

"Command performances," three identical programs of popular choice favorites selected by audience vote, will be shown Aug. 12, 13 and 14.

Members of the Spectrum Club will sketch and paint today at the Bolsa Chica Club. The club has a new show in the Lafayette Hotel.

"Evening Glow," which won an award in the recent Glendale show, highlights an exhibit of 12 paintings by Darwin Duncan in the Bank of Belmont Shore, 5354 E. 2nd St. Others include "High Sierra," "Breath of Spring" and "Channel Boats."

Darrow Durham is showing many desert paintings in Everett Boyette's restaurant, 5907 E. Second St. Among them are "Spring Color," "Santa Ana River," "Verbenas" and "Snake Tree."

Child Care

Pajama Parties Need Adult Supervision

By MILTON I. LEVINE, M.D.
and
JEAN H. SELIGMANN

(Q) "My 13-year-old daughter wants to have a pajama party. Before I send out invitations I want to be sure if it's proper for a girl of this age to have such a party, and if it's all right to invite some of her 10-year-old girl friends. What are my duties that night?" —MRS. J.M.

(A) Pajama parties, which are given by girls for girls, are perfectly proper. Usually the party consists of the girls having supper together, sleeping together and having breakfast with one another in the the morning. It is planned so that they all sleep in one or two rooms with cots, couches or mattresses on the floor supplying the extra accommodations. They stay awake until very late talking, so that it probably would not be particularly advisable to include 10-year-olds.

Occasionally boys will learn through the grape-vine about these parties, and will try to crash them. Parents should stay around in order to discourage any such invasions. And parents should be at home for other reasons, as well. Even though your daughter may feel that they can manage without adults in the house, it is always reassuring for young people to know that an adult is there to help when needed, and to keep things under some sort of control. You can see to it that they don't get over-excited. You also can make sure that no one child is left out in any way. And you can hopefully suggest when it is time to go to sleep. This doesn't mean, of course, that you have to be around the girls all evening. Just be there in case of neccessity.

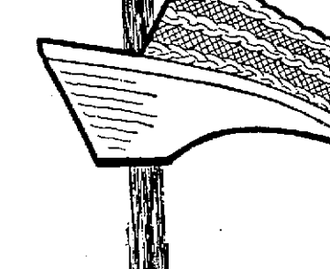

As for your other duties as mother of the hostess, your daughter can tell you more than we can. She most likely would like you to help her with the arrangements, serving of food, and so forth. Most girls love these pajama parties, and the affair should be a lot of fun.

This feature appears daily in the Press-Telegram.

Degree of Honor Courtesy Night

Courtesy Night, with guests from lodges throughout Los Angeles County filling the chairs, is planned at 8 p.m. Thursday by Degree of Honor Lodge 108 at 728 Elm Ave. Gene Graham will preside. A program is planned, and refreshments will be served by Elsie Tipping and her committee.

Olson-Boaz Vows Said in Fullerton

Wearing a white lace and taffeta ballerina gown designed and made by her bridegroom's grandmother, Peggy Boaz, daughter of Mrs. Mary L. Boaz, Whittier, repeated nuptial vows with Richard I. Olson of Belmont Shore July 9 in the First Christian Church of Fullerton. The single ring evening services were read by Rev. Frank L. Purnell, with Rev. Carlton C. Buck assisting.

Given in marriage by her brother, Robert Boaz of Santa Barbara, the bride wore a long-torso gown of white lace over taffeta fashioned by Mrs. Adalaide McElrath. A crown of matching lace with seed pearls and sequins caught her fingertip illusion veil. She carried a white Bible with a white orchid nestled in stephanotis. A pearl choker and earrings, a gift from the bridegroom, were her only jewelry.

In lilac crystalette ballerina dresses styled similar to the bride's gown were bridal attendants Mrs. Richard Stults of Riverside, matron of honor, and bridesmaids Mrs. Robert Boaz of Santa Barbara, Mrs. Richard Shook of Yorba Linda and Mrs. Rex Guggisberg of Fullerton. Dainty carnation bouquets and headpieces completed their ensembles.

John Kelly of Belmont Shore served the bridegroom as best man. Ushering the guests were Donald Boaz, the bride's brother of Whittier, John Vosburg of Garden Grove and Donald Kelly of Whittier.

White gladioli and candelabra graced the reception at the church with Miss Edna Welton, Mrs. James Grieves, Mrs. Cyril English, Mrs. Andrew Martin, Mrs. Kenneth Brunot, Mrs. James Craig and Mrs. O. E. West assisting.

The newlyweds will live in Belmont Shore upon their return from a week's honeymoon at Lake Arrowhead.

Schooled in Sacramento, the bridegroom attended Fresno State College and served with the USMC for four years. Son of Mrs. Ralph Brooks, 26 Sicilian Wlk., and E. A. Olson, Galveston, Tex., he is presently a student at Long Beach State College. His bride attended Fullerton Junior College and San Jose State College.

something to talk about . . .

Just a word this week about summer beauty. The way we feel about it, there's no season that calls for so much personal care as the good old summertime.
It's a good time of the year to try new exciting refreshments—like Lucien LeLong's new talc. This talc can be your guarantee of personal freshness all summer long, because a new ingredient has been added that renders perspiration absolutely odorless, yet doesn't interfere with its soft lasting fragrance.

But deodorants are important too! Don't take them for granted. Explore the possibilities of the many types available to you today—and watch them work for you—you may discover some are more effective than the ones you are now using.

Then perhaps you are the gal that has only a few minutes a day to give to your looks, so we'd like to suggest one way to make the most of those minutes. "Fragrance" and bathe at the same time! How? With Lucien LeLong's lovely soap—just step into the tub hot and bothered—step out fresh and fragrantly delightful in a scent that lingers all day long.

The good old summertime that is full of pleasures is also full of physical penances, among them more care for your hair. Dorothy Gray has solved this problem, however, with Hot Weather Shampoo—lots and lots of suds and it cleanses every strand, leaves your hair easily manageable, gives you that fresh feeling.

All in all—for a few hour's shopping time and a few minutes each day, you can have that certain summer air—its freshness.

Now that we've got you all freshened up—we will just have to find some place to go—and where else in the summertime but the beach! But don't go without our new "dazzle" beach bags and caps! You've never seen the likes of these! Stark white caps and bags literally ladened with rubber flowers! Rubber because they won't wilt, rumple or lose their fresh, real look—even in the water.

These are the things that make your summer a pleasure, they're all found on Walker's Street Floor of Accessories, so come in—browse around—find lots of new conveniences for summer freshness.

Yellow Roses Form Bouquet

A cascade arrangement of yellow rosebuds against the all-white loveliness of her gown made a striking picture as Norma James was escorted down the aisle of St. Bartholomew's Catholic Church by her father to become the bride of Donald Buzbee. Rev. John Cummings officiated.

The bride's gown was fashioned with a lace bodice over taffeta, and a bouffant skirt scattered with seed pearls studded lace rosettes. Her fingertip veil was held in place by a lace tiara.

Bridal attendants, June Herman and Evelyn Ellis, were gowned in pastel net over taffeta and carried carnation arrangements contrasting with their gowns. Howard Fisher was best man, and guests were seated by Paul Reed and Earl Ellis.

A reception followed at the 101 Ranch House in Seal Beach. The newlyweds will reside at 247½ Sixth St., Seal Beach, on return from a Santa Barbara honeymoon trip.

The bride, daughter of Leo L. James of Seal Beach, was graduated from Huntington Beach High School and Orange Coast College. Her husband, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Buzbee, 122 Tenth St., also was graduated from Huntington Beach High School and attended Orange Coast College.

Local Pilots Assist Club in Torrance

The privilege of serving as installing officer of a new Pilot Club fell to Hazel Blair of the Long Beach club Thursday evening when she served as officiant for the newly formed Torrance Club at a dinner meeting conducted at the Palms restaurant in Torrance.

Other Long Beach Pilot members in attendance at the memorable evening were Long Beach president Ruth Tay as well as Mildred Morris, Edith Klein, Lucinda Kalmbach, Virginia Rogers, Lucy Harvey, Lorene Yett, Dorothy Rees, Margaret Fenwick and Jacqueline Grunest.

At the last meeting of the Long Beach Club in the Lafayette Hotel Phil Hattery was guest speaker, following the Pilot slogan, "Women of Service, This Is Your City," for his topic. This same slogan will be the basis for the program at next meeting Wednesday when Dr. Frank Harnett will be principal speaker. The program will pinpoint city recreational facilities.

Among Career Women

No Summer Hiatus for These Clubs!

By ANNE GILCHRIST

From stem to stern and back again, 75 members of Desk and Derrick Club plus their guests (making a total of 150 people in all) toured the luxury ocean liner, SS President Wilson, last Sunday prior to the ship's sailing on its regular run to Honolulu, Yokohama, Manila and Hong Kong.

Divided into groups and led by ship's officers, they promenaded on the promenade deck, sunned on the sun deck, ah'd on the A deck and goggled on the boat deck! Their tour of the Wilson included careful scrutiny of such quarters as the writing rooms, library, lounges, bars, beauty shop and recreational facilities aboard —the most popular being the swimming pool. They also viewed the suites and first class passenger quarters as well as the "poodle" quarters for the Fifi's who travel—all of which are air conditioned.

After the conducted tour, open house was declared and everyone was given uncurtailed liberty of the ship with the chief attraction for most being the Marine Room overlooking the pool.

Much reminiscing will naturally go on at the club's regular monthly meeting this coming Wednesday when they meet in the Supper Room of the Lafayette Hotel at 7 p. m. At this time, members will hear J. T. Streger, California division manager, and R. M. Brazier, liaison engineer of B. J. Service, Inc., who will show recently released sound and color movies on oil well cementing processes. The film was made by the University of Texas using B. J. Service equipment.

Zonta Club

The importance and great privilege of international relations were uppermost in the minds of Long Beach Zontians —and their emotions ran the gamut from gay fun to profound thoughtfulness at their luncheon Friday at the Hotel Lafayette in honor of Miss Hillevi Rombin, Miss Sweden of 1955, and her roommate, Miss Merlin Grace Garcia, this year's Miss Louisiana. Also present were Mrs. Elly Stromgren of Uppsala, Sweden, who accompanied Miss Rombin to the Miss Universe Beauty Pageant, and Mrs. Breta Raby, local hostess for both girls.

Of all the cities, towns and perhaps villages in Sweden, Miss Rombin lives in the city of Uppsala, the home of one of the largest Zonta Clubs in Sweden, and the club assigned to the Long Beach Zontians for special fellowship on foreign soil. Hence, was born the idea of "adoption" by Long Beach Zontians of Miss Sweden and her roommate, Miss Louisiana.

The event was fittingly opened as guests sang our national anthem and colors were presented under the direction of Lt. Phyllis McAlpine, USN, assisted by Color Guard representatives from the 5th Signal Corps, USMCR. It was brought to a close by the dipping of the Swedish flag and the singing of that country's national anthem.

Following the luncheon, Myranna Coon, by special request, sang "The Lord's Prayer," with the Sadler Twins furnishing an obbligato. Their mother, Mrs. Winifred Sadler, accompanied at the piano.

As a reminder of their visit in Long Beach Miss Rombin and Miss Garcia were each presented with pearl and gold bracelets by President Vivian Showalter, with the names and dates engraved on gold medallions. To the Uppsala Club was sent an ebony gavel with personal greetings to them from Long Beach Zontians engraved on a gold band.

Vivian Showalter presided during the entire affair, Lucille Murdock, local chairman of International Relations Committee, introduced the special guests, and decorations, which carried out the theme "universe," were beautifully designed and executed by Gladys Christensen and Mary Noonan.

Insurance Women

Traditionally each summer Insurance Women of Long Beach have one "out of town" meeting and this year it took place at the Imperial Restaurant of Garden Grove with new president Marie Eckles in charge. Highlight of the evening centered around the "welcome home" to the 16 members of the local club who had attended the national conclave of the National Association of Insurance Women's Clubs in San Francisco last month.

Reports of both the social and business aspects of the convention were heard and included news that Miss Elizabeth F. DeCesari of Woodbury, N. J., had been elected new national president. The "sunny" California weather of the Bay area was enjoyed—and joked about—by 612 delegates. The National Association now has 208 clubs with a total membership of 12,000. Of these, 16 clubs joined within the past year—two of them being Canadian groups.

Three Long Beach members, Hazel Struthers, Ann Tscheu and Louise Owen Campbell, went on from convention to spend the remainder of their vacation in Hawaii. A large number of east coast delegates joined the local members in this trip to the Islands and all were royally entertained by the Honolulu Insurance Women's Club.

National Secretaries

First meeting of the 1955-56 club year of Queen Beach chapter of National Secretaries was called to order at Hoefly's, Lakewood, by president Marie Wells recently who chose this time to announce that Madaline Ferguson has been selected to serve on the state nominating committee and Jeanne Hissner has been chosen to head the state ways and means committee.

Program for the meeting was provided by Marvin B. Froeckmann and Reigh Gross of International Business Machines who described latest office equipment and then illustrated with a film, "The Right Touch."

During the brief business meeting all committee chairmen gave thumbnail sketches of plans for the year and these indicate busy months ahead. Door awards were taken home by Esther Crowley, Wilma Conde and Betty Bainter.

Another National Secretaries meeting of interest was the first board meeting of the new club year conducted in the home of Marilyn Hart, 5331 Daggett St., Lakewood. President Marie announced committee selections of the year include Cal Holmes, social; Marilyn Hart, ways and means; Jo Maes Knoerr, membership; Phyllis Trepinski, scholarship; Madaline Ferguson, employment; Rosemary Garmong, scrapbook; Betty Mahoney, parliamentarian; Grace Oakley, achievement; Vervyl Sumrall, public relations; Wilma Conde "Channel Chat" (the club's monthly news sheet); and Elma Braid, publicity.

Hotel Greeters

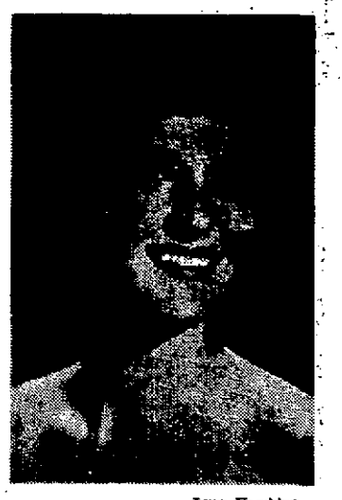

Forty members of the Hotel Greeters of America, Long Beach Division and Charter 65 came to order at the regular monthly meeting conducted in the Lafayette Hotel recently with Charter President John Reidy (Lafayette Assistant Manager) and Division President Mary English jointly presiding. It marked the first meeting of the new club year and, with reports in order, Yolande Booth and Dewey Herrington told of the national convention in Miami Beach, Fla., and a trip to Europe, respectively.

Another recent activity of local members was attendance by 22 of them at the Los Angeles Division No. 30 installation party in the California Room of the Statler Hotel.

Still with intercommunity spirit uppermost, Mr. and Mrs. William Welty and Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton Booth (Windsor Hotel) attended the quarterly dinner meeting of the Orange Charter and Division No. 60 at Glen Ivy Hot Springs during the same week. In all, it proved to be a "greater Greeter" week than any in some time.

New officers of the local chapter among the women are Mary English, president; Beatrice Keating, (Brooklyn Arms Apt.-Hotel), first vice president; Bess Cook (Ambassador Hotel), second vice president; Delia Monroe (Dolly Varden Hotel), secretary-treasurer; Maudeen Fisher, sergeant-at-arms.

Lucinda Kalmbach is home from a buying trip to New York where, between rain and lightning storms, she reports she found exciting new styles to bring back for the coming seasons. Lucinda, a busy career woman herself, says business women will love the fall's new costume suits and dresses—that they will be versatile and wearable throughout long working hours and on into evenings of social importance.

Church Members Appreciate Tangible Ways to Serve

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

Case O-348: Dr Paul Hortin, aged about 46, is a famous clergyman in St. Petersburg, Florida.

Recently he developed a printed list of various needs in his church. It covered a host of items, such as Sunday school teachers, youth leaders and dozens of others.

One entry on his chart stated the need for somebody to look after the church shrubbery and the lawns. One day an elderly man came up to Dr. Hortin and said he would enjoy taking over the responsibility for the shrubbery and lawns.

"I don't have much money to contribute to this wonderful church," said this parishioner. "But I have worked with shrubbery, so I'd be delighted to look after the grounds."

Dr. Hortin gladly accepted his generous offer. "And that meant more than many folks might realize," Dr. Hortin added.

"For we had obtained estimates from local firms as to what it would cost us for them to handle our grounds and shrubbery.

"The lowest bid we had received had been $75 per month. So this parishioner thus made a contribution equalling $900 per year in cash. I was very happy to accept his offer in the interest of our church."

Frequently I have urged clergymen to prepare a "gift list" or itemized page of the various needs of their local church.

For there is a certain amount of fascination in running down such a list and picking out something that is within the ability or the pocketbook of the members.

Many of you readers are familiar with the restaurant menu cards on which you order breakfast according to a certain number.

Number 1, for instance, may involve orange juice, toast and coffee, with a price tag of possibly 50c.

Number 2, may include those same items, plus one egg, with a price of 75c.

Number 3, may include the orange juice, toast, coffee and two eggs, with a slice of bacon, for $1.00, etc.

The patron runs down the menu to find what fits both his hunger and his purse.

We need to adapt this "menu card" technique to our churches, for there is a vast reservoir of untapped talent, as well as money, available in every church, if we can stimulate people adequately.

People also take a greater interest in a church when they can participate in its activities. But parishioners prefer specific projects where they can actually see the definite results of their efforts.

A cash contribution to general church expenses is not as productive of ego inflation, as a specific gift of 100 song books for the young people's society, or a sandbox for the nursery school, or a TV set.

For when we make tangible and specific gifts, we can see them afterwards and feel good inside at the continuing help which they render to toddlers, teen-agers or even adults.

Besides, ideas are the father of deeds, so a definite "gift list" stimulates the thinking. And before income tax deadlines, many people may find they have an extra $5 or $50 or even $500 available.

"Where shall I give it so I can see it will do some good?" is a frequent query which I receive.

So prepare a "gift list" for your church. Then circulate it widely.

This feature appears daily in the Independent.

SORORITY BREAKFAST

Most timely of themes, "Miss Universe," will be used this morning when Beta Sigma Phi Sorority's City Council entertains members of the Southern California Council at its gala July breakfast at Lakewood Country Club beginning at 10 a. m. Pictured as they prepared the unique decorations for the affair are committee members (from left) Mrs. Lyle B. Walker, chairman; Miss Lucylle Kuecks, Mrs. Donald Wysong and Mrs. Ralph R. Gillbreath. Southern California Council President Mrs. John L. Evans will conduct the business meeting.—(Staff Photo.)

Miss Universe Is Theme for Gala Breakfast Today

Members of the Southern California Council of Beta Sigma Phi International Sorority will be guests of the Long Beach City Council today at 10 a. m. at the Lakewood Country Club for their July breakfast meeting. Newly-installed Southern California Council president, Mrs. John L. Evans of Los Angeles, will conduct the business meeting. A special welcome will be extended to the mothers of members as honored guests of the sorority by Mrs. John Lundigan, vice president of the Southern California Council.

The timely "Miss Universe" theme will be carried out in the programs, name tags and party decor. A parade of miniature bathing beauties on floats will adorn the tables, and as special guests, several of the contestants in Long Beach's beauty pageant, including Miss Greece, Miss District of Columbia and Miss Universe of 1954, Miriam Stevenson, will lend to the interest and beauty of the affair.

Mrs. Lyle B. Walker, Long Beach, is serving as chairman of the affair, with the following Long Beach chapter chairmen assisting her: Mmes. Harold Mathews, reservations; Ralph Genese, Frank Patrick and Miss Joan Boelter, invitations; Miss Lucylle Kuecks and Mrs. Kenneth Schleismayer, programs; Mmes. A. W. Anderson, V. W. Baker and Harry Schildwachter, table decorations; Mrs. Ralph Gillbreath and Miss Helen DeJarnette, entertainment; Miss Lois Ward and Mrs. Donald Wysong, awards; Mrs. Dale Wagner, publicity; Mrs. Chenia Newberry, name tags, and Mrs. Floyd Seymour, favors.

Under the direction of Mrs. Ralph Gillbreath, Eta Tau Chapter of Long Beach will provide the musical entertainment, including a skit and dance numbers by members and several selections by the Tri-City Four of Westminster. Another highlight of the occasion will be the distribution of numerous exotic gifts from foreign nations throughout the world.

The Long Beach City Council of Beta Sigma Phi is composed of 14 chapters with over 400 active members. Its officers are Mrs. Ralph Gillbreath, president; Mrs. Marvin A. Mussell, vice president; Miss Lois Ward, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Harry Lee, recording secretary; Mrs. Dick Heneise, treasurer, and Mrs. Vic Baker Jr., past president. The philanthropic efforts of the Council have resulted in generous contributions of time and funds to the Sister Kenny Polio Hospital at El Monte and to the Cystic Fibrosis Research Fund of the Children's Hospital at Los Angeles.

Beta Sigma Phi is an international sorority, philanthropic, cultural and social in scope. Her Story Has a Happy Ending

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

You receive so many letters from unhappy people, I thought maybe mine would be a change.

Three years ago I married a tough hardboiled police officer. I spent almost two horrible years with him. Then I became pregnant and he left me, saying he didn't think I was good enough to bear his children. Alone and very afraid I got a job caring for children to help me pay for my coming blessing. Then in my eighth month of pregnancy I met a wonderful guy. He took me to shows and for long rides to pass my time. Then after he'd known me only one month he spent seven and a half hours walking a hospital floor until my son was born.

We had to wait eleven months until my divorce was final and then we were married. My son calls him "Daddy" and loves him as much as I do. We have been married nine heavenly months and are expecting a second baby in late July.

My husband is the most wonderful man in the world, kind, thoughtful, loving, and always a good provider. I just wish all of the women who have unhappy first marriages could be blessed with the happiness and contentment that I have now. —A DEVOTED WIFE.

DEAR WIFE:

Well, what a happy ending to your story! I'm using your letter because I have so much mail from unhappy wives whose husbands have deserted them, that it always seems to me a good idea to hold up an example of a happy ending like yours. Only, I don't very often have the chance.—M. M.

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

I hope you are able to help me with the following situation.

My husband has a 7-year-old son by his former marriage. The child lives with his mother.

My husband and I kept company for two years prior to our marriage and were married this past December. Incidentally, my husband was divorced a couple of years before I met him. During the two years we went together we had his son in our company on several occasions. Since our marriage he has only been with us once, but in the future he will be with us more often.

He always enjoys himself when he is with us, in fact he never wants to go home, and he wants to know when we will have him again.

Our problem is what should he call me? Up to the present time he has never called me anything. His mother's first name and mine are the same but my husband doesn't like the idea of him calling me by my first name. Since he lives with his mother we do not know whether or not he should call me mother.

I am only 24 years old. Would that have any bearing on what he should call me?—MRS. M. T. P.

DEAR MRS. M. T. P.:

I know that a lot of people are deadly opposed to children calling adults by their first names. I'm not—especially where there is a camaraderie between adult and child. What would you think of letting the little fellow call you "Mary" or "Margaret," or whatever it might be?

If this idea appalls you—and I know it would a lot of people—then you might consider "Aunt Mary" or some such. Of course he might come out with a perfectly normal nickname that would solve everything if you give him time.—M. M.

Chef of the Week

Otto Beck's 'Con Carne' Es Muy Bueno, Senoras!

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
Independent, Press-Telegram Home Economics Editor

His enthusiasm is no bubble of fantasy—it wears well and endures from year to year, whether it pertains to his own business, a civic project or a sports event in which he participates. Fact is, Chef of the Week Otto J. Beck even got off to a special start—he held the record for many years of being the smallest baby born in Los Angeles County who lived.

As a child, Beck's parents moved to San Francisco — but they must have been psychic, for they returned to the Southland just prior to the San Francisco earthquake.

By the time our "chef" had reached the status of a Poly High freshman, he had graced the halls of three grammar schools. The old Pine Avenue School was condemned and torn down, so he moved over to the American Avenue house of learning. It burned down, so he proceeded eastward to the Atlantic Avenue School.

Following graduation from Poly, he spent the next 24 years in the automobile industry, during which time he extolled the merits of the Paige, Graham-Paige, the Jewett, Hudson-Essex, Terraplane, the Packard and finally the Cadillac. With a keen knowledge of automobiles and an aptitude for mechanics, Beck then opened his own repair shop at 4th and Alamitos.

At present he is the owner of three stores at Long Beach Blvd. and Carson — the Beck Furnaces, Television and Appliances.

The proud owner of a membership pin presented to him for outstanding service in the YMCA, Beck is a past president of the Native Sons of the Golden West and of the Uptown Optimist Club. He also holds a life membership in Optimist International. It was he who arranged the Native Sons Centennial Parade in 1947, and the Long Beach Equestrian Parade in 1950.

Secretary of the Long Beach Sports Boosters, Beck is a charter member of the El Bekal Shrine, is a Shrine Greeter, a member of Palos Verdes Lodge No. 389, California Knights Templar No. 40, and other well known Masonic bodies.

Interested in sports of all kinds, he played with the first basketball team organized by the Long Beach Recreation City League. He was with them for 25 consecutive years.

His memories of early Long Beach take him back to a chicken ranch atop Signal Hill, which he and his mother could have bought for $250. It later "housed" one of the most lucrative gushers ever brought in in these parts.

Our "chef" is allergic to paint or repair jobs at home — but when it comes to collecting, he still can produce theater programs dated 1910, his first sack of marbles, and newspaper clippings from the old Long Beach Press, vintage 1913. His recipe for Mexican Chili Con Carne looks well worn and a little threadbare, but here it is:

BECK'S MEXICAN CHILI CON CARNE

1 lb. beef cut in small pieces
½ lb. beef suet, (ground fine) or 2 tbsp. lard
1 to 2 tbsp. chili powder.
¼ small garlic, minced
1 onion, minced.

Add water and boil until thoroughly cooked, but do not add chili powder until the meat is almost done.

The gravy from this Chili Con Carne is fine for macaroni, spaghetti and vegetables. If beans are wanted, use any good red bean, Bayos, Pinks, Pinto or Red Kidney bean. Boil beans separately and add beans to Chili Con Carne when serving.

Why Grow Old?

Men Judged by Their Wives

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

We wouldn't believe it except that we know it is true——how often folks nibble at the egos of those they are close to, how hectic they make their most important relationships because of sensitiveness, hidden or open resentments or lack of understanding.

Marriage is an extremely important relationship for most women, yet many of them seem to have a fatal attraction for doing just the opposite of what they should to make a happy marriage, and with the best intentions!

Nothing hits home so hard or so deeply undermines the foundation of individual ego as the feeling that one is not attractive, desirable or successful in the eyes of one's wife or husband.

So, many wives go along keeping a near perfect house, with three nutritious and attractive meals a day for 365 days a year. They fulfill their responsibilities as a mother with intelligence but cut their own throats as well as their husband's with a dreary, hectic, critical attitude.

For many years now big business has realized that it is wise to bet on a man whose wife builds him up rather than tears him down. When it comes to top notch executive positions some companies look the wife over very carefully before promoting the husband.

They do this because they know that she will have to be able to carry her weight in company relationships at top level, and also because they know that no man can give his best to his job when he has a wife who depresses him rather than encourages him, who is demanding, who adds emotional turmoil to his life.

While many women do not realize just how important a role they can play in their husband's attainment of success, more and more companies are becoming convinced that moral support from the wife for the man of the house is one of the key factors in the degree of success he is likely to achieve.

Our Children

Caution in Choice of Home

By ANGELO PATRI

Many young people are marrying this summer and are looking for the best place to establish their homes. This requires very careful thinking. So many elements enter into the choice. First the house must be priced within possibilities of paying for it. And well within possibilities.

Young people have little knowledge of those possibilities, so they should seek advice from disinterested people like their fathers and mothers, who know all about the maybes of life: illness, loss of jobs, the coming of babies and their costs, insurance, taxes and upkeep of the place. All these should be considered and to some degree be provided for, or against.

After settling the cost of the purchase, the next most important point is the kind of neighbors the new family will have. The more congenial the neighbors will be, the happier everybody will be—so the religion, the kind of work, the social habits, the standards of education of all concerned are weighty elements in the selection of the development.

Nothing can be more disquieting than discovering that one is not wanted in the neighborhood. To have to live among unfriendly people is to know misery. To live among one's own kind, among people who are sympathetic to one's feelings, standards and ambitions, is to have one big lift toward successful living.

Young people starting to rear a family should not try to live in a neighborhood of retired people. Nor should they try to settle in a group preponderantly of a religion different from their own. One hears a great deal about brotherhood, but practical living discloses that it is hard to come by — so a likeness of standards of all sorts is best for newly married people. They will have plenty to think about and the less they have to contend with the better.

The new generation soon will be along. With them come the problems of neighboring. If most of the families have little ones they form a bond of understanding. Mothers have sympathy with one another, are willing to help each other. When three-year-old Bobby trespasses on a neighbor's yard, there will be no battle in consequence, just a mutual understanding that children are children.

Their Own Newspaper...

The Katkow Kibitzer enables this far-flung family to keep in touch

by ESTHER KATKOW BROTMAN

STACKED-UP volumes of bound Katkow Kibitzers serve as a rostrum for the author, flanked by seated parents. Other Katkows (l. to r.) are Minnie, Sallie, Albert, Herman, Ann, Lee.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

Our family newspaper, the Katkow Kibitzer, started out like many a youthful project which goes full steam for a while — until interest flags — and then quietly dies. Not so with the Kibitzer. After 18 years of publication, our little mimeographed hearthside weekly is still going strong!

On February 11, 1937, when the first issue went to press, my youngest sister, Minnie, then 21, and two younger brothers, Albert, 20, and Herman, 18, were still living in Baltimore with our parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Katkow. I and my four other sisters — Dorothy, Lee, Sallie and Ann — had moved to Washington, New York and Kansas City; and only Lee wasn't married with children of her own.

We Katkows had been more closely knit than most families — perhaps by virtue of economic necessity during the Depression, when Father, a tailor, could get only part-time work. So we individually began to feel as deeply saddened as our parents that the family circle was slowly drifting apart. Then the younger children came up with their idea for the Kibitzer.

Minnie assumed the position of editor, with Herman as assistant editor and Albert general rewrite man and "Poet Laureate" — he composed special verses for birthdays, anniversaries and other memorable occasions. They wrote the rest of us asking for contributions: personal anecdotes, accounts of family incidents, bright sayings of children, news of births and birthdays and original poems and photographs. The thrill of seeing one's own name and brain child in print uncovered a bonanza of unsuspected talent among us. And what started out as merely a news letter soon blossomed into a literary publication.

When Minnie became Mrs. Joseph Kaplan and moved into a home of her own, the Kibitzer evolved into a Kaplan project. It still is, with Joe running the mimeograph machine and their two children, Ellis, 12, and Hinda, 9, folding the two-to-six stenciled sheets, addressing envelopes and pasting on stamps. The Kaplans devote the whole of Thursday evening every week to getting out the Kibitzer.

The publication's current circulation is only 15 copies a week, but each issue is eagerly awaited by a total of 43 Katkow children and grandchildren, spread from Orlando, Fla., to Lexington, Mass., and from Monmouth, N. J., to Liberal, Kan. Subscriptions used to be free, but now each subscriber contributes $3 a year toward the cost of postage, stationery and greeting cards — which the editor sends out in behalf of "All the Katkow Kibitzers" on anniversaries, holidays, etc.

Even a War Correspondent

During the war, when my brothers were in service, the Kibitzer even boasted a foreign correspondent, for Albert frequently sent in dispatches with French and Italian datelines. Herman didn't get out of the country, but he kept us posted on his activities at various U. S. air bases and installations.

Some years ago, it was decided to bind past issues of the Kibitzer in covers containing three years each. Today, as a result, there is a stack of fat volumes through which older family members can bemusedly browse, and in which their offspring can look up accounts of their births and early adventures.

Our family has been, by the grace of God, extremely fortunate in experiencing a minimum of sadness over the years. On the few occasions of tragedy, a one-page Kibitzer has been sent out, containing the news; and usual items were postponed, out of respect, until the next issue.

The last time we Katkows were all together was in 1951 when, for the first time in 20 years, we gathered in Baltimore to celebrate our parents' 50th wedding anniversary. Wishing that we could see more of one another and realizing that that is practically impossible, we feel fortunate in sharing our little paper — an ever-fresh bond in common, which keeps us continually in one another's thoughts and hearts through the passing years. ■

"BOY" TO BOY

● At left, Detroit Tiger manager Bucky Harris places a paternal arm around the shoulder of Al Kaline, slugging young right-fielder who is the major league's new "boy wonder." Harris, of course, knows a "boy wonder" when he sees one — he was the original, the title being handed to him when he managed the Washington Senators and Detroit Tigers in the '20s and '30s at a tender age. Now back in the Motor City, Bucky has a young team sparked by Kaline. For more on this newest boy wonder, see page 12.

Everybody's going on a picnic!

...and Cut-Rite goes along to keep everything fresh

Save work! Pack up all the sandwich fixings in Cut-Rite—cheese, cold cuts, buttered buns . . . and let folks "make their own" right at the picnic. Cut-Rite's waxed-through to keep everything deliciously fresh.

A good trick to keep sandwiches from getting soggy is to wrap tomatoes and lettuce separately, put them in just before you eat. Do your slicing and sandwich making on extra-heavy Cut-Rite to save washing up.

Cooking out? Shape hamburger patties ahead of time and put in ice cube trays—separate them with waxed-through Cut-Rite. Freeze the hamburgers . . . you can even take them along to the picnic right in the trays.

Keep them crisp, keep them moist! Wrap celery, radishes, deviled eggs, in Cut-Rite. Cut-Rite doesn't split or break even when you twist it. And its famous cutting edge tears easily, neatly.

Extra heavy...waxed clear through...a real economy!

"Cut-Rite," Reg. U.S. Pat. Off.

IN TEST for hull strength, 14' "family" model cuts boat wake at 35 mph, bounces out of water.

Outboards, built for summer fun, get jolting safety tests

WINTER HAVEN, FLA.

Every summer, more and more Americans find their fun sailing or cruising. This year, some 20 million are at it — with more to come.

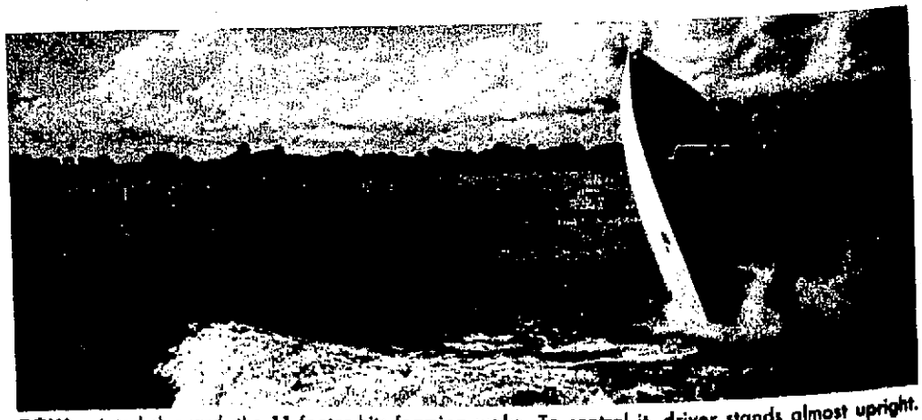

Two reasons why are the sassy models shown in these photos and on today's cover. They were built by Bob Switzer, of Crystal Lake, Ill., who has been building and racing boats since he was 15. Now 23, he turns out one Switzercraft every three hours at the Switzer family factory.

Photos taken on Lake Eloise here show the craft undergoing one of their toughest "road tests" — cutting across the wake of another boat at 35 mph. Safety-designed on aerodynamic principles, the boats leaped out of the water but didn't capsize.

But Bob warns boat owners: DON'T ever try this. It's for testing only. "The sensation," he says, "is like sitting on a chair that isn't there." ■

Cheer's Blue-Magic whitener is not just a bluing . . . it's more than a bluing . . . it's a new, better whitener for all your wash.

One look tells you . . . blue Cheer brings a new whiteness to your wash. And this simple yet dramatic "window test" proves it.

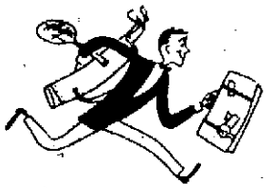

Just take some Cheer-washed clothes to your window. In that revealing light (or even on a gray day), you'll see a startling new whiteness in all your wash. And on hardest-to-whiten things like nylon, you'll see a real difference in whiteness never possible before Cheer.

What's more, blue Cheer washes dirtiest work and play clothes crisply clean, adds new brightness to colored washables, too. And you really know Cheer's in a class by itself when you see the difference in whiteness Cheer gives you.

Are We Losing Japan?

A Congressman asks a startling question — and gives some grim answers

RED-LED RIOTS, like this one in Tokyo, indicate strength of Communists in Japan.

by REP. THOMAS J. DODD

CONNECTICUT CONGRESSMAN; MEMBER, HOUSE COMMITTEE ON COMMUNIST AGGRESSION

The U.S. is in real trouble in Japan. The onetime enemy we had counted upon as the chief bulwark of freedom in the Far East is drifting farther and farther from the free-world camp, closer and closer to the Communists and the neutralists. This was apparent in the recent Japanese election, when an assortment of left-wing, Communist-directed parties picked up enough seats to defeat our hope of Japanese rearmament. Now we are confronted with a rising tide of anti-Americanism, plus Russian-Japanese conferences that may drive a deeper wedge between the two nations.

Shocking things have been going on in Japan since World War II ended — things that have been kept from the American people by military government and censorship. As a result, our position on the critical Asian front is in jeopardy.

On the basis of personal conversations with informed Government officials abroad, testimony before Congressional committees and statements of Japanese, here are the facts as I see them:

- Japan could be completely paralyzed within 24 hours by a Kremlin-called general strike.
- Of 5,000,000 organized workers, 3,500,000 are under the control of Communist-dominated unions. They are all in key industries and are directed by Moscow-trained experts.
- Communist influence in education ranges from nearly 100 per cent control of elementary-school teachers to 10 per cent of the university graduates.
- Japanese Diet (parliament) members who have been wooed and won on visits to Red China would take a neutral or anti-American stand in a crisis.
- Japanese prisoners of war held for years by the Reds were given super-Communist training and are one of the best-trained Party cadres in the world.

All these Communist gains were scored while our Army of Occupation controlled Japan. How? Responsible members of government say the infiltration began when we permitted Russians aboard the U.S.S. Missouri for the signing of the Japanese surrender. That was the signal for Kremlin-directed agents to move in. They have made their biggest strides in the fields of labor, education and propaganda.

Under the noses of Gen. Douglas MacArthur and his staff, the Reds wormed into the labor unions on the pretext of broadening the base. This "broadening" process has now reached the point where 70 per cent of organized labor is Communist-dominated. Only the farmers have resisted, and even with them the Reds have made headway. Their left wing "Japan Farmers' Union"—partly through confusion with the conservative "Old Japan Farmers' Union"—now has almost half a million members and rivals the older union in numbers.

The most tightly controlled Red union is the Japanese Teachers Union. Its devoted members, with practically complete control of the schools, drum into children the lessons of the party line: Japan wants peace—but the U.S. is an enemy of peace and the Chinese Nationalists have "sold out" to the enemies of peace.

The teachers further use their positions to electioneer, instructing children to urge their parents to vote for left-wing, pro-Communist candidates. This tactic helped the Reds gain strength in the recent Diet elections.

In the propaganda field, more than 20 of Japan's most popular and widely read publications are sponsored, published, owned or controlled by Communists. Thus, the two primary sources of education — schools and the press — are under Kremlin control.

Can we halt Japan's leftward drift, or even reverse it? What is the best the U.S. can hope for in Japan?

We can control the Red threat only by meeting it where it began—on the local level. Our propaganda program in Japan—and throughout the Far East—should be improved and increased. Truth is our strongest weapon. We should present it so that the teeming millions of Asia can understand it.

There is a vague hope that the recent upheavals in Moscow may reflect themselves in a struggle for control of the Japanese Reds. But that is wishful thinking. We need a positive, vigorous program that will help bring about economic recovery in Japan with resulting financial and political stability. Something must be done right now to take up the slack in heavy industry created by the recent election loss of the rearmament program.

A Japanese Marshall Plan?

If the Marshall Plan could meet and defeat Communism in Western Europe, a similar plan can do it in Japan. We must start thinking and working now toward the day when Japan will be able to take her place in the South East Asia Treaty Organization.

Another weapon in our battle for Japan is the tariff. Recently, Congress gave President Eisenhower the power to lower tariffs over the next three years. Perhaps, in the great need to rehabilitate Japanese economy and trade, he will find that special measures must be taken to defeat Communist expansion there.

And the turbulent political situation in Indo-China also affects Japan, for that country long has been Japan's breadbasket. Now that half of Indo-China has gone to the Communists and the other half is menaced, the problem of Japanese Communism is tightly tied to the problem of Communism in Indo-China. The fall of Southern Vietnam to the Reds might nullify all the progress made in Japan since the war.

I believe that we have the ability, the courage and the know-how to save Japan from being neutralized or, worse yet, turned against us. But time is running out. While we mark time, Communist propaganda goes unchecked and the Red octopus spreads its tentacles ever farther into the economic and social life of Japan. ■

The Harrisons line up for a portrait: father, mother with Ivan, 3 months; Guy, 21; George, 18; Carmel, 16; Samuel, 15; Robert, 14; Haskel, 13; Kenneth,

13 CHILDREN —ALL BOYS

Life's no snap for the Harrisons of the Tennessee hills — but everyone pitches in to make it just a little easier

JONESBORO, TENN.

Tapering down from Guy Lester, 21, to Ivan Huston, 3 months, the long blue line of overalled boys at left represents the chief crop raised on Emory Harrison's farm here: sons. Harrison's 13 boys are believed to make up the biggest all-male family in the U.S. (Science has no explanation for the predominance of one sex in a family; the odds against 13 successive boys or girls are about 100,000 to 1.)

And boys by the baker's dozen mean problems in proportion. One sample: Mrs. Harrison, who does all the baking, uses 50 pounds of flour a week. Yet, surprisingly, the family spends only $12 to $15 a week for food. Their 70 acres of mountain farmland 100 miles northeast of Knoxville keep them provided with vegetables, wheat, potatoes, corn, meat. The only cash crop is tobacco, which brings in $500 to $1,000 a year. Harrison stretches this income by making butcher knives and footstools. He also is a local county constable.

Life is not easy for the Harrison boys. Besides fetching wood and water, each must raise and care for his own animal. When their father developed a heart condition, a few years ago, several of the older boys gave up their schooling to operate the farm. In spite of hard work, all are healthy; Harrison boasts that he has spent less than $50 on medical bills in 22 years of married life.

To make things easier on the boys, Harrison tries to teach as many skills as possible; several of them, for instance, are excellent cooks. They also are exposed to Harrison's homespun philosophy. "A good run," he may tell the boys, "is better than a bad stand." A lesson all must learn is to help one another, and the older boys keep a watchful eye on the younger ones. Despite her staggering cooking, washing and cleaning chores, Mrs. Harrison finds time to help her neighbors. Recently this paid off for the Harrisons; when their home burned, the congregations of 12 churches chipped in to buy and build them a new and more modern home.

Harrison would like to see more of his sons, particularly the younger ones, get more formal education. One boy was an excellent self-taught pianist, but the family couldn't afford training. His piano was destroyed in the fire, hasn't been replaced. And the father would like to take some of the drudgery out of the place by installing a pump from the farm spring. But he sees nothing remarkable about his family. "Why, my grandfather had 27 children," Harrison says. "He had it a lot tougher than this."

DETROIT'S DARLING

Tiger fans love Al Kaline, a young outfielder who suddenly grew muscles

by LYALL SMITH
SPORTS EDITOR, "THE DETROIT FREE PRESS"

DETROIT.

It has never happened before, say ticket sellers at Briggs Stadium here. Finicky fans, they swear, want seats far out in right field for Tiger games. "This season," says one, "we're getting more requests for them than we are for seats back of home plate."

The reason is a lean, 20-year-old rightfielder named Al Kaline. To Tiger fans, the impact of this young athlete from Maryland on the world of baseball seems to be stirring up almost as much excitement as the recent Guaranteed Annual Wage negotiations did in local auto-making.

Tiger fans have reason to be excited. This year it took American League pitchers 26 games to cool down Kaline's bat to where he was only hitting an even .400. And even after they managed to hold him below that figure, his sensational fielding and throwing kept enemy batters mumbling to themselves.

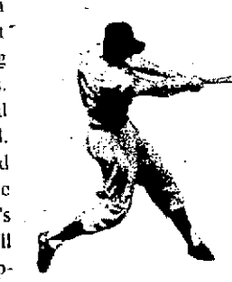

"The kid murders you with his speed and arm," growls the Yankees' Casey Stengel. "Used to be I could tell if a line drive would be a hit, but now I'm jumping out of the dugout every time a ball goes to right. He's made some catches I still don't believe. He'll hit you too. I sorta hate to think what'll happen when he grows up."

Kaline has a lot of growing up to do yet. Just two years ago he graduated from high school in Baltimore, receiving a $30,000 bonus for signing with the Tigers. Under baseball law, all bonus players must be kept for two years, but Detroit has never shed a tear about having to keep Kaline. He finished out the 1953 season as a bench-warmer, but came back in '54 to capture the right-field job. He hit .274, startled experts with his fielding grace (astonishing since he had never played a day in the minor leagues).

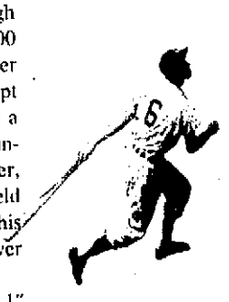

At the end of the 1954 season, the 6' 1" Kaline scaled 153. He came back this year — well fed by a loving bride — at 175. And that made the difference in his hitting. He equaled his homer production for the entire '54 season (4) in the first 10 days, doubled it 20 days later. On April 17 he smacked three in one game and two in one inning — only the fourth player in A.L. history to turn that trick.

Detroit, long a baseball-crazy city but much calmer in recent years because of tepid teams, went wild over young, shy Al. When the Detroit Free Press tossed out a three-paragraph request for a suitable nickname for the kid, the response was a mailman's nightmare. Hundreds and hundreds of letters poured in. An example of the fans' fervor came from one amateur poet:

"... He flavors every game he plays, no nickname is so fine
As Salt, for everybody knows that Salt means Al-Kaline."

All this adulation has done nothing to the size of Kaline's cap. He's still modest, talkative as a piece of granite. But from a word here and there, his early life takes shape. He started playing ball at Westport Grammar School in Baltimore, plucked off his first headline when he won a contest by throwing a baseball 173½ feet.

Then came a long string of headlines. In high school he racked up averages of .333, .418, .469 and .488 to become the first player since Charley Keller to make four Maryland All-State teams.

Bums' Rush

Al was only 5'7" and weighed 115 pounds as a freshman. His .333 average, however, got him an invitation to a Brooklyn Dodger try-out camp. "They took one look at me," says Kaline, "and sent me away. Said I was too small."

But his Baltimore friends had no doubts about Al. They once made bets — not on whether Al would play in the majors but on which team would grab him first.

The Tigers cast a speculative eye on Al when he hit a homer in a game of high-school all-stars in New York. Watching was Charley Gehringer, a long-time Tiger second-base star and now a front-office executive. He came back raving about the kid from Baltimore, assigned scout Al Katalinas to watch him further. Katalinas flashed back glowing, sometimes near-hysterical, reports: Example: "The boy stood out [in the game] like a cat's eyes in a dark room."

Other times, however, Katalinas was more cautious — but still optimistic: "Not much power yet, but he is still young and growing. He has small wrists, a small neck, but his speed always will make up for any lack of power . . . even if he doesn't develop into a long-ball hitter, which he could when he adds a few more pounds."

Katalinas all but moved into the Kaline home, regularly visiting Al's father (who works in a Baltimore broom factory). On Kaline's graduation day, scouts from every big-league club were on hand, but in Katalinas' hand was a check for $30,000 and Kaline became a Tiger.

"I needed that money," says Kaline. "My folks knew that I had always dreamed about being a big-league ball player and though they never had much money, they wouldn't let me get a job while I was going to high school. They knew I wanted to play ball all I could. When I signed, I really didn't want to be a bonus player—you usually sit on a bench for two years—but I figured my folks deserved the money. And they got it."

Tip from the Top

The lure of the majors, strong though it was in the 18-year-old Kaline, wasn't too strong to make him forget his friends. He refused to sign his Detroit contract for 10 days so he could play for his sandlot team in a tournament.

He reported to the Tigers on June 24, 1953. Fred Hutchinson, then the Tiger manager, sent him to bat 28 times that season; Al picked up seven hits, including his first big-league homer (off Cleveland's Dave Hoskins).

Hutchinson was high on the boy. Late in the season he asked his good friend, slugger Ted Williams of the Red Sox, to give Al some advice. Williams took one look at the willowy Kaline and suggested:

"Do what I do during the winter. Get a heavy bat, twice as heavy as the standard 34-ounce ones. Swing that maybe a half hour a day all winter. And carry a baseball around with you and try to squeeze the stuffings out of it."

That winter Kaline got a job as a clerk in a Baltimore sporting-goods store, swung the bat and squeezed the ball with gusto every chance he got. He claims now that it helped develop his hands, wrists and swing. He did the same thing last winter, when he also took himself a bride — pretty Louise Hamilton, his high-school sweetheart. Her cooking — in all or in part — pushed skinny Al to a hard-hitting 175.

Growing with Al is baseball fever in Detroit. Attendance in 1953, the year he joined the Tigers, was a poor 884,000. It jumped to 1,079,000 last year. This year the young, speedy club — spearheaded by Kaline and slugging shortstop Harvey Kuenn — is making threatening swipes at the pennant, and attendance may hit 1,200,000.

And most of them, to the despair of the ticket sellers, will want seats that give a good close look at the amazing Mr. Kaline.. ■

Dive right in. Splash around to your heart's content. You can go swimming—even on "those days"—when you're wearing Tampax.

Remember!—Tampax was invented by a doctor! He realized that if "time-of-the-month" was handled by internal absorption, women could indulge in normal activities without any of the chafing, irritation and other discomforts associated with external pads. So far as swimming is concerned, Tampax is not only invisible when properly inserted . . . it doesn't absorb any water! Users even wear Tampax in their bathtubs with complete security and comfort.

However, if you spend the Summer in a hammock, Tampax would still be a blessing. It prevents odor from forming by preventing exposure to the air. It's easy to dispose of, even with the unruly plumbing that sometimes exists at vacation resorts. (Both the Tampax and the applicator flush away.) And it's by far the daintiest kind of protection . . . why, your hands needn't even touch the Tampax during insertion or removal.

Make this the Summer you'll enjoy from first to last. Get your supply of Tampax at any drug or notion counter. Choice of 3 absorbencies: Regular, Super, Junior. Month's supply goes into purse; economy size gives more than an average Summer's supply. Tampax Incorporated, Palmer, Mass.

EMPTY PODIUM fails to halt Symphony of the Air in rehearsal (above) or concert.

The orchestra that refused to DIE

by DAN PAONESSA

On the evening of October 27, 1954, an orchestra of 92 musicians began tuning up in routine fashion before a jam-packed audience in New York City's famed Carnegie Hall. But this was not a routine concert. In fact, it was a unique performance: the conductor's podium was empty; the orchestra would perform without a leader.

To begin the concert, the first violinist merely nodded his head. At this almost imperceptible signal the orchestra broke into the opening bars of the Roman Carnival Overture with breath-taking precision. And thus the concert continued — in stunning brilliance. At its close the audience rose in mass tribute. Next day Olin Downes, the venerated music critic of the New York Times, typified the unanimous praise of reviewers when he called the performance "a miracle of instrumentation."

As heartwarming as any of the reviews, however, was the experience of one of the musicians as he left Carnegie Hall. "How did we sound?" he asked the doorman.

"You were magnificent!" the doorman beamed. "Why, I felt that Toscanini was still there."

The Maestro's Creation

For this orchestra that performed without a conductor was the former NBC Symphony, which, under the relentless, perfectionist direction of Arturo Toscanini, had been unequaled anywhere in the world in its virtuosity. Since its beginning 17 years before, a generation of young Americans had grown up listening to its Sunday-afternoon broadcasts. Short-wave programs and tours through North and South America had spread its fame until it had become almost a personal possession to millions of listeners. It was one of America's greatest cultural institutions.

Then in April, 1954 Toscanini decided to retire. He was 87, and wanted to spend more time in his beloved Italy. The National Broadcasting Company decided to disband the orchestra. Without the maestro it was felt that the magic of its performance would be gone.

Soon the musicians drifted apart. One man, a violinist, retired. Another got a job selling shoes. A percussionist went to work at a filling station. Some, of course, got other orchestra jobs. But years of hard work and devotion to a single ideal seemed to have been wiped out. It was as if this superb orchestra had never existed.

Some weeks later one of the bass players, Michael Krasnopolsky, took out Toscanini's last Christmas present to his men—his recordings of Beethoven's nine symphonies.

"As I listened that lonely night," Krasnopolsky recalls, "the quality of the music was so great and fine that I suddenly knew that our orchestra simply could not be permitted to die."

So, one night, a group of the older members gathered in Krasnopolsky's basement to talk things over. After hours of fruitless discussion they decided that if all the musicians got together they could perhaps find some way of keeping this orchestra alive. A formal meeting was called for two weeks later, June 17, for all 92 men. And that night they voted their orchestra back into existence. Don Gillis, former producer of the NBC Symphony and a noted composer, was voted in as chairman of what was vaguely called the "steering committee."

"Half the time I didn't know where I was steering," the young composer says.

The steering committee, consisting of six members, several of them jobless, began meeting daily to scheme up ways of raising money. They wrote letters to major industries, seeking sponsors. They made appointments with radio and television executives, and officials of recording companies.

Meanwhile, they debated possible names for the orchestra; they couldn't be just "the former NBC Symphony." Then someone—no one remembers who—pointed out that the orchestra was a child of radio, that its broadcasts had been heard over the air by some 10 million Americans. What better name could there be, then, than "Symphony of the Air"?

Now they had a name, but they were a long way from having an orchestra.

"If we hadn't been so serious, it would have been fantastic," Gillis says, grinning. "We didn't know from one day to the next if we could even raise enough dimes for phone calls."

Faith Pays Off

What happened next was almost miraculous. Word had apparently spread as to what the orchestra members were attempting, and letters and contributions began to trickle in. Newspapers played up the story of the orchestra that refused to die. As the weeks went by the trickle became a flood.

Soon dimes and dollars were pouring in from all over the country, and from places as far off as Venezuela, Greece, Egypt, Formosa, Germany, England. On September 1, a little more than four months after the NBC Symphony was declared dead, the newborn Symphony of the Air took its first firm step: it leased an office in Carnegie Hall for $1,500 a year.

In gratitude to their well-wishers all over the world, the men gathered one midnight at Carnegie Hall and made three recordings: the Roman Carnival Overture, Tschaikowsky's Nutcracker Suite and the last work which the maestro had conducted — the overture to Wagner's Die Meistersinger. This record album—"a gift to the giver"—was made for those whose contributions had kept the orchestra alive. A collector's item, it is still being given for donations of $10 or more to Room 1101, Carnegie Hall, New York City.

It was time now for the cold plunge—a concert debut. Arrangements were made for obtaining Carnegie Hall for October 27. Rehearsals were scheduled. But one problem remained: Who would conduct? Suddenly, Michael Krasnopolsky had an inspiration. "Why have a conductor at all?" he asked. "In what better way could we prove that we aren't just another orchestra than by playing before an empty podium?"

The question horrified the members. For nearly 100 musicians to plunge into a major musical work without a leader would be as hazardous as taking a ship to sea without a captain. The split-second mistake of only one man, the failure to hold a certain tempo, could throw the performance into chaos.

But for 17 years Toscanini had hammered

these men into a single, integrated instrument of rare beauty. "Toscanini had given us a way of thinking that was unique," says Concert-master Daniel Guilet. "He didn't interpret the music, but taught us to play a piece 'the way the composer intended it to be played.' "

The men set to work and rehearsed day and night, sometimes until three or four in the morning. Together, the whole group decided on the pieces to be played. Together they laid out the scores and discussed every problem of tempo, balance, dynamics.

In the beginning much of the burden fell upon first-violinist Guilet who, as concert-master, had to guide each section through the technically troublesome spots. But as rehearsals went on, every man made an effort to anticipate all possible difficulties.

"With the baton of a conductor to lead him, a musician is concerned merely with knowing his own part," says Guilet. "Now that we were without a leader, all of us had to know every part. We had to listen carefully to the phrasing and tempo of the whole orchestra, in order not to get lost."

The group borrowed money to pay for advertisements. They had tickets printed and sent out.

On the evening of October 27 many people went to Carnegie Hall out of sympathy —and many out of curiosity. They felt that a conductorless concert would be at best a brave stunt. They applauded politely as the musicians filed in and sat before the empty podium.

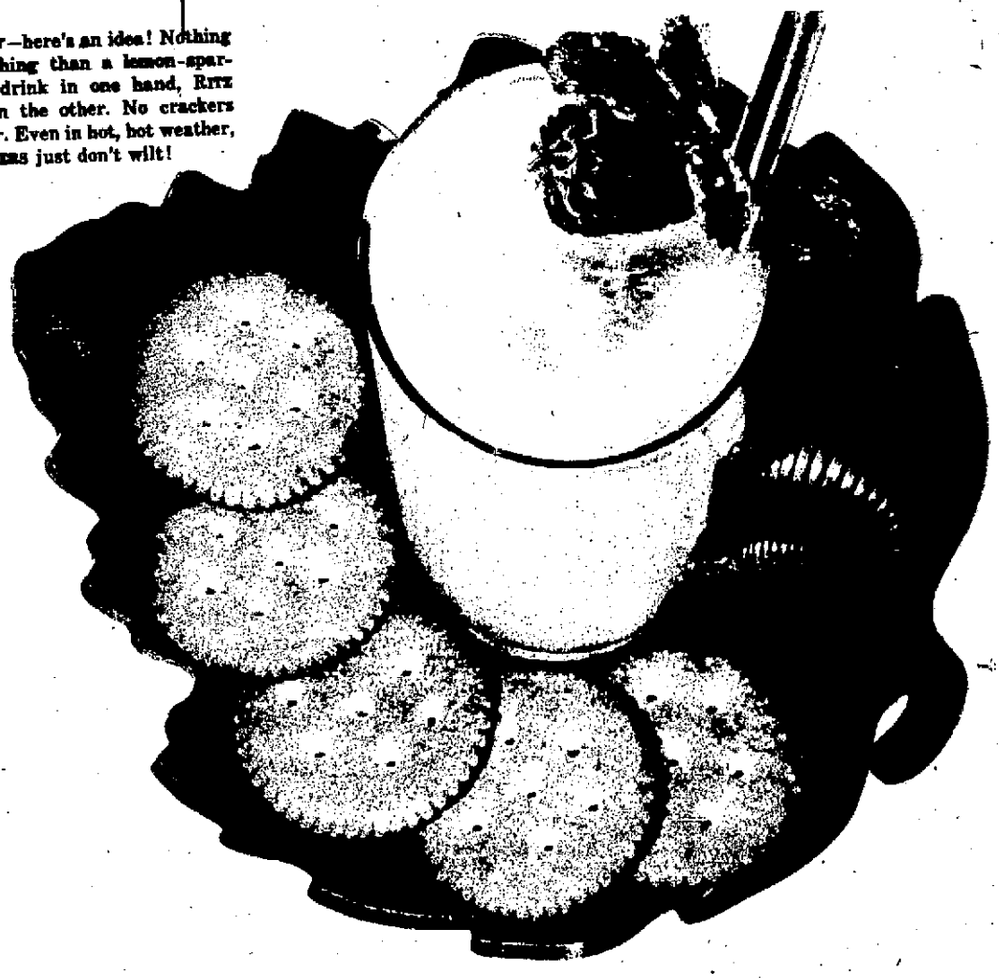

An Orchestra Is Reborn

Now a stillness settled over the packed Hall as the musicians, their faces drawn and tense, fixed their eyes on the concert-master. Guilet, his violin poised, gave a slight nod —and the tribute to the beloved maestro began.

As the men played, they began to relax and the guiding genius of Toscanini once again seemed at hand. What the skeptical audience heard was the rebirth of a great orchestra, an overpowering concert of defiance by 92 men who had refused to quit. Critics called the performance "one of the most exciting events in New York's musical history."

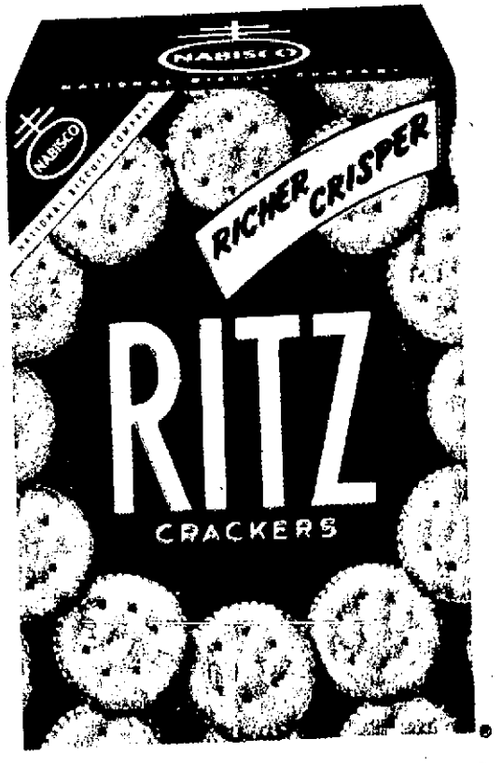

While the future of the Symphony of the Air is still unknown, the men face it with confidence and determination. Donations, ranging from dimes to a $5,000 gift from David Sarnoff (chairman of the board of the Radio Corporation of America, NBC's parent organization), have provided more than $50,000, and they have contracted for $500,000 worth of employment. Moreover, the world's finest artists have joined in the battle by working with the orchestra.

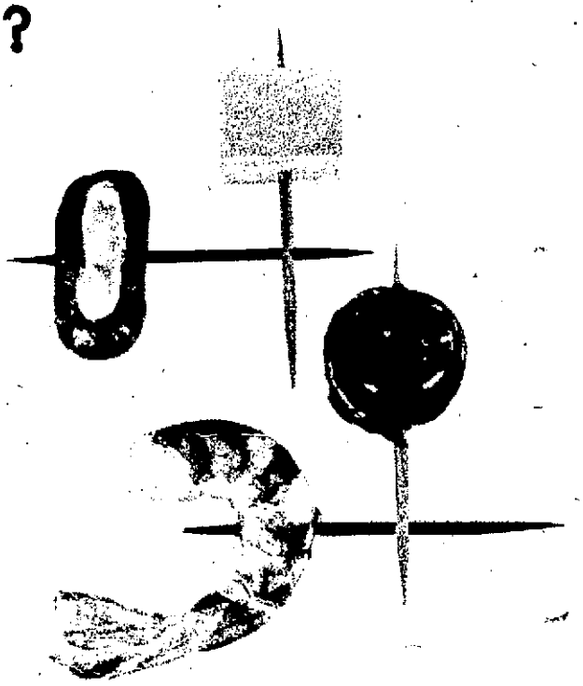

But the musicians are proudest of the fact that this year the Symphony of the Air was selected by the International Exchange Program of the American National Theater and Academy to represent America in a two-month tour of Asia — the first time a major orchestra has toured the Orient. The tour was a resounding success. And the participants feel it was the final recognition that Toscanini's orchestra will live on. ■

What is middle age?

A Chicago scientist asks—and provides surprising answers to—a question about the least understood period in our lives

PROF. SLOTKIN divides adult life into the five main "ages" listed on the board above.

CHICAGO.

Is there a "middle age"?

When do we reach it? At 35? 40? 45?

Is it the same age for everybody?

What is the "middle-aged feeling" like?

How do most people react to it?

New light may be thrown on the least understood period in life through a special study by James Slotkin, Associate Professor of Social Science at the University of Chicago here.

"Middle-aged" (42) himself, he recently began asking people the questions above — and found that, with the exception of popular descriptions and scientific papers on "middle age problems," there is little known about the period itself.

Borrowing methods he had used as an anthropologist to study the Menominee Indians of Wisconsin, Slotkin tackled the basic idea of defining middle age. His conclusion: except in terms of life span, there probably is no such thing.

Since Shakespeare's time, most people have divided man's social life cycle (in most societies) into seven "ages": birth, infancy, childhood, adolescence, marriage, parenthood and old age. Middle age, as such, is missing.

Turning for a clue to the Menominee Indians, Slotkin noted that they have no such thing as a "middle age problem." This traces to one fact: among the Menominees, the lifetime goal is growing old and having grandchildren.

Our Own 'Carrot'

"Every society," Slotkin points out, "has some sort of carrot to dangle before you as a lifetime goal. This is 'normal.' Psychopaths don't have a lifetime goal. Among the Menominees, you don't get the carrot until you are an old person. In our society, you can get the carrot when you are still middle-aged in point of years. Finally, it struck me that that is the key to helping us define what we mean by 'middle-aged.' Actually, what we have to do is examine ourselves in terms of striving for our goals, rather than in chronological age."

Slotkin found a yardstick in studies made in the 1930s by Viennese psychologists, who divided adult striving into five stages. As revised by him to fit competitive American society, they are:

1) The exploratory stage—between the ages of about 15 and 27, when we've finished school and are trying to decide on our lifetime goal.

2) Selective maturity — between about 28 and 42, when we decide on our goal and put all our efforts into trying to achieve it.

3) The testing stage — beginning at about 43, when we start to reflect on our lives to determine whether we have achieved our goal, and to wonder if things have turned out as we had planned.

4) The indulgent stage — beginning at about 48, when we try to concentrate on getting the maximum satisfaction and gratification out of the "prime" of life.

5) Completion — from about 65, when we look back on life, begin to live in the past and usually stop seeking a further goal.

Interviewing many "middle-aged" people in the 42-and-up brackets, Slotkin tried to fit their lives into the proper categories. He found some discrepancies. Many Americans (baseball players and movie stars, for instance) hit their peak years at an age when most people are still trying to find their goals in life. By "middle age," they are already past their prime. Others (doctors, lawyers, professors) may be just getting started when the baseball players are facing retirement and often keep going when athletes and entertainers are forgotten. Still others (artists, the self-employed) have no timetables but themselves.

Because Stage 3 has commonly been associated with middle age through books like Walter Pitkin's Life Begins at 40, Slotkin examined it minutely. "For most people," he maintains, middle age is a role. You can look at it chronologically, but what middle age means in our society is not your chronological age, but rather the time you begin thinking in terms of ending your occupational career. You have worked like a dog in the second, or selective, stage. Now you begin to think, 'Am I getting what I was looking for? Is this what I wanted?'"

To one degree or another, the individual starts evaluating his life. Broadly speaking, he will find himself falling into four categories: successful, partly successful, failure, or undecided.

"I want to stress that it's not only the objective factors that count but the subjective as well," says Slotkin. "A person who is considered successful by every standard of our society may decide that the whole thing isn't worthwhile, that the game isn't worth the candle. Or, on the other hand, he may decide that he is sitting on top of the world."

Success and Failure

According to Slotkin, only about 5 per cent of us feel that we are outright successes or failures. The rest are unable to decide.

Among the 5 per cent, only a small number are right, judged objectively. Some years ago, a top baseball player committed suicide. He was batting over .300 but, in his own mind, he was a "failure."

How do most people react? Failures, claims Slotkin, are of two main types: those who acknowledge failures and those who take a grandiose attitude towards their failure to reach the goal. "Few people," he says, "have the guts to acknowledge failure. They try to escape and 'adjust' one way or the other. It is a lot more comfortable to look for another 'life goal' — in effect, to revert back to the exploratory and selective stages of earlier life." In competitive American society, this isn't easy.

The grandiose failure, typified by a mediocre painter Slotkin interviewed, becomes embittered, has a grudge against the world — and keeps it for the rest of his life. He never develops either the courage or the ability to really examine himself. He grows older spitefully.

The successful and the partly successful make up the rest of the 5 per cent. "The successful," says Slotkin, "fall into two types: the satisfied and the dissatisfied. The satisfied success is the individual who believes that he has achieved his original goals, and that these goals are gratifying. He has gotten what he wants. It fits him to a 'T' and he enjoys it." He has no "middle age problem."

The dissatisfied success can be as puzzled as the failures. "He is the poor devil who reaches the top and finds that all is ashes in his mouth," says the Professor. "He's made a mistake in his original life goals. His dominant desires still remain ungratified." He, like the failure, can wind up with serious neuroses, go back to find another goal, or (more usually) go ahead to Stage 4 and concentrate on finding an answer in pleasure. He has found it relatively easy to pursue his life course. It is too late to change.

Ninety-five in a hundred of the estimated 25,000,000 Americans who find themselves at the chronological "middle age" of the 40s fall into Slotkin's inconclusive type. "Most Americans like these," he says, "think that they will finally get that new car, that new home, security, the chicken in every pot, success in their job or profession. They keep plugging away after the carrot.

"The inconclusive person doesn't try to evaluate what he has. If he did, he'd have to evaluate what he doesn't have. He almost always feels that he 'still has a chance' — that he'll get through his original life goals even though they somehow continue to elude him."

How an Actress Adjusted

If he becomes embittered, despairs of ever getting what he wants, desperately looks for a new start, or gives up trying, he is no longer middle-aged but actually in another "age" group.

Slotkin, who has already written a study of human adjustment (Personality Development — Harper & Bros.) thinks that someday he can complete research that will help make middle age adjustment easier for all.

Meanwhile, the best adjustment may be that of a middle-aged actress. "I wanted to be a big star," she told him, "but now I won't be. So I just want to be a darn good character actress."

"That's the only healthy adjustment," says Slotkin. "If you can't be a star, settle for a planet!" ■

THE NEW GARBO?

Sweden's Anita Ekberg wants to act

by LLOYD SHEARER
PARADE WEST COAST CORRESPONDENT

HOLLYWOOD.

Anita Ekberg, whose provocative photos appear on these pages, is currently being given the Hollywood build-up by her imaginative press agent as "The New Garbo." In truth, leggy Anita and reclusive Greta have one factor in common: the geographical accident of Swedish birth. The similarity stops there.

At the moment, all of Anita's talents lie in her buxom curves, which measure 39, 22 and 37, respectively. These, more than anything else, are responsible for her mounting popularity with photographers, her present movie contract with John Wayne's independent film company, Batjac Productions, and her recent loanout to Paramount for the fitting role of a model in the forthcoming Artists and Models.

Like most glamor dolls, however, 26-year-old Anita insists she prefers drama to cheesecake.

"Because I am big beautiful girl," she modestly explains in her Swedish accent, "people think I am only pinup material. So tired I am of posing in bathing suits, I think I scream.

"Comes every day my press agent, Milton Weiss, with new idea. 'On Monday,' he says, 'you are Queen of Beaux Arts Ball. On Tuesday you are Miss Mermaid of 1955.' On Wednesday I am Girl Most Likely.

" 'Milton,' I say, 'I am sick of being Girl Most Likely. I want to act.' "

John Wayne, who signed Anita at $100 a week last year, recently gave her a non-glamorous bit part in Blood Alley, a story of refugees escaping from Red China to Hong Kong. In this film Anita, clad in a burlap bag, plays a bedraggled, papoose-carrying refugee.

"This part," she claims, "will prove that I am no playgirl, but a serious actress who can act."

Press agent Weiss recently told newsmen: "This girl's development has been sensational. Four years ago she came to Atlantic City as Miss Sweden. Came from Malmo, a farmer's daughter. Could hardly speak English. Today the biggest guys in the country are throwing themselves at her feet. But she's not interested in marriage. She's interested in her career. She is an actress of beauty, power, sensitivity, and rare perception. She is The New Garbo."

At this, even the confident Anita gagged slightly. "That Milton," she told me. "Every time I go to the powder room he makes it sound like Lindbergh's first flight across the Atlantic." ■

GRACE: Anita is svelte in her rehearsal costume of sweater and slacks.

ALLURE: Donald O'Connor discovers it in lunch-hour chat.

CHARM: She radiates it as Queen of the Beaux Arts Ball.

TALENT: Learning acting, she gets her first screen slap.

Efficient, dedicated, hard-working—that's the Air Force Secretary. But let someone cross him and he becomes

THE TERRIBLE-TEMPERED MR. TALBOTT

WASHINGTON, D. C.

More than a year after it happened, Air Force officers still speak with awe about the time their civilian boss, Harold E. Talbott, almost broke up a House Appropriations Committee hearing. Unimpressed by the fact the Committee controls Air Force purse strings, Talbott became annoyed at the questioning and demanded: "What's special about this committee?"

This was merely a passing storm in the career of Air Force Secretary Talbott, Washington's most explosive official. When Talbott loses his temper — and it happens often enough that he is known around the Pentagon as "The Terrible-Tempered Mr. Talbott"— his eyes narrow to blazing slits, his voice takes off with a roar like a jet engine and he sprinkles profanity like confetti.

A few minutes of this, however, and he subsides into another person — a tall, trim, handsome gentleman who loves horses, flowers, bridge and cafe society. And, incidentally, a man who has won solid respect for his handling of the million-man Air Force, where he is responsible for every decision, every order and every action.

He Totes a Big Load

As Secretary, Talbott must chart or pass on all Air Force policy and see that it is carried out. (He gives his subordinates wide latitude, however.) He spends much of his time acting as a "front man" for the Air Force before the public and on Capitol Hill. And he represents the Air Force point of view in backstage dealings with President Eisenhower and Defense Sec. Charles E. Wilson (for both of whom he has a deep loyalty and respect).

With a tall order like that, perhaps a safety valve to let off pent-up steam is a necessity. At any rate, Air Force men take a certain perverse pride in recalling the details of Talbott's tantrums.

He is inclined to make snap decisions, throw himself headlong into projects. Often he grows impatient with his advisers, particularly his lawyers, when they try to restrain him. "You guys are too - - - - cautious," he tells them. "You're always telling me why I can't do something instead of how to do it." Sometimes, events will prove their go-slow approach the right one, and then he will sheepishly thank them for slowing him down.

Repentance likewise sets in after one of his outbursts. However, Talbott is no more likely to reform than his teen-aged son, John. Once, after a flareup between father and son that almost shook the rafters of the Talbott home (it started when John wouldn't drink his milk and his father threatened to send him to boarding school), John's mother chided the boy about his temper. "But, Mother," John protested, "I like to lose my temper."

So, his subordinates suspect, does the Secretary. Once, during a Talbott dressing-down, a general rebelled and lit right back into him. Talbott was genuinely shocked. "What are you so mad about?" he asked in a hurt voice. "Can't I lose my temper without your getting stiff-legged about it?"

About a year ago, he tried to put a governor on his language by fining himself $5 a cuss word and dividing the proceeds among his secretaries. But the project cost so much he abandoned it after a few days.

The Talbott staff is devoted to him in spite of these sporadic explosions. He takes a real interest in them, bringing the girls useful souvenirs from his overseas trips. It was characteristic of him to add to a busy schedule and act as best man for his mother's Negro chauffeur, Harvey Howe, in Dayton, Ohio, last year.

Talbott stands up for each man in the Air Force the same way—causing one airman to remark that "the Secretary's not over us, he's with us." For instance, most Americans recall the case of Lt. Milo Radulovich, whose commission was to be revoked last year because close relatives allegedly had Red ties. It was Talbott who, defying security officers, reinstated Radulovich.

ANNUAL VISIT to Greenland's Thule air base finds Secretary Talbott guffawing at Bob Hope jokes during New Year's Eve show for troops. With him is Mrs. Talbott.

by JACK ANDERSON and FRED BLUMENTHAL
PARADE WASHINGTON CORRESPONDENTS

When Talbott visited the Limestone, Me., air base, he was shocked to find the commander of a $250 million installation living in a small, flat-roofed house with no garage and no storage space. The Secretary roared, "How in the devil can we expect to keep good men if we don't give them a decent place to live?" On his return to Washington, Talbott saw to it that the C.O. got a garage with storage space.

Similarly, when his generals recommended only a 3 per cent pay raise for themselves, he snapped, "That's the trouble with you men. You're being too modest." He doubled their recommendation and it was approved. Recently, he sent a husband-and-wife team around the world to give him a first-hand report on living conditions and to collect gripes of servicemen and their wives. He himself has flown more than 300,000 miles visiting the world-wide posts under his command. In Alaska, he wouldn't leave until he had checked each remote radar station.

He has a soft spot particularly for the 4,500 men (the only women there are five nurses) at the cold, bleak Thule air base, on the edge of the Greenland ice cap 900 miles from the North Pole. He and Mrs. Talbott make a point of spending each New Year's Eve there.

Secretary, Meet Queen

Last year, they spent hours at Thule taking names and addresses of wives, mothers and sweethearts. On their return they phoned each one. At first Talbott would open the conversation: "Hello, Mrs. Jones. This is Harold Talbott speaking. I'm the Secretary of the Air Force, and I've just seen your husband up in Greenland." Too often, this was greeted with a wisecrack like, "You're the Secretary of the Air Force? Well, I'm the Queen of England."

Talbott then revised his opener: "Hello, Mrs. Jones. I'm a civilian working for the Air Force. I've just seen your husband at Thule and have a message for you." Many of the wives still don't know what job that nice civilian held.

Harold Talbott comes by his love for aviation naturally. He grew up in Dayton, home town of the Wright brothers, and often would take his bicycle to their shop for repair. He was the passenger on Orville Wright's last flight as a pilot. He wasn't noted for especially high grades in school. A handsome boy, he started early as a ladies' man — coached, no doubt, by his seven sisters. His mother kept a diary chronicling the stages of his growing up, and on his 17th birthday she wrote: "There is little hope for Harold's future. All he thinks of is girls, girls, girls!"

Incidentally, Washington says he retains his eye for the ladies. It's agreed that his office has the best-looking secretaries in the Pentagon. And he is solicitous about the welfare of Air Force wives.

After attending Yale, Talbott worked two years to pay off a college debt, then entered the aviation business. In 1916, his father helped Orville Wright organize his business into the Dayton-Wright Co. and began manufacturing planes. Harold became president with Orville Wright as vice-president and chief engineer. When General Motors took over the firm, Talbott remained as its head. Later, he moved to New York to become a director of Chrysler Corp., and also served as board chairman of North American Aviation Co. He was one of the original organizers of the parent companies of both United Airlines and TWA.

In both world wars he was involved in aviation. During World War I he served as a major in the Air Service of the Signal Corps. For the first year of World War II, he directed aircraft production for the War Production Board — a job he left because, in his own words, of "a row with Donald Nelson," the boss.

One of the Republican's big money raisers in the 1952 campaign, Talbott was one of the backstage committee who recommended officials for the new administration. He came up with two names for Air Force Secretary, but Attorney General Herbert Brownell and Gen. Lucius Clay disregarded his recommendations and insisted Talbott, himself, was the man for the job. He said he wanted to be sure he was the President's and Secretary Wilson's first choice. Reassured, he accepted and moved his family from New York to Washington. The family now consists of his slim, energetic wife, Peggy, and their twin sons, Harold and John. Two daughters are married and the Talbotts have three granddaughters.

In Washington, the Secretary's day begins at 7 a.m. There's often a "business breakfast" at his home at 7:30, and he arrives at his desk at 8:10. Luncheon is nearly always served in the dining room adjoining his office. Evenings are often given over to social life, which Talbott relishes.

An ace polo player in his youth, Talbott still follows the horse world avidly. Recently he skipped a "command" reception at the White House to keep a prior commitment to address the Thoroughbred Racing Association. He's also a good shot, but only a fair golfer.

A staunch Republican (he was GOP national finance chairman in 1948-50), Talbott reserves the right to like Democrats and dislike Republicans as he pleases. One of his office walls has a picture of President Eisenhower, in the approved tradition, But in place of the usual accompanying portrait of Secretary Wilson, the wall sports one of his old friend Robert Lovett, Defense Secretary under President Truman.

He Tells Off Congressmen

Talbott has no use for the Washington custom of kowtowing to congressmen (although he has deep respect for their decisions). For example, he once told a certain state's congressional delegation he "would never build a base in your God-forsaken country."

Yet Talbott gets along well on Capitol Hill. Most congressmen like his refreshing frankness and honesty. Beneath his gruff exterior, they have found, is a sincere — even soft — heart. Although he describes himself as a "black Republican," he told a Little Rock, Ark., Chamber of Commerce group of his admiration and respect for their Democratic Sen. John McClellan, adding that it was their duty to return him to Washington.

To Talbott, his greatest achievements have been 1) putting the Air Force on a more businesslike basis and 2) establishing the new Air Force Academy. The Air Force, however, admires him for his deep appreciation of the individual airman and officer — and for his successful fight to raise pay and improve housing and living conditions.

Why has "The Terrible-Tempered Mr. Talbott" such a terrible temper? So long as he keeps his present job, at least, the answer lies in his own words: "When I leave the Air Force, I want it to be bigger and better than when I came in. I want it to be the most efficient force in the world." With that goal in mind, no amount of verbal fireworks would seem to be too great. ■

It's that DIAL feeling – you never worry about odor!

More than a feeling, it's a fact: with Dial you never worry about odor. You see, normal perspiration has no odor until skin bacteria attack it. Ordinary soaps can't remove bacteria effectively. But Dial does! It's the one leading soap with AT-7 (Hexachlorophene). There's nothing else as good. And it clings to your skin, so it protects you all day—and for several days if need be. That's why Dial stops odor before it starts.

Tips on TIPPING

Something we all should know is whom to tip, when and how much. Here are some letters on the subject.

Q. Please give the current rate of tipping in first-class New York hotels and night clubs.—H. K., Peoria, Ill.

A. If the doorman of a fashionable hotel or restaurant gets you a cab, tip him 10 to 50 cents, depending on the difficulty he encounters. The standard tip for a bellhop is 25 cents for each trip he makes with luggage. If much service is expected of the same bellhop, it is easier to give him 25 to 50 cents when he first appears than to give him 10 cents each time he makes the trip. A waiter receives 15 to 20 per cent of the bill. You are not obligated to leave more than a dime on a checkroom counter to retrieve a hat, even in New York.

Q. We are going to vacation at a lodge at a rate of $10 per day per person, including meals. What is the correct amount to give the waitress assigned to us and the bus-boys? Should we leave a tip for the chambermaid? — E. Z., Wichita, Kan.

A. Ten dollars per couple per week for the waitress. Bus-boys need not be tipped. Your chambermaid should receive two dollars a week.

Q. A woman friend and I went to a resort hotel and occupied a room for two. Should we have left separate tips? Do you tip if the service is poor? How much should we have tipped the head-waitress?—Mrs. R.J., Williston Pk., N.Y.

A. You tip as a couple would. I do not believe in tipping even the expected amount when service is bad. A head-waitress in a hotel is not usually tipped — unless she has been particularly considerate.

Q. For what services do you tip a filling-station attendant?—S.W., Locust Valley, N. Y.

A. A tip of 25 cents should be given for services such as checking the oil, water, battery, tires and for washing the windows. A regular customer should give attendants a quarter from time to time. Filling-station owners should not expect a tip for any of these services.

Fall furniture forecast

The new styling is conservative, comfortable — and convenient

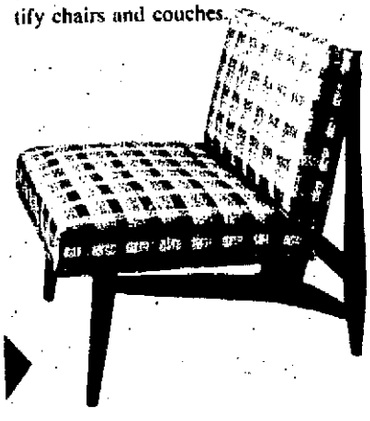

ITALIAN PROVINCIAL mahogany chest is oversized to allow storage space. Finish is canyon gray.

What's new in furniture? Answer: Easy-to-live-with designs to meet the needs of modern American homes. Emphasis on conservative, comfortable styling is apparent in the examples shown here from collections soon to be seen in stores.

A yardstick tells part of the story. Much of the new furniture is scaled for comfort and convenience. Upholstered pieces, for example, are tailored in several lengths to fit varying room dimensions. Some sofas are finished to serve as free-standing room dividers. Chests and tables heed the cry for more storage space by stretching to include another bank of drawers.

To free floor space for furniture, more accessories, such as magazine racks and cabinets, hang on the wall. Into many a light-looking desk is tucked a standard-sized file drawer for household records.

Finely detailed hardware points up the rich, hand-rubbed finishes on wood. And luxurious fabrics and unusual color combinations help beautify chairs and couches.

PAUL HOOVER
A Whale of a Halibut

A WHALE of a good fish dinner is delighting the patrons at the Southland's two Paul restaurants — Paul's of Lakewood at Carson St. and Bellflower Blvd. and Paul's of Santa Fe Springs on Telegraph Rd. at Orr and Day Road.

No, it isn't grilled whale.

It's much better.

It's Grilled Whale Halibut. A lot of fish experts have probably heard of whale halibut previously but it's a new item as far as I'm concerned. And for others who may not have heard of it, let me explain that a whale halibut is a tremendous fish caught in Alaska waters.

Whale halibut comes by its name honestly, growing as large as 300 pounds. The fishermen throw back the little ones—those 80 pounds and under.

Paul Hoover, owner of Paul's restaurants, describes whale halibut as the finest tasting fish in the world. The meat has a wonderful flavor because the fish live in cold, deep water.

Paul's chefs dust the whale halibut delicately in cracker meal and then grill it. Each patron gets a half-pound portion, completely boneless, served with soup, a large salad with roquefort dressing, hot rolls and choice of mashed, French fried or baked potatoes. The charge for all that is $1.75 per patron—a fine bargain.

PAUL'S restaurants are also famed for another specialty. This is old-fashioned chicken and dumplings, served only on Sundays and Thursdays. The chicken is as tender as a baby's cheek and the dumplings are as large as volley balls. The meal includes choice of California fruit cocktail or tomato juice, choice of soup or green salad; vegetables, hot rolls, choice of beverage and choice of dessert. The tab for the whole works is just $2.25.

The restaurants serve a splendid shish kebab on skewers and also specialize in marvelous prime rib and choice steaks.

In Long Beach's modern skyline are 13 major structures built in 1921—the year of the skyscrapers. That was 33 years after the city was incorporated.

The Year of the Skyscrapers

By Helen Smith

PERSONS living in Long Beach, even those who have resided here as long as 30 years, perhaps cannot imagine the city without the tall buildings which make up its skyline — an impressive sight when viewed from either land or sea.

Long Beach, however, was an incorporated city for 33 years before the business section started to make much of a dent in the stratosphere.

Then, in just one year — to the staccato tune of the riveter's hammer — the steel girders began to rise floor by floor into the salt-tinged air, making the city appear much as it does today.

It was in 1921 that the skyscrapers grew.

This postwar boom year found building permits issued for the following structures:

Eight-story City Hall, $600,000.

Nine-story Artaban Apts., $450,000.

Eight-story Blackstone Hotel, $500,000.

Seven-story St. Regis Apts., $375,000.

Ten-story Sovereign Apts., $625,000.

Ten-story Omar Hubbard Bldg., $555,000.

Nine-story Farmers & Merchants bank, $600,000.

Twelve-story City National Bank, $850,000.

Four-story YMCA, $350,000

Four-story Pacific Home Apts., $200,000.

Six-story First National Bank, $400,000.

Long Beach Bath House, $350,000.

Five-story Chamber of Commerce Bldg., $100,000.

This budding metropolis which was to become the fourth largest city in California had its beginnings around 1866 with the sale of Rancho Los Cerritos to Jotham Bixby by John Temple for $125,000.

FOURTEEN YEARS LATER, according to historians, W. E. Willmore obtained an option on a part of the property, to which he gave his name. A realistic dreamer, he visualized the tourist possibilities of the long stretch of strand combined with the balmy climate.

Unfortunately his dream did not materialize in time for him to take up the option and he spent his remaining days in the county poor farm until friends removed him just before death. Only a monument in Signal Hill Cemetery is left to commemorate the man who founded Long Beach.

In 1884, the subdividing firm of Pomeroy & Mills of Los Angeles bought the initial site of 4,000 acres for $24,000 and in no time the town began to grow.

MRS. W. W. LOWE, wife of the first postmaster and mother of pioneer resident Mrs. Charles L. Heartwell, said, "We will call our city Long Beach for the miles of sandy shores."

With the city successfully established, and as the upsurge of activity commenced in the downtown area, the population began to strain at the boundaries. So subdividers moved in again.

Virginia Heights, now known as the Los Cerritos sections, was one of the first to be developed. Many attractive homes were built in the area adjacent to the Virginia Country Club. Living here was considered as fashionable as residing on Ocean Blvd. and on Signal Hill. The many mansions on the Hill were abandoned; however, when the discovery well gushed in and sprayed oil over their stuccoed exteriors at 4 a. m. on the morning of June 23, 1921.

There was also Willowville, located at Willow St. and Long Beach Blvd., and another development called Silverado Tract, described as being in North Long Beach. Actually, while it may have been the northern extremity at that time, the North Long Beach sector as we know it today was originally Virginia City.

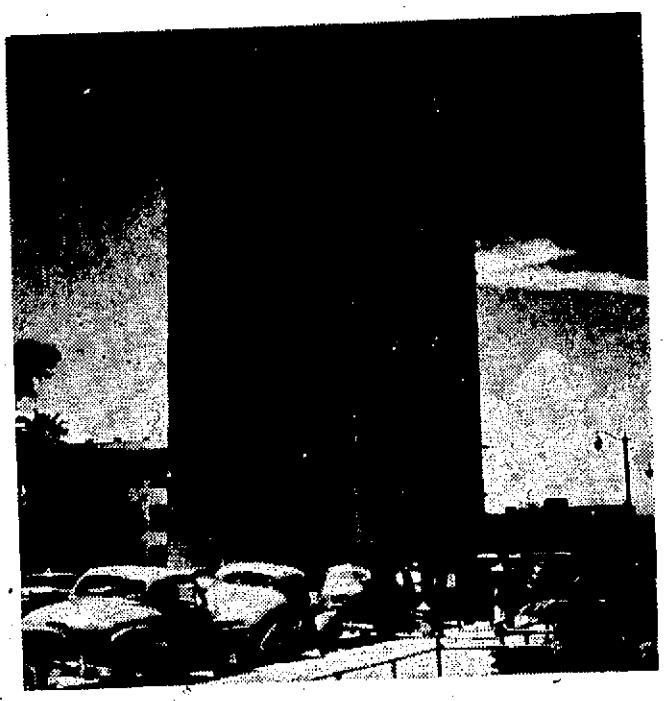

ONE OF THE MOST ambitious subdivisions was called, with associations reminiscent of the recently ended World War I, "Chateau Thierry." It was located around the Wardlow Rd. and Atlantic Ave. area, then considered ideal for country living.

All of this building cost totaled more than $13,000,000 in 1921. Many of the less optimistic citizens viewed the boom with disfavor and were of the opinion that the "city is over-building."

Thirty-four years later, building permits valued at several times this amount are issued yearly. In outlying flat lands very few of the acres once used for growing beans and carrots are now available to the promoter.

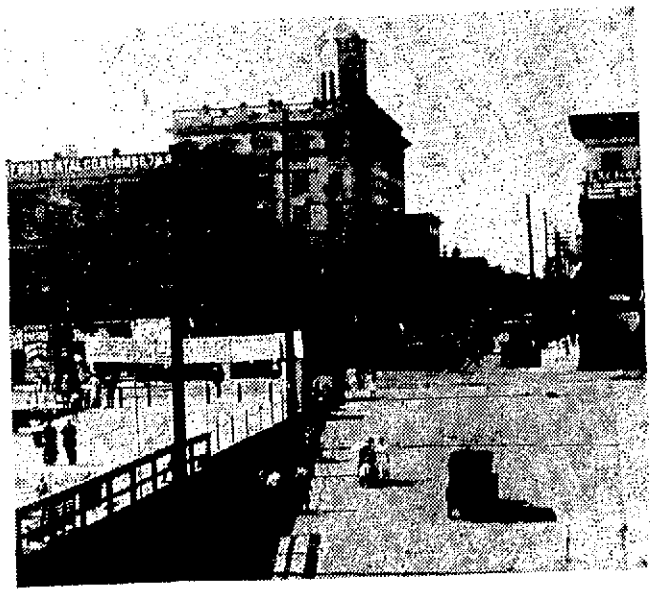

To the original stand of skyscrapers has been added the Wilton Hotel, the Jergins Trust Building, the Pacific Coast Club and the dominating spire of them all — the Villa Riviera.

The growth of Long Beach is still in progress.

HECTIC LAST WEEK ENDS, AND

Disneyland Is Ready for Curtain Time

By Dorothy Fisher

WHEN THE CURTAIN goes up tomorrow on Walt Disney's fabulous new entertainment world of Disneyland, 60 acres of happiness for young and old will be completed and ready for an expected five million visitors a year.

But behind the scenes, an equally fabulous story of the hectic, time and overtime-consuming hours of preparations to ready Disneyland in completed form has been going on for weeks.

It is an exciting story of the fantastic efforts of men and machines. It has its heroes too numerous to mention, men whose efforts will provide enjoyable entertainment and relaxation for millions.

IT IS A TALE of painters, gardeners and sign hangers; of ride builders, office personnel, and even totem pole carvers.

Only a week ago, hundreds of man hours of work remained to complete Disneyland. Planting, building, paying and a complex of other problems still existed. But today, Disneyland is ready.

And it was just a year ago that the whole 160-acre park site was nothing but a neat pattern of orange groves!

But back to the story of the past week.

Anywhere you looked at Disneyland, workers were frantically putting the finishing touches on the world's most fantastic entertainment park.

In the Plaza, the center of the park, and in Adventureland, gardeners were busily planting shrubs, trees and grass, which today look as plush as if they had been there for years.

DOWN THE FULL LENGTH of Main Street, U. S. A., sign men were working overtime to hang the names of all the park's lessees over the shops which tomorrow will open for business in the manner of stores of the turn of the century.

At the same time, inside the stores carpenters were sanding cabinets, building shelves and putting doors in place. And electricians were installing wiring and lights; painters were prettying up the cabinets in gay colors, and locksmiths were going about their work as soon as the doors were in place.

Merchandise was arriving at Disneyland's warehouses by the truckloads, awaiting only the completion of the stores before it could be moved again. Builders completed the Snow White, Mr. Toad, Peter Pan and other story book rides behind the walls of Sleeping Beauty's Castle, and safety checked all the equipment.

Cement was being poured by the ton in Tomorrowland, where the Autopia Freeway of the Future neared its finished product.

Special carpenters chipped away at thick logs to produce Indian totem poles for Frontierland.

MEANWHILE, through all the confusion and detail of authentic construction, rehearsals for the largest television coverage ever attempted anywhere, the press premiere of Disneyland to be carried this afternoon from 4:30 to 6 o'clock over ABC-TV, were in full swing almost daily. A maze of television wiring, camera and other equipment was being installed amid the sounds of hammer and saw.

Employes were being tutored in special classes for the services they will give to the public in coming months.

And through it all, Disneyland's phone operators had their hands full with more than 9,000 calls that poured into the park's overloaded switchboard daily.

But today, the efforts of man and machine have borne a fabulous finished product, and tomorrow — minus the sounds of hammers, saws and heavy equipment — Disneyland will open its gates to an eagerly awaiting public.

Everything is in place. The rides run smoothly. Marlo and Allen Martini, children of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Martini, test thrilling ride on King Arthur Carrousel and hey! It's wonderful the way it works!

"Sand and the Sea," by Bob Soutar, third place.

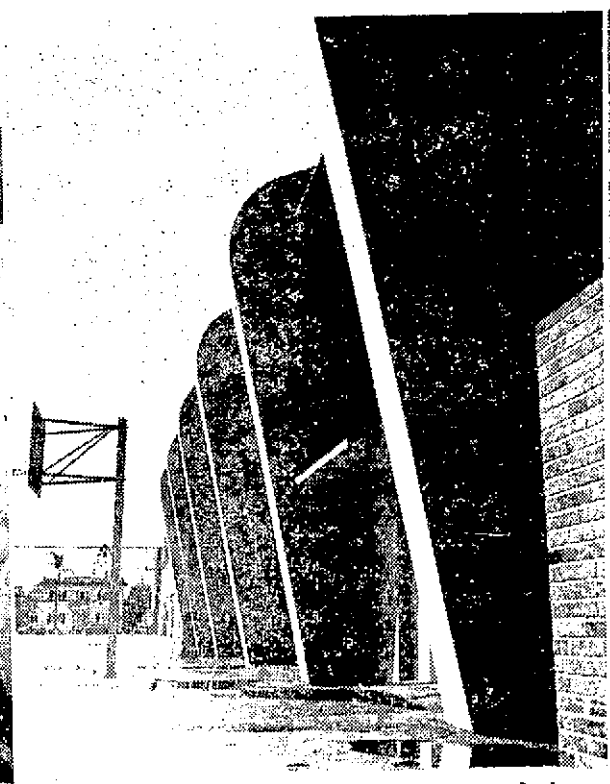

Student photographers of Polytechnic High School have shown a masterful touch in the handling of camera and darkroom technique in the past year of study. Best efforts of the classes was represented in a display before professional judges and first, second and third and three honorable mention awards were selected. Each of the pictures was exposed, developed, printed and mounted by a pupil in the high school photographic class. Judges were Frank Lindgren, school board photographer and Long Beach City College instructor; Isabel Connor, school art supervisor, and Julian Hiatt, commercial photographer and teacher of photography. Here are the winners.

"Heat," by Keith Kartz, second honorable mention.

"Old Age," Larry Stacy, 3rd hon. mention.

"Redundancy and Rain," Tom Thompson, 2nd.

"Defense," Bonnie Florine, 1st hon. mention.

Hunting That First Job

By Betsy O'Hara

IF YOU ARE seriously looking for a job you must work at it. Remember that employment managers and interviewers in agencies see hundreds of people in a month. Since they have such a large choice, you must be outstanding in some way in order to be chosen. You must have something to offer, some reason why an employer will choose you instead of another person. You must get them to connect YOU with YOUR card. One way is to give them a small non-glamorous photograph of yourself, but be sure it's a good one. Another way is to wear the same clothes for the first few visits, being sure that they are spotlessly clean each time.

Drawing by Parker Markle

If asked for a test of skill at taking dictation, do not try to balance your notebook on one knee.

In the agency which got me my first job and where I subsequently worked for a while, each applicant had a file card. While interviewers were talking with the new job seekers, they were doing what seemed to be "doodling" across the top of the cards. Actually, they were writing code numbers or letters for classifying the applicant's neatness, pleasant voice and facial expression, poise, posture, grammar, personality, intelligence, and courtesy. These marks stayed on the cards permanently. In other words, first impressions are lasting.

Supposing you are starting out on your first day. Your clothes are modest, neat and simple—no ruffled dresses, easy on the makeup (unless you are looking for a job in a night club), some smart comfortable shoes (you're going to do a lot of walking and waiting in line), no gum chewing, of course; a full fountain pen, a record of schools attended and the dates; and a notebook. You have picked out several places, where you think you would like to work, having made previous inquiries about those places, for instance about what they actually do or sell and what kind of workers they need, or use in their employ.

WHEN YOU COME to the first place, walk in and ask to make application for employment. Fill out the forms, wait until someone interviews you, try to keep calm and don't tell your life's history to his secretary.

Try to find out his name in advance and when you walk in say "Good morning, Mr. Smith." You hand him your application if the secretary hasn't already done so. Let him start the interview and answer his questions directly. For example, "Have you had any experience?" This is always asked.)

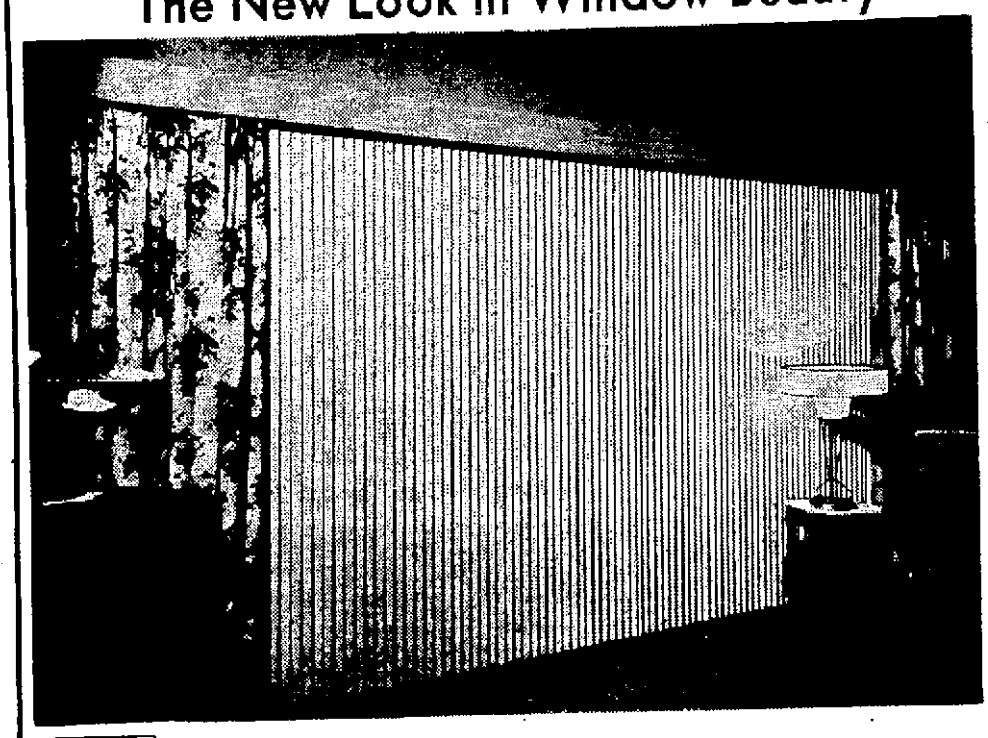

"No sir, but I can type 50 words a minute and take shorthand at so many words a minute."

How you answer him tells him a great deal about your manners and personality.

"Quite frankly, we don't have any openings right now for in-

SOUTH COAST SURVEY

Uncle Sam's Arsenal of the Sky

By Don Brackenbury

BACK IN 1910 when the nation's first air meet was held at Dominguez Junction, two of the 15,000 spectators on hand were Bernard Bernie and Charlie Day of Long Beach.

The meet sold them on aviation and in May of that year, they built themselves an airplane.

It was the first airplane built in Long Beach.

During World War II alone, Douglas Aircraft Co. turned out just under 10,000 aircraft at its Long Beach plant.

The manufacture and sale of airplanes in Long Beach runs somewhere near $150,000,000 a year.

THE AIR AGE has made a decided impact on Long Beach. There is the rapidly developing Municipal Airport. There is the multi-million dollar Douglas Aircraft Company plant at the airport. Within a few minutes drive are the North American Aviation plant at Downey, Los Alamitos Naval Air Station and the Torrance plant of Douglas Aircraft Co.

The Long Beach plant of Douglas Aircraft alone means some 125 million dollars a year to Long Beach. Its payroll is about 110 million dollars annually and the company spends an additional 12 million dollars a year with local firms for supplies and services.

The first aircraft manufacturing "plant" in Long Beach was the old Virginia Hotel on Ocean Blvd. between Magnolia and Chestnut Aves. In 1912, Earl S. Daugherty and Frank Champion, pioneer Long Beach pilots, built a plane in the hotel basement.

In the next few years, this basement was to see the creation of several aircraft.

IT WAS A FAR CRY from the assembly line at Douglas Aircraft here today.

The first spadeful of earth on the 142-acre tract at Lakewood Blvd. and Carson St. was turned Nov. 22, 1940, by Donald W. Douglas himself. It was officially dedicated less than a year later and on Dec. 23, 1941, the first airplane was delivered to the Air Force — a twin-engine C47 cargo transport.

During World War II, the Long Beach plant turned out 4,285 C47s, 3,000 of the famed B17 Flying Fortresses, 999 twin-engine A20 attack bombers and 1,156 twin-engine A26 attack bombers. The A26s were redesignated B26 and won fame as recently as the Korean War. The 452nd Light Bombardment Wing, Long Beach's own Air Force Reserve unit, flew B26s in Korea.

From a peak of 42,000 wartime employes, Douglas dropped rapidly as peace came and Americans thought they no longer needed war planes. In recent years, faced with the threat of new aggression and with demands for increased airpower, Douglas employment has climbed to about 21,000.

IN 1950, the local plant began building the giant, four-engine C124 Globemaster. When the last one was delivered to the Air Force last May 9, local workers had built 445 of the big cargo planes.

Last year, the Long Beach plant began building the swept-wing, twin-jet B66 bomber, and company officials have announced that the C124 will be succeeded by a turboprop C133 cargo plane that will be the "largest transport in military service."

The Torrance facility of Douglas is a comparatively new operation. The aircraft company took over a plant from the Columbia-Geneva division of U. S. Steel. Some 10,000 employes are building component parts for the Navy's F4D Skyray and AD Skyraiders.

Although North American Aviation is probably best known for its F86 Sabre and F100 Super Sabre jet fighters, its Downey plant is one of the nation's leading facilities for advanced electronics, guided missiles and atomic energy programs.

In August, 1952, the plant placed into operation the first atomic energy reactor in California. Its NATIV (for North American Test Instrument Vehicle) has reached altitudes of 10 miles at supersonic speeds. The 13-foot missile is used as a test vehicle for aerodynamic research.

AT THE HUB of all these activities—and of particular interest to Douglas Aircraft whose local plant is on a portion of the land—is Long Beach Municipal Airport.

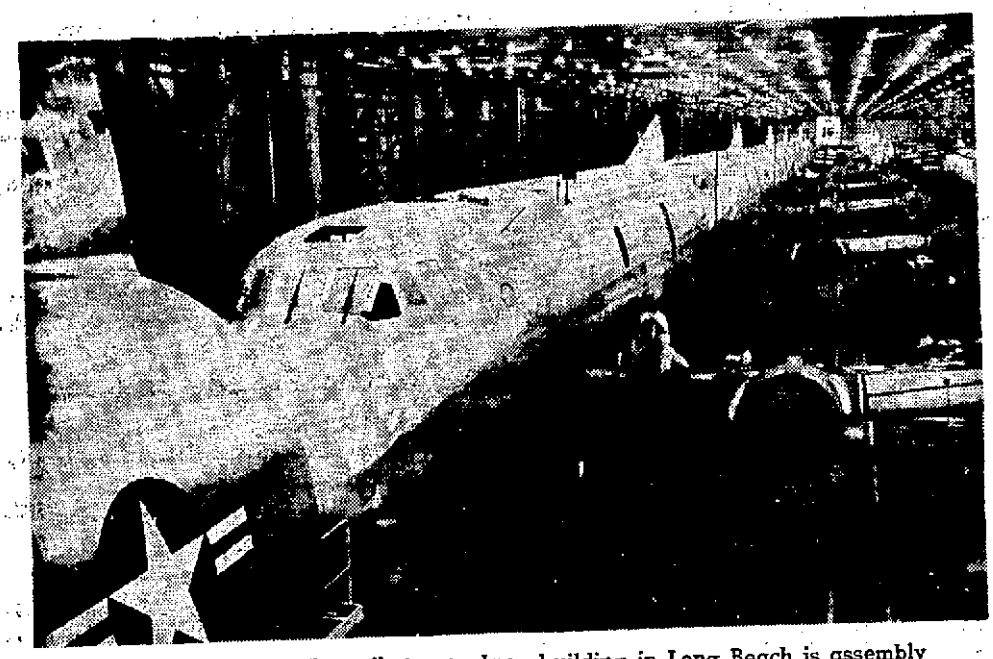

Nearly 800 acres within the field itself and more than 500 acres outside the field to protect runway approaches are available for further development.

The airport already boasts five runways—the longest 6,900 feet—and a recently remodeled and enlarged control tower. The City Council has approved plans which call for extending the main runway to 10,000 feet and making considerable additional land available for private aircraft and commercial operations.

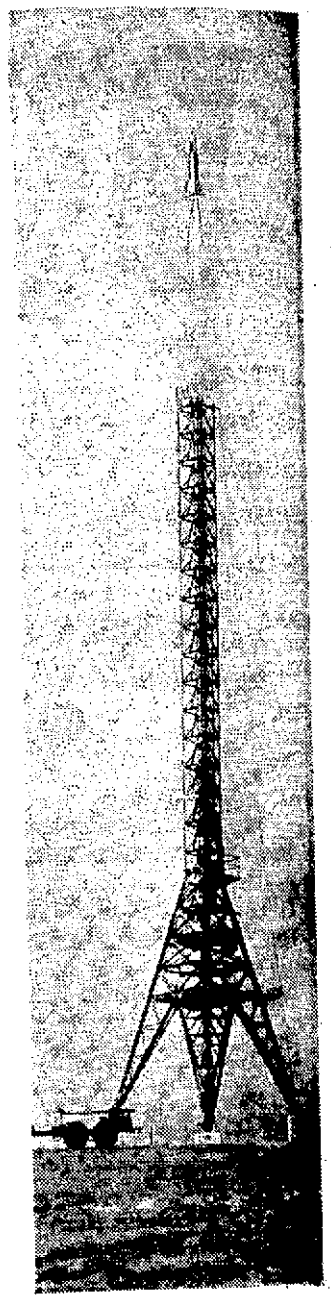

Ground surveillance radar is being installed and a major air freight terminal has been approved in principle. Within five years, the local field could be one of the finest in the west.

The government announced earlier this year that the aircraft industry is the largest manufacturing employer in the United States. In 1954, total sales amount to about $8.6 billion dollars—a gain of 100 million dollars over 1953.

Long Beach, active in aviation for 40 of the 52 years of the air age, intends to play an even more important role in this important field.

Far cry from the first efforts at plane building in Long Beach is assembly line at Douglas plant. This view is of C124 planes undergoing construction.

Blazing a super hot trail into the sky, North American Aviation guided missile leaves the launcher.

FIRST JOB

experienced people, but we'll keep you in mind." You'll get used to hearing this so try to keep smiling. It's your cue to stand up and get ready to leave. However, you will have a better idea of what kind of employes they want if, when leaving, you smile and say "Thank you, Mr. Smith, for giving me your time. I wonder if you could give me a few hints about getting a job. What should I learn to do to make my chances of getting a job with your firm better?"

Most personnel managers will give you hints. Some are brusk, some just smile and say "Keep trying!" You may find out that they hire only college graduates so just cross that place off your list. You thank Mr. Smith again leave without further ado. Never be apologetic or self-pitying.

ONE PERSONNEL MANAGER who was trying politely to get rid of me (I later realized) told me that the only opening they might have was for someone to fill in for about two months while all the office staff took turns going on vacation.

"Of course," he said, "you wouldn't be able to do that job because you would have to know how to run a P.B.X. (telephone switchboard) a teletypewriter, dictaphone, adding machine, typewriter and do filing and shorthand!" I went to daytime extension school and night classes for courses in shorthand and typing, and in between learned to run the other machines. The most important thing I should have done, I failed to do through ignorance, and that was to take a vocational guidance test.

When I finally showed up and told him what I had done, he looked astonished but being a gentleman he said, "Well, let's see how you take shorthand!" He handed me a pad and pencil and started dictating a letter. I balanced the notebook precariously on my crossed knees (like they do in all the cartoons) and proceeded to take a letter. Between trying to balance the book, being so nervous, and not being too sure about my shorthand, I simply couldn't get the whole thing.

He looked so relieved! Finally he said, "You should never try to take shorthand in a book on your knee. It belongs on the desk. Also, I should have told you at our first interview, you aren't the type of girl to work in an office. Why don't you just marry some nice fellow and have a bunch of kids?" He was so right, but I didn't know it then and left in tears. Later I found my niche as a millinery buyer and salesgirl. A test in the beginning would have saved all the time, energy and money I spent trying to learn something for which I was not suited.

In an employment agency you get in line and wait your turn. When it comes, walk in and say "Good morning Mrs. So-and-So." Wait for her to indicate that you should sit down. Let her ask the questions (she's already started writing down her impressions of you). Answer her clearly, don't mumble. She wants to know if you ever worked before. Just think about the times you worked in the school office, did Christmas extra selling at the drugstore, did all the marketing for your family for six months; sold greeting cards over the phone or raffle tickets for your church. She might ask you what you would really like to do.

NEVER UTTER THOSE FATAL WORDS 'I DON'T KNOW' WHEN HUNTING THAT JOB

For heaven's sake don't utter those fatal words "I don't know, but I'd be willing to learn."

Suppose she says "Will you take temporary work until we can get you something permanent?" Say "yes" because in this way you can get experience and a little cash, but keep on plugging for a permanent job—its much better than flitting around.

YOU ARE NOW competing in an adult world and it will require all the character, determination and good training you have had up until now to carry you through. Above all, don't get discouraged. If you have consistently done your best to get a job and have failed, perhaps there is some simple thing in your appearance or manners that makes a bad impression. Take advantage of all the free courses in vocational guidance, ask for advice, make use of your public library — take out some books about job hunting and it wouldn't hurt you to read "How to Win Friends and Influence People."

For the person still in high school, I recommend getting down to the business of learning how to do one thing well. It goes without saying that you will finish high school if you hope to have any future in the world of competition for the better jobs. Many helpful courses are offered free of charge. For the person who has already graduated and is still able to live at home without paying his share, I say by all means go to night school or business college and get yourself some tools for future work.

If you loathe arithmetic don't try to be a bookkeeper; maybe you would be better at selling. Perhaps stenography has no appeal—try running a P.B.X.—it's lots of fun, but if you are nosey or don't know what you are doing you can lose a job in a hurry.

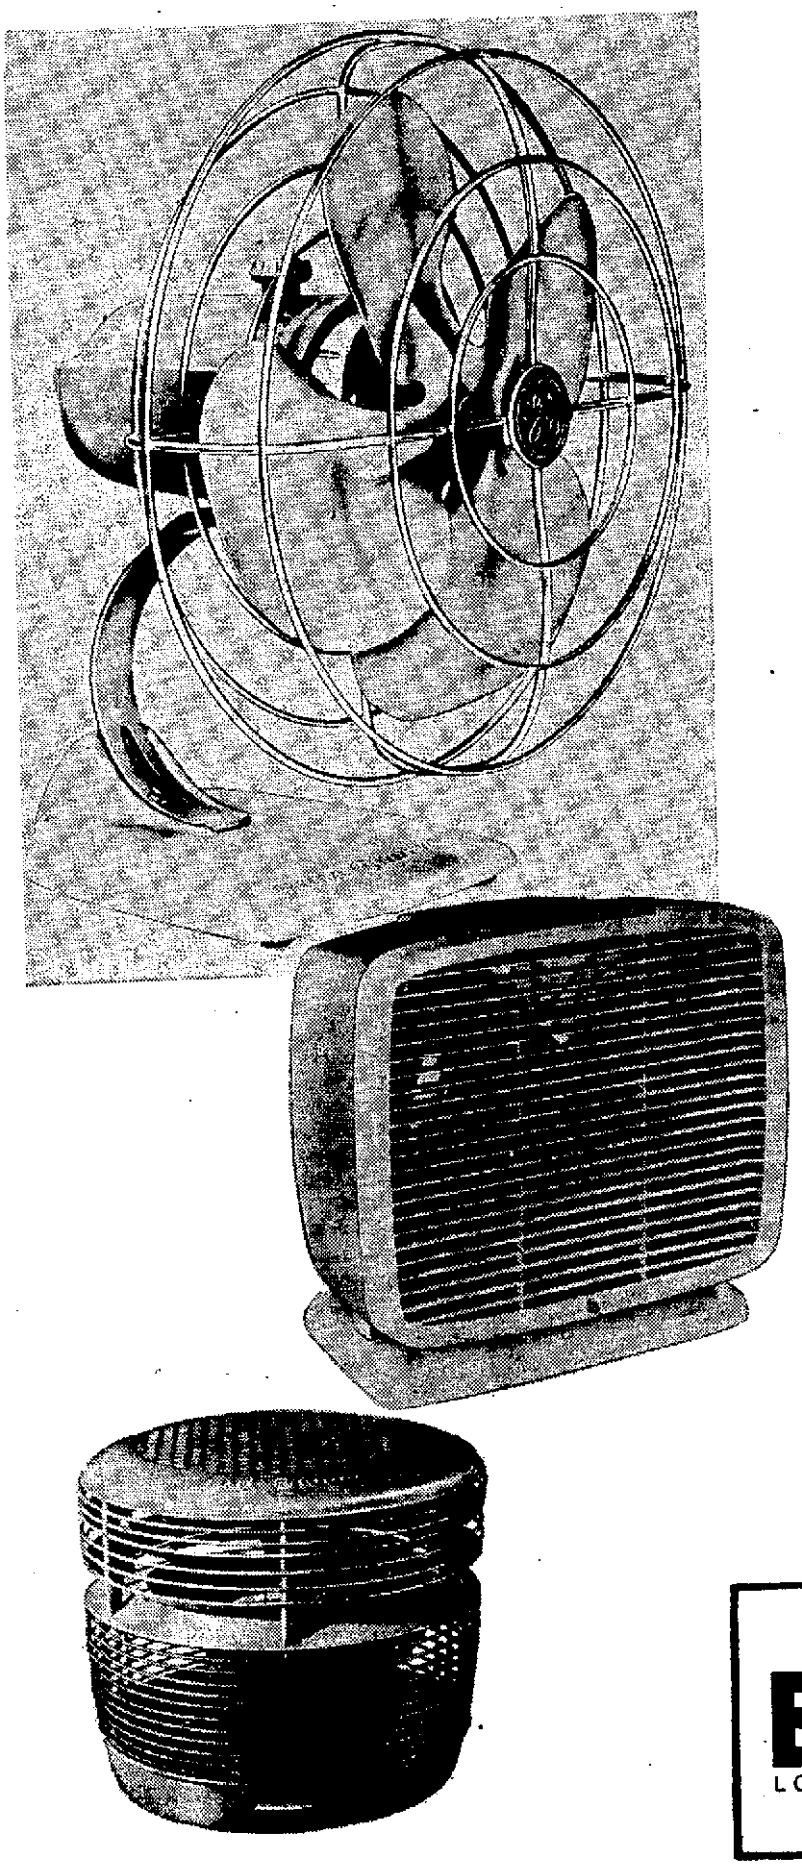

Use the positive approach. Say "I am a truck driver. Do you have something in my line?" instead of "You don't have anything for a truck driver, do you?"

Don't rely on pull to get a job, but on the other hand do not refuse help from older people.

I feel that agencies are about the best place to go because they have the contacts for jobs and can save you days and months of tramping around. Of course, you have to pay them a percentage of your earnings for a little while, but you probably will have more pay and a better job, so it's worth it. Go to your State Employment Service first—that will get you a job for free. However, really big companies quite often have personnel offices and hire their own applicants, and very small companies sometimes advertise in the newspapers or put a sign in the window.

Your jobs should improve as your experience grows, but it all depends on you—if you are willing to earn your pay check or just drift along. One thing to remember is that you can never go up by dragging someone else down. Keep your personal remarks to yourself — be cheerful and work hard and you are bound to be on your way up.

"Some time ago you mentioned how to get a Borsalino hat from Italy by mail. I have misplaced this article . . ."

WRITE TO FABRIZI, 407 Via del Corso, Rome, Italy. The kind I was getting is called a featherweight. Rolls up in your suitcase, if you want. These used to be $8 plus $1 for mailing, but that was several years ago, so maybe you'd better ask before you send any money.

There will be some duty on this, but I really don't know how much. If you have a friend in Italy, he can send it to you duty-free as a gift. There is no duty on a gift under $10. But here's the rub: it has to be purchased as a gift overseas.

"I am studying Esperanto, the international language. I have contacted Esperanto groups here and learned that in every country in Europe there are people who speak it and it is widely used by airlines, railroads and transport organizations in advertising. Have you ever used it?"

NO, NEVER USED IT, never heard it, never saw it on any advertising by transport companies. I wasn't looking for it, though. Maybe they do.

Most usable language in Europe, in my opinion, is a little French. When taking off for a new country, I try to get a small pocket guide to the language and read it over on the airplane.

Skip the parts about hotel rooms. The desk clerk always speaks English. So do the waiters usually. It's the taxi driver and the hotel maid and the train conductor that are the problem.

You ought to learn to say "how much?" "bring me the bill," "is this the train or plane for Timbuctoo?" "another beer," "where is the gentlemen's lounge, please?" and "thank you."

On top of that, if you can read the menu, you are operating. If you don't learn the above, you soon will. Believe me, you will.

"I am interested in a trip in the Caribbean, covering as many islands as possible, even if just part of a day . . ."

YOUR BEST BET is to book through Pan American. They have a Convair that island-hops places like Guadeloupe, Antigua, St. Lucia, Martinique, as well as better known islands. Ask them also about their Costa Rica subsidiary, LACSA, I think it is. Has some little-known island stops that I hear are very inexpensive and well worth while. I was told about this by a newspaper friend of mine who's living in Costa Rica.

I think this would give you a circular tour — down one way and up another.

Seeing Sights in Las Vegas

Colorful Las Vegas, a seven-hour drive from Long Beach, continues to be the destination for many weekend vacationists from the Southland. There's always plenty to do and see—like Rita Rae, Los Angeles TV and fashion model, who's seen here stretching out in the sunshine at the Royal Nevada Hotel pool.

New York Fete

New York City hotels are taking an active role in plans now being formulated for the 1955 Summer Festival which runs up until September 5. The program for the coming summer will be more ambitious than last year, when thousands of added visitors to the city sent retail sales up 4 per cent over the preceding summer. During the festival season, New York stores will offer special values and a principal feature of the summer program will be an elaborate fashion show, scheduled to be the world's largest. Other special events will include concerts of every kind, from symphony to swing, sport spectacles, art exhibits, and stage and motion picture world premieres.

Going to Israel?

Travel to the Middle East shows a marked increase the first four months of 1955. Over 2,215 tourists traveled to Israel in February, a 40 per cent increase over the same month last year. New hotels are rapidly being constructed to take care of visitors.

They Make Jewelry With Rocks

JEWELRY and ornaments of every race tell an interesting story of originality in the use of metals and precious or semi-precious stones. Certainly no less original are the jewelry makers of today who transform gorgeous rocks into exquisite jewelry with original settings.

There are scores of rock hounds in the Long Beach area —some of them members of the Long Beach Mineral and Gem Society — who combine their hobby with jewelry making. And the number is growing each year.

The Making of a Doctor

"Not as a Stranger," one of the best-selling novels of recent times, is brought to the screen for United Artists release with such top players as Olivia de Havilland, Robert Mitchum, Frank Sinatra, Gloria Grahame, Broderick Crawford and Charles Bickford in the principal roles. The story concerns a medical student, Lucas Marsh (Mitchum), who dedicates himself to his future profession to exclusion of other interests. He berates his father (Lon Chaney) for worthlessness, marries a beautiful nurse (Miss de Havilland) for money, is infatuated by rich, lonely Harriet, is unable to save Dr. Runkleman (Bickford) who set him up as country medico and is taught the greater values of life, being forgiven by his neglected wife. Here are some scenes from the movie which show some of the major incidents.

Here is Mitchum as Lucas Marsh, excluding all personal values to study to be a doctor.

Needing money, Lucas consults father; berates him for alcoholism and worthlessness.

He's accepted by head operating nurse (Miss de Havilland), solving his money problem.

Lucas' infatuation with worldly wise Harriet comes to end when she sends him away.

Losing fight to save Dr. Runkleman, who succumbs to heart ailment, brings Lucas to senses. He perceives other values, is forgiven by expectant wife.

proud of. She still enthuses over the ornament she fashioned into a gift for her mother-in-law. Because her amethyst stone was formed like a grape cluster, she designed a silver grapeleaf with tendrils to hold the purple "grapes." Such an unusual pin was appropriate, for the recipient is a midwest grape grower.

Alice and James McGinley are rock collectors. "The rocks got us started making jewelry," said Alice. "I didn't want to be a rock hound. On my first trip to the desert, I thought, 'these CRAZY people in THIS heat. . .' Then I found a marvelous piece of jade at Monterey. On another trip to Horse Canyon, I picked up a superb moss agate. That converted me."

Her husband cuts and polishes their rock finds.

ANOTHER GEOLOGY HOUND, Bill Pearson, made an impressive number of pieces since class began in the fall. He took care of his Christmas list by making gifts like the silver cuff links set with diplodocus, dinosaur bone to you. The stones were in blended shades of warm browns and moss green and dappled with the tiny sparkles of bone crystals.

Another jewelry maker, Margaret Redfield carefully fits her paper pattern around a slim piece of pink and black rhodinite. When she has it symmetrically pleasing, she will place the paper pattern on her sheet of sterling silver and carefully saw it out. It will soon become a smart free-form pendant.

Gem enthusiast Kathryn Lee Matthie is making plans to mount a huge amethyst in a ring. She purchased the stone in Cairo when she was stationed there. Now she wishes she had gotten more gems when she had the chance.

Others who are not rock hounds like to work in gold, silver, copper wire or the sheet metals. There is an unlimited field for designing the contemporary style of ornament, which is the particular gift of Ruth Murphy. Rock hounds declare that no particular talent other than an interest in this hobby is necessary because it is very easy to learn.

Rachael Jameson is making novel earrings and buttons of polished abalone shell, besides making a pair of cufflinks for her granddaughter. This hobby is equally appealing to men and women. Those who work often spend their evenings at this fascinating occupation.

Roy Riegels wishes people would forget his whacky run.

He Galloped Wrong Way

(Editor's Note: As a center for the University of California, Roy Rigels brought more than 70,000 spectators screaming to their feet in the Rose Bowl some 26 years ago. Here's how he did it and what he thinks about the whole thing today.)

By Joseph Lipper

AP Newsfeatures Writer

ROY RIEGELS is one famous personality of yesteryear who prefers to be a forgotten man today.

He's the University of California center who recovered a Georgia Tech fumble in the Jan. 1, 1929 Rose Bowl game and ran 64 yards — the wrong way — before a teammate tackled him on the Cal one-yard line.

The play — before 71,104 howling spectators in the Pasadent oval — set up a Tech safety for the two points which proved the edge the Georgians needed to win, 8-7.

The incident came early in the second quarter after the teams had switched directions.

"That was a long time ago," the 47-year-old Riegels says today, "and the more people forget me, the better I like it."

Now a successful sales executive for a large cannery, the husky ex-lineman says his job, his two young sons and his hobby of puttering around his suburban home keep him too busy to think much about football.

"I get to a couple of California games each year," he adds, "but it's been a long time since I went back to the Rose Bowl as a spectator."

MOST ANNIVERSARIES of his famous run go unnoticed.

Once in a while, sports writers telephone him and ask if the incident dogged his life.

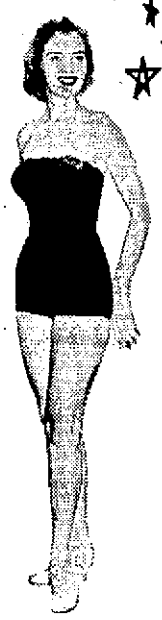

The stock answer: "No."

The fact is, he played great ball after the first-half boner, he was captain of the team the next year and, in business, his territory extends from Michigan to the west coast.

Riegels seldom hauls out the scrap books with clippings chronicling his backward fame and other football feats.

"My boys, David and Richard, are 11 and 8," he said. "They are young now. But as they grow up, they may start asking questions and I suppose we'll blow the dust off the books and take a look."

Faith Domergue plays the role of a beauty who can transform herself into a cobra in her latest film.

Hollywood Paradoxes

Motion pictures produce many paradoxes. For instance, there's lovely Faith Domergue, who won her current starring role in "Cult of the Cobra" at Universal-International because she realized the dramatic effectiveness of paradox. The film is a fantasy in the realm of terror fiction and Faith's role is that of a beautiful woman who can change herself into a deadly cobra and back again into a human being. If that were not paradox enough, Faith appeared for a test in simple but smart gown and with nothing in hair styling or makeup to indicate that she was anything more than a normal, well-groomed woman. She felt that this would heighten the effect of the eventual transition. She won the role over 20 other actresses who competed in slinky gowns and coiffures and makeup calculated to give a reptilian effect. Another paradox is Marjorie Main, who attempts to acquire the exotic charm of an island maid in "Ma and Pa Kettle in Waikiki." Waikiki quakes when Marjorie shakes!

Marjorie Main shimmies and shakes in her latest Ma and Pa Kettle picture with Hawaiian background.

Tennessee Ernie Ford did so well as George Gobel guest, a repeat visit is to be on schedule soon.

TELEVISION

Luckily He Went Broke

By Terry Vernon

Independent Television Columnist

NOBODY LIKES to go broke, but Tennessee Ernie Ford is thankful for the one occasion when he ran out of cash.

After the war, Ernie and his wife, Betty, had decided to homestead in Alaska. They bought a car and were en route towards their first crop of snowballs when they ran out of cash at San Bernardino. It was Betty's home town, so Ernie decided to try his luck at the only thing he knew besides farming —radio announcing—at which he had taken a whirl when he was 18.

He grabbed a part-time job to build up some getaway money, and after a month was offered a regular spot as a hillbilly disc jockey.

Alaska, as far as Ernie was concerned, went back into the geography books, and today Tennessee Ernie Ford is potentially one of the big stars of show business, with a five-a-week 40-minute CBS air show, a Monday-through-Friday half-hour NBC telecast, hit Capitol records and national prominence after several guestings on "I Love Lucy," "Toast of the Town" and a stint with comic George Gobel.

Ernie was born in Ford Town, Tenn., on Feb. 13, 1919, and was christened Ernest J. Ford. Later his family moved to Bristol, Tenn., where he attend school. After working in a dry cleaning shop and as a grocery clerk, he started to hang around the local radio stations and finally was hired as a staff announcer in 1937 for $10 per week.

Meanwhile, he was taking private singing lessons. At the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music he developed his voice for serious music.

It was a month after the San Bernardino incident that Ernie became a hillbilly disc jockey for KXLA, Pasadena.

There he met Cliffie Stone, who, after listening to him sing, signed him for his Saturday night program of western music.

So I Built It Myself

By Roberta Nichols

THIS IS AN ESTIMATE for a simple little patio and a few plants? -$1250? I didn't ask for a replica of the Taj Mahal. Just a simple little patio and some plants — nothing fancy. Look at this item. Labor $750! Why for 2 cents I'd do the job myself. What special skill? OK, I will do it myself.

Yep. Did it all myself — well practically. Anybody is a fool to pay what those contractors ask. Do it yourself and save. That's my motto. How much did I save? Well now I don't happen to have the figures handy — but plenty, you can just bet. No, dear. NO. You needn't go get them. Mr. Oglethorpe isn't that interested. Oh, all right, show him. But just remember the satisfaction a man gets from creating something.

He Went Broke

This was the beginning of Tennessee Ernie.

Since 1949 Ernie's life has been a regular Horatio Alger story. He's a regular on television and radio, and on the night club wheel, has played top spots like the Copacabana in New York and the Thunderbird and Last Frontier in Las Vegas. He holds the distinction of being the first western entertainer to play the London Palladium.

Ernie has had several records which sold over a million.

More recently he sang the song behind the title and credits for the movie "River of No Return," starring Marilyn Monroe and Robert Mitchum.

UNLIKE MOST stars, Ernie wants no part of the plush living in Beverly Hills or the valley. Instead, he spends hours commuting between his ranch-style home in Whittier and the studios. He feels the time is well spent because it gives members of his family the freedom they love.

Ernie and Betty have two boys, Jeffrey (Buck) Buckner, 5, and Brion Leonard, 2.

Buck was delighted when his father added "Ford" to his professional name recently. The boy said he finally had a last name like everyone else.

California Was Too Darned Tough for Judge Roy Bean.

Judge Bean Was a Sissy

By C. B. Popes

JUDGE ROY BEAN was "Law, West of the Pecos" and a terror in Texas, but he just didn't have what it takes in California. As a matter of fact, one might say he was run out of the state.

He came to San Diego by way of Kentucky and Chihuahua, Mexico. That was in 1848 and he is said to have left Mexico in a hurry with the law on his trail. He had killed a man in self-defense.

It was a good although a sudden move for when he landed in San Diego in 1850 he found his brother Joshua was the alcalde and a prosperous citizen. It was a free and easy town with something happening all the time to keep a young man occupied: Racing, cock fighting, parties and gorgeous girls. Bean immediately entered into the spirit of the times.

ROY BEAN was said to have been a real dude. He adopted the slashed-bottom pants, kerchiefs and most of the startling effects of the Californians. Everything was glorious until he got in a dispute with a Scotchman named Collins. Each thought he was the better shot.

"Let's do some target shooting and stop all this arguing," said Bean.

"All right by me," said Collins. "Name your target."

"You and me," said Bean. "We'll ride down Main St. at full gallop and shoot at each other.

Collins was startled but he accepted the challenge. A great crowd gathered next day to see the shooting match. Bean was the best shot and he proved it by winging the other man. They both landed in jail.

He was there several weeks, for his brother had moved to San Gabriel where he was major general in the state militia. Bean didn't like the jail, so one night he broke out.

He said later that it was a one-man break with the aid of a beautiful senorita. (All the girls in his stories were beautiful.) San Diego historians say he went out through a tunnel with 23 Indians. The Indians dug the tunnel.

WHEN ROY reached San Gabriel he found his brother was running the Headquarters Saloon, near the San Gabriel Mission. Roy put on an apron and served drinks as well as carrying on his social activities.

Southern California was a rugged place then and most of the hard cases appeared at the Headquarters Saloon at one time or another. There is a well verified story of a quiet, well dressed little chap appearing at the bar one day. He was in such startling contrast to the other patrons that he was immediately spotted.

One of the tougher patrons, well in his cups, approached the little man and said, "Say a word and I'll blow your head off."

Bean immediately interceded. He didn't like paying customers being killed. The little man said, "Don't bother about me. I'll handle this character."

He then pulled a derringer from the lining of his coat and backed the hard case against the wall. He lit a cigar and after getting it going well he thrust it up a nostril of the erstwhile bad man.

Roy liked a place like that.

His brother Joshua was killed by an assassin, so Roy took over the operation of the bar. Maj. Horace Bell tells of visiting Bean at the Headquarters. He found him standing at the door laughing and chortling. He was admiring a hanging that was taking place at a nearby corral.

"Ain't that rich?" he asked Bell. "That's really good." He couldn't resist getting closer so he asked Bell to watch the place, "so no damned scoundrel will steal my whiskey" and rushed out to participate.

THERE IS SOME MYSTERY about Roy's departure from California. It is certain he left broke and it is equally certain he carried his head canted to one side. He couldn't turn his head. He had to turn his whole body.

When he was mellow and around friends he would loosen the bandana he wore, part his whiskers and show a welt around his neck. "I got hung once out in California." He then told of difficulties over a beautiful senorita, a jealous Army officer and a rope too long. The latter allowed his toes to touch the ground and prevented his being strangled.

He appeared in Mesilla, N. M., ragged, dirty and hungry and leading a lame horse. There he found his brother Sam who was a local tycoon. He remained in New Mexico until the Civil War when he became an irregular Confederate soldier with a troop called the Free Rovers by some, and the Forty Thieves by others. He then moved to an alkai plain in Texas where he dispensed justice, lined his pockets and made up laws as he went along.

Southern California was too rough and tough for Roy Bean. Texas must be where Southern California used to send her sissies.

Barbecued Pot Roast

By Mildred K. Flanary

Press-Telegram Home Economics Editor

FOOD, sans personality and graciousness, might be likened to a buggy without a horse — it's just "no go!" Too much food, too much hurry, too much hovering over your guests, is equally bad also.

Entertaining must be fun, even for the hostess. Warm weather entertaining, to be fun, needs a bit more careful planning to make less work, less confusion and be completely casual.

The Londons at 4701 E. Ocean Blvd. are rated "tops" as hosts. An invitation to their home always means fun, relaxation and excellent eating. The reason: All of the family — Charles, Phyllis, Diane and Steve — get into the act. The actual menu is no doubt planned by Phyllis with something from the barbecue as a focal point.

A barbecued pot roast is one of their favorites. Fact is, they enjoyed it so very much at the home of a friend that they "borrowed" the recipe. As of today, each of you may "borrow" it, too.

Delicious barbecued pot roast in the making, with Mrs. Charles P. London supervising and her son and daughter, Steve and Diane, savoring the aroma.

Phyllis explains that Charlie usually mixes the sauce, and is quite sure that he never measures — "just adds . . . so these measurements are just 'by guess and by golly.'"

Diane and Steve like this just as well as hamburgers, and all of the last-minute fuss is avoided. For the children and their friends, Phyllis serves roasting ears, a green salad and plenty of olives, with ice cream cones for dessert.

Kitchen Tip:

A dash of salt on juice that runs over in the oven will absorb the juice and stop smoking.

Mrs. London's Barbecued Pot Roast

Use 7-bone or round-bone roast. Tenderize with meat tenderizer the day before using, and marinate with barbecue sauce at least six hours. The coals should be well burned down and not too hot since the meat cooks quite a while. (About 1½ hours.)

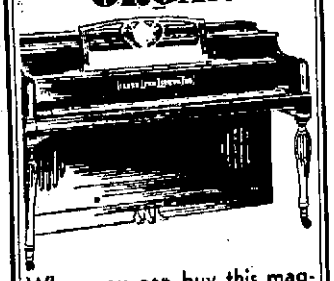

BARBECUE SAUCE

1 cup catsup
Dash tabasco
½ cup Worcestershire Sauce
1 clove garlic (minced)
Onion salt
Fresh ground pepper (good teaspoonful)
1 cup salad oil
1 tablespoon vinegar
½ teaspoon liquid smoke

Mrs. London adds no salt because the meat tenderizer is sufficient for her family's taste. She says the basic recipe for the barbecue sauce can be varied by adding prepared mustard, tomato paste, chili powder and other ingredients to taste.

California Designed

By Eileen Ball

"CALIFORNIA DESIGNED" —a label rapidly gaining world-wide recognition — designates the display of manufactured items in home furnishings and equipment now attracting attention at Municipal Art Center, 2300 E. Ocean Blvd.

The exhibit, said Director Sam Heavenrich, may be seen Tuesdays through Fridays from 2 to 5 p. m., and Sundays from 1 to 6 p. m.

The fact that California is a leading exponent of casual living has been known nationally for years. Not so well known is the role its native designers have played in contributing furniture, fabrics and accessories compatible—even necessary—to the casual mode of life.

Furniture designed with simplicity of detail and near-classic design, hand and machine-loomed fabrics of earth tones livened with shots of pure color and accessories existent to serve specific functions around the house are included in museum-type display.

A first-hand acquaintance with the manner in which Californians love to live and entertain out of doors prompted Russell Bayly of Pasadena to create a novel and wonderful practical hibachi table. Entered in the Art Center display, it is causing considerable comment and enthusiastic approval.

SET INTO A FRAME of sturdy common angle iron, the table top is composed of a slab of concrete bordered by a natural walnut liner which rests in the iron frame. Centering the table is a well designed to accommodate a cast iron hibachi, a squat charcoal brazier of the sort used throughout the Orient for heating as well as cooking purposes. Set into the middle of this ingenious cocktail or serving table, the little stove provides the perfect answer to the problem of how to enjoy an evening on the patio when the breeze grows chill. Guests may draw up to the table and enjoy the warmth of the glowing charcoal.

Another item on prominent and handsome display is a chair designed by the local decorator and designer, Stanley Young. Young has been a prolific and successful contributor to the market of fine contemporary furniture for many years. This chair, an interesting high-backed upholstered piece faintly reminiscent of the classic wing chair, is upholstered in a hot orange fabric.

Typical of the multi-purpose, mobile trend in casual furniture is the bar-buffet designed by John Keal of South Gate. This good looking piece of case furniture is composed of pale mahogany topped with a serving surface of sturdy white miearta.

THE FUNCTIONS such a cabinet could perform are virtu-

cabinet is the manner in which it conceals the storage of six handsome serving trays. Brass legs unfold to give the white, plastic-topped snack tables sturdy support..

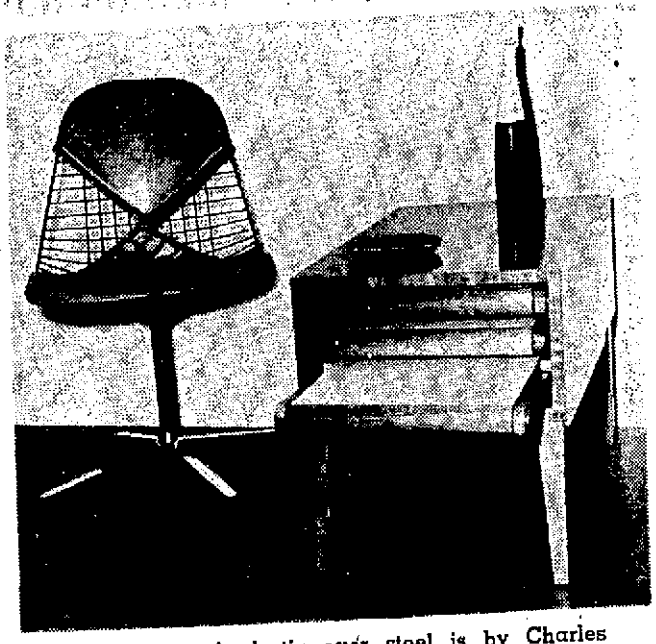

Indicative of the economy and function that are so often happily teamed in contemporary accessories are the tables designed by Albert Clarke. Natural burlap laminated with clear plastic forms the round "pie pan" shaped incidental tables. Lightweight, scuff, burn, and moisture proof, these inexpensive little service tables portray all that is best in the new trend.

In an era when room dividers — especially mobile arrangements—are in such demand the screen designed by Henri Yakahashi of San Francisco poses as one of the potential hits of the show. Using a semi-opaque Japanese paper encasing butterflies and interesting arrangements of pressed leaves and fern, this shoji screen provides a light, easily movable and attractive background.

CALIFORNIA ARTISTS specializing in ceramic and sculptured art recognize Malcolm Leland as one of the most outstanding representatives of their field. On display at the Art Center is a Malcolm Leland contemporary garden lamp created of terra cotta clay. Composed of a series of hollow spheres stacked one upon the other, each unit is designed to house a squat votive candle.

Innovations in tableware and accessories include entries by Edith Heath, creator of the famous Heathware. Allan Adler, contemporary silversmith, has offered unusually lovely salt and peppers created of silver and jade enamel.

Certain to stimulate such comment throughout the show is the provocative portable fireplace designed by George Kosmak of San Francisco. Created from a hollow sphere of black steel, it is readily adaptable for use in situations where a more conventional masonry fireplace is impractical.

Pivot chair of plastic over steel is by Charles Eames. Nest of mahogany tables is by John Keal.

Stanley Young of Long Beach designed this high-backed armchair, reminiscent of classic wing chair.

Vicissitudes of a Minister's Wife

MINISTER'S WIFE: Margaret Echard's new novel, "The Unbelieving Wife" (Longmans, Green, $3.50), is a human tale with spiritual impact. Though she was in love with Bruce Cameron, Vicki Sanderson rejected him when she learned he was to become a minister. Bruce, after his return from war, was thrilled to see the gold lettering on the bronze plaque of the sanctuary: "Grace Presbyterian Church, Rev. Bruce Cameron, Minister." Later, Vicki, when she realized the two were meant for each other, was married, and began her life as a minister's wife.

Miss Echard, in this smoothly flowing novel, relates with admirable clarity and keen perception the problems of a wife, devoted to her husband, who is devoted to his work for Christ. At times fun-loving Vicki finds her problems almost too difficult to handle, but handle them she does. With her minister husband, a richer life begins.

The humanitarian concern is here, and a heightened spirituality; and with more and more people turning to the churches, this tale of a Presbyterian minister and his loving and proud wife should be read by people hungry for religion and for the better novel. Miss Echard's work rises several levels above much of the fiction being published today.—J. J. K.

MIKE GARGAN was a top used car salesman, both for the unscrupulous O'Hara—who specialized in loading customers up with junk heaps and extra charges—and later for himself when he opened across from O'Hara under the name of Laughing Mike. And in the process he came very near making a tramp out of Pat Clark, an unworldly but lovable little redhead from a small town near by. That's the gist of "Take All You Can Get," a hard-bitten, entertaining novel by Steve Fisher, Hollywood scenario writer (Random House, $3.50). —F. T. K.

HIGH FUN ON HIGH PLANE: J. B. Priestley's "Low Notes on a High Level" (Harper, $2.75) is a briskly moving comedy about musician Alan Applerose and others who make of a broadcasting network one of the world's fascinating businesses. Mr. Priestley's business is humor in the cerebral manner, and if it is escapist literature, it is work of a high order by a serious craftsman who seems to be writing for the fun of it.

ADVENTURE: If you like strange adventure in far places, try "Expedition Tumuc-Humac" (Doubleday, $4), a well told and excitement-packed account of a

ELINOR GLYN

One of the truly fascinating literary figures of the century was Elinor Glyn, author of "Three Weeks" (a novel which sold five million copies), the movie "It" (which starred Clara Bow), and other stories which will forever document the Jazz era. Now, as fascinating as this woman herself comes her biography, "Elinor Glyn," written by her grandson, Anthony Glyn (Doubleday, $4.50), and it will bring nostalgic memories to the older generation, delightful reading to the young.

GARALD LAGARD

Author of Scarlet Cockerel

A novel of the Civil War with a new and unique setting: a traveling tent show in Georgia in 1863. "A rattling good show, with easy good humor, a zesty, crackling, free-swinging yarn that's the best of its kind in a long time. It makes melodrama not only palatable but chucklesome." — Harnett T. Kane, N. Y. Times. "A vivid, vigorous story loaded with love and hate, simplicity and intrigue, and not without some amusing, well-turned humor. If you want a prescription for good reading, this is it!" — Fred Taylor Kraft, Long Beach Independent-Press-Telegram. At all bookstores, $3.50

MORROW

Her Face Is 'Perfect'

Barbara Rush, says Bud Westmore, ace Hollywood makeup man, is the girl with the perfect face.

By BUD WESTMORE

(Director of make-up for Universal-International Studios)

A MOVIE make-up man's life would be a bed of roses if all the glamour queens had faces like that of Barbara Rush.

Lots of women — film stars among them — manage to look attractive from a certain angle. Catch them on their bad side and it may be quite another spectacle.

In preparing Miss Rush for her starring role with Rock Hudson in the CinemaScope Irish adventure story, "Captain Lightfoot," I had occasion to appraise her features from every conceivable view.

A make-up artist has to put himself in the position of the camera lens. It's his job to know ahead of time how an actress will appear in any move she may be called upon to make.

Miss Rush, I discovered, is that much-to-be-envied creature — a girl with a perfect face.

I think every woman can learn a lesson from Barbara's approach to make-up. She believes in being as natural as possible, which means the use of a minimum of cosmetics or other artificial aids.

LET'S LOOK at her face analytically — just as we might in the make-up department.

To begin with, she uses her own eyebrows, instead of penciling them in. They are permitted to retain their natural shape, instead of being contoured into some incredible arc.

She seldom uses rouge, but when she does she applies only a dash — a brush of faint color — which is blended so carefully that there is no hard, red line anywhere.

For her lips she relies on a light-hued application, sparingly applied, with the natural line of the lips being retained.

She uses no powder.

Her hair always looks lush and glistening because it is meticulously groomed.

Not every woman may possess these flawless features, but almost everyone interested in personal beauty can benefit by Barbara's practices.

TEEN IDEAS

The walls of the room were a sickly green, the floor was deeply scarred by its former occupant and the bedroom suite fairly shrieked that its secondhand price of $35 had been more than its true worth.

"That bed and vanity — not to mention the old-fashioned highboy — look like they came out of the Ark!" Joanne cried. "And their peeled-brown-paint look goes perfectly with those horrible walls." She looked back at the scene bleakly.

Less than a month later, the room couldn't have been recognized. What is more, the renovation cost less than $20.

Two quarts of rose-colored paint put a soft glow on three sides of the room. Another quart of gray paint on the fourth wall added depth. Joanne painted the old-fashioned woodwork cream color, then carried out the color scheme by painting the sad-looking bedroom set the same color, using plastic paint on the furniture.

THE FOLLOWING DAY there was inexpensive linoleum laid from wall to wall on the scarred floor. She had chosen a light wood-color, with a conservative pattern which looked like narrow board flooring.

The room was soft looking and cozy now, and I thought that it was finished. But next day, Joanne was busily engaged with pencil, carbon paper and a coloring book, tracing pictures on dresser drawers.

"I'm doing the 'theme.'" She flourished a page, torn from the coloring book.

The theme was a delightful array of ballet dancers, taken from famous ballet scenes. Joanne transferred these from the 10-cent coloring book to the drawers of the vanity dresser and chest of drawers. Using 35-cent bottles of rubber enamel bought at a hobby shop, she stenciled the ballet figures in black. Then, she added small dabs of Chinese red and dashes of Prang gold paint to sashes and flounces, lips and long lashes so that the scenes stood out vividly against the cream-colored background.

New Ideas in Doors

Have you noticed your front door lately? It is probably the most prominent moving part of your home—and often the least noticed by the owner. It provides comfort and security for your family and welcomes the arriving guest.

Door styles, dormant for years, were revolutionized by the advent of the slab, or flush door which instantly became popular. It is made with either a solid or hollow core faced with a pleasing variety of foreign and domestic plywoods. Its unbroken surface and clean lines blend perfectly with modern design.

If you're building a new home or remodeling an old one we'd like to show you the latest ideas in doors.

second and successful attempt by a party of three — including author Francis Maziere — to explore the remote Tumuc-Humac mountains which form a part of the Brazil-French Guiana frontier deep in South America. With Maziere were Vladimir Ivanov and Dominique Darbois, the latter a woman, and they took many pictures to document their contact with Indian tribes, a liberal number of which are reproduced.

CALIFORNIANA: Historians and collectors of Californiana will welcome "Palou's Life of Junipero Serra," translated and edited by Maynard J. Geiger, OFM, of Old Mission Santa Barbara and published by the Academy of American Franciscan History. Palou is the source into which writers and others dip for accurate life story of the Father of California Missions. The new edition explains Palou where his text is not self-explanatory.

ETIQUETTE: Good manners and good breeding never change, but modes of living do. This is the premise upon which "Etiquette," by Emily Post, has gone into its newest and ninth edition (Funk & Wagnalls, $5). With the coming of the airplane, development of newer services in train and steamship travel; with radio and television changing old ways, hundreds of little courtesies become necessary in the lives of men and women of good manners. The author brings her readers up to date on changing social usages.

CRYSTAL CLEAR: Amanda Benjamin Hall, contributor to The New Yorker and many quality journals, proves in her sixth book, "Frosty Harp" (Golden Quill Press, Francestown, N. Y., $2.50), that she has grown above her former high level. The poet shows depth and gaiety, common sense and aristocracy; and that rare quality, magic, creeps between her crystal clear lines. Published by the firm that publishes the Book Club for Poetry selections, in white cloth and blue jacket, the volume is one of the year's most attractive books. Happily, the pieces shine with the same lovely sturdiness.—J. J. K.

Light Makes Your Snapshots

It's the light on the subject that counts; camera user could be in complete darkness and still get a picture.

By the Shutterbug

HAVE YOU EVER thought about how important a factor light is in taking pictures? As a matter of fact, there would be no picture at all without it. For it is the light entering your camera when you open the shutter that creates the image on the film — light that is reflected from the subject, into your camera, and onto the film.

In taking pictures, the lens and shutter of your camera act just as the human eye does. The iris of the eye admits light, which in turn registers an image on the retina. Just as the iris adjusts automatically to brighter or weaker light, your camera lets you accomplish the same effect by means of its adjustable lens and shutter.

To obtain exactly the right quantity of light every time you take a picture, you soon learn to mix a little observation with a little mechanical help. The easiest mechanical assistance for you to have is the exposure table packed with most film — or perhaps you'd prefer one of the 25-cent pocket-size guides which allow you to dial the proper ex-

NO SHETLAND SHEEPDOGS are more beautiful or more charming than the Blackthorne dogs owned by the Powell family, 4209 Blackthorne Ave., and this family's success story with these fine dogs started all because an understanding mother, who didn't even care for dogs in the beginning, permitted her oldest school-age daughter, Helen Faye, to own a puppy.

Mrs. Powell insisted, however, that the dog be a purebred and

Fuchsias Give Year-'Round Joy

By Bob Gilmore

Fuchsias are abundant bloomers, easy to grow. Here they are in pleasant contrast to the white pillars.

IT IS POSSIBLE to have fuchsias blooming in Long Beach gardens during every month of the year. You can do this by selecting an assortment of varieties and by pruning back at different periods. Some fuchsias may be cut back as early as August while others should be cut in February and March. No Southern California garden should be without at least a few fuchsias for these colorful shrubs flower with zest and may be used advantageously both indoors and outside.

In Southern California fuchsias serve a utilitarian as well as an ornamental purpose. Some varieties will be found most attractive for covering walls and fences. They may be used as specimen plants, for the patio and conservatory. Fuchsias are also one of the most valuable subjects for potting to be found in this section. If you have never grown a fuchsia then a real gardening thrill awaits you.

Close to the coast fuchsias may be grown in the sun but inland a shady spot will be found more to their liking. The plants have come to be known as shade lovers largely because they cannot stand a full exposure to hot sun at mid-day or during the afternoon. A northern or eastern exposure suits them quite well and then you will not have to worry about protecting them during July, August and September. The single-flowered varieties seem capable of tolerating more abuse than the double forms.

Fuchsias are close to home in this area, many of them being native of Mexico, others coming from South America and New Zealand. Many amateur gardeners identify the fuchias as a shrub of average proportions. Actually a few varieties attain tree-like dimensions and in time may reach a height of twenty feet or more. They may be trained to form pillars or pyramids and as such lend themselves to formal arrangements. The foliage is quite soft and most varieties react favorably to light pruning or shaping up all during the year. Young plants should be pinched back to encourage a more compact habit of growth.

THE MAJOR PRUNING should take place after the plants become dormant. This is usually during the winter season. In regions of extreme cold it is best to postpone pruning until all danger of frost has passed. All weak branches should be removed and the remaining wood cut back rather sharply. This treatment encourages a healthy growth and is essential to heavy production of flowers for the following season. Old established fuchsias that have lost their shape should be pruned thoroughly. A heavy whacking will pep them up.

Fuchsias will be happy only if well fed and watered. They must not lack for moisture during the summer months. In fact they seem to do best when grown in a fairly humid environment. Conditions very much to their liking are along the coast where it is cool and foggy. From time to time during the summer give your fuchsias a shower bath. This treatment washes away any dust accummlation and helps to clear the atmosphere. It is also believed that a thorough syringing is of some value for controlling garden pests. Fuchsias prefer a soil that is on the acid side so don't try to grow them on land than has been heavily limed.

LONG BEACH CAMERA GUILD has won further recognition for its work in color photography — this time in a national organization, the Photographic Society of America. This past week the PSA had a final wind-up of color slide judging a contest in which the top five slides in all groups at showings throughout the year were entered. Long Beach Camera Guild belongs in Triple A class, and for her entry in this class, Elva Hayward, of the local club, was awarded a silver medal. Her slide was a pastoral scene taken in Colorado. Judges were Fred Archer, Hon. Fellowship Photographic Society of America; George Brauer, Associate Photographic Society of America; Leo Moore, APSA; Mel Phegley, APSA, president-elect of PSA, and Chet Tayloe, past president of Southern California Council of Camera Clubs.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA Council of Camera Clubs, with which the Long Beach Guild is affiliated, will have a summer outing Sunday, July 24, at Paradise Cove, on the Coast Highway 6½ miles north of Malibu Pier. The cove is ideally located for picture taking.

EARL EVERELY will be host at the annual meeting of the Long Beach Cinema Club Wednesday evening at his home, 4228 Rose Ave.

House Plants Can Go Outdoors

By Henry Pree

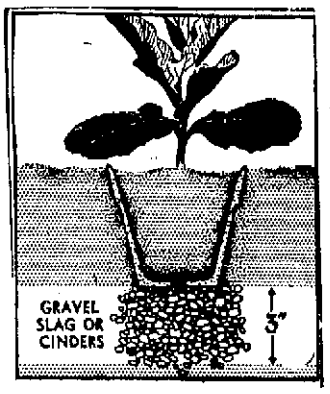

HOUSE PLANTS, especially the heavily foliated plants like ivies, pandanus, sansevieria, rubber plant and dracena migrate to the garden each year.

Semishaded spots receiving morning sunshine and protection against strong winds suit them best, and you must provide them with an ample supply of water.

To lessen the chore of watering, and make it possible for the gardener to go on his vacation, the pots should be buried to their rims in soil. The base of the pots should rest on a two or three-inch layer of gravel, slag or cinders to provide free drainage to discourage roots from emerging through the drainage hole, and to repel earthworms.

Treat amaryllis to a summer in the garden where they may finish leaf growth before "resting."

Dust and spray in anticipation of insect and fungus attacks. The all-purpose mixtures are effective against a wide range of insects, rust, mildew and other diseases. Where aphids are a serious menace, spray or dust with lindane, malathion or blackleaf 40.

Resting base of pot upon gravel assists drainage.

Continue to make small plantings at two-week intervals of gladiolus bulbs to insure a long season of bloom. Remember that they are gross feeders, and need cultivation and plenty of water.

Do not let thrips get the better of the plants; dust or spray the bulbs before planting with DDT, and continue the DDT habit every week from the time the first green sprouts appear until the flower beds show color. Give applications of liquid fertilizer every two weeks as soon as the plants are growing vigorously — increasing the amount when flower spikes begin to show.

Set out dahlia tubers. Insert the stakes firmly, then lay the tuber on its side, about six inches deep, with the eye or sprout turned upwards next to the stake; cover with three inches of soil to which superphosphate has been added. As the plants grow, level the hole with soil.

EARLY-SOWN or planted vegetables are making rapid growth by now. The gardener must keep the hoe or cultivator busy to prevent the weeds from taking over.

The hard crust that is formed on the soil by the rains must also be broken up by your favorite cultivating method. Regularity of cultivation in the garden will make this task much easier to do than if the ground is left to become hard and packed.

Side dressing is recommended, especially where plants are making a slow growth in poor soil. This should be applied after the crop has commenced to make fair growth and the roots are large enough to assimilate the extra plant nutrients.

Choose a quick-acting fertilizer, one which will dissolve in water. But be careful not to drop any on the tender foliage as this might cause injury. Dissolve four ounces of the fertilizer to each gallon of water and sprinkle with a watering can near the plants.

. . . AND THEY BOUGHT A DOG

that Helen Faye and her sister, Vera Ruth, part with their cat. So the cat rode off in a bakery truck to a new home that welcomed it, and Helen went to a dog show to find the breed she would love the most.

Helen stayed a long time admiring the many fine breeds on display in both the show and obedience rings. When she came home, she announced she wanted a Shetland sheepdog.

A puppy was purchased and traveled with the Powells from Ohio to California. The family loved the dog and was grief stricken when it and a number of other dogs in the neighborhood were mysteriously poisoned.

A second puppy was purchased soon after and was shipped here from North Carolina. The dog turned out to be considerably over-sized, so a third was bought. His name is Tiny Tim, and he is the forerunner of many of the fine dogs that followed, for the Powells decided to raise puppies as well as buy an occasional good one.

Ruling out sentiment, they kept the best in the litters and worked diligently to improve the temperament, conformation, intelligence and health of their stock. Since Shetland sheepdogs are best when not produced in quantities, and since, indeed, a "Sheltie factory" is virtually impossible, the going may have seemed a little slow, but the good results of the Blackthorne dogs are very apparent.

Helen is pictured on Page 35 as she is today with two of her fine dogs, on the left, five-year-old International Champion Blackthorne's Firebrand, who took Best of Breed in the past three Harbor Cities Kennel Club Shows in Long Beach, and on the right Champion Blackthorne's Golden Nugget, aged three.

The Shetland sheepdog is referred to as a collie in miniature, but the Powells say it is erroneous to call him a toy collie.

HOW TO Stretch Decorating Dollars, Add Utility to Your Home

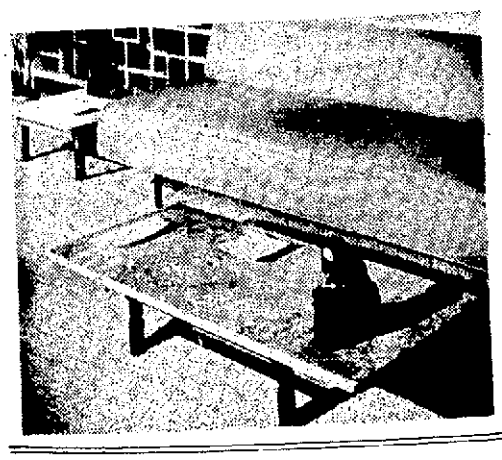

1. DISTINCTIVE SLIDING doors to a bedroom decorate this small hall. Wood design, repeating that used for the railing around stairway, was copied from a design found in a Korean book. Decorative design of doors is backed by burlap, which is painted a bright red for accent and mounted on removable panels. It can be changed when the color scheme is changed.

2. HANGING WALL divides breakfast room and utility area from kitchen. Note how a "wall" is created for the range. Drop-down shelves double as breakfast counters and a place to sort laundry on washing and ironing days. As this is a "family only" part of the home, the owners decided to have fun by painting the "mural" on the back of the hanging cabinet.

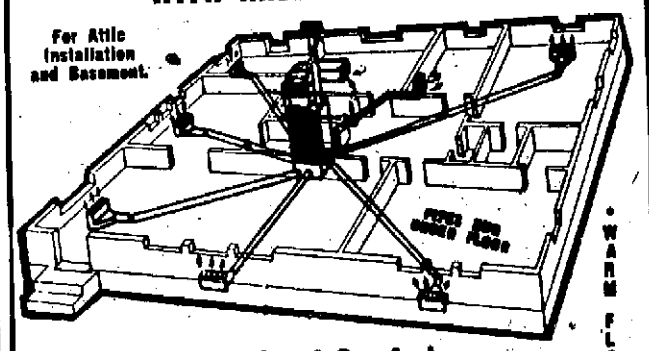

3. STORAGE WALL, which opens on both dining and kitchen sides, saves space. Again burlap is used on the sliding doors, plus double strips of wood to add an interesting design touch. Burlap is now available already sized, so it's easily hung like wallpaper. It comes in pretty colors, or you can paint it to suit yourself.

4. MARBLE PLACED on "what was handy" made this distinctive table. Coffee table base was a vanity bench with a wicker top. Wicker was removed, frame cut down and painted flat black. The large piece of salvaged marble simply rests on top.

State Bows to Convicts, Fires Guards

Wyoming Governor at Prison; 3 Still Held as Hostages

By JACK BACON

RAWLINS, Wyo. (U.P.) — Eighty convicts who rioted in Wyoming State Prison won their major point Saturday night when Warden Deane Miller announced that two hated guards had been fired.

But the convicts still refused to free one of their three hostage-guards, although he was sick. And they would not agree to allow Gov. Milward Simpson into the cellblock where they are barricaded.

Simpson called up 20 National Guardsmen in the Rawlins area and added to the armed cordon surrounding the beleaguered cellblock. But he gave no indication that he intended to force the issue and risk bloodshed.

Miller talked several times by prison telephone to Norman Hodges, one of the four spokesmen selected by the rebel convicts to air their grievances and negotiate with prison officials.

Miller told Hodges in his latest telephone conversation that the Board of Charities and Reform had fired Cellblock Captain Ben Reeves and Guard Bill Coppenger, against whom the convicts vented months of suppressed fury with their impromptu insurrection Saturday morning.

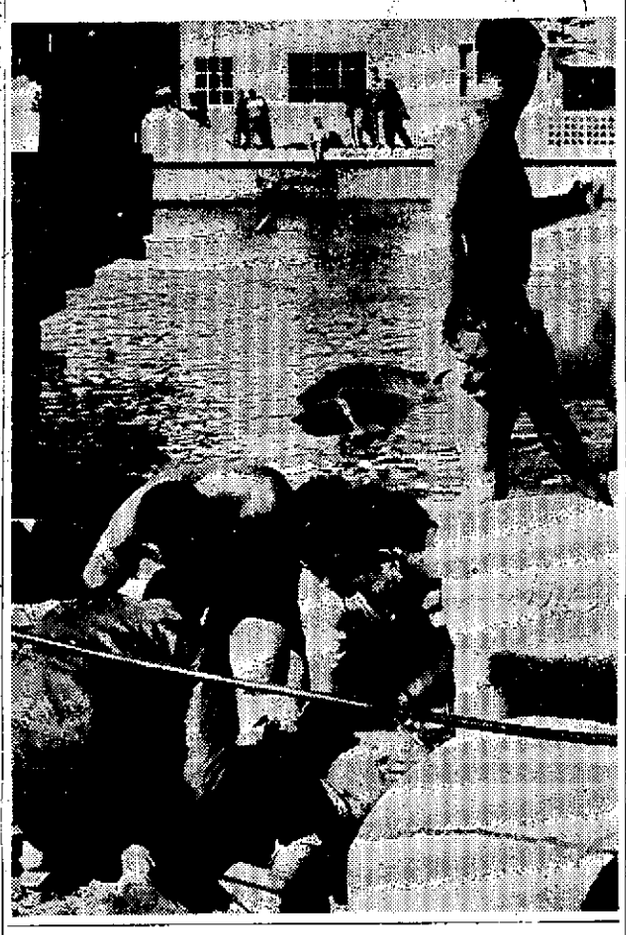

Reeves broke away from the convicts who jumped him, and Coppenger was not in the cellblock when the riot began. No official comment has been made on the charges made by the convicts that Reeves and Coppenger were tyrannical malefactors who treated prisoners like "dawgs."

The convicts blacked out the cellblock and stacked mattresses near the windows. But prison officials did not know whether they were erecting barricades against an assault, or intended to burn the mattresses in another demonstration of ire.

Simpson, prison and state officials and newsmen were all gathered in the prison office while Miller made trip after trip to the switchboard trying to arrange a second parley. Saturday afternoon, the convicts demanded that Reeves and Coppenger be "immediately discharged" and spelled out a number of other grievances to Miller and other officials who submitted to search before entering the cellblock.

SPECTATORS give emergency aid to victims of car which swerved off Hwy. 101 Saturday afternoon at Sunset Beach, sideswiped a parked car, injured three persons on the beach and then plunged into bay. A total of eight persons were injured, including three teenagers in the swerving car and a woman in the sideswiped parked car. Auto Hurdles Barrier, Ends Up in Water

Driver Hurled Out, Rider Pulled From Submerged Wreck

Swerving off Hwy. 101, a sedan sideswiped a parked car at Sunset Beach Saturday afternoon, dumped out its driver and a passenger and then continued a mad uncontrolled course, plowing through bathers on the beach, hurdling a barrier and plunging into an ocean backwater, temporarily trapping a second passenger in the wreckage below the surface.

Eight persons were injured in the chain-reaction accident, three seriously.

Five other persons, including a baby in a buggy, narrowly escaped injury as the car—flying through the air after striking the barrier—hurtled over them.

This is how the accident happened:

The sedan, driven by Miss Dorothy Ann Traynor, 16, of Hollywood, swerved to miss another car on Pacific Coast Hwy. at 11th St., Sunset Beach.

Leaving the highway, the sedan sideswiped a car parked at the side of the road, injuring a woman seated in it.

Miss Traynor and one passenger, Charles Conklin, 17, of Los Angeles, were thrown from the careening car at that point.

The car caused injuries to four persons on the beach, including bathers it struck and others hurt as they scrambled to get out of its way.

Its second passenger, Andre Ward, 16, of Los Angeles, remained aboard until the car landed in the water. He was trapped for a brief period.

Mrs. Gertrude Bick, 46, of 17091 A St., Huntington Beach, seated in the parked car, suffered minor injuries.

Mrs. Bick's husband, Edward, 43, who was standing beside their car when it was hit, rushed into the water and dragged Ward out of the car to shore. Ward suffered minor injuries and shock.

Six persons, including a

Beach Jams, Rescues Beat July 4 Mark

Long Beach police and lifeguards, weary from coping with traffic and beach crowds exceeding those of July 4, braced themselves Saturday night for more of the same today.

Lifeguards, who pulled 19 floundering swimmers from the ocean, Colorado Lagoon and Alamitos Bay, estimated the beaches were jammed by nearly 200,000 bathers.

Police noted a steady, all-day flow of traffic into Long Beach on all main highways, most presumably bound for the sands.

Attaches at the city's hospitals said they had been kept busy with a constant stream of emergency cases, most of them minor injuries such as cuts and abrasions received in a variety of ways.

One of these victims was Janet Wilson, 21, of Maywood, who was treated at Community Hospital for knee abrasions suffered while water-skiing at Marine Stadium. She told police she well when she skied into shore.

Ike Reaches Geneva for New Crusade

Confers With Eden and Faure Today; Hopeful of Peace

GENEVA (AP) — President Eisenhower reached Geneva Saturday night for a new and peaceful crusade in Europe.

Sunburned and smiling, the United States President arrived for the momentous Big Four summit conference this week and declared he hoped it would "lead all the world into a more tranquil, better, fuller way of life."

Other leaders of East and West, converging here for what may be turning-point talks in the 10-year cold war, also voiced optimism.

The President was cheered by a large crowd held back at the airport fence as he alighted from his plane, Columbine III.

He made a brief speech recalling "some 11 years ago I came to Europe with an Army, Navy and Air Force with a single purpose—to destroy Nazism.

"I came with the formations of war and all of the circumstances of war surrounded that journey at that time.

"This time I come armed with something far more powerful: the good will of America—the great hopes of America — the aspirations of America for peace. That is why I have come here, in this beautiful country of yours, to meet with my colleagues from other countries to see whether it is not possible to find some road that will lead all the world into a more tranquil, better, fuller way of life."

The President was accompanied by Mrs. Eisenhower and his son, Maj. John Eisenhower, who will act as his personal aide here.

He was greeted by Swiss President Max Petitpierre.

Earlier, at a refueling stopover in Iceland, the American chief executive told correspondents he hoped the "cause of peace can be advanced for all the world" in the meetings which start here Monday.

Dig Up Patio in Hunt for Missing Girl

ALAMEDA (U.P.) — Police excavated a "mysterious, shrine-like" patio late Saturday night in the yard of a University of California student as they suddenly intensified the search for a Berkeley schoolgirl, missing since April 28.

Det. Capt. L. H. Laird said the ten-foot-square patio had been constructed about six weeks ago "with no apparent explanation."

In a series of lightning developments earlier in the day, police found schoolbooks and eyeglasses definitely identified as those of 14-year-old Stephanie Bryan, daughter of a Berkeley radiologist.

Stephanie had been the object of a widespread search after witnesses said they saw a young girl struggle to free herself from a man who forced her into a car.

The unexpected discoveries were made in the home of Burton Abbott, a 27-year-old accounting student.

Early Saturday, Abbott's wife revealed that the couple had found a purse belonging to Stephanie in a box of old clothes, and police and FBI agents began a painstaking search of the white stucco house.

At first, authorities surmised the purse might have been concealed by any "one of a half dozen" persons.

But at about 6 p. m., books and eyeglasses belonging to the girl were found beneath the floorboards of the basement and immediately afterwards a girl's brassiere was found in the sand.

Meanwhile, a criminologist went over Abbott's 1949 Chevrolet sedan which closely resembled a car identified by more than a half dozen witnesses as the vehicle in which Stephanie was abducted.

Fire Drives 20 Port Tots Out of Camp

PASADENA (AP) — Flames raced out of control in the San Gabriel Mountains north of here Saturday night, blackening more than 100 acres of brush and timber and forcing the evacuation of 20 Wilmington children from a summer camp.

Two U. S. Forest Service structures, Waterman guard station and Josephine lookout, also were in the path of the mushrooming fire.

The Angeles Crest highway to the Los Angeles area was closed, forcing scores of campers and picnickers in the Charleton Flats and Chilao recreation area to return home the long way via the sweltering Mojave Desert.

Forestry officials said that 400 men were battling the flames in 94 degree heat. The fire was advancing north up both sides of the Arroyo Seco, vital watershed and flood control canyon near here.

Crews checked the flames on the canyon's west flank, near a road over which fire equipment could be transported. However, crews were forced to use hand tools on the east flank, and the fire gained headway there.

The evacuated children were camped for the weekend at Clear Creek. They were taken out by bus. An ambulance was called to remove Mrs. Vivian Ambrose, wife of the camp caretaker and who was convalescing from surgery.

A ranger's family was evacuated from Waterman guard station.

Forest Service officer James Murphy said the fire started from a picnicker's gasoline stove. Murphy cited Bernard Buck of Los Angeles on charges of being in a closed area and of setting a fire outside an improved camp ground.

Lakewood Anti-Oil-Well Group to Petition for Poll

By BUD LEMBKE

A referendum on an ordinance which would ban oil-well drilling anywhere in the City of Lakewood will be sought by a group which has been strongly opposed to the granting of a permit for Standard Oil Co. to drill south of the intersection of Carson St. and Paramount Blvd.

Atty. Emanuel Gyler disclosed Saturday that he had been retained to draft the initiative petition for the referendum by the organization known as L.O.L.A., standing for "Leave Our Lakewood Alone."

He said legal notice of intention to circulate the petitions would be published Monday, and an affidavit of publication would be filed Tuesday with Lakewood City Clerk Nita Birch.

Twenty-one days then must elapse before the petitions may be circulated.

Signatures of 15 per cent of the city's registered voters are required to call a special election on the ordinance banning the drilling for oil. If fewer than 15 per cent but more than 10 per cent of the registered voters sign the petition, the City Council has the choice of calling a special election or placing the issue on the ballot at the next general election—in this case, in April, 1956.

After receiving the petitions and determining that they are signed by more than 10 per cent of the registered voters, the Council could also adopt the ordinance rather than place the issue on the ballot.

As of May 23, the city had 17,963 registered voters.

Gyler said he would appear before the City Council, July 26, to ask that body to adopt the ban on drilling.

"We'll give them the ball, and

George Pierce, 46, of 14733 Thornlake Ave., Norwalk, suffered back and leg injuries when he fell 15 feet from the side of a derrick on Terminal Island near the freeway bridge Saturday afternoon.

U.S. to Launch Second Atomic Sub Thursday

GROTON, Conn. (AP) — The world's second atomic submarine, the Seawolf, will be launched Thursday exactly 18 months after her predecessor, the Nautilus, first hit the water.

Mrs. W. Sterling Cole, wife of the New York congressman, will sponsor the Seawolf, third submarine to bear the name.

The giant submersible is slightly longer than a football field and displaces more than 3,000 tons. Her speed is rated in excess of 20 knots submerged.

Externally the Seawolf is virtually sister ship of the 3,000-ton Nautilus, which went to sea last January and currently is on active duty with the fleet.

Mutiple Taxes

Announcement of a 23-cent county tax increase does not seem staggering by itself. Neither does a 17-cent increase in school district taxes nor a 7-cent city tax increase. But when you add just these three subdivisions together you find a combined tax increase of 47 cents for each $100 assessed valuation in Long Beach. These are all direct property taxes. In total they will cost Long Beach property owners over $2 million more in taxes than they paid the preceding year.

In addition to these property taxes it appears certain Long Beach will have a 1 per cent sales tax. This will cost Long Beach residents another $3.5 million a year. We are virtually forced to assess such a sales tax due to

By BEN ZINSER

Dedicating themselves to "friendship and good will among all people," 75 of the world's most beautiful women Saturday night made their premiere appearance in the 1955 Miss Universe Beauty Pageant.

Before an assembly of nearly 10,000 Southland residents in Veterans Memorial Stadium, the contestants, representing 32 foreign nations and most of the United States, stood and recited the Miss Universe Creed.

In the still night air they chorused: "We, representing the countries of the world in the Miss Universe Beauty Pageant, in order to further the cause of peace, justice and mutual understanding, do solemnly dedicate ourselves to the highest ideals a state law allowing counties to assess such a tax where a city does not already have one. But adding this amount to the property tax increases, Long Beach will be paying over $5 million a year more in taxes to these three branches of government. That is about the amount of total city taxes collected last year.

Before other cities or county areas gloat over the increase for Long Beach it should be recognized that most of them already have such taxes or will be included in these increases. It is an example of how we are building up crushing tax loads by our multiple taxing system. In addition to the above, there are some increased state taxes and the state is expected to spend more money than it takes in from taxes next year. It will be spending part of the surplus built up over the past prosperous years. It is a good time to look for costly services we can do without as new needs are developed.

Some hope is held that a reduction in federal income taxes may be provided next year. But at the same time there is talk of increased gasoline taxes for greater highway construction. It is probable any income tax reduction will be offset by taxes on sales. There is little hope of reduction of over-all federal taxes as long as the cold war is a threat to our security.

There is an even greater threat of increased property taxes in the trend in force by government agencies. That is the trend whereby private capital is encouraged to build buildings or roads and lease them to the government agencies. These agencies have found it difficult, or impossible, to get bond issues voted by the people for such projects. They cannot provide the large sums from current taxes. Therefore, they make a deal with private capital to build the projects with a guarantee from the government agency to pay all the cost with interest over an extended period.

Thus a courthouse costing $10 million may be rejected by the voters when voting bonds. So the agency goes ahead and has it built and pays the private capital rent over a long period, which probably means $20 million or more, including interest. The cost is then added on to annual property taxes. The people pay the bill even though they rejected the proposition on the ballot.

It is a reasonable method of financing. But the danger is that it opens the door to almost unlimited spending by public officials. It also opens the door to graft, which might occur through rental fees and preferential deals between public officials and private capital. Actually it completely circumvents the principle whereby the people must vote bond issues for large capital expenditures by local governments.

There is no limit to the extent this system can be used. It could apply to roads, schools, public buildings, airports or harbor facilities. It can be used for almost any capital expenditure of government. A strong pressure group, working with a pliable city council, county supervisors or school board, can make such deals regardless of the public's attitude. We have no criticism of the many deals made to date by the state and county government, or the few made by our city government. But it is a dangerous trend that needs to be watched. There should be some greater safeguards placed around the making of such deals by all public bodies.—L.A.C.

Ike Reaches Geneva in Peace Crusade

and French Premier Faure, arriving earlier, also expressed notes of cautious optimism that the six-day conference will make progress in finding a way out of the decade of cold war.

Soviet Premier Bulganin, due here today, has sought to add to the atmosphere of optimism.

Preisdent Eisenhower, after leaving his plane, reviewed an honor guard of Swiss troops with a practiced eye and shook hands with the commander of the guard.

Mrs. Eisenhower was handed a big bouquet of red roses.

On his way from the airport to his lakeside villa at Creux-D-Genthod just outside Geneva, Eisenhower was cheered and applauded by crowds. All side roads along the route had been closed by troops and police.

A similar welcoming ceremony greeted Eden and Faure on their arrival.

U.S. Secretary of State Dulles and Mrs. Dulles, who had arrived a short time before the President, drove to the Geneva "White House" with him. The President then conferred a half hour with Dulles.

White House press secretary James Hagerty said the President planned to eat a light dinner and go to bed early. He will attend services at the American Church of Geneva this morning and then confer with British Prime Minister Eden, French Premier Faure and their foreign ministers. The group will have lunch with Eisenhower at the villa.

Tonight, Hagerty said, the President will see Eden alone at his villa and Faure an hour later.

There had been no move yet to bring the President together with Soviet Premier Bulganin, expected to arrive via Berlin at 10 a.m. (2 a.m. PDT) today, or with West German Chancellor Adenauer, who will arrive at the Swiss vacation resort of Muerren Monday.

Bulganin said nothing as he climbed into his plane at Moscow airport. But only Friday he told correspondents there was "no reason to believe the basis of future peace cannot be assured."

Eden and Faure arrived on separate planes from their respective capitals in a similar mood.

In most of Geneva's churches today prayers will be said for the success of the summit conference. A formal service of intercession will be held in the Protestant Cathedral of Geneva St. Pierre Monday morning under auspices of the World Council of Churches.

On Sunday night American evangelist Billy Graham will hold a special meeting in the Parc Des Eaux Vives overlooking Lake Geneva and the Palace of Nations.

Graham, who drew 30,000 Swiss to a revival meeting here last month, is returning to make a special appeal for the success of the conference. A two-continent radio hookup has been arranged for the service.

Congress Urged to Take Over Capital Transit

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress will be asked to cancel the franchise of the strike-bound Capital Transit Co. so the Washington city commissioners can operate it until the franchise legally expires a year from now.

This was announced Saturday night by Samuel Spencer, one of the three commissioners who form the District of Columbia's city government.

This development came as efforts to obtain a 120-day truce in the strike collapsed for a second time.

Washington faced its 17th day of no city buses and streetcars.

Car Plows Into Beach Crowd, 8 Persons Hurt

small baby in a buggy, were near the edge of a small bulkhead when the Traynor car bore down on them.

Mrs. Sophia Dust, 49, of 16848 Bayview Dr., Sunset Beach, suffered a back injury as she dove into the water. It was not known whether the car struck her or whether she was injured by her dive.

A companion, Mrs. Joseph Unger, 29, of 16863 Bayview Dr., Sunset Beach, said she heard the brakes squeal and turned to see the car bearing down on them.

Mrs. Unger said the next thing she knew she and her 7-year-old daughter, Candy, were in the water with Mrs. Dust. Both suffered shock.

Mrs. Unger said Mrs. Dust was lying with her head in the water and that she dragged her to the bank.

Mrs. Unger's 5½-month-old son, Tommy, was lying in his baby buggy below the bulkhead and the car flew through the air over the top of the buggy but did not hit it.

A sixth person on the bulkhead, George Ferreira, 50, of 123 Pacific Coast Hwy., suffered a broken ankle as he dove into the water ahead of the car.

Conklin suffered a concussion and Miss Traynor suffered multiple abrasions of the head and body.

All the injured, except Mrs. Bick who was treated by a private physician, were brought to Community Hospital here. Conklin, Ferreira and Mrs. Dust were admitted and the others were released after treatment.

All were reported in good condition Saturday night.

Sunset Beach volunteer fireman were on hand after the accident to handle the crowd of more than 300 people who gathered at the scene. Several skin divers swimming in the area searched the car in the water after it was erroneously reported that a small baby had been in it.

At the point where the accident occurred, the water is about 10 feet from the highway. Between the highway and the water is a soft shoulder about 6 feet wide extending to the bulkhead, which runs along the water about 3 feet from the edge.

Witnesses said that if the car had gone off the highway about 50 feet before it did it would have plunged through about 100 bathers on the beach.

One of the factors that kept the toll low was that the water off the bulkhead was posted with signs reading, "Deep Hole—Don't Swim."

Vatican Happy, Dubious at Mindszenty Freeing

By FRANK BRUTTO

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Vatican received reports of the temporary release of Josef Cardinal Mindszenty Saturday night with joy and with fingers crossed.

The news was taken immediately to Pope Pius XII, who six years ago expressed his sorrow at the imprisonment of Hungary's Roman Catholic primate before an extraordinary consistory of the Cardinals here.

There was no official comment on Budapest's announcement.

But one of the principal editors of the Vatican newspaper L'Osservatore Romano said, "We must wait and see."

This editor, noting the announcement was made on the eve of the Geneva Big Four conference, said:

"Obviously propaganda was a motive."

He also said the exact terms of the release are not yet known and that, "at best, like Alojzijc Cardinal Stepinac of Yugoslavia, he would still be impeded from functioning as a prelate of the Roman Catholic Church."

"If he (Mindszenty) is not well now, that is a result of his years of jail," the editor said. "He was well before he went on trial. And as for being old—well, he is only 63."

Available Vatican sources said they did not know exactly what role Hungarian Catholic bishops played in the case.

Little of the church hierarchy in Hungary is free.

Communist Hungary announced Saturday night it has freed Cardinal Mindszenty temporarily from prison and he has been given quarters in a church building.

The official Budapest radio said the Hungarian Justice Ministry ordered the interruption of the Roman Catholic prelate's imprisonment and his temporary release because of age and failing health.

Mindszenty is the most celebrated of a group of high Catholic churchmen who have been sent to prison since World War II as an outgrowth of church-state feuds behind the Iron Curtain.

Passenger Suffers Shock in Collision

A 67-year-old woman suffered shock Saturday when the car in which she was a passenger collided with another vehicle at 7th St. and Atlantic Ave.

The victim, Mrs. Amy Appleby, of 715 E. 9th St., was taken to Seaside Hospital. Driver of her car was Don E. Appleby, 16, of 2032 Pattiz Ave., a grandson. The other driver was Alma M. Sperling, 21, of 4503 Elm Ave. Neither driver was injured.

Girls Pledge Efforts for Friendship

of sportsmanship, friendship and good will among all the people of the universe."

As the last words died away, Miriam Stevenson, the current Miss Universe, walked with lighted torch to a globe illuminated by a spotlight.

Then, with the stadium blacked out except for the globe, master of ceremonies Bob Russell and a choir of 50 voices sang:

"O, Lord, light the way;
Be Thou our beacon through the night
That we may banish the darkness of strife,
*And trust in Thy eternal life."

Russell opened the performance with a tribute to the Auxiliary to Children's Memorial Hospital, sponsor of the benefit event. He was introduced by Judy Ware, Miss Welcome to Long Beach, following the overture by the Long Beach Municipal Band.

State contestants were introduced first. They walked past an honor line of servicemen bearing flags of their respective states.

Next were the international contestants, who appeared in native costume. The flags of their nations also were borne by an honorary military guard.

Russell sang the traditional "Spirit of Miss Universe" when Miss Stevenson appeared on the stage.

Six trumpeters heralded the entrance of the contestants. Forty Long Beach Mounted Police served as an honor guard.

Mayor George M. Vermillion presented each entrant a key to the city; and Mrs. Vermillion handed each a rhinestone bandolier.

The girls in turn presented gifts to the mayor.

Some of them were:

Miss Delaware, a pass to the toll bridge at Newcastle, Del.; Miss Arkansas, an Arkansas Traveler's certificate; Miss Iowa, two ears of hybrid corn to plant in his garden; Miss North Dakota, five-pound sack of flour; Miss Oregon, a piece of myrtlewood; Miss Virginia, a Smithfield ham; Miss Illinois, a set of bookends;

Miss Missouri, a baseball with autographs of the Cardinal team; Miss Wyoming, an oil lease to 80 acres of land at Teapot Dome; Miss Tennessee, an "original" Davy Crockett coonskin cap; Miss Indiana, a model racing car; Miss Colorado, gold cuff links; Miss Massachusetts, a work of Pilgrim art; Miss California, crate of oranges; Miss Argentine, a poncho; Miss Belgium, a Brussels doll; Miss France, a bottle of champagne; Miss Germany, a bottle of cologne.

One of the hits of the evening was the presentation to the mayor by Miss Sweden of a red, white and blue stocking cap similar, she explained, to those worn in heavy snow in Lappland.

Russell reminded the Nordic beauty that it doesn't snow in Long Beach.

"One never knows," she retorted, as the crowd roared. Then she placed the heavy cap on the mayor's perspiring head.

Another highlight came when Miss Nebraska's turn came and she said her small token would be a kiss as an example of Nebraskan hospitality.

She promptly delivered the kiss, amid whistles and applause.

Entertainment acts were presented by the champion Bell Rough Riders Drum and Bugle Corps, the Otis Twirlerettes and trick riders Pat North and Vivian Dorr.

A fireworks display concluded the performance as the Municipal Band played "Saber Dance."

OLD SOL AND MISS CEYLON PALS

Heat Wilts 3 Charmers

Three shapely Miss Universe constestants wilted Saturday, right on schedule.

In previous contests, the girls always weathered the first two days in good shape, but a few fainted when photographers posed them under a hot sun for the panorama bathing suit shot on the beach.

Saturday, three didn't faint but they were close to keeling over and had to be helped from their perches. The fast-paced posing schedule, popping flash bulbs and the sun apparently were a bit too much.

But, after a short rest in the shade, the three rejoined the group for more pictures.

Miss Israel—buxom Ilana Carmel, 19, of Batyam, Israel—was the first to go.

Miss Finland—19½-year-old Sirkku Talja of Helsinki—was next, followed by Miss Guatemala—Maria Del Rosario Molina Cajcon of Guatemala City.

However, while the three were resting, Miss Ceylon—Maureen Hingert, 18, of Colombo—glanced at the sun and then winked at a newsman:

"This is my cup of tea," she said.

Stowaway Jailed After Fare Paid

HONOLULU (AP) — Lewis A. Enstedt, 28, employe of the Hughes Aircraft Co., Los Angeles, will be sentenced Monday for stowing away on a United Air Lines flight to Hawaii.

Enstedt went to the Los Angeles Airport Thursday night to see Patricia Warren, a friend, leave for Hawaii. On the spur of the moment, he said, he went aboard the plane.

Enstedt paid his fare when he arrived in Honolulu but was taken into custody by FBI agents.

Lakewood Anti-Oil Group Spurs Drive

if they won't carry it, we'll circulate the initiative petition for the referendum," the attorney stated.

Controversy arose over the oil issue when Standard Oil Co. submitted an application two months ago for a permit to drill on 18 acres of land approximately 300 feet south of Carson and Paramount. The lease which the company holds with Lakewood Park Corp. interests expires next fall.

As provided in the existing ordinance governing the granting of drilling permits, the application was forwarded to the City Planning Commission for a public hearing.

The L.O.L.A. group, headed by Mrs. Ray Clark, 4702 Hayter Ave., circulated petitions against allowing drilling anywhere in the city limits and presented them, with 3,600 signatures, to the Planning Commission at the hearing.

The commission voted 5 to 0 to recommend denial of Standard Oil's application.

When the issue reached the Council, another hearing was conducted and the application was referred to the Planning Commission for clarification of several points. One was to investigate a charge that petitioners against the drilling "misrepresented the issue" with claims that oil wells would be placed in residents' back yards if the petition were not signed.

Questionnaires are being sent to 160 of the petition signers in an effort to determine if they were misled by the circulators.

Promises by the Council have been made repeatedly that no drilling will be permitted north of Carson.

Standard Oil representatives hold that their proposed operation would in no way be objectionable to the city and point out that it would add to the taxable assessed valuation of the city, school district and park district.

Ex-FBI Man Joins Probe of L.B. Tidelands

A former FBI man turned attorney and legislator has been named to fill a vacancy on the legislative committee to make a between-sessions investigation of the Long Beach tidelands situation.

He is H. Allen Smith, Glendale Republican, who lost the Assembly speakership by a squeak to Assemblyman Luther Lincoln of Alameda. Smith fills the spot on the interim committee left vacant by Le Roy Lyon, Fullerton, who resigned from the Legislature to represent private interests.

The five-man legislative committee has been asked by Chairman Gordon Fleury, Sacramento Republican, to meet late in August to organize for the study. The Legislature voted for the interim investigation as an alternative to adoption of the bill sponsored by Assemblyman Bruce Allen, San Jose Republican, which would have seized all of Long Beach's tidelands money. (See editorial page for discussion of committee makeup.)

Jet Plane's Blast Stirs Alarm Here

An earthshaking explosion, apparently from a jet plane, rattled windows and shook house foundations in North Long Beach and Lakewood areas Saturday afternoon, frightening several hundred residents and flooding police and Independent, Press-Telegram switchboards with calls.

CAA tower operators at Long Beach Municipal Airport said the blast, which occurred about 5 p. m., probably came from a jet aircraft over the area starting up its afterburners while climbing.

Several hundred residents rushed into the streets in the vicinities of 5900 Lewis Ave. and 4500 Lakewood Blvd.

Police switchboard operators said they received about 40 phone calls from residents who described the explosion as "resembling an earthquake" or "sounding like a bomb."

Independent, Press-Telegram operators received about the same number of calls.

Soap Box Derbyist's Car Injures 3 Tots

SAN DIEGO (AP)—Three young children were injured Saturday when a Soap Box Derby entrant lost control of his racer and it ran into a line of spectators. Daniel Lloyd, 3, who suffered a skull fracture, was taken to a hospital for surgery. Thomas Lockwood, 7, and his brother, James, 4, suffered minor injuries.

New VHF Radio Band 'Foolproof'

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (UP)—The continent's defenders are bouncing radio beams off unseen "ceilings" 60 miles high to signal the approach of enemy aircraft, it was disclosed Saturday.

Professor William H. Radford of Massachusetts Institute of Technology told of voice and teletype transmission that is almost foolproof at distances up to 1,100 miles.

Radford heads the communications division of MIT'S Lincoln Laboratory, the supersecret organization charged with mapping North American air defense.

Global Beauties, Ninth Graders All the Same to Pageant Nurse

While other first-timers in backstage jobs at the Miss Universe Pageant wonder whether they can stand the strain of the coming activities, Rose Geckler, 41 Corinthian Walk, feels right at home.

"I'll just be doing the same things I do the rest of the year," explains Miss Geckler, Long Beach public school nurse who is looking after the health of the beauty contestants for the duration.

"My ninth graders at Washington Junior High are close to the age of these girls, and I expect the same kind of first aid complaints," the nurse said.

"Blisters from new shoes, fainting from excitement, emotional disturbances, headaches and maybe a sore throat," she predicted. "That will about cover it, and in case there's anything serious we have a board of physicians on call.

"Sunburn will be a problem, too. Some of these girls aren't used to our clear California skies."

Opening day of the pageant was a particularly restful one for the official nurse.

"I guess the girls were too busy registering and having their pictures taken to feel sick," she said. "The only one who came in for treatment was a United Press man with a sore finger. He told me he cut it shaving while half asleep."

"I feel sorry for those girls," she continued. "They have such a busy schedule — some days they start at 9 a.m. and keep going till midnight.

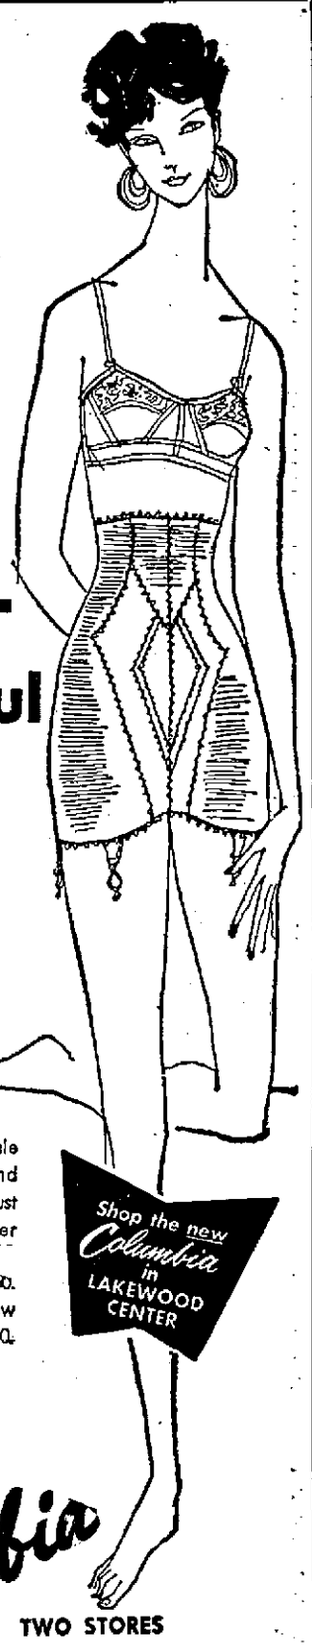

"It must be a terrible strain with the eliminations night after night. We'll begin to get some of the nervous cases before the middle of the week. By the final night they'll all be so keyed up anything can happen."

The nurse paused and reflected for a moment.

"Come to think of it," she added, "things get pretty hysterical at school around report card time."

U.S. Faiths Praying for Big 4 Meet

By Associated Press.

The prayers of his countrymen followed President Eisenhower across the Atlantic today and offered him added strength in the quest for world peace.

Clergymen of all faiths responded swiftly to the President's dramatic, pre-departure suggestion for a demonstration of the "depth of our aspirations for peace."

Across the country, rabbis, ministers and priests made quick changes in their weekend services to add their congregations to what the President had termed "a mighty force."

Some, like the Very Rev. James A. Pike, dean of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine (Episcopal), in New York, had anticipated the President's idea. Not only were five peace services to be conducted in the cathedral today, but special prayers for the success of the Geneva conference were offered last Sunday.

The World Council of Churches and the National Council of the Churches of Christ in the U.S.A. already had appealed for special prayers.

And many Americans who could not join in special observances this weekend, without doubt, agreed with the words of Rabbi Maurice Goldblatt, of Indianapolis, who said:

"Those who feel the significance of the President's request will do it instinctively, if not in a house of worship then in their homes."

The Protestant Council of the City of New York submitted to its member clergy a "petition" to be made part of the pastoral prayer during this morning's worship by the city's millions.

"Almighty and eternal God," it said, "Father of all mankind, source of all peace, wisdom, justice and love, we pray Thee to give unto the leaders of the four nations meeting in Geneva a spirit of dependence upon Thee, that their hearts and minds may be open to Thy guidance and Thy will.

"Remove them from the limitations of fear and suspicion and endow them with the power of faith in one another and complete trust in Thee.

"May righteousness and honor, patience and forbearance, undergirded by Divine Grace, bring them to a point of understanding that will produce for our world peace with love."

Baptists Hear Archbishop of Canterbury

LONDON (AP) — The Jubilee Congress of the Baptist World Alliance was told by the Archbishop of Canterbury Saturday that the growing movement for Christian unity offers great hope for mankind.

Welcoming the 7,612 delegates from 60 countries, including 3,600 from the United States, Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, ranking Anglican prelate, referred to the Geneva conference of the Big Four leaders and its impact on history.

"But no less important, and in the end perhaps more important, to the working out of human history," he said, "is this drawing together of the churches of Christ in this ecumenical movement."

The Rev. Luie D. Newton, vice president of the Baptist World Alliance and minister of the Druid Hills Church of Atlanta, Ga., responded to the welcoming addresses of the archbishop and other United Kingdom churchmen.

Newton recalled that the Baptists' first world congress was in Royal Albert Hall, here, 50 years ago.

"In a world left drab and dreary by militarism, materialism and humanism," he said, "our hearts cry out for the living God. We believe the theme of this congress offers the way—the only way—up and out from darkness into light."

Dr. Fisher, the first archbishop of England's established church ever to address the Baptists, spoke in his capacity as president of the British Council of Churches as well as primate of England.

He said the move toward a closer relationship between churches is designed "not to get rid of differences but to examine them and then bring them together as a whole contribution to the teachings of Christ which should be exemplified in His church."

He advised that this movement cannot be unduly hurried, saying it might be better "to go a bit slow—to digest the meal we have taken."

Thurmond Hits High Court

WASHINGTON (UP) — Sen. Strom Thurmond (D-SC) Saturday attacked the Supreme Court for "violating states' rights" and called on southerners to use "every legal means at their command" to retain racial segregation.

In a press release labeled "Special Segregation Statement," he said recent federal court decisions against segregation were without color of law under the constitution.

"Instead, the decisions hinged on the testimony of sociologists and psychologists in the school segregation case," he said. "Now it is clear that the lower courts feel bound to follow the political decision of the Supreme Court in the school cases."

He referred particularly to a decision Thursday by the Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals in Richmond, which held that South Carolina could not enforce racial segregation on buses within the state.

Two Miss New Yorks Pageant Rivals but They Like Each Other

There are two Miss New Yorks at the Miss Universe Beauty Pageant. But make no mistake; one is Miss New York STATE and one is Miss New York CITY.

One is a very tall blonde and one is a medium tall brunette.

And they are good friends.

"We never met before we got to Long Beach," explained Patricia Ann O'Kane, 19, Miss New York City, and Janet Kadlecik, 18, Miss New York, "but we like each other very much."

Patricia, who lives in Valley Stream, is secretary to the treasurer of Bacardi Imports, Inc., 575 Madison Ave., New York. "We import rum and Scotch from Puerto Rico, Cpba, Mexico, Scotland and Ireland," she says.

Does she drink?

"Well, just a little."

Janet, who lives in Johnson City, is just out of high school. She is Photo Queen of the Southern Tier, which means the Southern part of New York. She was chosen from 30 finalists for the New York title in Clinton, N.Y.

Miss New York (City) is 5 feet 8 inches and wears her long blond hair around her shoulders.

Miss New York (State) is 5 feet 6 inches with short dark brown hair.

It is recalled that Jackie Loughery, Miss New York (State) was chosen Miss United States in the first Miss Universe contest, three years ago.

Other "pairs" in this year's Miss Universe contest include Miss Philadelphia and Miss Pennsylvania, Miss St. Louis and Miss Missouri and Miss Miami Beach and Miss Florida.

Typhoon Strikes Kyushu but Loses Strength Rapidly

TOKYO (AP) — A typhoon hit Kyushu Island Saturday, then lost much of its whirling fury as it traveled westward across Japan's southernmost island at about 35 miles an hour.

It was expected to blow itself out completely in the East China Sea, before it reaches China.

Weather trackers said an earlier typhoon which wrecked 280 homes and sank fixe small vessels at Miyako Island, south of Okinawa, blew itself out Saturday along the China coast.

REGIONAL POLITICS

Hosmer Tells GOP to Back Ike Policy

By The Lookout

Rep. Craig Hosmer of Long Beach Saturday night warned an eastern audience of Republicans that the party has some catching up to do if it wants to match President Eisenhower's popularity.

Hosmer spoke at the convention of the Federation of Republican Women of Maryland, in session at Ocean City, Md.

The Long Beach lawmaker put it this way:

"The Republican party may not be the party of a majority of the American people, but our Republican President and his Republican program are favored by a majority of the people. To build a stronger party, Republican candidates, Republican leaders and Republican workers should associate themselves with and support wholeheartedly the leadership and program of our Republican President."

The Democrats are without issues for 1956, according to the Long Beach congressman, who predicted the entire campaign would turn the question of continuing Eisenhower foreign and domestic policies or returning to policies and programs laid down by former President Harry Truman.

"In 1956," Hosmer asserted, "we shall have a showdown battle between those who would nationalize and socialize basic American economic institutions and those who would continue the American economic policies which have been put into effect by this administration and which have worked so well."

Non-White Housing Lack Builds Up Pressure Here

By HERB SHANNON

With the non-white population of Long Beach increasing five times as fast as the areas in which Negroes are permitted to purchase homes, residential segregation is fast creating an explosive social pressure.

This in a nutshell is the conclusion of a minority housing survey conducted for the Civic League by John Hepler, 30, sociologist and former Jordan High School teacher.

The recently-completed survey and its recommendations for speedy integration of non-whites into presently closed neighborhoods is scheduled to be presented to the City Council early next month.

The survey points out that there is no lack of demand for new housing among Negroes here. Nearly four out of five of the families questioned in the 15 sample blocks of a California Ave. district indicated they wished to buy homes.

There is also no lack of ability to pay, according to the survey findings. The median family income was $4,350, ranging up to $6,000. The majority signified willingness to make down payments up to $2,000.

Preference was for new homes or those constructed within the last five years, but some said any home in good repair would be satisfactory.

Location was no great object among the families seeking homes, with preference distributed chiefly between the central area, Lakewood-Los Altos and North Long Beach. Lesser interest was expressed in the Belmont, west Long Beach and harbor areas.

JOHN HEPLER
No Room to Grow

Almost none of the family spokesmen expressed any objection to being the first non-white to enter a new area.

The problem is wholly one of supply, the survey report concludes.

Although 300 single family homes would be required to satisfy the needs of those in the survey area who can make down payments, the canvassers could find only 10 units for sale in areas open to nonwhites.

Negroes seeking homes in Lakewood have been told that nothing is available and are advised to try Compton or Signal Hill, the report states. The principal reason given for refusal in all areas covered was that the seller "knew" his neighbors would object.

Another obstacle to integration is the hesitance of banks and loan agencies to assist Negroes to enter an all-white area.

The denial of benefits of multiple listing, the difficulty in securing mortgage credit and the prejudices of sellers account for the increase of segregation in Long Beach, the survey declares.

The principal district in which non-whites are able to buy homes has increased in area by 18.3 per cent since 1950, the survey states, while the non-white population increased 92.9 per cent.

The report assembled by Hepler from information provided by survey workers from the Civic League, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and the sociology department of Long Beach State College recommends a program of education and civic action to solve the problem before it becomes a crisis.

Hepler urges formation of a commission on intergroup relations, a speakers bureau to address interested groups and the establishment of a branch of the Urban League here.

The program of action should attempt to develop community acceptance of non-whites in accordance with Urban League policies, the report declared.

Hepler announced that representatives of groups interested in social problems will meet Tuesday evening at 2712 Petaluma Ave. to discuss the minority housing report.

W. Miller Barbour, western regional director for the National Urban League, will attend to advise on formation of a Long Beach branch, Hepler said.

Buenos Aires Tense After Peron Edict

BUENOS AIRES (U.P.)—This city's slimmest Saturday papers in years gave major play Saturday to President Juan D. Peron's "swan song" speech and preliminary estimates of its effect on Argentina.

Peron announced Friday he is resigning as head of his powerful Peronist party and restoring constitutional freedom to the country, ending the restrictions imposed on liberty during his 12-year "revolution."

Peron announced his decision to become the non-partisan "President of all Argentines" a month to the day after an abortive revolt by Navy units created a major threat to his regime.

Travelers from Argentina reaching Montevideo said the atmosphere in Buenos Aires is still tense despite the failure of the revolt.

Newspapers averaged only six pages, compared to the eight usual on Saturdays in recent years. They were devoted almost entirely to reports and speculation on Peron's decision.

The big independent newspaper La Nacion received the President's speech with reserve, pointing out that opposition parties are waiting to see whether there will be "full and free play for democratic activities" in the new situation.

The Peronist organ Democracia said Peron's declaration was a plea for "peace," and the union organ La Prensa said the president's stand will be "loyally and fraternally supported" by government-sponsored labor groups.

New Chinese Railway

TOKYO (AP) — Peiping Radio from the Red Chinese capital Saturday reported completion, six months ahead of schedule, of a new railway running northwest through the mountains topped by the great wall. The new line is 65 miles long.

Man Overboard in Race Costs Yacht First Place

HONOLULU (AP)—Peter Grant's sloop Nalu II lost her chance of taking first place in the transpacific yacht race when she had to put about to rescue a crewman who fell overboard, it was learned Saturday.

The Nalu II, a 46-foot craft from Newport Harbor Yacht Club, finished the 2,225-mile race from San Pedro Saturday, in an elapsed time of 12 days, 1 hour, 58 minutes and 48½ seconds. Her corrected handicap time is 9 days, 4 hours, 4 minutes and 43½ seconds.

She thus is second in fleet standings by 55 minutes to the Class A Constellation, owned by Frank Hooykaas of Los Angeles.

The crewman who feel overboard from the Nalu II, a Class C boat, was Joe Grant, a brother of the owner-skipper. He fell overboard Friday afternoonwhile taking a bath. He said he slipped on the soapy deck and was picked up 20 minutes later, still clutching the bar of soap.

In putting about, the Nalu II lost her big spinnaker and, when she resumed course, had to do so with a smaller sail.

The Constellation was considered to be weakening in her hold the lead in the race.

They include:

Staghound, owned by Ira P. Fulmor, Newport Harbor Yacht Club, and winner in 1953, appeared likely to nose out Constellation on a corrected-time basis.

Esprit, owned by Joel B. Cox, Waikiki Yacht Club, Honolulu.

Sea Mist, Elmer Hitchcock, Elkhorn Yacht Club, Salinas, Calif.

Sea Queen, Fred Harris, Los Angeles Yacht Club.

Bali I, Jack Helm, Voyagers' Yacht Club.

An unofficial Coast Guard report put the Staghound 150 miles from the finish and due in at 7 a.m. today. She has until 2:11 p.m. to nose out the Constellation.

The challenge to Constellation's lead lies in the fact that some of the Class C and D boats have handicaps running up to five days.

Mark Twain Earns Money From Grave

REDDING, Conn. (AP)—Mark Twain still is earning money—a considerable amount of it—although he died here 45 years ago.

The annual income of the renowned American humorist, whose real name was Samuel L. Celmens, is higher than that of many a living, breathing author who pounds a typewriter daily.

Publishing houses, motion picture companies and literary agencies paid Twain's estate a total of $11,655.82 in 1954 for the use of his works which are not yet in the public domain.

U.S. Can Win Over Far East by Aiding Asians Attain Their Goals

Walter T. Ridder, chief of The Independent, Press-Telegram Washington Bureau who recently made a fact-finding tour of the Far East, sums up his impressions in two articles for The I, P-T. This is the first.

By WALTER T. RIDDER

The strongest impression gathered by this visitor to the Far East is that the battle for Asia is by no means lost. True, the fight hangs in precarious balance—more precarious in some countries than in others—but that balance need not necessarily be tipped against the free world.

What's needed more than anything else is an American foreign policy which clearly states and which clearly acts that what's good for the Asians is good for the United States; that the U. S. will strive to help Asians attain their legitimate aspirations, and that the ultimate goals of the Asian people are the same as are the ultimate goals of the whole free world.

This can't be done by sending warships and troops to Pacific countries or having jet planes fly over Asian cities.

The U. S. would do well to tone down its military blusterings and emphasize instead its interest in helping the Asians to get what they want.

Far too often present U. S. policy places the U. S. either in direct or in seeming opposition to the desires of the Asiatic people.

Take, for instance, the burning question of colonialism which the Asian people are, with varying degrees of success, seeking to uproot. Despite thousands of honey-eyed words emanating from our side of the Pacific Ocean, the Asian is today frankly skeptical of the depth of our anti-colonial feeling. He believes (more wrongly than rightly, I think), but nonetheless he believes that the U. S. has supported the British, the French and the Dutch in their endeavors to retain control of their Asiatic possessions.

Curiously, the colonial powers believe we did all we could to help the natives in their attempts to gain independence. The net result in that the U. S. has received credit from neither side and has fallen, so to speak, between two stools.

In contrast to the suspicions which have attached themselves to U. S. policy, the Asian Communists have clothed themselves firmly in the garb of nationalism and have been successful in identifying themselves with the nationalistic aspirations of the people.

Indeed the programs of the Communists and the outright nationalists are in many countries indistinguishable and persons who are themselves certainly not Communists are promulgating the party line. By tieing themselves to nationalism—the primary political force in Asia today—the Communists have gained friends and supporters who might well have been on our side had our policy followed a more consistent course.

In that Asiatic nationalism rests perhaps the strongest bulwark against communism. It is not too late to use it. The people of the new independent countries are proud of their freedom. They don't want to be the satellites of the U. S. and they don't want to be satellites of Soviet Russia.

"We worked too hard for our revolution," said one Indonesian official, "to let our country fall again under the domination of a foreign power—whether that power be the Dutch, the U. S. or Russia." The nationalism prevalent everywhere in Asia can be quite as strong a weapon for the free world as it can be against it.

Order Restored

CHALFONT ST. GILES, England (AP)—When the police force went off to take a crime detection course, the youth of Chalfont St. Giles went on a spree of rowdyism. Street lamps were smashed, public notices torn down and public property damaged. Now Constable A. V. Gleeson is back, his course finished and all is quiet again.

Boy Can Be Out Later Than Dad

WICHITA FALLS, Tex. (AP)—An un-named sergeant at Sheppard Air Force Base here is unhappy about the separate curfews imposed by the base and the Wichita Falls city council.

Sheppard AFB imposed at 9 p.m. curfew on airmen, the city council an 11 p.m. curfew on civilian teen-agers, because of gangfights between airmen and the teen-agers.

"My 15-year-old son can stay out until 11 p.m.," the disgruntled sergeant complained to the Wichita Falls Record-News. "I have to be in the house by nine."

47,000 Japs Held

TOKYO (AP)—Seven thousand Japanese are still held prisoner in Red China, the Foreign Office reported Saturday. It added that another 40,000 Japanese, last known to be in Red China, "are unaccounted for."

DRIFT FOR YEARS

Bottles Aid in Charting of Currents

By DON BRACKENBURY

Drifting along over the vast reaches of the seas of the earth are thousands of bottles, each containing a message. Some stared their lonely journey many years ago. Others were thrown into the sea as recently as last week.

Some may carry distress messages. Some may have been cast adrift by romanticists, curious as to their eventual destination.

Most, however, were thrown overboard from ships at the request of the U. S. Navy's Hydrographic Office. Their drift helps hydrographers chart the ocean currents.

Boats in the yacht race from San Pedro to Hawaii the past two weeks, for example, dropped some 325 bottles between here and the islands. These bottles were supplied by the local branch hydrographic office at 1600 Wilmington-San Pedro Rd.

On the basis of previous reports, most of these 325 will drift to the coasts of Australia, New Zealand and New Guinea.

Some bottles make phenomenal journeys. Drifts of 4,000 to 6,000 miles are common. A bottle thrown from a ship in the South Indian Ocean back in May, 1909, was picked up three years later off the tip of Cape Horn after a trip of about 11,820 miles.

Although their courses usually follow definite patterns, the journeys of these bottles often is capricious. In 1928, a merchant vessel cast 10 bottles overboard in the Atlantic Ocean near the equator. One washed ashore on the west coast of Africa after drifting 130 days. Another landed on the coast of Nicaragua after drifting 196 days.

Why did one bottle head east and one west? And what happened to the other eight? Are they still wandering over the seas?

In 1949, a bottle finally landed that had been drifting for 47 years.

It carried a message dated June 24, 1902, and signed by the American explorer, Evelyn Baldwin, who then was believed to have died in the Arctic. Its message read:

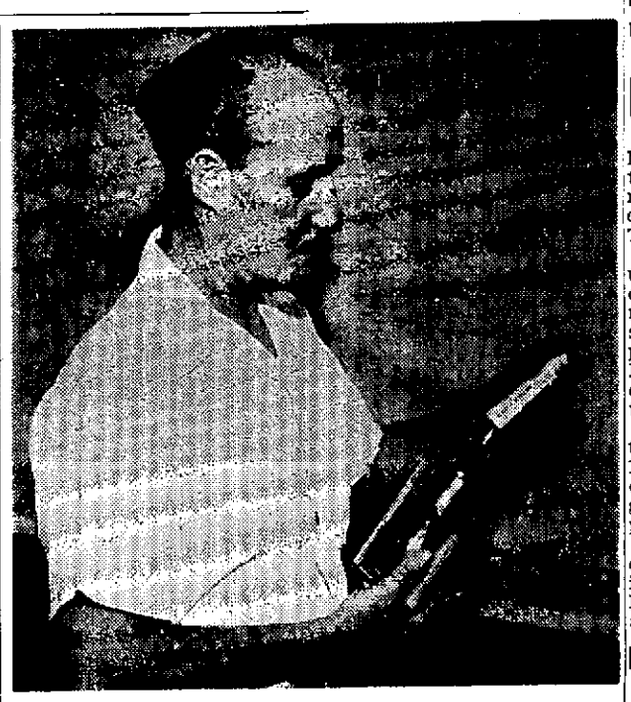

"Five ponies and 150 dogs remaining. Desire hay, fish and 30 sledges. Must return by early August. Baldwin."

Fortunately, Baldwin and his party won through to safety. He died a natural death in New York in 1933—16 years before the sea delivered his message for help.

The Navy Hydrographic Office bottles contain a more prosaic message. It is a printed form, in eight languages, which asks the finder to return the form to the main office in Washington, D.C. The forms call for the time and place the bottle was found.

The Hydrographic Office has a lot of competitors in the bottle-message business. Most of them do it as a hobby. Lt. Comdr. Earl R. Baker, who heads the branch hydrographic office here, says the Navy has no objection at all.

It asks only that persons who find a Hydrographic Office bottle send the message to Washington. There is no money for rewards, but the finder will receive a letter of appreciation and a souvenir pilot chart of the bottle's course.

Mayor Finds 'Progress' in Bus Peace

LOS ANGELES (UP)—Mayor Norris Poulson declared today that "definite progress" has been made toward reaching settlement of the 27-day-old Los Angeles Transit Lines strike.

His statement was made as union and management officials concluded a meeting in the mayor's office. The mayor had a special police guard since a telephone caller threatened his life Friday. The call was not believed connected with the transit situation.

Poulson said a "full-scale negotiation meeting" will be held at 11 a.m. Monday in the mayor's office and "I am positive we will get action as fast as hamanly possible."

Commissioner Harry Malcom of the Federal Conciliation Service also attended today's session. He has been attempting to find a basis for agreement.

Solons Probe Quickie Deals In Babies

CHICAGO (AP)—Senate investigators heard testimony Saturday of "quickie" baby adoption deals with ramifications in New York, Iowa, Indiana and Duluth, Minn.

Three mothers whose babies were subjects of transactions testified from behind a large screen in the old U. S. courthouse hearing room from where the Senate subcommittee on juvenile delinquency held its third and final day of Chicago hearings.

The mothers' identities were not disclosed. Two merely affirmed statements of their experiences read by subcommittee counsel Ernest A. Mitler.

A third mother who testified from behind the screen sobbed uncontrollably at times as she related that her baby had been taken from her by a subterfuge.

This mother testified that she was shown a death certificate actually pertaining to another child, on which her baby's name had been entered.

The testimony was heard by Sen. Kefauver (D-Tenn), chairman of the subcommittee, and another member, Sen. Langer (R-N.Dak.)

Rain Pelts East Areas, Northwest

By the Associated Press

Showers and thunderstorms were general Saturday over much of the nation's eastern half, and there was light rain in Oregon and Washington.

Amounts varied up to a two-inch accumulation at Syracuse, N. Y., in a 24-hour period. Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., recorded more than one inch.

It was mostly cloudy from the upper and middle Mississippi valley eastward to the Atlantic coast, and partly cloudy over much of the rest of the country.

Temperatures were hottest in the southwest desert region, the mercury climbing to the 104-degree mark at Needles, Calif., by early afternoon.

Need USO More in Peace Than War, Says Hall

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Adm. John Leslie Hall Jr., (USN-Ret.) said today the United Service Organization is more necessary in peacetime than during war.

"I am one of those who believe that what USO does is more important in peacetime," the admiral said. He was appointed national fund - raising chairman for the 1955 USO campaign by President Eisenhower.

"Everybody's morale is high while the fighting is on," Hall said, "but in the apathy of peace, a man in uniform feels he loses a little caste with the public," Hall said. "The USO helps correct this by providing recreation, entertainment and spiritual and moral guidance."

Benny Granddad, and Over 39, Too

NEW YORK (AP)—The jig is up for Jack Benny. He became a grandfather Saturday.

The famed comedian has been telling his audiences for years that he is only 39 years old. Now that he's a grandfather, he'll have to jack up the figure.

Joan Benny Baker, adopted daughter of Benny and his wife, Mary Livingstone, gave birth to a boy at Mount Sinai Hospital. She is the wife of Seth Baker, a New York stock broker.

Sabotage Hinted in Mexico Crash

MEXICO CITY (AP)—The newspaper Ultimas Noticias said Saturday sabotage may have caused Thursday's crash of an airliner near Oaxaca in which 22 were reported killed.

The newspaper quoted Tomas Calderon, manager of the Lausa Airline, as saying a bomb exploded while the plane was in flight.

Among the victims was a newly-elected congressman. The newspaper speculated political motives might be behind the sabotage.

Tax-Dodger Convictions Up 100 Pct.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department reported Saturday that criminal convictions under the internal revenue laws in the first half of this year were more than double those in the same period of 1952.

More than 99 per cent of the cases involved income-tax evasions.

In a mid-year report to Atty. Gen. Brownell, Asst. Atty. Gen. H. Brian Holland, who runs the tax division, listed 389 convictions for income-tax and social-security-tax violation. The latter accounted for only a slight fraction of the total.

Holland said this compared with 190 similar convictions in the first six months of 1952.

George Raps House Foreign Aid Cut

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. George (D-Ga) said Saturday the House cut too deeply into foreign aid funds and he will fight to restore at least a part of the $628,000,000 slash.

George, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said he is particularly concerned by House action cutting in half a 200 million dollar fund requested by the President for Asian economic development.

The House Appropriations Committee contended that only 100 millions of this amount would be spent in the current year. Administration leaders said approval of the full amount is needed in order to set up longer range projects.

George said he regards this fund as "one of the most important" of those included under the $3,285,000,000 foreign aid ceiling previously authorized by Congress. Eisenhower asked $3,266,000,000 in actual appropriations and the House cut these to $2,638,000,000.

"I think the House cut much too deeply, even assuming that some of the cuts might be justified," George said. "I hope that some of these funds are restored and I shall work toward that end."

Quaint Old Latin Custom Frowned On in Rome Now

ROME (AP)—This city of romantic ways has started a police crackdown on pappagalli — the parrots.

That's the name in Roman dialect for sidewalk loafers whose remarks offend women tourists.

For years police overlooked it as just an old Latin custom. This summer, police headquarters sent out orders for the crackdown because the parrots were becoming more aggressive.

Gas Bill 'Dead'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Qualified congressional sources said Saturday the bill to exempt independent natural gas producers from federal control is dead for this session of Congress unless President Eisenhower firmly endorses it.

Russ Farm Experts Land; Hosts Plan Diplomatic Food, Not Talk

NEW YORK (UP)—Fifteen Russian agricultural experts arrived here for a U.S. farm tour Saturday and were promised that they would hear only the international language of food, not diplomatic talk, during their stay.

Following the old adage, "The way to a man's heart is through his stomach," Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Earl L. Butz told the visitors:

"If the world has any universal language, it is the language of food. We expect to speak to you in that language during your stay with us."

The 15 Russians from the land of potatoes, black bread and beets arrived en route to Iowa to see how the tall corn grows. A 12-man delegation of American farmers landed in Moscow Friday night, in the first exchange of technical missions between the U. S. and Russia since the start of the cold war.

Joe Costa, chairman of the board of the National Press Photographers' Association, welcomed the Russian delegation in behalf of the press and gave each of the 15 a 35-milimeter camera worth $50.

"Use these cameras as often as you can wherever you go," Costa told the beaming 15.

He told them that photographers believe "one picture is worth 1,000 words," and that they should take pictures of America and Americans home to their friends and families.

The Russians ranged from 39 to 58 years of age. None was identified as a farmer. All represented government groups or publications and were listed as agronomists, agricultural scientists or technicians.

"We believe firmly that it will be good for both of our nations to understand each other," Butz said in greeting the party.

He told the men they would visit "typical" midwestern farms and homes and would meet the families. American farmers are "staunchly independent," Butz told the delegation. They own their own farms, livestock and equipment, he said, and their whole way of life "typifies the American system of free enterprise."

There are "no secrets" to the American agricultural system, Butz said.

Americans Favored Guests at Exhibition

MOSCOW (UP)—A group of American farm experts cheerfully munched prize peaches, apples and cherries Saturday at the vast Soviet Agricultural Exhibition. Ordinary visitors are forbidden to touch the fruit.

The 12 Americans were driven around the exhibition grounds in seven limousines, accompanied by Acting Director A. N. Tsitsin.

Ordinarily, visitors walk through the exhibition which is in dozens of buildings in an area of several hundred acres.

The Americans visited the main exhibition hall and the building of the Georgian Republic. They were greeted everywhere by managers of the individual exhibits.

Although ordinary visitors are strictly forbidden to touch the exhibits, the Americans were offered platters of fruit and ate with relish.

They said that what they saw and ate was very good and comparable to fruits in the U.S.

Delegation leader W. V. Lambert, dean of the college of agriculture of the University of Nebraska, called the exhibition "magnificent."

He added that American state and county fairs, which receive no government subsidies, could not match this one.

The delegation, which arrived here Friday, probably will leave Monday night for Kharkov by train and start its month-long tour of the Ukraine, Caucasus and Central Asia.

Brazilians Cheer as Papal Legate Lands for Ceremony

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP)—Cheering Brazilians greeted Papal Legate Benedetto Cardinal Aloisi Masella Saturday as he arrived aboard the Italian liner Augustus to preside over the 36th International Eucharistic Congress.

The congress opens Tuesday. Two million persons, including 20,000 from foreign lands, are expected to participate in the 8,000 masses which will be celebrated in the five days of the congress and the two days of preliminary religious services. Eighty-eight clergymen and laymen from the United States will be on hand.

Dressed in a red silk robe with a lace surplice, Cardinal Aloisi Masella stopped several times on the ship's landing stairway to bless the enthusiastic throng. As he walked down, preceded by Vatican Swiss Guardsmen, guns of the Brazilian army and navy thundered a 21-gun salute. Four jet planes roared overhead and ships in the harbor blew their whistles in greeting.

The congress, fourth to be held in the Western Hemisphere, is one of the richest and most colorful religious manifestations in the world. It is designed to emphasize the importance of the Eucharist, or the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper, in the daily lives of men.

Dear Dr. Chan: "The day I came to your office with my mother and brother I was about to give up hope of getting rid of my asthma attacks. I spent hundreds of dollars for shots and pills, but yet found no results. After reading your advertisement, I tried you for my last resort and was thrilled to find that I responded wonderfully. After the first treatment, I was able to breathe normally and could sleep better for the first time in months. Now I am feeling fine and hoping others will benefit from my experience with Dr. Chan's Natural Method."
Signed: Mrs. Vivian Murray.

To Whom It May Concern: "For over 30 years I have been going from one doctor's office to another hopin' to find someone to help me with my asthma and stomach condition. No one knows how much I had suffered until I came to Dr. Chan. Night after night I had to sit up because I wasn't able to lie down to sleep. I was coughing and wheezing most of the night, besides my stomach was full of gas. After taking Dr. Chan's Herbal Therapy for one week, I began to improve. Now, after five months of continuous treatment, my asthma and stomach troubles are just about over. I wish to recommend this treatment to anyone who is anxious to get well. Universe Lovelies Parade Today!

LOOK out, world, here comes the Davy Crockett song.

The ballad about the guy from the wild frontier will be carried to the far corners by the Miss Universe lovelies if a steel-throated beauty from Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania named Marianne Marcus continues the vocal crusade she started on the SS Shearwater Friday eve.

Aided by some American teammates, Miss Marcus collected a group of foreign girls on the deck of the sightseeing boat taking the beauties on a night tour of our harbor waters.

It turned out Miss Marcus knew just about all the songs that Americans have been singing for a generation or two. She sang 'em, from Moonlight Bay on through, and she had the foreign lasses singing with her, regardless of their knowledge of the words or even the English language. The Crockett thing, of course, topped the bill.

Possibly the most enthusiastic participants were Claudie Petit, Miss France, and Nicole de Meyer, Miss Belgium. They left the boat humming the song about the man who knew no fear.

THERE was some Scandinavian singing, too, on the Shearwater.

Miss Sweden (Hillevi Rombin) and Miss Norway (Solveig Borstad) gathered with Scandinavian friends on the side of the craft as it passed first a Norwegian and then a Swedish ship tied up at Pier A.

And they sang, as loudly as they could so the crewmen could hear, some of the favorite songs of the north country. Nostalgia must have been pretty thick way up on those high decks, where men leaned over the rails and waved.

A BLONDE beauty on the Shearwater who said she likes enemy country was Marlies Gessler, Miss Florida.

This sweet gal told me she had to confess California isn't bad at all. But she's lived only four years in Florida, having been born in Poland and having lived most of her short life in Germany.

When Jim McGarrigle, who was present to lead a little singing himself, asked her if she liked California orange juice, she said:

"I had one drink of it and it seemed very good. But of course, I was very thirsty at the time."

ANOTHER quip from Mary Miles Daughters, Miss Texas, who was asked how come she's not six feet tall, as Texas gals are supposed to be.

"Oh, we've been having a drought in Texas," she said. "Things aren't growing quite so big."

I HAD A little talk with Dorothey Bewley, Miss Colorado, who told me how she got the news she had been chosen.

She and a flock of other contestants were on the stage of a Denver theater. Dorothey, who doubted if she had a chance, was doing a little quiet praying over at the end of the line, oblivious to her surroundings.

And then the girl next to her shook her. "You're it," she cried.

A MAN WRITES his record as he goes along, I've often said, and a part of mine rose up to mock me on the Shearwater.

It happens that a couple of years ago I was one of a panel of judges who selected a regional queen for the Amvets. Among the contestants was a little gal named Donna Schurr.

Donna placed third in that contest. This year, she was chosen Miss California for the Miss Universe pageant. I've already had a letter or two from Garden Grove asking how I would wiggle out of that one.

Well, I saw Donna on the Shearwater and disclosed my identity. "You've developed some since then," I said. "And besides that, I'm sure I voted for you in the Amvets and was outvoted by the other judges."

Donna looked unconvinced.

"Listen," she said. "This is fine. But that time, you judges kept me from a trip clear to Florida. This time, I win—and I get a trip of 12 miles."

My friends are always talking enviously to me because I get to serve now and then as a beauty judge. "It's nice work if you can get it," they say.

Nice work, all right. But it has its hazards.

15 Latin-American Girls Modest Over Title Hopes

Below Border Beauty May Be Pageant Victor

This may be Latin America's year in the Miss Universe Beauty Pageant, the pundits of pulchritude believe.

Fifteen of the 32 international entries this year hail from nations south of the border. Percentagewise, that gives the Spanish and Portuguese-speaking beauties a better than average opportunity to be represented in the finals of the 1955 contest.

The Latin girls themselves are divided in opinion as to their chances to wind up wearer of the $250,000 Miss Universe crown.

"I don't lose my hopes," remarked blond Inge Hoffman (Miss Uruguay). The Montevideo girl's blue eyes sparkled when someone mentioned the Miss Universe title.

"Not a chance," said dark-haired Rosa Merello, 18, of Santiago (Miss Chile). Senorita Merello doesn't speak English and answered in Spanish.

Her interpreter, Isabel Sarli, 25, (Miss Argentina) repeated the question. Senorita Merello then amended her answer.

"Chile says that the Latin American girls have the same chance to win," Miss Argentina said. She then added her own comment: "All the girls are beautiful."

"I would like heartily for a Latin American girl to be Miss Universe," said 19-year-old Maribel Arrieta (Miss El Salvador).

"But Miss England is very beautiful," she continued.

Miss El Salvador, a green-eyed blonde who resembles Marilyn Monroe, said that Miss Brazil (Emilia Barreto Correa Lima) is another of her favorites.

"She is very elegant," Senorita Arrieta said.

Yolanda Mayen, 18-year-old brownette from Tijuana (Miss Mexico) said, "All the girls are beautiful—no exceptions."

Asked to describe the typical Latin American girl, Miss Mexico said that "she has sympathy . . . she is friendly."

Leonor Carcache (Miss Ecuador) showed no concern over the outcome of the judging.

"We are happy to be here," she said in precise English.

Even those Latin American press representatives in Long Beach for the pageant couldn't make up their minds, but Almeida Castro of the Associated Dailies of Fortaleza, Brazil, summed up the consensus:

"We are hopeful that one of the Latin American girls will win."

Walter Batista Moreno, of the Brazilian magazine, O Povo, admitted, however, that he likes Miss England.

Joao Martins, writer for another Brazilian periodical, O Cruzeino, put it this way:

"If we don't win, we are not angry. The thing is to contest, not to win."

Bike Riders Start Across U.S. Monday

Two youths will leave Long Beach Monday on a coast-to-coast bicycle ride which they hope will condition them for possible participation in Olympic Games cycling events.

They are David Grebner, 20, of 2312 Carfax Ave., and Russell Phares, 23, of Philadelphia, both students at California State Polytechnic College at San Dimas.

The youths will dip the front wheels of their bicycles in the Pacific Ocean this afternoon, a ceremony they hope to repeat in the waters of the Atlantic Ocean in about 30 days.

The pair will head for Phares' home in Philadelphia, then may turn north to New York and a tour of the New England states if they have time before school opens in the fall.

Time will also decide whether they will ride the bikes back to California or ship them and return by train.

UNOFFICIAL, BUT---

Miss Nebraska Favored for Her Congeniality

The unofficial judging for the title of Miss Congeniality, to be bestowed on the Miss Universe contestant who proves to be the friendliest, is under way—and the favorite seems to be Miss Nebraska, Donna Streever.

Not unaware that the prejudging has begun, Donna has been charming all and sundry since her arrival here for the contest.

Saturday night, Donna presented Mayor George Vermillion a gift not calculated to lose her any votes.

Traditionally each contestant presents the mayor a gift, symbolic of the country or state she represents.

"I'm going to give him a kiss, from the hospitable state of Nebraska," Donna said in a pregiving interview.

Yessir, the Mail Must Go Through

Postman Robert (Rusty) Rutherford is wheeling his heavy mail bag along on a cart now.

Residents on his route in the 6400 and 6500 blocks of Gundry and Falcon Aves. in North Long Beach showed their appreciation of Rutherford's service Saturday by giving him a mail caddie.

"He's such a fine guy we decided to give him his Christmas present a little early," one of his "customers" said.

USS Tucker Will Host 21 Contestants

Twenty-one Miss Universe Pageant contestants will be guests of the United States Navy this morning aboard the destroyer Henry W. Tucker.

Officers said the security guard around the ship has been doubled to make sure sailors aboard other ships at the Naval Station don't crash the party.

The girls will leave the Wilton Hotel in a bus at 9:30 a.m. and will stay aboard the ship until after chow at 11 a.m.

After eating, they will return to the hotel to prepare for this afternoon's parade.

Aboard ship, each girl will have a special escort, chosen from among those enlisted men noted for good behavior. The beauties will spend the entire time aboard with enlisted men, following a brief reception in the captain's cabin.

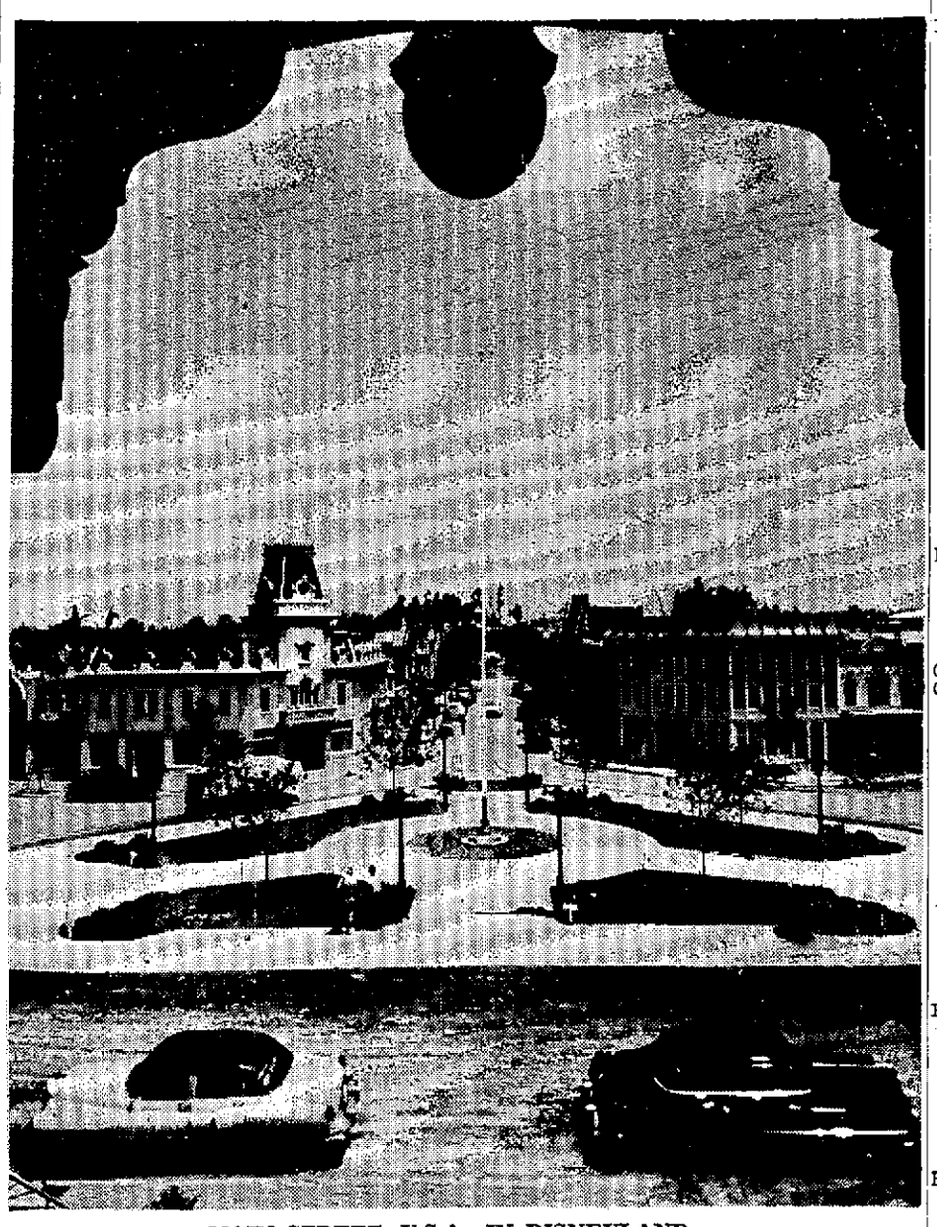

The invitation was extended by Capt. R. M. Ross, skipper of the Tucker. Arrangements were made by Lt. (jg) George M. Carr.

Delta Theta Tau Will Meet Here

Long Beach has been selected as the 1957 convention site of the 49th annual session of Delta Theta Tau national sorority, according to a wire received from the organization's headquarters Saturday.

The service group, which gave $110,793.47 to charity during the past year, is currently in its national meeting at Fort Wayne, Ind.

Nebeker Proclaimed Jaycee-of-the-Year

Gene Nebeker, mayor pro tem of the City of Lakewood, was named Jaycee-of-the Year by the Lakewood Junior Chamber of Commerce at its annual installation dinner Saturday night in the Lafayette Hotel.

Presentation of the award was made by Jack Morgan, last year's Lakewood Jaycee-of-the-Year.

Nebeker was cited for his leadership in Junior Chamber aims and for community leadership.

During the year, Morgan said, Nebeker headed a membership drive which increased membership 20 per cent, outlined a leadership training program for the organization and was Lakewood's nominee as one of the outstanding young men of the state.

Nebeker was co-chairman of the Jaycee-sponsored Lakewood Community Fair and he sponsored legislation for mortgage holders to send receipted tax bills to homeowners.

The 33-year-old Jaycee of the Year resides at 6002 Warwood Rd., with his wife, Bernie, and their daughter, Pamela.

In other award presentations, Kenneth Farrar, general manager of the Douglas Long Beach plant, was named "Boss of the Year."

Honors as the outstanding new Jaycee went to James Slaughter.

Picked as key men, "essential to the success of the organization and its projects," were Nebeker, Slaughter, Tom Just, Frank Henzel, Ted Sullivan, Art Powell and Carl Lemons.

Lakewood's five city councilmen and the chairmen of the Planning and Traffic and Safety Commissions were made honorary members.

The Independent, Press-Telegram was given an award for its coverage of Jaycee projects and activities.

Incoming President Art Powell and his officers were installed by Bob Mosher, state vice president of the Junior Chamber.

City College Classes Filled at Fast Pace

Students intending to enroll in City College Liberal Arts Division day classes next fall were advised Saturday by Lakewood campus officials that nearly 100 fall class sections have already been closed.

Pre-registration of new and continuing students reached the 1500 mark last week, according to Assistant Dean Harper C. Wren. Since nearly 20 per cent of the scheduled 519 day class sections have already been filled, Wren said, only students who pre-register early can be assured of first choice in classes and hours.

First step for prospective fall semester day students in either the Liberal Arts or Business and Technology divisions is to take the College Aptitude Tests, used for counseling and program planning. Tests are scheduled from 1-5 p. m. Friday in the Business and Technology division cafeteria, 1305 E. Pacific Coast Hwy. Additional test dates are July 26, 6-10 p. m., and Aug. 5, 8 a. m. to noon.

Arrangements to take the aptitude tests may be made by telephoning 7-6481. At the same time, prospective students should have their transcripts sent either to the Liberal Arts Division, 4901 E. Carson St., or to the Business and Technology Division.

Students who have completed the aptitude tests and have transcripts on file may make counseling appointments by telephoning 5-1221 (Liberal Arts) or 7-6481 (Business and Technology). There is no pre-registration for City College evening students.

Recently discharged veterans who plan to enroll in the fall semester should begin pre-enrollment procedures as early as possible, Wren said. A veterans' counselor will be available on the Lakewood campus from 6:30-9:30 p. m. Tuesday and during the same hours on July 26 and Aug. 1.

San Marino Folk State's Top Earners

SAN MARINO (AP)—Residents of San Marino have an annual average take-home pay of $16,762 per household, the highest of any city in the state, says a Pasadena Chamber of Commerce survey.

The chamber listed other top-dollar communities, in the order of their affluence: Beverly Hills $12,731, Piedmont $11,577, Altadena $8,024, South Pasadena $7,230, Arcadia $7,104, San Gabriel $6,350, and Pasadena $6,132.

A spokesman for the chamber said Pasadena's average family income, for a city of 116,000, is extremely high as compared with the income per family of Los Angeles, which is $4,944, or Long Beach at $5,213.

IS YOUR DOG UNHAPPY?

Library Offers Variety of Books on Pet Care

Is your pet neurotic—unhappy with his lot in life? The Long Beach Public Library suggests that any pet will be healthier and happier with a well-informed owner who has discovered the library's books on the care and enjoyment of pets.

Popular with pet owners are the books by Leon Whitney—"First Aid for Pets" and "The Complete Book of Home Pet Care." Jack Baird's "Standard Book of Household Pets" tells how to choose, care for and enjoy the animal best suited to your way of life. Chicago Tribune columnist Bob Becker writes about dogs, cats, birds and fish in "Bob Becker's Pet Book."

Included in the library's books on animals are Margaret Shaw's "Animals as Friends and How to Keep Them," Helen Martini's "My Zoo Family," and Clifford Moore's Book of Wild Pets."

If a dog is your favored companion, the library suggests Greenfield's "Your Dog in the City," Lorenz's "Man Meets Dog," the American Kennel Club's "Purebred Dogs," Hickey's "Know Your Dog," or Kinney's "How to Raise a Dog in the City." Books on dog training are: "Judy's Training the Dog," and Saunder's "Complete Book of Dog Obedience."

"The Complete Book of Cat Care," by Leon Whitney; Lauder's "Siamese Cats" and Kellino's "The Cats in Our Lives" are but three of the library's many titles for the lover of cats.

If bird cages strike your fancy, you may want to read Denlinger's "Parakeets: Their Breeding, Training and Management," Hausman's "The Care and Training of Home Cage Birds," "Bird Keeping for Novice and Expert," by Nicholas, or Eckstein's "Canary." The fish owner will be most interested in Vondy's "Tropical Fish in the Home Aquarium" or Axelrod's "Tropical Fish as a Hobby."

Whether you have a guppy or a St. Bernard, if you suspect that you may be standing between your pet and complete happiness, the Long Beach Public Library suggests an immediate visit to the main library or the branch library nearest your home.

WHERE HISTORY WAS MADE

'For Sale' Sign Up on Bixby Residence

Old-timers, remember the Jotham Bixby house that for many years stood at W. Ocean Blvd. and Magnolia Ave.? A big, two-and-one-half-story structure, redwood painted gray?

Ten years ago it was moved from Ocean and Magnolia to 4700 E. 4th St. (Roycroft and 4th.)

Now it's for sale, yours for $22,500.

Jotham Bixby, usually referred to as the "father" of Long Beach, lived 15 years at Los Cerritos Rancho, five years in Los Angeles and built this house in the winter of 1884-1885, according to Walter Case, Long Beach historian.

For years it was the social center, and in a sense the political center of the city, because the Bixbys entertained widely. Many city, county and state laws are said to have been drafted within its walls.

The Bixbys sold the house about 35 years ago to Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Howard, world travelers who wished to settle down in Long Beach.

Ten years ago, Mrs. Laura Q. Smith bought the house and moved it to the present location. It had to be sawed in two and the attic taken off in order to be moved. Then it was reassembled. It now is covered with asbestos siding.

Mrs. Smith and Myron D. Howard were married June 14, and they find it a lot of house for two people. That's why it is offered for sale.

The house, characterized by the bay and dormer windows of the 1880's, has 14 rooms, an attic and four bathrooms. Downstairs ceilings are 15 feet high. Most of the rooms are enormous. The house is 90 per cent redwood.

Drawing room, library and dining room have fireplaces. The drawing room and library fireplaces are topped with French bevelled mirrors that came around the Horn.

If it is not sold, the Howards think they may convert the house into an art gallery. Howard's son, Stanley Howard, who served with the U. S. Air Force in England, is home with his Polish bride, Stefa. Stefa, who graduated in art from the University of Krakow, brought a great deal of art from Poland.

Patio Pop Concert Set

A program of folk music on film and records will be presented at the second Burnett Branch Library Patio pop concert at 8 p. m. Thursday at the library, 560 E. Hill St. The public is invited.

Films to be shown include "Introduction to Jazz," an impressionistic review of jazz from 1895 to 1920; "Metropolitan String Quartet," "Selected Negro Spirituals," "Selected Songs of Stephen Foster" and "To Hear Your Banjo Sing," the story of American folk music featuring Peter Seeger with dialogue by Alan Lomax.

The program is one of a weekly series planned by Jean Taggart, branch librarian, in cooperation with the film and record sections of the public library.

Try This When You Are 77

ELIZABETH AND ERNEST SEARLE
"I Think He's a Wonderful Man"

By BRYAN HODGSON

Ernest Searle, a chipper chap of 77 years who lives at 1501 Bailey Way, is a man with an unusual outlook on life—and not necessarily because he likes to stand on his head.

Searle is convinced that the only way to stay young is to keep active, and at his present pace he might make many a modern teen-ager look a little gray by comparison.

Standing on his head for 10 minutes each morning and evening is a regular part of his program.

"Nothing like it for stirring up the system," he believes, and his wife, Elizabeth, 71, who joins him in his ritual inversions, agrees.

The happy couple, who came to Long Beach eight years ago from Seattle, don't like to be confused with health faddists. They just like to enjoy themselves—sensibly.

"There's so many things for old folks to do in Long Beach that we can't keep up with them," Searle said. "We used to go to three dances a week, but we had to cut down to two a month."

In between dancing, bridge games, lawn bowling and doing energetic odd jobs around their tiny and immaculate home, the Searles manage to walk many miles a month.

"People don't walk enough these days," Searle said. "They look on it as a chore rather than a pleasure."

The Searles, who are currently waiting for their two great-grandchildren to grow up, are firm believers in moderation.

"Sure, I smoke," he confessed. "Tried to quit several times, but never made a go of it. Finally decided to roll my own—it's too easy to reach for tailormades. I drink, too, but not much and not often."

Says Elizabeth, "I think he's a wonderful man—but a bit of a fanatic in some ways."

Searle was born in London, Eng., but caught a case of wanderlust in his teens. After working in such places as Australia, Honolulu, New Zealand and Africa, he arrived in Seattle and settled down to work as a builder.

He met Elizabeth in Vancouver, B. C., while she was on vacation and they married after an energetic courtship of three weeks.

"I took her to live up there in a log cabin for 18 months to find out if she was any good," he twinkles.

After 50 years in Seattle, the Searles began to feel the need for a change, and they moved to Long Beach.

"Wonderful place," Searle chuckles. "All this sunshine has made me feel years younger."

'We Shook Family Tree' Will Open Friday Evening

"We Shook the Family Tree," the Christopher Sergel comedy riot that takes audiences back to the days when boys wore knee pants, opens next Friday evening in Long Beach Community Playhouse, 5021 E. Anaheim St.

"Family Tree," selected to give teen-ager players a chance to get into the act, concerns the desperate efforts of a high school girl to get a date for the big school dance. When she convinces her mother that she's destined for spinsterhood if she misses this one prom, and the mother arranges a date for her with the school joke—the only boy in the class who wears knee pants—things really begin to happen, and the happy solution comes in a whirlwind of laughter.

Director Larry Johns said Irene Wechselberg will play the part of Hildegarde, the girl, and Bob Yantorn will have the part of Freddie Shermer, the boy in knee pants. Keith Houdyshell, an old Playhouse favorite, appears as Hildegarde's father, and Ruth Wagner as the girl's mother. Martha Knowles, another veteran of the center stage, will be seen as Mrs. Shermer, Freddie's mother.

Others in the cast: Erner Wheeler, as Mr. Shermer; Jane Carmichael, Sally Dolson; Patrick Tomter, Bob Dolson; David Day, Jimmie Dolson; Jo Dee Ellers and Wendy Wagner, Ellie May and Jill, girl friends of Hildegarde; and Trudy Crane as Paige, the neighbor girl.

A second performance of "Family Tree" will be given Saturday night and the play will continue thereafter each Thursday, Friday and Saturday evening through Sept. 3. Curtain time is 7:45 on Thursdays, 8:30 on Fridays and Saturdays.

IN CAST

Sally Larsen Smith, above, has the role of Alma Winemiller in the Tennessee Williams' "Summer and Smoke" which opens July 22 as the next production of The Theatre here. Director Pat Brown says the actress drives from her Sherman Oaks home to Long Beach nightly for rehearsals.

'GINA CAN DO EVERYTHING'

ROME—The B.W. and I felt very honored when Gina Lollobrigida invited us to Sunday lunch at her new home at 223 Appian Way.

So come along—it's a walled-in, 1½-acre plot 15 minutes out—and in the front lawn is an ancient cemetery of some Romans who died around 200 A.D.

"And here"—she and her husband, Dr. Miko Skofic, had led us to the roof of the big three-story house—"is my trap-izzzz."

"I am practice here on my ropes for my next picture, 'Trapizzzz.'"

Lollo will do "Trapeze" after "The Most Beautiful Woman in the World." She and her husband are charming hosts.

"How do you like being mistress of a big home?" I asked—for when I'd last seen her here, she had an apartment, not a showplace.

"Fine, except I have to work so hard, to pay," she pouted. "I am very tired."

Her English has improved remarkably; she's studying singing and fencing (for her present picture) and she sincerely wants to do "Serenade" on Broadway because Leonard Bernstein believes she has an outstanding voice and has promised to do the music.

"My maestro said if I studied singing with him he is willing to give me a contract with the opera," Gina said.

"But I don't need," she shrugged.

"But I think I will sing because it is possible to make much money on records without work very hard."

"Gina can do everything," her husband commented.

It seems true. She's studying fencing with a champion for a duel scene.

Gina seems to grow more beautiful and it seems that one day she must be in Hollywood and on Broadway also. Her contract trouble with Howard Hughes and RKO will be solved eventually—and then she will be even more famous than now.

Davy Crockett Vs. Congress!

(Editor's Note: The following report on Davy Crockett's congressional record was compiled from his own purported writings, standard reference works and the semi-official forerunners of the modern Congressional Record—Gales & Seaton's Records of Debates and Rives & Blair's Congressional Globe.

(In fairness to Crockett, it should be pointed out that in Davy's era the brag and the tall tale were the common property of many heroes of the frontier and sometimes, on their own ground, they made their boasts stick. A case in point is the Alamo.)

By ROBERT E. LEE

WASHINGTON—Davy Crockett spent six years in Congress "trying to fix up the government laws" as the legend has it, but he could have used one of his latter-day public relations experts to insure his reputation as a popular figure of the day.

Instead of being the best-liked man in Congress—as his biographers would have it—there is ample evidence that he was regarded by many as more of a nuisance.

Legend apparently has it right that he was homespun, independent and impeccably honest. But if Davy did anything constructive during his three terms, the records fail to show it.

The intrepid bear hunter spoke seldom, briefly and with little influence on fellow members. He sponsored not one piece of major legislation, voted mostly with the minority and managed to antagonize other Tennesseans in the House of Representatives so that even his pet local projects were squashed.

There is also evidence that Crockett himself would not have looked with disfavor on the idea of a press agent, since his maiden speech on the House floor appears to have been ghost-written.

This speech, on April 29, 1828, was one of his few serious attempts at logical argument. He spoke against a bill to give federally-owned lands in Tennessee to the state, a measure supported by all his Tennessee colleagues. Davy wanted the settlers, not the state, to have the land.

The scholarly flavor of the speech and its sophisticated phrasing have led some historians to question whether he wrote it himself.

"Many of our citizens who encountered the early fatigues and privations of that country are still without homes," he told the House.

"They have looked fondly forward to that period which would enable them, instead of being tenants, to which condition they have been reduced, to become owners of at least some humble spot, on which to labor and which they can call their own."

His proposal, said Crockett, "would not only make glad the hearts of the poor (but) would snatch from the vale of poverty and obscurity many a youth, and dispel the gloom of ignorance which shrouds him."

Most of Crockett's other recorded remarks were more in the "Wa'al, I reckon" style familiar to 20th Century television and motion picture audiences.

A favorite phrase toward the end of his career, when he had become almost psychopathically opposed to everything Jacksonian and sometimes had to be called to order by the chair, was:

"That don't make good sense; it don't even make good nonsense."

Often Davy complained, as debate in the House dragged on, that long speeches "have gotten to be fashionable" and he wanted to vote without further ado.

Accusing Jackson one day of talking much but not acting on cutting down government expenses, Davy said the situation reminded him of the fellow who tried to shave a hog—"a great cry and little wool."

Many of the modest portfolio of measures he introduced were lightly regarded by his fellow congressmen. One example was his resolution to abolish West Point because he thought it was the training ground for sissies.

He charged that the Point was being run "for the benefit of the noble and wealthy" and that the graduates were "too delicate and could not rough it. When they leave school they are too nice for hard service."

(Crockett's views on the Point were widely shared among frontiersmen. The history of the West is full of incidents in which Academy graduates were outmaneuvered by their Indian opponents. The most famous debacle, of course, was Custer's rout on the Little Big Horn.)

Another of his measures was an amendment to an important bill for federal funds to provide a road between Buffallo and New Orleans, via Washington. The amendment proposed a slight detour in the route—beginning at Washington and ending at Memphis, in Crockett's own district.

ON THE OTHER HAND, Davy proved himself a friend of the frontier Indian and a courageous crusader in his behalf.

He vigorously opposed Jackson's program to remove five Indian tribes to land west of the Mississippi, insisting that it was unfair to the red men and in violation of their treaties.

Crockett was elected to Congress as a Democrat in 1827. A lukewarm supporter of his party's policies during the last years of John Quincy Adams' administration, he was reelected in 1829 as Andrew Jackson rode a landslide of "Common Man" indignation to the presidency.

But Davy clashed violently with the President and other Tennesseans in the House, and lost a close vote for reelection in 1831. He came back as a Whig in 1832 and became a sort of amiable political mascot for the new party—always good for a laugh and a crack at his fellow-Tennessean in the White House. He lost his seat in 1835.

Davy hated to spend public money, unless it directly benefited his district. And he so hated Jackson, perhaps for keeping the Tennessee volunteers on the job in the Creek War years before when they wanted to go home, that he voted against many appropriations bills.

Congress should provide no more funds, he once said. It was "useless" because Jackson himself was "the government" and just "laughed" at what Congress did.

"Let's all go home," he told the House, "and let the people live one year on glory, and it will bring them to their senses and they will send us back here and teach us to make the gentleman in the White House take down his flag."

"That Don't Make Good Sense; Don't Even Make Good Nonsense."

Once he told Polk, who represented the district adjoining his and who was floor manager for much Jackson legislation:

"I was also a supporter of this administration after it came into power and until the Chief Magistrate changed the principles he had professed . . . When he quitted those principles, I quit him . . . I am still a Jackson man but General Jackson is not; he has become a Van Buren man."

ONE OF THE fascinating tall tales in the Crockett legend is that he twice rejected nomination for the presidency.

Source of this nonsense is a remarkably cruel book called "The Life of Martin Van Buren," to which Crockett's name was attached. It was part of a desperate smear campaign by which the Whigs hoped to discredit President Andrew Jackson's hand-picked successor in 1836.

Written in a first person, frontier dialect, the book frankly noted that some readers would doubt Crockett's authorship—just as his later "autobiography" is questioned by some scholars.

The point about the nominations was that if Davy could turn them down, so should Van Buren. But the Van Buren smear is interesting in that Davy was the man selected as purported author.

It is an indicator of the bear hunter's niche in American history—that of a genial, bumbling tool of the Whigs and a "showpiece of conservatism," as one historian of the age of Jackson calls him.

(It is also an indicator of Davy's popular following that his name should be linked with the presidency, however negatively.—Ed.)

It was as a Whig and a crony of Easterners that Davy made his biggest splash in public life.

In the Spring of 1834 the Whigs sent him on a speaking tour through New England and the Middle Atlantic states. The "autobiography" gives this explanation for the long junket:

"I seemed to like members of Congress who came from these parts, and wished to know what kind of constituents they had."

Crockett was 48 at the time and probably at the height of his story-telling powers. He also fancied himself quite a political pundit. Though his ego was inflated to a degree that must have made him unbearable, the trip was a personal triumph—if the "autobiography" can be believed at all.

It says that as his ship entered Philadelphia harbor, the captain ran up three flags as a signal Davy was aboard. Approaching the wharf, "I saw the whole face of the earth covered with people, all anxiously looking on toward the boat."

His admirers followed Davy up the street and into his hotel, demanding a speech. He put them off until the next day, when, 5,000 strong, they reappeared. But he had trouble getting started because "the huzzas for Crockett were so loud and long." Later, the Young Whig organization gave him a rifle.

In New York, Davy called on the mayor, visited newspaper offices and dined with the Young Whigs.

In Boston he was entertained by still more Young Whigs, "who toasted me very warmly." He saw the local sights, did some drinking with the lieutenant governor and refused to go to nearby Harvard University for fear "they might stick an LLD on me."

All along the way he told jokes, castigated Jackson and held himself up as a staunch defender of the Constitution.

But the journey backfired locally. A year later Crockett's constituents, accusing him of hobnobbing with Eastern aristocrats, ended his political career by electing one Adam Huntsman as their representative in Congress.

So Davy left it to Clay and Webster to hold the fort against Jacksonian extravagance and went off to die at the Alamo.

Cronkhite Still Missing, Last Heard From May 24

Whereabouts of John R. Cronkhite, 26, a Korean War veteran, is as much of a mystery today as on May 24 when he disappeared from his Long Beach apartment at 1500 E. 1st St., according to the Police Missing Persons Bureau.

Last person to hear from Cronkhite appears to be Lillian Henningsen, 28, of 96 Cerritos Ave. He telephoned her from Westminster the night he disappeared.

"I hope nothing ever happens to you girls," Cronkhite said to Lillian. He referred to Lillian and her roommate, Mary Ann Foster, 21.

Cronkhite said he was driving in from Westminster and would stop for coffee. He never arrived.

JOHN CRONKHITE
Still Among the Missing

The two girls had known him for about three months and considered him "a good friend," who helped them get jobs.

Another girl, Patricia Fisk Valliere, of 1631 Seal Way, Seal Beach, told police that she had gone with Cronkhite for six months prior to his disappearance and had promised to marry him.

However, on May 24, she had "a showdown with Jack," and told him that she was going to marry someone else, which she did. According to her, Cronkhite "went into an emotional tailspin." She never heard from him again.

Cronklite was employed by the General Motors Acceptance Corp., 3977 Atlantic Ave. When he disappeared he was driving a light blue 1955 Chevrolet two-door.

M. F. McCullough, manager of the corporation's office here, described Cronkhite as 6 feet tall, weighing 220 pounds, blue eyes, brown receding hair. He was injured in the Korean War and received a disability pension.

CAPITOL CAPERS

By WESLEY PEYTON and ROBERT E. LEE
(of The Independent, Press-Telegram Washington Bureau)

WASHINGTON—The first hat has been thrown into the 1956 presidential ring. It belongs to Mrs. Agnes Waters, who has distributed pictures of herself—hatless—captioned: "The only woman candidate for president U. S. A. 1956."

Mrs. Waters, who lives here, is being plugged by a pamphlet called "Women's Voice" which is against NATO, the UN and even the Bricker amendment ("it destroys states' rights").

Mrs. Waters is also against the draft. "It is absolutely unconstitutional," she testified before the House Armed Services Committee last winter, "because you cannot send our men universally all over the world to fight other people's battles."

Correspondents expect to hear little or nothing from or of Mrs. Waters during the forthcoming election fights, but she already has injected one new note in campaigning: Her pictures are inscribed "To you, with Love, Agnes Waters."

One member of the unlucky Dixon-Yates combine didn't draw a complete blank — Edgar H. Dixon won a consolation prize in the form of a new automobile at a charity event. Dixon was particularly happy because among the thousands of losers were several score congressmen who had been out after his scalp.

A Japanese politician who visited here recently had lunch with his ambassador and Clayton Fritchey, deputy director of the Democratic National Committee.

After they were seated, Fritchey opened the conversation by asking the Japanese: "Well, gentlemen, what do you want to talk about?"

Replied the Japanese ambassador: "We thought we'd ask you how you raise campaign funds."

"Funny thing," said Fritchey, "that's precisely the question I was going to ask you."

Mrs. Coya Knutson, the congresswoman from Minnesota, reports that when Burmese Premier U Nu visited the House of Representatives there was a concerted move afoot to have him meet Rep. John C. Watts of Kentucky. The members were anxious to watch a "Watts-Nu" introduction.

California congressional offices hear that the latest Hollywood fad is installation of $300 snow-melting driveway devices which circulate hot water beneath the concrete.

Mountain to Hold Statue of Christ

GRESSONEY, Italy (AP)—Italy, which has an underwater statue of Christ for victims of the sea, soon will erect a "Christ of the Peaks" for those who die climbing mountains. Piece by piece, the bronze statue, 12 feet high, will be hauled to the 12,489-foot Balmenhorn Peak and set up there, near the French-Italian border.

Rejected Surprises Gold Cup Field

REJECTED'S STRETCH DRIVE CATCHES ALIDON AT WIRE

Gordon Glisson rides the stretch-running Rejected (3) to nose victory over Alidon (5) in rich Hollywood Gold Cup Saturday. Determine (2) finished third in the mile and one-quarter chase. Time of 1:59 3/5 smashed Noor's track record.

Alidon 2nd In Record Race

By DAVE LEWIS
Sports Editor

HOLLYWOOD PARK—The King Ranch's stretch-running Rejected, reported "lame" as late as four days ago, came flying through the stretch here Saturday to nip the favored Alidon at the wire in capturing the $137,100 Hollywood Gold Cup before 48,469 screaming fans.

Longest shot on the board at 6-1 in the six-horse field, the five-year-old Rejected nailed down first money of $100,000 by the margin of a nose while the stout-hearted Determine finished third another three-quarters of a length back.

Four more lengths to the rear in fourth place came Social Outcast, which was flown out from the East for the event, while the Llangollen Farm entry of Mister Gus and Porterhouse brought up the rear.

Rejected smashed Noor's track record by one-fifth of a second in negotiating the mile and one-quarter in 1:59 3/5 with his spectacular stretch surge which found him making up more than six lengths in his furious charge through the final three-sixteenths of a mile.

The King Ranch standard-bearer returned $14.40, 5.80 and 3.30 across the board; Alidon paid $3.00 and 2.40, while Determine's show price was $3.10.

Rejected pulled up a little lame after finishing third to Alidon and Mister Gus in the American Handicap 12 days ago on July 4, which led to the report he would be unable to go in the Gold Cup.

READY TO GO

However, he squelched these rumors last Wednesday when he breezed through six furlongs in 1:14 3/5 to prove he was ready to go.

Trainer Buddy Hirsch declared Rejected "ran his finest race" in becoming the 15th Thoroughbred in racing history to earn more than a half-million dollars. His Gold Cup prize boosts his lifetime winnings to $514,000.

"I was a little worried in the early part of it because I thought he was too close up," Hirsch went on to say. "I didn't realize how slow a beginner Social Outcast was, but it worked out perfectly."

In his usual pattern, Rejected launched his bid from last place . . . but unlike recent races, his stretch rush this time rewarded him with one of his two greatest victories.

Although he was ahead of Social Outcast in the early going, he dropped back to the tail end of the pack in the run down the backstretch before cutting loose with his winning surge as they barreled into the far turn.

He was third behind Alidon and Determine . . . six full lengths off the pace, at the top of the stretch and although he was beginning to make up ground, Alidon appeared to be a shoo-in to observers at that point.

But Jockey Gordon Glisson had the brown son of Revoked rolling in high gear by then and he began cutting down the advantage of the two leaders with each stride. He nailed Determine just outside the 16th pole, loomed up alongside Alidon with only about five jumps to go . . . and then succeeded in getting his nose under the wire first in those final pulsating strides.

Although Rejected walked off with the marbles . . . the tiny gray charger from Andy Crevolin's barn, Determine, once again was the "unsung hero" while the team of Johnny Longden and Alidon proved to be the goat."

Determine not only had to carry top weight as usual, he also drew assignment to kill off the speed (Mister Gus). He had to perform the latter chore the hard way, too, by pushing the pacesetter to 22-3, 45-2 and 1:09-2 fractions.

The weight, 126 pounds to Rejected's 118 and Alidon's 116, plus the strength-sapping chore of running Mister Gus into the ground took too much out of the little gray and he had to be content with third money of $10,000—but he was still a vital factor right down to the wire.

Alidon, meanwhile, appeared to be a cinch winner with a half-mile still to go when he suddenly made a bold move and

Houtteman Stops Bosox, 4-1; Doby, Woodling Belt Homers

CLEVELAND (U.P.)—Art Houtteman, a "spot" starter for the Indians, held the Boston Red Sox to four hits Saturday as Cleveland bounced back with a 4-1 victory in the opening game of their series.

Home runs by Larry Doby and Gene Woodling gave Houtteman his margin for his seventh victory of the season and his second as a starting pitcher.

After the Red Sox had scored their only run in the first inning on a walk to Billy Goodman, a wild pickoff throw by catcher Hal Naragon to first base, and an infield out by Ted Williams, the Indians crashed right back.

Doby hit his 15th home run of the season behind a walk to Ferris Fain in the first. The Indians picked up another run in the second on a single by Naragon, Houtteman's sacrifice and a single by Al Smith, and then Woodling cracked his fourth home run of the year in the fourth. All these hits were off Frank Sullivan, who dropped his eighth decision of the season.

On his last time at bat, Doby reinjured his right hand as he twisted away from a wild pitch by Tom Hurd and was removed from the game. Doby has been playing with the hand heavily taped since his return to the lineup on June 8.

Houtteman was also helped by good fielding. The Indians turned in four double plays behind him, Williams hitting into a pair of them.

Campy Back on Bench

BROOKLYN, N. Y. (U.P.)—Catcher Roy Campanella of the Brooklyn Dodgers was sidelined again Saturday because of a severely bruised little finger on his left hand.

Campanella, who returned to the Dodgers' lineup only Friday after missing about three weeks because of a knee ailment, was hit on the left hand while batting against Willard Schmidt of the St. Louis Cardinals.

X-rays of the finger proved negative, but it was too painful to permit Campanella to play.

Hanson vs. Suggs for LPGA Crown

FORT WAYNE, Ind. (AP) — Beverly Hanson of Indio, Calif., and Louise Suggs of Sea Island, Ga., led the field in the Ladies Professional Golf Assn. championships at the end of 54 holes of medal play Saturday. They'll face each other in 36 holes of match play today to decide the title in the $6,000 tournament.

Miss Hanson shot two par 75s Saturday, giving her the best 54-hole total — 70-75-75—220. Miss Suggs had a pair of 74s and a 75 for 223.

Fay Crocker of Montevideo, Uraguay, winner of the Women's Open, missed a six-foot putt on the 18th hole in her afternoon round and that cost her a chance to tie Miss Suggs. Miss Crocker finished with a 71-75-78—224.

She'll tee off today with the 15 who finished behind her for 18 hole playoffs to decide the rest of the prize money, while Miss Hanson and Miss Suggs vie for the title.

The same pair met in a playoff match earlier in the season at the Los Angeles Open. That time Miss Suggs took top honors.

Bombers' Lead Cut to Three

DETROIT (U.P.) — Al Kaline's 20th home run of the season in the opener and Billy Hoeft's five-hit pitching in the nightcap carried the Detroit Tigers to a 6-3 and 2-1 double-header sweep Saturday over the league-leading New York Yankees.

It marked the third time this season the Yankees dropped a double-header, and it served to tighten up the American League race. The Chicago White Sox are now only three games behind New York, with the Cleveland Indians running a close third.

Hoeft, a 23-year-old southpaw, had the Yankees blanked on four hits until the eighth, when Bill Skowron hit his eighth home run of the season with the bases bare. But the lean left-hander settled down to retire the last four batters for his ninth victory against three losses.

Whitey Ford went the distance for the Yankees and blanked the Tigers until the sixth when a walk to Harry Malmberg and successive singles by Harvey Kuenn, Bill Tuttle and Kaline produced the two runs that sent him down to his fifth loss against 10 wins.

Ned Garver, who had beaten the Yankees only twice during his career before this season, went the route in the opener to post his second victory over them this year.

Tuttle's single and Kaline's 20th four-bagger off reliefer Jim Konstanty put the Tigers ahead for the first time, and for keeps, in the seventh. Konstanty, beaten for the second time against six wins, gave up another run in the eighth on Charley Maxwell's double and a single by Garver.

NASHUA PRESSED AT CHICAGO

Coan Sold to White Sox

CHICAGO (U.P.) — The Baltimore Orioles sold outfielder Gil Coan to the Chicago White Sox Saturday for an estimated $20,000 and promptly purchased Jim Dyck, the American Association's leading batter, from the Indianapolis Indians.

To make room on their roster for Coan, the White Sox put pitcher Bob Keegan, who has a spur on the heel bone, on the disabled list. Keegan was one of Chicago's most effective pitchers in 1954 with a 16-9 record, but has compiled only an 0-4 mark this year.

Although Coan's overall average is only .240 this season, he has made nine hits in 17 pinch-hitting appearances. He also is a fleet outfielder.

Dyck, a 33-year-old outfielder who had a .381 batting average for Indianapolis at the start of the week, was purchased for a reported $30,000.

Arcaro Whips Nashua to Narrow Arlington Victory

CHICAGO (AP) — The brilliant Nashua needed a terrific stretch prod by Eddie Arcaro Saturday to score a one-half length victory over lightly-reckoned Traffic Judge in the $148,500 Arlington Mile Classic before 34,132 wildly cheering fans at Arlington Park.

In carrying the white and red-dotted silks of Belair Stud to a $91,675 triumph, Nashua had to overpower pace-setting Impromptu at the final eighth and then stave off the hard pressing Traffic Judge, who moved up from sixth place at the head of the stretch.

There was no show betting as Nashua, beaten only by Swaps in the Kentucky Derby in nine starts this year, went off a 3 to 10 favorite and paid $2.60, and $2.20.

Traffic Judge, ridden by Willie Boland, paid $5.80 to place. Impromptu, which led most of the way, finished third, a length and a quarter behind Traffic Judge.

The rest of the seven horse field trailed behind in this order: Dogoon, Jett Flame, Dedicate, a disappointing contender, and last place Munchausen.

Nashua, in swelling his two year earnings to $782,565, needed a terrific spur to cut down a fourth length lead held by Impromptu at the three-quarter mark to register his seventh victory in two years that grossed over $100,000.

The powerfully built Nasrullah bay colt, in the words of Jockey Arcaro was "not at his best, to say the least, in Saturday's race."

Nashua's time for the mile on a fast track was 1:35¼, well behind Equipoise's Arlington mile record of 1:34 2/5 set 23 years ago.

Arcaro seemed irked at the outcome of the race, snorting "why he could beat the second horse from here to the paddock. He was all out and doing his best

Hatten Hurls Angels to Fifth Straight Win

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Left-hander Joe Hatten threw four-hit ball Saturday as Los Angeles blanked Portland, 2-0, in the opener of a Pacific Coast League series. The win made it five straight for the Angels, equalling their longest streak of the season.

Ex-Angel Red Adams had a one-hitter going into the sixth when Los Angeles picked up both runs, one of which was unearned.

Gale Wade started things off with a single off Artie Wilson's glove. Wade stole second and made it to third when Gene Mauch bunted safely.

Hal Rice bounced to Frankie Austin, who fired home to catch Wade in a trap play. But in the rundown Don Eggert threw the ball away and Wade scored.

Steve Bilko walked to load the bases. Buzz Clarkson lofted a high fly. Mauch trotted home after the catch with the second run and that was the ball game.

Hatten gave up his four hits by the third inning. After that the only Portland player to get on base was Luis Marquez, and that was an error.

Once Over Lightly

by DAVE LEWIS

Thoroughbred race horses come in all shapes and sizes and as a result their strides vary widely.

The tall, long-barreled horse generally has a long, sweeping stride while the chunky, short-coupled horses have quick, short strides.

The long-striding horse generally turns out to be the better route runner with the short-striding horse the better sprinter. The short-strider uses up more energy than the one who covers the ground in great leaps.

Incidentally, the short-striding horse usually makes a better mudder than the long-striding horse because the latter is not as likely to get a firm grip on the ground when the track is slippery.

No two horses in either of the above two general classifications stride exactly the same. Stride of each horse is as different as a human's fingerprints.

A century ago, artists depicted horses in full stride with forelegs extended almost straight from the shoulders with the hind legs extended straight out behind them. Actually, if a horse attempted to stride in that rocking horse manner, he would fall.

It has only been the last 60 or 70 years that a true picture of a horse's stride has been available. Leland Stanford, founder of Stanford University and a great horse breeder, was one of the first to photograph a horse's stride.

The average stride of a race horse in full motion is approximately 20 feet. During his stride, he has all of his feet off the ground for a split second, but at all times he has at least one foot, either in front or behind, tucked under his body ready to act as a springboard for the next stride.

The natural gait of a horse is the gallop. If left alone in a field, he sooner or later will break into a gallop . . . the same stride he will use on a race track.

Not every horse has a smooth stride. Some are quite awkward, even though they are fleet runners.

Many return from a race with their forelegs badly cut where one of their steel-shod hind feet has struck while going at full speed. Some others often strike one hind leg with the other. Because of this, horses who usually kick themselves are sent postward with bandages on to protect their legs from cuts.

Most owners and trainers, when buying at auction, will have the horses walked toward and away from them. If the walking stride is "free" and even, then it is likely that the running stride will be the same!

ONE OF THE most dreaded ailments among the horse fraternity is a sore throat.

Sore throats are much more harmful to race horses than to human beings. For instance, an afflicted horse sometimes becomes a "roarer" or thick-winded horse.

And after a horse becomes thick-winded, meaning he has difficulty breathing while running, he loses his usefulness as a racer.

One notable exception was Calumet Farm's famous Coaltown. A tremendously fast horse, he developed thick wind when he was a two-year-old. It became so bad that he fell down while working out one day in Chicago.

After that, a hood was kept on Coaltown's throat at all times when he wasn't out on the track running . . . and the colt went on to produce some great wins.

Special hoods of heavy flannel are used by trainers to sweat out sore throats. They fit over the head and ears and down around the throat. It is just about the only effective treatment found thus far.

Racing fans often have seen a fast sprinter run out in front of his field and then stop almost to a walk. This generally indicates a thick-winded horse.

A faint-hearted horse, if well out in front, will continue to run hard. He stops trying only when caught by another horse or when he is outrun coming out of the starting gate.

The thick-winded horse will continue to try as long as he can get his breath and will stop only when he starts gasping for air.

THERE WAS a time not too many years ago when a jockey not only had to watch out for the other horses in a race . . . but he also had to protect himself from rival riders, who went to great lengths to keep anyone else from winning.

However, patrol films have "cleaned up" riding to a remarkable degree in recent years.

Veteran jockeys, of course, still employ "tricks of the trade" to help clinch a victory, but seldom now do they resort to violent tactics to prevent a rival from winning as they did in the old days . . . such as holding onto a rival's saddle cloth to throw a horse off balance or slash an opposing rider with the whip as they attempted to go past.

Pictures spotlight any illegal tricks nowadays and riders must use more subtle means of outmaneuvering rivals.

Strangely enough, one of the cleanest riders at the present time, Eddie Arcaro, once was known as one of the dirtiest and roughest jockeys in the game. He wasn't above pulling every off-beat trick known to riding in order to win.

There was the time in Chicago early in his career when Eddie got to the front and appeared to be a certain winner when another horse suddenly rushed up alongside. Arcaro reached out, grabbed the saddle cloth of the other horse and threw him off

DUKE SNIDER
Settles it in Ninth

Snider's 29th, 30th Nip Cincy

BROOKLYN, N. Y. (UP)—Duke Snider hit his 29th and 30th home runs Saturday and his second one, in the ninth inning, gave the Brooklyn Dodgers a 5-4 victory over the Cincinnati Redlegs.

Snider was the first batter up in the ninth after Cincinnati had tied the score in the top of the frame. His long fly barely made the first row of the centerfield stands.

A three-run homer by Wally Post after Sam Mele and Ted Kluszewski had singled put the Redlegs in front in the third inning against Brooklyn starter Billy Loes.

Art Fowler was reached for a Dodger run in the fourth when Junior Gilliam tripled home Carl Furillo. A downpour then interrupted the game for one hour and three minutes. When play was resumed the Dodgers caught up with Fowler in the sixth.

Snider's homer, a single by Furillo and Kluszewski's error, and a single by Don Zimmer tied the score at 3-all.

Brooklyn forged ahead 4-3 in the seventh and knocked out Fowler. Don Hoak singled, and Pee Wee Reese dropped a bunt in front of the plate, but catcher Smokey Burgess' throw to second base was too late to force Hoak. Snider sacrificed and Gil Hodges was intentionally walked, loading the bases. A pop single by Furillo brought home Hoak.

Cincinnati tied the score in the ninth when Burgess doubled with one out. A wild pitch sent pinch-runner Rocky Bridges to third, and pinch-hitter Joe Brovia hit a sacrifice fly to drive in the run.

DEL CRANDALL
2 Homers in Losing Cause

Rejected Captures Gold Cup

breezed up to the leaders.

DETERMINE HELD ON

Longden pulled up alongside Determine and Mister Gus as they started around the final turn. Mister Gus dropped back immediately, but Determine grimly refused to let him go on past for the better part of an eighth of a mile.

Only when Longden pulled out all stops at the head of the stretch did Alidon shake off Determine. But he did it in such an impressive fashion that it looked as if he could walk home.

In the 110 yards between the quarter pole and the three-sixteenths pole at the top of the stretch, Alidon rocketed into a commanding three-length lead.

But his duel with Determine plus the fact that the horse obviously "moved" too soon on the backstretch left Alidon a badly tired horse at the end . . . and in no condition to hold off Rejected's tremendous finish.

'LOT OF HORSE'

Glisson said he had a lot of horse under him all the way. "I didn't make my move with him until we hit the quarter pole because I was watching Longden on Alidon. I figured they were the ones we had to beat. When Alidon moved on the turn, I did too . . . and even though they had several lengths on us, I felt we could take it once we straightened out for the final drive."

Longden explained that he figured Alidon lost the race as they left the backstretch and headed into the far turn. "Neves' horse (Porterhouse) came out and bumped us as we were starting to move up and my horse got to running a little too soon. I couldn't do anything but go on with him."

Ray York, who rode Determine, said "They just don't come any gamer than this little gray. I was real tickled that he ran another of his really big races. We had no excuses except the same old handicap—weight!"

Eric Guerin, who piloted Social Outcast, revealed he thought things were set up perfect for him going into the far turn . . . "but he hung when I asked him to run. He just didn't try when we really needed to pour on the gas."

Rejected has been a big horse in handicap circles ever since winning the Santa Anita Handicap in 1954. However, his stirring stretch runs have been a little short on the majority of occasions since then.

He won two races last summer—the American Handicap at Hollypark and the Hawthorne Gold Cup in Chicago—but his only victory in the past 12 months came on New Year's Day at Santa Anita when he captured a mile and one-quarter event on the turf. He was seventh in this year's Santa Anita Cap and sixth in the San Juan Capistrano the following week.

He had been training exceptionally well at Hollypark until pulling up slightly lame after the American Handicap. After laying off work two days, he resumed work though and proved Saturday his legs are as sound as ever.

It was the sixth $100,000 race won by Hirsch-trained horses. Rejected has won two, Intent three and By Zeus one!

Seven-Run 8th by Pads Sinks Seals

SAN DIEGO (AP)—San Diego came from behind with a seven-run outburst in the eighth inning Saturday to defeat San Francisco, 9-4, in a Pacific Coast League series opener. The Padres sent 11 batters to the plate in the big frame.

Milt Smith led off the eighth with a double off Don Fracchia, who then walked Earl Rapp. Clarence Maddern laid down a sacrifice bunt and Fracchia threw the ball into rightfield, allowing two runs to score.

Fracchia got Ed Bailey to ground out, then gave up two walks to load the bases. Dick Sisler singled in one run. Bill Bradford replaced Fracchia and struck out Al Federoff, but Buddy Peterson doubled for three more tallies and Smith singled in the seventh run.

Gene Bearden, San Francisco starter, hit his first home run of the season and had a two-hit shutout going until the sixth, when the Padres pushed over two runs.

at the end. I hit him at the eighth pole and at the finish."

Jockey Boland said of Traffic Judge, "I think if I would have gotten to Nashua earlier in the stretch we would have beaten him. I was getting to Nashua, but too slowly at the end."

The close triumph apparently did not do much toward spurring a widely-demanded match race between Nashua and Swaps. Belair Stud's owner, William Woodward Jr., stuck by an earlier announcement he would ship Nashua early this morning to Saratoga Springs, New York, for "a much-needed vacation."

Although Woodward said he personally would like to see a Swaps-Nashua match race, he added his plans for August were undecided.

In other major turf activity Saturday, Mr. Turf took the lead in the water-soaked stretch at Jamaica to win the 26th running of the $22,500 Wilson Handicap by one length and record the first stakes triumph of his career. He was a slight favorite and returned $7.40, $3.90 and $3.10.

Vimy, a 10-1 shot owned by France's Paul Wertheimer, scored an upset triumph in Britain's richest race—the 26,300 sterling ($73,640) King George VI and Queen Elizabeth Stakes—while Phil Drake, the odds on favorite, finished out of the money in the field of 10.

At Monmouth Park, Mr. First, finding the muddy going much to his liking, caught Punkin Vine inside the stretch and went on to win the $18,200 Omnibus Handicap.

BROOKLYN (UP)—Now, it seems, even the cats in Brooklyn are Dodger fans.

A woman, attending Saturday's game with the Redlegs, brought along her pet kitty. At the ticket window she said she wanted two tickets, for herself and for her cat.

"That's all right lady, the cat doesn't need a ticket," said the ticket man.

"No, I want him to be comfortable," the woman replied. "I want him to have a seat all his own. And I want to pay for it."

So the cat sat—all the way through the game in his own pew.

Braves Blow It on Wild Pitch in 9th

NEW YORK (UP) — Phil Paine's wild pitch in the ninth inning enabled pinch-runner Ruben Gomez to score from third base with the run that gave the Now York Giants an 8-7 victory over the Milwaukee Braves Saturday and stretched their winning streak to five games.

The suddenly-aroused Giants, hottest club in the majors at the moment, rallied for three runs in the ninth to register their 11th victory in the last 13 games.

A total of seven home runs were hit in the contest, Alvin Dark, West Westrum and Don Mueller connecting for the Giants, while Del Crandall hit two homers for the Braves and Bill Bruton and Hank Aaron each hit one.

With the Giants trailing 7-5, Mueller led off the last of the ninth by homering off losing pitcher Ray Crone. After Dark doubled and moved to third on Hank Thompson's single, rookie Roberto Vargas relieved Crone and Sid Gordon, batting for Dusty Rhodes, walked to fill the bases.

Paine then relieved Vargas and Dark came across with the tying run on pinch-hitter Bill Taylor's sacrifice fly. Gomez, who ran for Gordon, moved to second on the fly, then to third on pinch-hitter Davey William's infield out. Gomez streaked across with the deciding run when Paine uncorked a wild pitch while facing Willie Mays.

Two Runs in Ninth Give Nats Victory

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Bill Harrington wild pitched the winning run home Saturday night as the Washington Senators took an 8-7 victory from the Kansas City Athletics.

The Senators had fought back to tie the score at 6-all after the Athletics had scored their six in the first inning.

Mickey Vernon and Carlos Paula hit successive doubles to put the Senators ahead, 7-6. Then Harrington walked Roy Sievers and Harman Killebrew to fill the bases before he wild pitched Paula home.

Garber Cops 14th for Stars

SACRAMENTO (AP)—The Sacramento Solons, held to two hits in the last seven innings, lost in the 10th Saturday night to Hollywood, 5-3. Bob Garber, the fourth Hollywood pitcher, nailed down the victory—his 14th of the season.

Only two of the Hollywood runs off Johnny Briggs were earned. A two base muff by Jerry Streeter on Lee Walls' pop set up the winning run in the 10th. George Prescott sacrificed the runner to third, and he scored when Carlos Bernier pumped a hit to center. Bill Hall tripled to right, scoring Bernier.

In the first inning Hollywood scored twice on singles by Dick Smith, Curt Roberts and Walls, plus a passed ball.

The other Star tally came in the seventh on Jack Lohrke's home run. Lohrke entered the game in the third inning when Smith was tossed out by Umpire Chris Valenti for throwing his bat after being called out on strikes.

Sacramento scored in the first on Al Heist's homer and two more in the third on two walks by Nelson King, a hit batsman, Buddy Heslet's single, and Nippy Jones' double.

Stars of Tomorrow

By DOUG IVES

(Fourth in a series of articles on history of kid baseball in Long Beach.)

"Two new leagues were established in Long Beach in 1952—the Police and Catholic League—and coupled with the existing Kid Baseball League they supplied a record number of rooters with plenty of th

Rams, Ft. Ord Ready Squads

Coach Sid Gillman, whose Los Angeles Rams make their 1955 debut against the Ft. Ord Warriors at Veterans Memorial Stadium here Saturday night, July 30, began a serious search for a replacement for a "definitely retired" Elroy Hirsch Saturday.

Acknowledging Hirsch's statement that he was going to stick by his announced retirement plans, Gillman brought out his alternate set of plans which included the transfer of UCLA star Bob Long to the offense. Woodley Lewis, long a defensive back of great talent, was also shifted to an offensive post at the Rams camp Saturday.

Others who will be given a chance at Hirsch's old spot are Bill Sherman, former St. Mary's back, and Harland Svare, a former center at Washington State. In other changes Saturday, captain Don Paul became a middle guard and Les Richter an offensive guard.

The club lost one of its most promising rookies Saturday with the announcement that halfback Billy Teas of Georgia Tech will enter the service. Rookies Dave Parkinson of Texas, J. W. Taylor of East Los Angeles J. C., and Buster Graves of Arkansas were released on waivers.

The Ft. Ord team which the Rams will meet at the Stadium will include such stars as UCLA's Paul Cameron, who made his pro debut with the Pittsburgh Steelers last year; Jim Powers, formerly of SC and the San Francisco 49ers; and Sam Baker, who starred with Oregon State and the Washington Redskins before entering the army. Bob Peviani, ex-SC great, will also be in the Warrior lineup.

Ollie Matson, the Warriors hero of the past two years, has returned to the Chicago Cardinals and will not haunt the Rams until later in the season.

In another 10 days, all 12 of Commissioner Bert Bell's NFL franchises will be flexing their muscles at various sites across the country. The San Francisco 49ers kicked off July 10 at St. Mary's College, and the Washington Redskins began their calisthenics July 12 at Occidental.

Washington has Notre Dame quarterback Ralph Guglielmi joining a star studded cast which already includes Charley Justice, Harry Gilmer, Rob Goode, and Vic Janowicz. But the Skins need help in the line.

Paul Brown's champion Cleveland Brown open their Hiram (O) College base July 22 to begin preparations for the annual Pro-College All-Star Game at Soldiers Field, Chicago, Aug. 12. The Browns, surprise winners of the NFL crown last year when they trampled the Detroit Lions in the title game, face the problem of a replacement for the peerless Otto Graham.

Graham, one of the finest T formation quarterbacks ever to lace on a pair of football shoes, announced his retirement from pro football after leading the Browns to an astounding 56-10 victory over Detroit last Dec. 26 in the playoff game. No. 1 candidate for Graham's job is George Ratterman, often referred to as the highest priced and most talented second string quarterback in the pro game.

Also reporting to the Browns' camp are a host of promising rookies, including Weldon Renfro, North Texas State back; Aramis Dandoy, the brilliant SC back; Sam Palumbo, Notre Dame center; Henry (model T) Ford, Pitt back, and Glen Dillon, an end from Pitt.

Besides Gillman two new coaches are going to work with the start of the training season, Red Strader with the 49ers and Ray Richards with the Chicago Cardinals.

Strader is not unfamiliar to pro football, having coached the defunct New York Yanks in the NFL. Richards probably has the toughest job of all. He has to bring along the hapless Cardinals, winners of two games last year while losing 10. Starting Monday at the Lake Forest, Ill., camp he'll look for some help for his one man gang, fullback Ollie Matson.

The Western Conference champion Lions, coached by Buddy Parker, report July 24 at Ypsilanti, Mich.

Another rough customer in the evenly matched Western Conference is the Chicago Bears who start Owner-Coach George Halas' last season as coach on Tuesday at Collegeville, Ind.

The Baltimore Colts are training at Westminster, Maryland under Coach Weeb Eubank, who feels quarterback George Shaw of Oregon, the 1955 bonus pick at the pro draft, will ease the furrows on his brow.

TWO ROOKIES AND A RECRUIT

IN THIS CORNER with DICK ZEHMS

(While Dick Zehms is on vacation, guest columnists are filling This Corner.)

By GEORGE GOODALE
Publicity Director, Los Angeles Angels

Dick Zehms picked on Angel manager Bob Scheffing the other day to do his work for him, and today he's picked on me. And that is not a break for either of us, you readers or myself.

I could be doing something else, and I'm sure you folks could be reading something else, and much better than this.

Anyhow, we're both stuck, except that you can quit reading it but I had to finish writing it.

Dick asked me to pick out some of the greatest thrills I've had with the Angels during the 10 years I've been tub-thumping at Wrigley Field.

Well, I've run the gamut from top to bottom, and several times of each, so they weren't all thrills.

The depths of despair were reached in 1949 when we finished in the cellar, and my spirits were only able to rise one notch in 1950 when we finished seventh.

Those were two seasons I try to forget, and I don't ever want to experience anything like them again.

I just wonder if you fans realize how much suffering we folks in the baseball business go through when we have a loser. I know you fans suffer, but believe you me, those of us at the ball park suffer just twice as much.

It's our bread and butter, you know.

However, let's dismiss those unpleasant memories.

NOW FOR MY greatest thrill with the Angels.

I've had lots of them, but one has to be obvious.

And that was Clarence Maddern's home run in the playoff game to defeat San Francisco for the 1947 Pacific Coast League pennant.

Naturally, that can't be topped, at least as of now.

Perhaps most of you fans will remember that game. You newcomers will not.

That was quite a game, and the pennant hung on the sudden death outcome.

And it was sudden death, for the Seals.

The teams had battled scoreless through seven and a half innings. Then to open the Angel half of the eighth, Cece Garriott got on base. Bill Schuster pulled a perfect hit-and-run and Garriott was on third and Schuster was safe at first.

Eddie Sauer walked, or was hit by a pitched ball, just which one I do not recall.

Up steps Clarence Maddern to face the Seals' pitcher, Jack Brewer.

And the result was a home run. At first I didn't think the ball would carry out of the park, but I knew it was long enough for Garriott to score from third after the catch.

Then it fell from sight—on the other side of the wall.

Well, everyone went crazy with joy, none any more than myself, or any less.

Except that mine lasted several days.

NOW THIS ONE-GAME playoff was made necessary because San Diego had defeated the Seals the day before in the second game of their doubleheader. Max West, then with the Padres, hit a homer to beat the Seals.

A couple of years later we traded Maddern for West, and all of this time we'd been heralding Maddern as the author of the greatest home run ever hit in Wrigley Field.

Now he was gone.

And here is why press agents are such horrible stinkers.

Maddern was no longer an Angel. West was. Both are great guys personally. I like both of them immensely. But in baseball one is with you, one is against you.

So—there was only one thing to do.

Start hailing Max West as the guy who hit the home run that gave Maddern the chance to hit his. Without West's homer, none for Maddern.

Well, as I said, West was with us, Maddern was not.

So that's what I did.

But both of them, bless 'em, gave me many, many thrills with home runs they hit as Angels, and that's what I started to talk about anyway, thrills with the Angels.

I hope I have a lot more, and if I have 'em, so will you good fans.

I'm sure you'll cast your vote along with me for this to happen.

Roberts Sweats Out Win No. 14

PHILADELPHIA (U.P.)—Robin Roberts, given the edge when Andy Seminick and Roy Smalley hit second inning homers, won his 14th game of the season Saturday as the Philadelphia Phillies defeated the Chicago Cubs, 5-4, for the Cubs' fifth straight loss.

Roberts, toiling in 90 degree temperature and 63 per cent humidity, survived a weird three-run first inning when Ernie Banks hammered his 24th homer and then went on to pitch his 16th complete game in 22 starts.

The homers by Seminick and Smalley off Warren Hacker put the Phils ahead to stay, although the Cubs added their final run in the ninth when Frank Baumholtz tripled and scored on a pinch sacrifice fly by Randy Jackson. Roberts fanned Hank Sauer to end the game.

Donoso Wins for Bucs, 5-1

PITTSBURGH (U.P.)—Lino Donoso, aided by a four-run outburst ignited by Dick Groat in the sixth, limited the St. Louis Cardinals to five hits Saturday to pace the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 5-1 victory.

Frank Thomas started things in the big sixth with a single but was forced by Jack Shepard. Johnny O'Brien doubled but hurt his left leg and was replaced by pinch runner Tom Saffell. Dale Long walked to fill the bases and Groat singled home two runs.

Donoso grounded to Alex Grammas, whose throw to the plate was too late to get Long. Willard Schmidt replaced Arroyo and Eddie O'Brien greeted him with a run-scoring single.

Tri-Cities Regatta Lures 100

Western divisional championships for outboarding's smallest, but among its lustiest classes— M-Hydroplanes—will be featured event next Sunday, when the South Gate Women's Club presents its annual Tri-Cities regatta on Marine Stadium.

Fittingly enough, since the distaff side is sponsoring and handling all details of the always top event, the title here will be defended by a woman driver.

Kaye (Boots) Morphy, who until this year has pretty much dominated the tiny-mity class, will drive her Miss Shooting Star in defense against a probable 13 boats.

Included among top rivals is Craig Spencer. Los Angeles driver of a boat ineptly called Way B-Hind and a third, newly-top challenger to honors. 16-year-old Mary Hubbell driving Way B-Hind Too.

Youthful Miss Hubbell has raced boats since she was 12, but not until July 4 at Cachuma Dam, Santa Barbara, had she won a race.

Officials expect nearly 100 boats will take part in the 18-heat program.

Meantime, today, the racing outboards will gather at Palmdale to try and run off the regatta which was postponed earlier this year because of bad weather.

FURY, THE Ray Crawford-Howard Gidovlenko Gold Cup challenge boat which was hauled Friday to Lake Mead, may get first serious go at trial runs today on the Nevada lake.

The 30-foot "aero-designed" boat is scheduled to go out in official APBA-sanctioned trials next Sunday and Monday for the 178.474 unlimited straightaway record held now by Stan Sayres' Slo Mo Shun IV of Seattle.

Fury will represent the Southern California Speedboat Club in the Gold Cup quest. Of interest in view of the record quest is that Donald Campbell, apparently dissatisfied with his unofficial speed of 185 m.p.h. with the jet-powered Bluebird, still has the boat up for more modifications.

HURLER TO RETIRE

A's Release Johnny Sain

KANSAS CITY (U.P.)—Pitcher Johnny Sain received his unconditional release from the Kansas City Athletics Saturday and probably will retire from baseball as he wanted to do at the start of this season.

Sain, 36, was acquired from the New York Yankees by the A's May 11 in a deal which sent outfielder Enos Slaughter to Kansas City and pitcher Sonny Dickson and an undisclosed amount of cash to New York.

Sale of Coan Backfires, Orioles Bow

CHICAGO (U.P.)—The Chicago White Sox rallied for three runs in the ninth inning Saturday to defeat the Baltimore Orioles, 4-3, and extend their winning streak to five games.

George Kell led off the ninth with a single and Bob Kennedy followed suit. The bases were filled when Wayne Causey threw wild to first base on Jim Busby's grounder.

Paul Richards called in Ray Moore from the bullpen to pitch to Gil Coan, who was bought Saturday morning from Baltimore and was batting for the first time in a White Sox uniform. Coan drove a single into centerfield, scoring Kell, Sherm Lollar was hit and then Moore walked pinch-hitter Dick Donovan, forcing in the winning run with none out.

The HOT CORNER

by VERN STEPHENS

There have been many deals completed since the June 15 trading deadline in the majors with the clubs once again pulling the old "gentlemen's agreement" routine to beat the rules. The utter foolishness of the trading deadline is demonstrated by these deals.

VERN STEPHENS

The way in which the clubs get around the deadline rule is by saying that the players are going on waivers.

Speaking of deals . . . it looks as if the ex-manager of the Chicago White Sox is trying to challenge his ex-boss Frank Lane as being the "Trader Horn" of the majors. Having made 63 trades in one year Paul Richards is catching up, but quick, with Lane.

IT LOOKS LIKE ANOTHER PENNANT FOR THE Yankees. Casey Stengel's team has all the breaks during the last month of the season. They will play Washington, Baltimore and the Red Sox, while Cleveland will be battling Chicago, Detroit and Kansas City. It looks like the month of September will favor the Bombers and let them home free to another flag.

ANOTHER RATHER SICKENING THING IS TO SEE the way the ball clubs are being handled and the way that they are treating the players since the players have their own representatives. It seems to us that they are trying to break down the players and trying to get them to be more lenient in their demands to the owners.

Still another beef of the players is that they are being treated like school boys after losing a game. On some clubs it is no longer a man's game where you fight back after losing or having a bad day. Now it is a case of staying after school because you did not get your lessons right.

Many of the managers who practice this method of remedying faults will be extremely sorry later this season. Many of their older players will be too tired to give their all when the blue chips are down.

Middlecoff Leads by 2

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (U.P.)—Cary Middlecoff, shooting them dead to the pin on rain-spongy greens, recaptured the lead at the three-quarter mark in the $35,000 Milwaukee Open Saturday with a 13 under par 64-67-66—197. A crowd of 14,200 braved the rain which held up play for half an hour.

Middlecoff said he "never shot better than this" at the end of his third round. "I hit every fairway but one, and I hit every green."

balance. The rider on the other horse, however, shook Arcaro off and went on to win.

The late Judge Joseph A. Murphy, who has received much credit for helping reform Arcaro, who associated with very rough company during his early days in racing, sent for Eddie after the race.

"Eddie, you grabbed that other horse's saddlecloth," he said. "Don't you know that is against the rules and is dirty riding?"

Arcaro readily admitted he was wrong and promised never to do it again.

Three days later, Arcaro again was in front when a horse galloped up to him. Out went his hand to seize the saddle cloth.

When the race was over, Murphy immediately sent for Arcaro. "Eddie, I warned you about grabbing saddle cloths, didn't I?," he snapped.

"I know, Judge," Arcaro said. "I know it's wrong and I know I promised I'd never do it again. But when I see a horse going by me I just can't resist the temptation to grab that saddle cloth and keep him from beating me."

"I'm going to suspend you for 15 days," Murphy said. "That will give you plenty of time to remember never to do it again."

It was Arcaro's first suspension . . . and he never forgot the lesson. While he has been suspended many times since then, none of the bans have been for out-and-out dirty riding!

Bartzen, Trabert Gain Final

ATLANTA (LP) — Defending champion Bernard (Tut) Bartzen combined a steady back court game with his opponent's errors to upset Ham Richardson Saturday and move into the finals of the National Clay Courts tennis championships against top-seeded Tony Trabert.

The fourth-seeded Bartzen, of San Angelo, Tex., set the stage for a repeat of his giant-killing role of last year when he ousted Trabert by beating the second-seeded Richardson, of Baton Rouge, La., 7-5, 6-3, 2-6, 6-4.

Wimbledon champ Trabert rallied from a bad start to defeat third-ranked Eddie Moylan, Trenton, N. J., 2-6, 6-2, 6-0, 6-2, in his semi-finals match.

The hard-stroking Trabert was bothered in the first set by Moylan's precise placement shots and chops but fell back repeatedly in the last three sets on lobs to set up his foe for passing blasts to the base line.

Richardson suffered again from the errors which plagued him week-long in his match with Bartzen and the methodical Texan took advantage of many of them.

Each held his own service through 11 games of the first set but Bartzen lofted a high lob out of Richardson's reach to take it. In the second set, they tied at two games each and then were delayed almost two hours by rain. When they returned to the court, Bartzen won four straight games to take the set.

In the women's divison, top-seeded Barbara Breit of North Hollywood moved into the finals against second-ranked Mrs. Dorothy Head Knode of Alameda, by defeating Jean Clark, Birmingham, Ala., 6-3, 6-0. Mrs. Knode whipped Yola Ramirez of Mexico City, 6-3, 6-1.

Tab Harbert to Repeat

DETROIT (AP) — Defending champion Chick Harbert, who will have the advantage of playing on his own course, heads a field of 142 professionals for the 37th annual PGA Golf Tournament—a seven-day endurance test which starts Wednesday at the Meadowbrook Country Club.

The 40-year-old Harbert might even be tabbed as the favorite in this blue ribbon event, for he not only is familiar with the secrets of Meadowbrook's 6,750 yards, but he is a fierce match play competitor as well.

The first two days are set aside for qualifying, 18 holes a day, with the low 63 scorers joining Harbert for the start of match play Friday.

Rockets Battle Stars, Eye Summer Crown

Having won five of their last six games, the Long Beach Rockets will be out to nail down the Summer League semipro title today when they battle the Long Beach Stars in the last regularly scheduled loop game at Recreation Park. Game time is 2:15 p. m.

The game was originally scheduled for last week, but the Stars at the last minute were granted a week's postponement to accept an exhibition date in the north. The Rockets, meanwhile, dropped an 11-inning exhibition thriller to San Pedro.

One of four "home" clubs in the nine-team league, the Rockets, however, are unbeaten in summer action. A win today will enable the Rockets to enter the playoffs.

Rocket Manager Walt Carson has Larry Jones and Bob Castleman, both strong righthanders, ready for mound action.

In a previous non-league game with the Stars on April 17 the Rockets scored twice in the 10th inning to win, 8-6. Today's rematch is expected to be another tight one.

The Stars, one of five "traveling" teams in the league, have a hard-hitting crew, including catcher Vern Highfield, a steady .300 in three years of class C minor league ball.

Rocket power hitters include Ev Pearson, Emmett Ryan and Bob Carter. Probable lineups:

LANGE SECOND

City Golf Champ Griggs Named 'Athlete of Month'

City golf champion Larry Griggs was named "athlete of the month" for June by the Long Beach Sports Boosters Club. In a sweep by the links set, City women's champion Jane Lange was a close second and junior ace Pinky Stevenson third.

Griggs, also the Recreation Park Men's Club champ, was only given an outside chance when the annual City classic began. But while the favorites began to topple, the Douglas Aircraft development inspector kept a clean record.

He came from behind to oust John McMonnegal, 1 up, in an exciting quarter-final match and after receiving a semi-final default, trounced favored Sandy Mosk Jr., 9 and 8, in the scheduled 36-hole finals.

Miss Lange swept to an easy victory in the women's City tourney. She also holds the Recreation Park Women's Club and Los Angeles City titles. The 16-year-old Stevenson captured the Southern California CIF individual bunting and was the only Long Beach area golfer to successfully qualify for the National Public Links Championship.

PAR TICULARS by JERRY WYNN

Two of Recreation Park's finest — professional Wayne Otis and junior Pinky Stevenson—have important golf dates this week.

While Otis left by plane Saturday night for suburban Detroit and the National PGA Championship qualifying, Stevenson was returning home from the National Publinx Championship at Indianapolis to take part in U. S. Junior sectional trials.

Both have tough roads ahead.

For Otis, the first Park pro to make the championship in more than 20 years, it will mean two rounds at the difficult Meadowbrook CC course Wednesday and Thursday in a field of 142 seeking 63 places (defending champion Chick Harbert the lone exemptee).

For Stevenson, a quarter-finalist last year, it's 18 holes Tuesday at equally-treacherous Riviera CC in an exceptionally strong field of 42. Only seven places are available. Other top Long Beach hopes are Dick Carmody, who's come into his own in the past few months, City Junior champion Johnny Lucas and Bobby Irwin.

Said Otis before he departed, "I'm not going just for the ride. If only my game can get as hot as I hear the weather back there is. . . ."

If Stevenson should make it, it will be back to the Hoosier state for him Aug. 3-6 where the tournament is scheduled at Purdue University.

WITH MEN'S and women's National Amateur championships coming up shortly, the USGA has issued a warning to players who intend to turn pro to stay out of the tournaments.

Four of the last five winners of the men's Amateur—Arnold Palmer, Gene Littler, Billy Maxwell and Sam Urzetta and three of the last five women's championships — Jackie Pung, Bev Hanson and Mary Lena Faulk—plus last year's runner-up, Mickey Wright, have cashed in on their amateur reputations by turning professional.

"We aren't trying to admonish anyone who isn't playing in the championship this year, said USGA President Isaac Grainger. "It's just a reminder to encourage people to declare themselves. The only ones we are interested in are the ones who already have made up their minds."

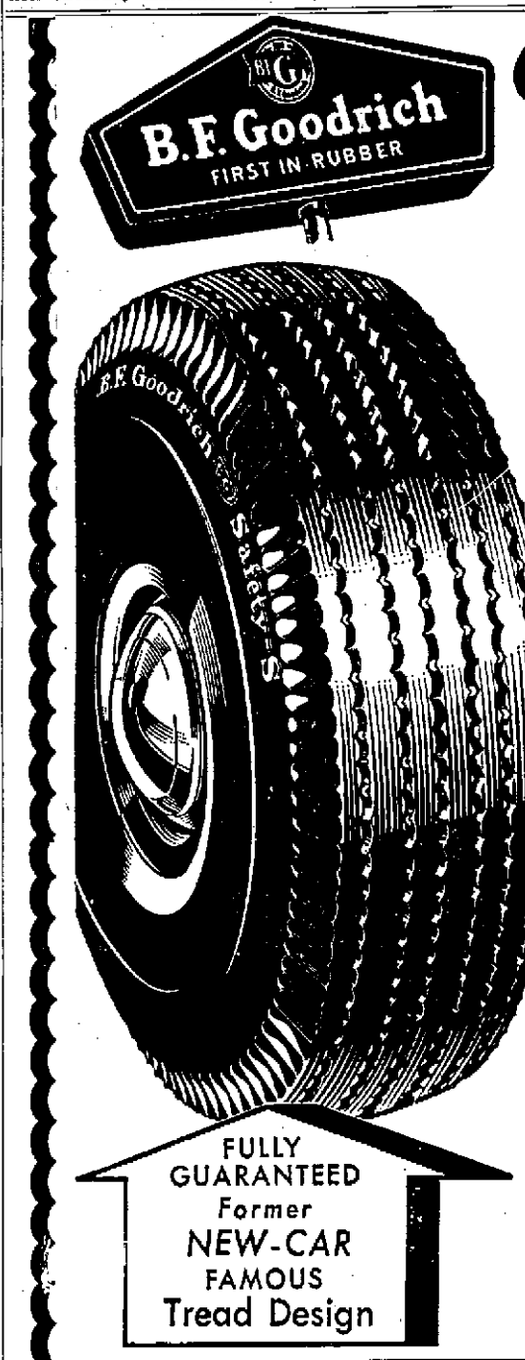

Entries for the women's Amateur at Charlotte, N. C., Aug. 22-27 close Aug. 8. Those for the men's Amateur at Richmond, Va., Sept. 12-17, have an Aug. 12 deadline.

LESTER LAWSON, JR., 72-5, won the Virginia Men's Club Saturday Sweepstakes with a 67.

Tied at 68 were Chuck DeCoudres, 79-11, and Roy Spawr, 74-6. Carding 69s were Henry Robertson, 85-11; Harry Bouchier, 80-11, and Dr. J. K. Hunter, 78-9.

Fishin' Around

By DONNELL CULPEPPER

Call them whatever you like — Little Sports, Tackle Busters or Huck Finns—the youngsters of the city are going at this fishing business with a real purpose this year.

Three progams for boys and girls now are under way and the kids, teenage and lower, are showing up on the piers, the wharves, the rocks and even in the surf. Most of them are pointing toward one goal—the Long Beach Recreation Department's city-wide fishing rodeo at Belmont Pier Thursday, Aug. 25.

Jack Minar, the recreation dept.'s coordinator, has appointed Art Parra general chairman of the Aug. 25 event. And Parra, in turn, has named the committee chairmen, who are the following:

Dr. George Chuck, rules; Manning Moore, judging; Claude Kreider, publicity; Charlie Richard, bait, and Otto Petri, prizes.

The city's firemen and life guards will provide the committee on safety. Members of the Long Beach Surf-Fishing Club and the Alamitos Bay Sportsmen already have pledged themselves to aid all children who need help with their fishing that day.

The 1954 fishing rodeo, the city's first, attracted more than 1,000 children.

The pier will be for "KIDS ONLY" on that day, and Fishin' Around is happy to join with others in asking parents of all children who want to fish to see that they get to the pier that day. If you haven't helped a boy—or girl—fish, you haven't enjoyed one of the greatest outdoor experiences any one can have.

OTHER ACTIVITIES

Meanwhile, the Outboard Boating Club's annual Huck Finn fishing derby got under way last Saturday, with Gaylord Day as chairman. The event will run through Sunday, Aug. 31, and all children from 2 to 16 are eligible.

The derby is broken down into age classifications—under 10, 10 to 12 and 12 to 16. There will be several classifications of fish and prizes for each. Grand prize for the best catch will be a bicycle.

Children may fish anywhere within the city limits. Weigh-in stations are the following: Barnes Marine Supplies, 5368 E. 2nd St.; Jerry Chrisman's, 6200 Bayshore Wk.; Beany's Bait & Tackle, Belmont Pier Co. and the Belmont Bait and Landing Co., all at or near Belmont Pier; also Stony's Tackle at Pierpoint Landing.

OBC officials are going all-out this year to interest their own children and others in the Huck Finn derby and hope to have several hundred entries before the end of the contest.

Also interested in youth activities is the Alamitos Bay Sportsmen, a club that meets twice a month in the Colorado Lagoon clubhouse. Don Callard of the ABS is the chairman for the Little Sports and the first barge-fishing trip of the season is scheduled for Tuesday. The Little Sports meet the first and third Thursdays at Rogers Junior High School.

WEST WALKER TRIP

Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Shane, 2287 Lime Ave., and son, Ronald, are back from a week's fishing trip to the West Walker River. Shane termed the vacation one of the best and said that they caught limits of cutthroat and rainbow trout.

The Shanes stayed at Jim Kindel's Buckhorn Motel, 10 miles south of Topaz Lake and Kindel acted as guide. Shane insists that Jim is just as good a guide in fishing as he is in hunting deer.

They caught most of their fish on Heddon Hep spinning lures, white salmon eggs and Colorado spinners. The weather was good at Walker, although blustery south of Bridgeport. Shane said that a 7-pound cutthroat and a 5½-brown were taken by other anglers while they were there. He added that the river is clearing rapidly and should be good for fly fishing by Aug. 1.

OUTDOOR PERSONALS

The list of drivers in the Stockton-to-Redding 316-mile outboard race is growing each week, with the time just three weeks off. Aug. 5 and 6 are the dates for this rich classic, worth $6,000 in prizes. Top award is a $2,000 diamond cup trophy. Deadline for entering is July 30 and requests for entries should be sent to Bert A. Phillips, producer-director, Redding Junior Chamber of Commerce. Don Quinlivan of Torrance is one of the entries.

Make no mistake about that Sacramento River race — it's not easy. There's plenty of white water and the tricky currents may spell disaster for experienced drivers.

While we are in the outdoors and dreaming of northern California, let's take a look at Dunsmuir, just north of Redding. TV owners there had a community antenna and a main lead-in wire for all the sets in town. Well, it seems that a nosey bear started chewing off the insulation and the TV screens went blank. The Department of Fish and Game figured that was an emergency and issued a special permit to kill the b'ar. Now Mr. Bruin is no more and the Dunsmuir residents once again are enjoying their favorite TV programs.

Do you have a handy tip for fishermen or hunters? If so, write it in 25 words or less to Sports Afield, 959 8th Ave., New York 19, N. Y., and you'll receive a 64-page fishing and hunting handbook by Lee Wulff, containing much information on records, fishing, hunting, equipment and methods of fishing. The booklet is being made available by Ancient Age Distilling Co. through Sports Afield.

OCEAN FISHING (*)

Just in case some ocean angler accuses this columnist of neglecting local fishing, here's the season's quickest summary: It's in a periodic slump. Fish are still there, but they are not cooperating properly.

Star Aussie Duo Cinches Cup Opener

CHICAGO (AP) — Australia, relentlessly determined to recapture the Davis Cup it lost to the United States last year, breezed into the semi-finals of the American Zone tennis competition Saturday by taking the decisive doubles match that assured victory over Mexico.

The Aussies' two young stars, Rex Hartwig and Lew Hoad, fresh from their Wimbledon doubles championship, overpowered Mexico's two veterans, Gustavo Palafox and Francisco Guerrero, 6-1, 6-2, 6-4.

The decision in doubles, coupled with singles victories Friday by Hartwig and Ken Rosewall, gave Australia the decisive three points in the five-point competition.

At Baastad, Sweden, Swedish took a 2-1 lead over Chile in the European Zone semifinals Saturday when Sven Davidson and Torsten Johansson defeated Luis Ayala and Ares Hammersley, 6-0, 6-1, 6-4, in doubles.

Nicolo Pietrangeli and Orlando Sirolo won the final two singles matches, giving Italy a 5-0 sweep in its European Zone semifinal series against England.

MODERN GOLF

By DALE ANDREASON
(Golf Instructor)

Rhythm in walking:

First, let us define rhythm. It is not a fast action nor is it slow. It is a smooth flowing action of all muscles working together as a unit.

There is a word that catches the eye more and more in sports these days; it is "rhythmic motion," which means the large muscles pushing and pulling the small with no wasted motion.

Let's talk about walking correctly using rhythmic motion. When playing 18 holes the average golfer walks approximately four miles. I am sorry to say that a good 75 per cent of the golfers burn up twice the energy needed in walking their 18 holes.

The average golfer walks from the knee, thus making the calf of the leg push and pull the large muscle. In doing this the golfer takes approximately a 25 to 30 inch step.

To walk smoothly with rhythmic motion the golfer must concentrate on walking with the thigh muscle in control of the action. The thigh muscle in turn will push and pull the knee and the calf muscle which, in turn, works the foot.

The thigh muscle is easily the most powerful muscle in the human body. When in control it can carry the weight of the body easily, burning up very little energy. The stride will be closer to 45 inches so you can easily see that by working with the larger muscles of the body you have true rhythm or coordination.

You will also note that in walking in this correct manner that your heel hits the ground first and your weight moves toward the toe. This action is very helpful to the arch of the foot. You will notice that in walking from the knee the weight settles on the arch of the foot and the foot becomes tired very quickly.

Hold one hand across the lower part of the stomach and hold the other at the lower part of the back. Now concentrate on walking properly, stretching out with the thigh muscles. You will soon feel the lower back and stomach muscles being pushed and pulled, thus creating not only good tone and circulation in the muscles, but also in the organs of the body as well.

Hawks Seek 14th Victory

L.B. Gets Deserved 'Metropolitan' Tag

AS ANYBODY acquainted with Long Beach knows, this city is a distinct, individual area—a center and not a satellite.

But unfortunately, for the purposes of certain statistical records Long Beach has long been submerged under the arbitrary phrase "Los Angeles Metropolitan area."

It is happy and significant news that this will no longer be the case.

As a result of negotiations between Rep. Craig Hosmer and federal officials, the Bureau of the Budget is adopting a new policy of metropolitan designations which gives Long Beach equal prominence with Los Angeles.

The new title is the Los Angeles-Long Beach Metropolitan Area.

This change is important beyond the matter of municipal pride. It is of economic importance. For Long Beach will now be officially acknowledged as a market area separate from Los Angeles.

"It should result," as Chamber of Commerce Manager D. W. Campbell points out, "in more information being available to eastern research groups, advertisers and consultants who are looking for new industrial sites and business areas. We finally are getting recognition as a major Southern California city."

Up to the time of this change Long Beach was in a peculiar and unfair position in relation to other cities on the list of metropolitan areas.

Here was a city with a city zone population of 374,000 and a trading zone population of about 1,500,000, yet it was not named on a list of 233 metropolitan areas in the U. S., although cities with population as low as 56,700 (Hutchinson, Kan.) were named as metropolitan areas. We were the largest city in the nation lacking this recognition.

And if a large national firm planned a promotional or advertising or sales campaign, concentrating on metropolitan areas, our name was not available on the official list as a distinct market area.

Where we were not before on list of more than 200, we are now named, jointly with Los Angeles, as third on the list. For the Los Angeles-Long Beach Metropolitan Area with its 5,379,800 people is third largest in the nation.

On the national business and industrial scene this should vastly enhance our prestige and give us such consideration as may previously have been lacking because of a mere technicality.

Rep. Hosmer and other local leaders who were instrumental in bringing this change about deserve the thanks of every citizen whose economic life is associated with this area.

Another Meeting at the Summit

MALCOLM EPLEY

Smith's Appointment Maintains Balance on Tide Interim Group

APPOINTMENT of H. Allen Smith of Glendale to fill a vacancy on the interim committee assigned to study the Long Beach tidelands problems maintains a meticulous balance which Chairman Gordon Fleury of Sacramento obviously had in mind when he made the original selections.

Smith, one of the leading figures of the Assembly, replaces Assemblyman LeRoy Lyon of Fullerton, who resigned from the Assembly and therefore from the interim committee a few weeks ago.

EPLEY

Like Lyon, Smith is a Republican and was on Long Beach's side in the skirmishes over the Allen tidelands seizure bill in the last session of the Legislature. He was in fact floor leader for the pro-Long Beach forces which successfully fought for an interim study instead of adoption of the Allen bill the day the measure came up for decision.

Smith, a former FBI agent and now a practicing attorney, was the opponent of Assemblyman Luther Lincoln in the speakership contest at the opening of this year's Assembly, with Lincoln winning by the narrowest of margins.

There are five members of the "jury" which will ponder Long Beach's tidelands situation and make a report to the Assembly when it reconvenes next March.

Here's how they can be classified as to party affiliation, region of residence, and vote on the interim study issue:

Chairman Gordon Fleury, Republican, Sacramento, voted for interim.

Caspar Weinberger, Republican, San Francisco, voted against interim.

John McFall, Democrat, Manteca, voted against interim.

Allen Miller, Democrat, San Fernando, voted for interim.

H. Allen Smith, Republican, Glendale, voted for interim.

Thus, excluding the chairman, the committee consists of two northern Californians and two Southern Californians, two Republicans and two Democrats, and two who voted for interim study and two who voted against it. That's balance!

Inasmuch as the interim proposal was advanced as an alternative to the Allen bill, those who favored it were generally rated as opposed to the Allen measure, and those who voted against interim were rated as favorable to the Allen bill passage.

This is not to suggest, however, that this is a group of men with preconceived conclusions on the issues involved in this intricate matter. Chairman Fleury has assured that an open-minded and objective study will be given. The reputations of the men appointed support that pledge. All are lawyers with years of legislative and legal experience.

George Grover, the Corona attorney appointed as counsel for the committee, is not unfamiliar with tidelands matters. He handled such matters for the state attorney general's office when he was a member of that staff before going into private practice.

The big problem before Long Beach officialdom is to prepare a complete presentation of every phase of the city's case to this "jury." Whether it is a "fair and complete" hearing depends as much on Long Beach as it does on members of the study committee.

Soviets Depending on Marshal Zhukov to 'Chat' With Eisenhower at Geneva

MOSCOW'S announcement that Marshal Zhukov will attend the Geneva conference fits in with behind-the-scenes maneuvers by the Soviets that have been going on for several months to establish a line of personal communication between President Eisenhower and the Soviet government which would not be complicated by cumbersome contacts with the other western powers.

London is frankly worried about this. Telephone conversations between this correspondent and informed persons in Britain indicate that the British government is somewhat puzzled by the latest developments and is concerned about the rumors that "Ike" and Marshal Zukov are planning to have private conferences in what appears to be an effort on the part of the Soviet government to make a "deal."

LAWRENCE

This may seem logical to the Russian masterminds and might worry some Britons but, of course, it ignores the fact that Mr. Eisenhower wasn't born yesterday and perhaps more than any other man in the world today is alert to the traps and schemes which seek to weaken the western world's armament program.

Direct contacts between representatives of two powers are not unusual. Sir Anthony Eden and Foreign Minister Molotov conferred often in private at the Geneva conference a year ago.

Ever since Marshal Zhukov became Minister of Defense in the present cabinet in Moscow there has been a studied effort to bring him into closer contact with his wartime friend, Gen. Eisenhower.

At one time Zhukov was shelved by Stalin because of a fear that the military hero would get to be too big a man in the Soviet Union. The present regime evidently not only has no such fears but deliberately invites him to accompany the Soviet delegation to the meeting "at the summit." It means that the Red Army, a real influence in Russia today, is to be represented at Geneva.

Unquestionably the Soviet leaders have been trying to figure out a way to carry on confidential conversations with President Eisenhower outside of the three daily formal conferences in Geneva. As is customary in such international meetings, from 50 to 100 persons are in the conference room at the same time. Obviously every one who speaks is on his guard and there isn't much give and take. It's not easy to make progress that way.

But in between and after the formal conferences, especially at mealtime, there is informality. That's when the real business can be done and that's when it can be determined if there is any elasticity in the Soviet position—any readiness to agree to matters of substance or to develop a procedure that could bring about such agreements later on.

Plainly the Soviets are depending on Marshal Zhukov and his friend "Ike" to do a lot of chatting. The Marshal is a member of the Communist party and must be presumed to be loyal to the military interests of Soviet Russia. He can parrot a propaganda line if instructed to do so and he can follow directions as to what to say and how to say it.

There is no question but what the Russians are after concessions. They want favors on trade — some strategic goods. They want access to raw materials. It is not known what price they would be willing to pay to obtain such things from the western powers.

In the Russian delegation are such English-speaking officials as Andrei Gromyko, who, incidentally, is a good friend of Bernard M. Baruch. At the United Nations meetings there was many an occasion when Gromyko dined at Baruch's house in New York. It is significant that when Molotov was in the United States not long ago he went to Long Island to see Baruch at his summer home. Also, the elder statesman just happened on Wednesday of last week—one of the busiest times for President Eisenhower—to be visiting at the White House.

HEALTHY

All this can be considered healthy in a broad sense because if the Soviet leaders are really bent on making a success of the Geneva conference, they must necessarily develop a channel of communication, unofficial, informal and private, direct to the head of the most powerful nation in the world, President Eisenhower.

But channels are not so important as what is transmitted through them, and the Soviets will find that Mr. Eisenhower will rarely meet with anyone alone—he has a habit of having Secretary of State Dulles at his side and, if he is alone, he doesn't make deals or agreements. If the Soviets want to make concessions they can discreetly define them privately. The way is open.

Hot Summer Day's Peek Into U.S. Newspapers

PEEKING past page one into the newspapers in 90 degree temperature and with a critical eye, here are some of the thoughts that boil to the surface:

The columnists: Here, as the old saying goes, you pay your money and take your choice.

Tom Stokes, Doris Fleeson, Marquis Childs can be rated as "liberals" with David Lawrence, George Sokolsky, Raymond Moley and Frank Kent numbered among the "conservatives."

KNIGHT

Drew Pearson is a pain in the neck to many readers but digs up a lot of information other reporters seem to miss. Roscoe Drummond is usually "down the middle" with well balanced and objective comment.

The Alsops live in another world, writing about what they hope will happen instead of what is actually happening, Westbrook Pegler, once a master of humor and satire, is consistently tiresome of late and Eleanor Roosevelt's little homolies I can take or leave.

The scholarly Walter Lippmann has his magnificent days but you need a range finder to get his point on others.

The "humorists" in the trade are pale imitations of Will Rogers and Peter Finley Dunne, or just plain bad.

All columnists must be read with understanding since, unlike the editor, they can be thoroughly irresponsible and get away with it.

Women's Department: A lot of good reading here, if you have a sense of humor. Good sound advice on manners, how to raise children, become glamorous and solve the problems of home and sex.

If you are disturbed by the antics of "society," just charge it up to the heat.

Editorial pages: The editorialists are too often the unheralded heroes of the newspaper profession. They are charged with producing a daily fare of timely, well informed comment and opinion.

On the whole, they do remarkably well. Since editorials are read for their interest as well as for the information they contain, their readership could be increased by saucing up the content with a dash of lusty indignation.

Sport pages: Interesting, uninhibited writing with a weakness for hero worship. Not enough digging into the big time sports rackets; too uncritical of promoters who exploit young athletes.

Sports editors should remember the public has heard who won the game. What the reader wants to know is how it was won.

The recent All Star game

Comic pages: Reader interest in comics had dropped slightly but they still rank near the top. Part of the decline can be attributed to a failure to come up with a really new idea in 20 years.

Great advances have been made in newspaper photography but too few editors have the picture touch.

One outstanding picture is better than a page of routine wirephotos and posed art of ribbon cutting celebrities.

Conclusion: The American newspaper is constantly improving, both in the quality of its content and in its responsibility to the community it serves.

Read it with understanding and faith. It is the only product where the entire output is manufactured, distributed and sold in a 24-hour cycle, nearly every day in the year.

GENEVA—For a conference that Eisenhower didn't want, this has turned into quite a show.

To see the 1,000 newsmen crowded into sleepy Geneva, or to view Ike's swank villa with 150 yards of lake front, or the small army of Swiss police imported from Basle and Zurich, no one would dream this is a conference sold to John Foster Dulles by Anthony Eden only because Eden was worried sick that he might lose the British elections . . . . Rather than see a Labor party came back into power and because Eden promised British support to Eisenhower around Formosa, Dulles found his Chief in the White House and told him he would have to attend a Big Four conference whether he liked it or not . . . Today the man who really put across this meeting, who nagged at Eisenhower until Ike got bored, and who coined the phrase, "conference at the summit," isn't here . . . His nephew-in-law and understudy, Anthony Eden, at first wanted to bring the old gentleman along. Eden even conceived the idea of making Sir Winston special ambassador representing the queen. But this would have made him outrank the Prime Minister . . . Furthermore, Winnie has become so deaf that it's awfully hard to carry on diplomatic conversations with him. You have to shout . . . So the new prime minister of England, who had trained for years under Churchill, finally decided to leave the old gentleman at home.

Mental Illness

TO THE EDITOR:

Society, in attempting to solve the problem of mental illness, has appointed medical doctors to study the difficulties of individuals, and to generalize as a result of their consideration of large numbers of cases.

The root of the trouble, however, is society itself, and the failure of legal systems to make simple and specific distinctions between right and wrong which can be universally applied and understood.

Governments are not established to help individuals with their personal problems, nor have they a right to invade the privacy of citizens without charging them with a specific violation of existing statutes. Legal determination of "insanity," which is simply a matter of opinion that can never be objectively verified, therefore serves no useful purpose in society.

We cannot eliminate mental illness, but we can refuse to recognize it as a valid reason for causing the involuntary confinement of innocent persons, and as a means by which individuals may escape or lessen the just punishment imposed upon them as a result of their verified criminal acts.

Chicken Pie

TO THE EDITOR:

We hear roosters, or a rooster, crowing in the early morning hours.

The owners may not realize that this can be a great annoyance, even torture, for sick people nearby, and there are always sick people.

A mechanic, who was out of work in my home, heard this crow. He said it made him shudder to hear it. For he knew, once, two sick old gentlemen, and he said it was terrible how they suffered because of this bird.

I think in such cases someone should find the owner of the bird and just kindly tell him what is happening, then the owner might have an elegant dinner of chicken pie.

I've known this very thing to happen, and everybody was happy.

Comfortable? That's nice. This is another dig at the lack of benches in Lincoln Park at the band concerts. Recently two or three hundred people had to stand up. It's disgraceful . . .

Hot Dog Stand

TO THE EDITOR:

The city had built a needless hot dog stand in Recreation Park which has depreciated valuable park and neighborhood property.

You can see just off Santiago Ave. at 8th the damages of abortive action. In a park area with infinite possibilities for beauty and facing what was an established residential area of value we citizens allow this misuse of important property.

There is positively no need for this monstrosity except as through the eyes of the exploiter wanting a hamburger stand on every corner. And why, with the citizenship crying for the city's beautification should every simple tenet of decency and improvement be disregarded. No thought of environment, no design, no architectural treatment. An alleyway for garbage directly placed at the front doors of homes.

We have intelligent fine sensitive appreciative folks in this city. Why must thoughtless, stupid, destructive building like this be permitted? It can't be hidden or remedied by a few trees. Look for yourself and judge. My home is not in this area and I don't own property near there. Like you, I have hope for a better city.

Ike's Batting Average on Legislation in Slump

WASHINGTON (NEA)—The batting average of the Eisenhower administration on proposals to Congress this year is now only around .260. This is an unofficial calculation based on a list of 160 separate legislative proposals, requests and recommendations in presidential messages sent to Congress this session.

Out of this list only 42 of the President's proposals—including 10 treaties sent to the Senate for ratification—have so far been approved by Congress.

There are 10 of the President's proposals that have been passed by the House and 11 passed by the Senate, waiting action by the other chamber, and there are 26 White House measures on which hearings have been completed and bills reported out by committees. It is possible that many of these will get floor action before Congress adjourns.

What has pulled the President's batting average down so far is a lack of definite action on some 71 proposals. There are some important measures in this category, not included in the President's own list of 14 measures on which he has expressed a desire for action this year. Among them:

Customs simplification and legal authorization for the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT) administration. Juvenile delinquency control act. Aid to low income farm families. Reduction of control over Indian affairs. Revision of financing methods for new TVA expansion. Increase in postal rates to balance Post Office Dept. expenses. Revision of immigration laws. Amendment of laws governing espionage, sabotage, perjury and wiretapping. The President's proposals for liberalizing social security benefits, as distinguished from the House Democrats' own program to liberalize old age insurance benefits.

If the whole record of Congressional work done this session is considered without reference to those recommendations made to Congress in Presidential messages, it shows 131 new laws enacted and signed by the President at this writing.

The list includes 16 appropriation bills—with two more to go—which represent a lot of work and time.

Among the important measures passed are: Extension of the draft act and doctors' draft. Raising of the debt limit. Extension of the reciprocal trade agreements law. Closing of tax law loopholes. Raising of pay for government civilian workers, judges and members of Congress themselves.

What builds up the Congressional record of work done, however, is a large number of tricky-track bills. Among them:

Regulation of fireworks sale in Panama Canal Zone. Authorization of the shipping of live scorpions through the mail. Designation of May 1 as Loyalty Day. Creation of a Fine Art Commission. Invitation to hold the 1960 Olympic games in Detroit and Squaw Valley, Calif.

If all the resolutions and routine matters are included, the Congressional box score for the year shows over 700 measures passed by the Senate and over 860 passed by the House. These aren't the same measures and action on many of them will never be completed. But all this keeps Congress busy.

VERACRUZ (U.P.)—The Mexican Navy abandoned hope Saturday for 27 persons missing from the coastal steamer which sank in stormy waters of the Gulf of Mexico Tuesday night.

A Navy Ministry spokesman said the five bodies recovered and 33 survivors were "probably all" that would be accounted for of the 65 persons believed aboard La Flecha when it went down nine miles off shore.

Nature's Medicine Fights Polio Spread

By ERNEST BARTON

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—A Tulane University scientist says nature's own forces will continue to do much of the work in the fight against polio.

Dr. John P. Fox of the Tulane School of Medicine says the Salk vaccine shows promise of being the most effective weapon against polio since the disease was first isolated.

But the protection built up by infection during childhood will be needed to help reinforce vaccine immunity, Fox says.

Fox and other Tulane scientists started a study two years ago of natural immunization to polio.

The study, aided by the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, will concentrate now on learning about the possible spread of infection among vaccinated children, even though the vaccine prevents paralysis.

In the past, Fox says, most people became immune to polio safely and naturally by being infected with polio virus.

Usually this infection was encountered in childhood and about once in approximately 300 cases it resulted in paralytic disease.

Fox says the Tulane project was aimed first at learning when and under what circumstances natural infections occurred.

Besides providing a better understanding of how polio viruses are spread, "it seemed natural that the project would show the circumstances which distinguished the safe, natural infection from the rare infection which resulted in disease," Fox says.

To do this, Fox and his staff studied 155 babies and their households during 1953. The subjects came from New Orleans, Baton Rouge and Evangeline area and represented all classes, both white and negro.

The 155 babies and their households have been checked monthly for two years. The checking included information as to family movements and health and collections of blood and stool specimens—to be tested for polio virus and antibodies.

"We have seen polio infection enter 85 households and have seen more than 200 persons, newborn babies, older brothers and sisters become immune," Fox says.

"In most cases the infection did not result in illness. In the balance of the cases, illness was not significant."

Fox says he and his associates hope to continue the research on the project for another 2½ years.

The children in the 155 study households of the Tulane project will be offered the Salk vaccine, Fox says.

Then, the group will study the natural occurrence of infection in artifically immune children.

"Last year's evaluation program indicated that the vaccine prevents disease but it had no bearing on the problem of infection," Fox says.

He adds it is important to know if general vaccination affects the spread of virus in a community.

"If not, then the person who is vaccinated can probably count on later natural infection to reinforce immunity through life.

"If the spread of virus is largely suppressed, then vaccine-induced immunity may fall off and children will become susceptible again.

"This would mean periodic revaccination," he says.

New Summer Records Set in Playground Attendance

Summer recreation program attendance in Long Beach, Lakewood and Signal Hill is at an all-time high, according to playground officials. Swarms of youngsters are participating in the aquatics program. Land playgrounds are jammed, too.

Free swimming lessons are attracting hundreds of boys and girls to the Colorado Lagoon, Bayshore aquatic center and to 59th Pl. and Bayshore Wk.

The three high school swimming pools are hosts to scores of other eager youngsters.

Landwise, the summer playground softball race is under way with boys competing in four classifications, by age, and girls in two classes.

Walter L. Scott, major domo of the summer playgrounds program, says handcraft, puppetry, drama, rhythms and other special classes are packed with children at all areas.

"In all, we are off to the greatest summer recreation season in the city's history," Scott said.

Construction of big-league backstops at junior high school baseball diamonds throughout the city is one of the major improvement programs of the year.

Free tennis instruction, special sessions in model boat building, and rejuvenation of the Tackle Busters—sport fishing clubs for boys and girls—are other attractive features of the summer play program.

The summer recreation program will run until Aug. 26. Meanwhile 67 municipal and school playgrounds are operating on a daily schedule of 9 a.m.-5 p.m. with veteran recreation supervisors in charge at each area.

New Home Cost in Sharp Climb

Building costs of a $10,000 house were $290 higher in April than they were a year ago and costs of home building continue to mount, it was reported yesterday by Walter W. Keusder, president, Home Builders Institute, Los Angeles, trade association of larger firms in the home building industry.

Current prices of new homes, the HBI president said, do not yet reflect the increased costs because builder-members of the Home Builders Institute are attempting to hold the price line "by employing every known production technique to effect economies."

"In face of increased costs of labor, materials and land, the new homes being offered for sale represent the best values offered the public in many years," Keusder said.

"There are no present indications that the upward trend in home building costs will be halted, and unless it is, prices must soon begin to move upwards, too," the HBI president added.

Keusder pointed to FHA survey figures which disclose that land costs have doubled since 1946 and have gone up nearly 20 per cent during the past 12 months. He added that materials, including lumber, cement, hardware and plumbing equipment advanced in price from three to 15 per cent between April 1954 and April 1955.

Exceptions, he noted, are gypsum products which have not yet shown a price increase and heating equipment and millwork, costs of which are down slightly during the survey period.

Labor costs have risen 1.5 during the year, Keusder stated, and new wage increases are in the making both locally and nationally.

Realty Sales Soar L. B. Survey Shows

Through the recent survey of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, Barbara Moss, real estate counselor with the Harold K. Steele organization, has made comparative analysis of Long Beach with that of the nation.

Major factors in the retail property market—prices, transfers, rents, vacancies and loans for purchase, here in this area as well as nationwide, show the market to be stable and healthy, she states.

The survey forecasts stable prices for retail business properties in most places. Rising prices are predicted for 23 per cent of the cities.

Numbers of transfers of these properties have been about the same in 58 per cent of the central city areas and have increased in another 19 per cent compared with a year ago.

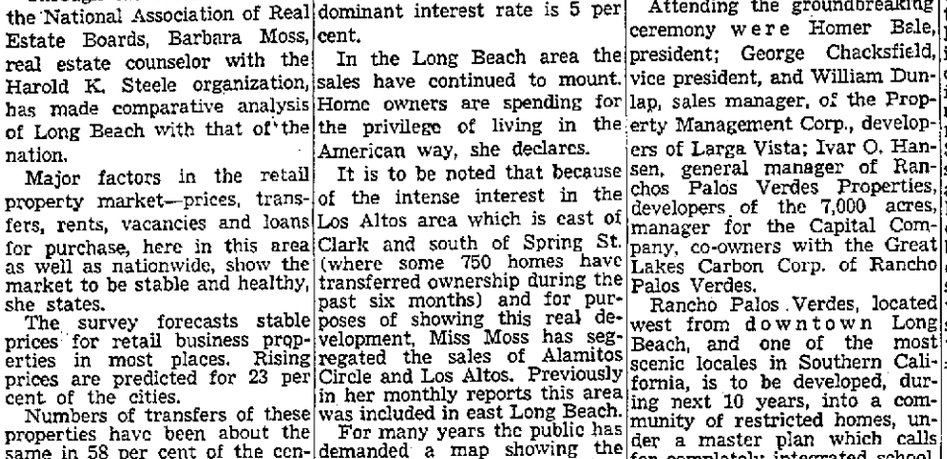

Most areas throughout the country have an ample supply of loan money for "preferred risk" properties—those in prime locations or those occupied by organizations having nationally accepted credit standings. The dominant interest rate is 5 per cent.

In the Long Beach area the sales have continued to mount. Home owners are spending for the privilege of living in the American way, she declares.

It is to be noted that because of the intense interest in the Los Altos area which is east of Clark and south of Spring St. (where some 750 homes have transferred ownership during the past six months) and for purposes of showing this real development, Miss Moss has segregated the sales of Alamitos Circle and Los Altos. Previously in her monthly reports this area was included in east Long Beach.

For many years the public has demanded a map showing the various subdivisional heads. Because of these requests they are now available by calling 40-1125, where a map will be forwarded showing the residential areas, some 47 districts, such as the boundaries of California Heights, Naples, Belmont Shore, Lakewood Plaza, etc.

Attending groundbreaking at Larga Vista Homes in the Rolling Hills section of Rancho Palos Verdes were, left to right, William Dunlap, sales manager, Property Management Corporation, developers; William Kulow, resident-manager of Capital Co., a subsidiary of the Transamerica Corp., co-owner of Rancho Palos Verdes along with the Great Lakes Carbon Corp.; Homer Bales, president, Property Management Corp.; Ivar O. Hansen, general manager, Rancho Palos Verdes Properties, developers of the 7000 acres, and George Chacksfield, vice president, Property Management Corp.

Work Started on 120 Palos Verdes Homes

Situated on one of the Palos Verdes rolling hills, which affords a breathtaking view of the harbor, Larga Vista Homes, an exclusive 120-home development has been started.

Attending the groundbreaking ceremony were Homer Bale, president; George Chacksfield, vice president, and William Dunlap, sales manager, of the Property Management Corp., developers of Larga Vista; Ivar O. Hansen, general manager of Ranchos Palos Verdes Properties, developers of the 7,000 acres, manager for the Capital Company, co-owners with the Great Lakes Carbon Corp. of Rancho Palos Verdes.

Rancho Palos Verdes, located west from downtown Long Beach, and one of the most scenic locales in Southern California, is to be developed, during next 10 years, into a community of restricted homes, under a master plan which calls for completely integrated school, shopping, park, sport and recreational facilities. Initial installation of utilities and other facilities is now in progress.

With half-acre home sites, Larga Vista homes, of contemporary design with modern comfort conveniences, will be priced from $17,450. Homes will feature three or four bedrooms and two baths. The developers, who have built more than 3,000 homes in Los Angeles since 1940, have designed these spacious dwellings in keeping with the Palos Verdes master plan, which features many homes in the $25,000 to $50,000 range. They will have such desirable accomodations as architecturally styled fireplaces, built in gas ranges and ovens, colored crushed rock roofs, open beam ceilings, two-car garages, oak floors, forced air heating, stall showers, breakfast bars, walls of glass overlooking the scenic view, coordinating decorator colors and wood exteriors.

Two Meetings Set This Week

The Long Beach Insurance Association will have two general membership meetings this week. The annual meeting will be held Monday noon in the Mirror Room of the Lafayette Hotel to elect directors and conduct other business.

On Thursday noon, members and their wives will meet in the Cavalier Room of the Lafayette Hotel when they will be hosts to 42 of the Miss Universe Pageant contestants and their hostesses. Speakers will be Oscar Meinhardt, Vincent Trotta and other officials of the Miss Universe Pageant.

Two Weeks Sales 146 in Buena Plaza

Huge crowds and sale of 146 of Aldon Construction Co.'s new 1956 "Triumph Series" of 3 and 4-bedroom, 2-bath homes in the past two weeks assured the success of next year's models, it was reported by Aldon officials following the introduction of the new series.

The builders reported the crowds were the largest for any two weekends in the history of the firm as a steady flow of visitors saw the display of 5 model homes at Valley View and La Palma Aves., south of the Santa Ana Freeway in Buena Park, near Knott's Berry Farm. The models are furnished by Aaron Schultz.

Features finding favor, it was reported by E. (Billy) Hamburg, general sales agent, included floor-to-ceiling brick fireplaces, built-in Western-Holly gas ovens and ranges with copperized hoods, king size stall showers with 6-foot walls of ceramic tile and glass doors, full size bathtubs with showers and 5 feet of marlite over tubs, and 70,000 BTU forced-air heating systems.

Other features include sliding glass walls, rich oak block floors, natural finish birch cabinets with custom hardware, big double sinks with coved plastic tops, asphalt tile kitchen floors, Waste King garbage pulverators, Dish-Whiz semi-automatic dishwashers, and folding partitions separating kitchens from service areas.

Hamburg reported buying had been stimulated by nothing down terms to vets, except for costs and impounds, and monthly payments from $66.67, principal and interest.

Property improvements include wide paved streets with parkway trees and ornamental street lights, curbs, gutters and sewers. Many streets are cul-de-sac to offer traffic protection for children and pets, it was stated.

State Asks Bids on College Cafeteria

Assemblyman William S. Grant announced that the State Department of Public Works is advertising for bids for the construction of a cafeteria building at Long Beach State College. Funds are available for the project in the amount of $325,000.

The cafeteria will be a single story, flat-roofed building with partial basement for mechanical equipment, a loading dock, and an areaway.

The Division of Architecture designed the building as a dual purpose facility. While it will be used primarily for serving food and refreshments to students and faculty, it will be utilized also for group meetings and other on-campus activities.

Accommodations for serving meals to about 300 persons have been provided in the main dining room area. When cleared of tables and chairs, the room may be converted into a social hall of considerable size for large gatherings. In addition, an all-purpose room has been planned to accommodate smaller group meetings. This room will also provide the necessary storage space for unused tables and chairs. A separate, independently operated, snack bar may be closed off for special occasions.

Kitchen services have been centralized to permit direct access to each dining area. Because it is anticipated that the student population at this institution will greatly increase during the next few years, the kitchen has been designed large enough to handle the maximum work loads anticipated.

The cafeteria will be surrounded by over 10,500 square feet of concrete terrace of which about 3,500 square feet will be covered. When weather conditions permit, the sheltered patio may be used to augment the inside dining facilities and will almost double the space available in the main dining room area.

A cowboy's sombrero his trademark and the ability to make and hold friends a natural accomplishment, Donald P. Killen, the Long Beach Realtor of the Week has a droll humor appreciated by all.

When asked about his history, Killen casually remarked: "Not much of a story—let's see—it all happened 41 years ago on the East Coast and from the very first I had the urge to go West.

"We got as far as Ashville, N. C., where dad decided to settle down on a farm near the edge of town. So the formative years of three sons were spent there."

He continued to narrate how his father became a building contractor. When Donald was 12 his father died and the responsibility was left on his shoulders. The urge to head West continued to hold him and he ventured as far as Chattanooga, Tenn., where he went to Southern Junior College, working his way through. He then changed his course and went to Florida for two years, working at the Dr. John Harvey Kellogg resort. There, he said he gained much valuable knowledge and headed West again.

In 1932 he began work in a Southern California airplane factory and then enrolled in a course in aviation mechanics. When, he added, Uncle Sam asked for volunteers for 1 year of service in aviation he signed up but by the time his tour of duty was over it was 5 years and he had climbed from a buck private to captain.

He captured the first Jap prisoner for his division in New Guinea and received a citation and later a Bronze Star.

He had married just before going overseas and when in 1945 he returned home he decided to give up aviation and enter the "biggest business in California, real estate."

Within a few months he became a broker and has followed the profession since. He followed the growth of real estate in the Southland, starting in southwest Los Angeles in the Leimert Park area and looking into the future, ventured into Lakewood before the May Co. did.

Killen is associated with the Lakewood Housing Corp., 5001 Cherry Ave., and lives at 3753 Candlewood. They have three children. "I came here to make a killin'," he laughed. I made three, Killens instead," continued, nodding to the children.

Don is a natural salesman and the past 30 days has made 9 sales.

FEATURE BUILT-IN
Exemplified above are 148 three and four-bedroom, two-bath Champion Park homes at East and North Sts., Anaheim, which features many built-ins, including gas oven, range, inter-com music system, barbecues and combined buffet-desk-dinette.

Champion Park's Opening Is Today

Arnold Construction Co. announced the grand opening this weekend of Champion Park in Anaheim, new 3 and 4-bedroom quality homes with such features as Musicall intercom systems which pipe music between a master control panel and four speakers.

Furnished model homes will be ready for the thousands of visitors expected at the new development at East La Palma and North East Sts., a spokesman for the developers said.

"Noteworthy in Champion Park Homes," he said, "are the nine different floor plans scientifically designed to meet individual needs, and the avoidance of 'tract appearance' by giving buyers a choice from among 18 different exteriors."

"Living rooms," he added, "have sliding walls of glass opening onto terraces, with built-in brick barbecues, while draperies for the wide-expanse of glass walls come with the homes in a choice of six colors."

Terms for vets are nothing down but costs and impounds with monthly payments from $6.70 for principal and interest. Non-vets may buy on low FHA terms.

Other features of the new homes icluding built-in range and ovens, 70,000 to 75,000 BTU thermostat-controlled heating, 40 to 50-gallon gas water heaters, ceramic tile pullman tops in both baths, stall showers in some models, natural beech kitchen cabinets, Waste King garbage pulverators, wide overhangs, redwood fencing, front and side lawns and shrubs, and two-car garages with extra storage space.

Downtown Los Angeles is only 45 minutes away via the Santa Ana Freeway, it was noted, while beaches, mountain and desert resorts are only a short distance from Anaheim which has a smog-free climate and a low tax rate.

Champion Park is reached by following the Santa Ana Freeway to Lincoln Ave., which becomes Center St. Center is followed through downtown Anaheim to East St., where a left turn leads to the property at East La Palma and North East Sts.

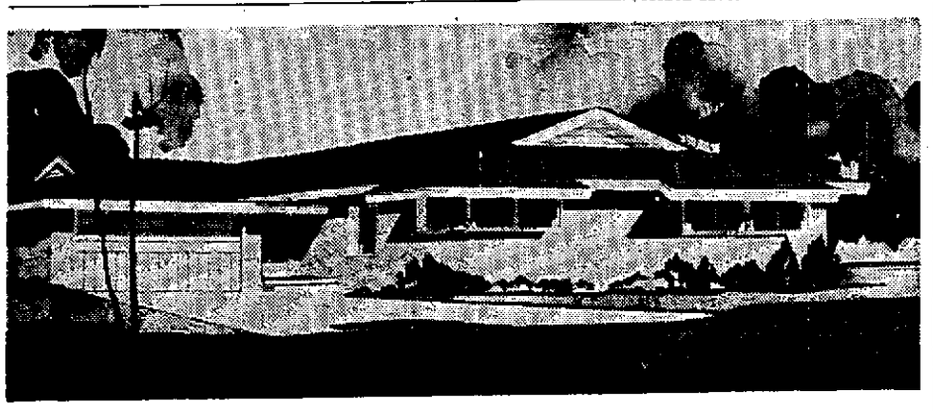

Offer Homes to Non-Vets on $295 Dn.

"Sound construction, attractive architectural design and ready accessibility to industrial areas in Long Beach and metropolitan Los Angeles are factors that appeal to buyers of Artesia Sunshine Homes," S. V. Hunsaker, builder, said recently.

A limited number of these homes built exclusively for non-vets are still available on terms of $295 cash down followed by monthly payments as low as $68.75 including principal and interest.

Artesia Sunshine Homes offer prospective buyers spacious rooms, functional design and interiors attractively finished in decorator colors. These three-bedroom homes feature two baths, large 40-gallon water heaters, natural birch cabinets and plenty of closet space. Buyers have a choice of front or rear living room. Colorful rock roofs with wide overhangs add to the comfort and eye-appeal of these charming homes.

Furnished models are open to visitors from 9:00 to 9:00 daily at Del Amo and Violeta in Artesia. The homes are readily reached from Long Beach by driving east on Carson to Pioneer, north on Pioneer to Del Amo, then east on Del Amo to Violeta Ave.

First Uranium Ore From New Mines

WALSENBURG, Colo. (AP)—The first commercial shipment of uranium ore from Huerfano County was made last week—ore from mines discovered when a packhorse stumbled and spilled a Geiger counter on an exposed ore vein.

The shipment was 17 tons of ore from the Stumbling Stud mines north of Badito. It was trucked to Grants, N.M., at the direction of the Atomic Energy Commission. J. A. McClung, contract operator of the 16 properties, took the ore shipment to the mill.

Discovery of the ore first became known in April when the AEC promised to purchase "selected ore" from the Stumbling Stud mines.

Chapman-Magnolia Park Final Unit Now Opened

Grand opening of the final unit of Chapman-Magnolia Park in the choice residential section of suburban Garden Grove, is today, according to Ajax Construction Co., builder-developers of this community of spacious California contemporary and modern four-bedroom, three-bedroom and a den and three-bedroom homes, with one, two and three baths. They are priced from $11,600 to $13,900, and are available to veterans for no down payment, no impounds and no closing costs, with monthly terms that range from $61.41 to $73.39 for principal and interest.

Country-life features of homes in this final unit, themed as "distinctive rustic," are interiors where wall space, windows and generous use of floor space make effective and restful decoration and furnishing simple and inexpensive, if desired.

Other comfort appointments and conveniences are built-in gas ovens and range tops in a virtual rainbow of colors and hues, complete with automatic timing device and controls; spacious built-in breakfast nooks; large "new-view" picture windows.

To inspect the furnished models on exhibit from 10 a. m. to 8 p. m., home-seekers from Los Angeles should drive out the Santa Freeway to Highway 30 (Grand Ave. in Buena Park); turn right and drive south to Chapman; left on Chapman to models. From Long Beach, drive east on 7th St., past the Veterans' Hospital to Highway 39; north one-half mile to Chapman, and east one-mile to Chapman-Magnolia Park.

R. & W. CONSTRUCTION CO., BUILDERS

New Route Advised to Glenn Dell Park

Because of the opening tomorrow of Disneyland, West St., leading directly to the third and final unit of Glen Dell Park, D. & E. Corporation's newest residential development in Garden Grove, may be temporarily made into a one-way highway, according to officials of Pioneer Land Co., sales agents.

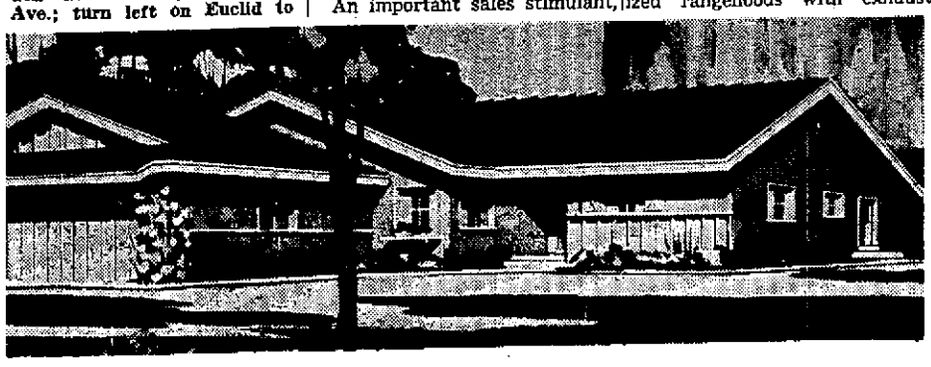

Therefore, home-seekers from Long Beach planning to visit this new community of conventionally - constructed 3-bedroom and 2-bedroom-and-a-den home today or next week, are advised not to try to travel directly on West St. or even Chapman Ave., but to drive out Seventh St. (Garden Grove Blvd.) to Euclid Ave.; turn left on Euclid to Katella, right on Katella to West St., and then right on West St. to development.

Built around the popular center-hall plan, Glen Dell Park homes offer either front or rear living rooms, two bathrooms, and a choice of attached or detached two-car garages. There are 23 exteriors, and a variety of decorative redwood-trims as well as other attractive exterior appointments.

Homes are available to qualified veterans for no down payment except impounds and closing costs, and on monthly payments that range from $58.75, and include principle and interest, Pioneer officials state. Homes are priced from $11,595.

An important sales stimulant, it was pointed out, is the mortgage-payment insurance protection policy, with premiums paid for one full year, which is given each buyer at no additional cost. Policy provides enough money to take care of monthly payments for at least one year should the home-buyer become unable to work because of an insured disability.

Other popular features are genuine oak hardwood floors laid over diagonal sub-floors; geniune lath and plaster walls; separate service porches; covered concrete terraces; "convertable" dining nooks; double sinks with ceramic tile drainboards; garbage disposers; natural-finish wood kitchen cabinets; copperlized rangehoods with exhaust fans; inlaid "spatter" pattern linoleum in kitchens and bathrooms; 40-gallon water heaters; coralite tile in bathrooms, and sliding glass doors that lead directly onto garden patios.

IN GLEN DELL PARK

Because the opening of Disneyland may result in temporary one-way traffic on West St., Garden Grove, visitors to Glen Dell Park were advised to take a new route to the homes today. Visitors may drive on Euclid to Katella, left to West St. and then right to reach the homes where the design above is one of the models.

Extras for Verano Buyers

Plus values totaling $1,136.55 are included in a the low purchase price of Verano House and Garden Homes in Garden Grove, according to the Tobin builders.

The building firm reports the extra features such as fireplaces, landscaping, sprinklers, lawns, six foot redwood fences, patio, and overhead trellis and planter are all available at no extra cost to the purchaser.

"To have this work done, it would cost buyers $1,136.55," a spokesman for the firm declared.

The 3-bedroom, 1½-bath homes are selling for $59 a month including principal and interest. Total price is $10,995.

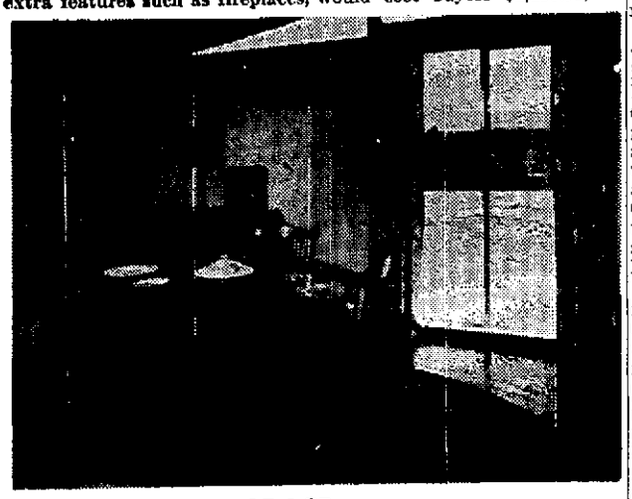

Four bedroom, 2-bath models are priced at $12,595 with payments of $66 per month.

Interior features meeting with wide approval of home-seekers include spacious kitchens, two big dining areas, Columbia kitchen cabinets in steel with sliding glass doors and panchromatic sand color, Westinghouse food-waste disposer, kitchen vent fan and oversize bathroom heaters, Owens-Corning insulation, finger-tip heating by General Thermostat Controls, a Dishmaster and Laminart kitchen counter tops.

Those who live in Los Angeles may view Verano House and Garden Homes by traveling via the Santa Ana Freeway. Turn right on La Palma, follow signs down Brookhurst to Garden Grove Boulevard; turn left to Century, and right on Century to Verano.

From Long Beach, travel east on Garden Grove Blvd. (Seventh St.) and turn right on Century to Verano.

Pioneer Land Co. is sales agent.

Throngs of Visitors for Delhi Gardens

The three furnished model homes and three flexible floor plans designed to make suburban living a happy blend of convenience and beauty drew hundreds of visitors and potential buyers to Delhi Gardens, new Godbey Development Co. community on Delhi Rd. at Lowell St. in the new "miracle mile" section of southwest Santa Ana, according to spokesmen for Pioneer Land Co., sales agents.

Homes' big white fireplaces, made of Texas sandstone, and designed with raised hearths in such a manner as to dominate the big, open-beamed ceilinged rooms, prove to be one of the high points of interest, sales officials explained. Complete wall of glass that looks out onto the concrete garden patio and separates the "family room" from the rest of the house also won high public approval, it was stated.

Kitchens, which include built-in gas wall ovens and range tops at comfort levels; garbage disposers, and aerodynamically designed range hoods were developed especially for Delhi Gardens homes by Mrs. Olsten, wife of the designer — Clif Olsten. Her design for these kitchens has received such high praise that they have been named for her, builders reported.

Moderately priced from $12,999 and requiring no down payments of veterans except usual closing costs and impounds, low monthly payments range from $66.94, builders point out, and include principal and interest. The homes are large, some four-bedroom.

Adding to attractiveness are birch kitchen cabinets, Formica drainboards, American Standard bath fixtures with Hallmark fittings, glass-enclosed stall showers, built-in dressing table in the master bath in some, and deep walk-in closets.

Other popular features are 75,000 BTU forced-air heating, ash slab doors throughout, sliding aluminum-framed windows with aluminum screens, custom-designed lighting fixtures, insulated ceilings, asphalt tile flooring, insulated slab doors, complete weathershipping; landscaping, with front and side lawns planted and growing, and decorative redwood fences.

Delhi Gardens may be seen by taking the Santa Ana Freeway to Main St. in Santa Ana; turn right on Main St. to Delhi Rd., and right on Delhi to model homes at Lowell St.

From Long Beach, take 7th St. (which becomes Garden Grove Blvd.) to Bristol St. in Santa Ana; drive south on Bristol to Delhi, left on Delhi to exhibit homes furnished by Glen Carpet & Drapery Co., with interior and exterior color-co-ordinated by Dale Farney.

DELHI GARDENS

Featuring floor-to-ceiling fireplaces, kitchens with built-in ovens and ranges, Delhi Gardens in Santa Ana will hold its grand opening today. Floor plan includes choice of 3 bedrooms and a family room, shown here.

IN PEMBROOK VILLAGE

Rustic California architecture featured in Pembrook Village. The popular Garden Grove development on Harbor just south of Chapman has been enthusiastically received by home buyers. Among the many features are shake roofs, hardwood floors, a compartmentalized bath and the convenient "MusiCall" intercommunication system.

Heavy Sales in Pembrook Village

"Since the grand opening of Pembrook Village No. 5 a few weeks ago, buying enthusiasm has gone far beyond expectation. This, of course, is due to the many 'extra' features specifically designed for the complete enjoyment of our Southern California way of life embodied in these distinctive, rustic, Early American homes," explained Bruce Bartleson, sales director for the Pembrook Co., builders of the Garden Grove development.

"In addition, we are indeed gratified to learn that many buyers choose Pembrook Village because it offers seclusion and, at the same time, easy accessibility to all the conveniences of city life, including proximity to the famed Disneyland, only three minutes away," he continued.

Just a limited number of these popular homes has been built to insure complete and proper supervision of construction.

When the managers of Pembrook Village use the slogan "Old Fashioned Charm in a Modern Setting," they mean it, for, included in the array of attractive features are: real brick fireplaces, Musicall intercom system, compartmentalized baths with sliding doors that make it possible for five people to use the facilities in complete privacy, and forced-air heating.

Circular floor plans, roomy efficiency kitchens with garbage disposers and fans, sliding glass doors to patio area, golden hardwood floors, large dining areas in all models and service porches are just a few of the popular features offered.

Pembrook Village No. 5 is on Harbor just south of Chapman. From Los Angeles take the Santa Ana Freeway to Harbor and turn south. From Long Beach go out Seventh St. (Garden Grove Blvd.) and turn north on Harbor. Look for the Ojai Stone Gate on the east side of Harbor.

British Exports Show Big Drop

LONDON (AP)—British exports during June fell by 90 millions pounds (252 million dollars) from the April-May average, the Board of Trade disclosed.

The dock and railway strikes during that period were primary cause of the sharp decline.

Recorded exports were 157 million pounds ($439,600,000) imports went down only slightly thus creating a sharp trade gap.

The excess of imports over re-exports was 128,800,000 pounds ($360,640,000), compared with an average of 47,900,000 pounds ($134,120,000) for the April-May period.

Exports to North America took a severe beating, totalling 17,400,000 pounds ($49,720,000) a reduction of more than one-third on the April-May average.

New Orange Terrace Unit Draws Crowds

IN NEW COMMUNITY

Here is one of the models at Orange Terrace Unit III, W. I. Wilkie's newly opened community of three and four-bedroom, two-bath homes on Flower St., just south of Chapman Ave., Orange. Terms to vets are nothing down but costs and impounds.

A steady flow of visitors all last weekend at the newly opened third unit of Orange Terrace, on Flower just south of Chapman Ave. in Orange, resulted in the highest sales total to date, according to W. I. Wilkie, developer of the community of 3 and 4-bedroom, 2-bath homes. Terms to veterans are nothing down but costs and impounds, while non-vets are offered FHA terms with down payments from $1,450.

Mrs. Faith Coulter, who heads an all-woman staff for Walker & Lee, sales agents, said yesterday both visitors and sales have continued heavy at Orange Terrace Unit 3 during the week. Focal point of interest, she stated, is the exhibit of furnished models decorated under supervision of Mrs. Marie Wilkie, wife of the developer.

There still are a few homes left in the second unit of Orange Terrace, according to Mrs. Coulter, who disclosed that GI's still may buy these dwellings on the same terms in effect prior to the April 28 restrictive order issued by the Veterans Administration. The Unit II houses are available only because of credit rejections, she said.

Among the many added luxury features offered in the new homes at Unit III are open brick fireplaces and built-in Western Holly ranges and ovens. In addition, there are sliding glass walls; ceiling-high picture windows; Higgins oak block floors; Formica decks, natural birch cabinets, double sinks with garbage disposers and Vinyl tile floors in the kitchens.

To reach Orange Terrace take the Santa Ana Freeway to Chapman Ave., turn east, go to Flower St. in Orange, and turn south.

Hundreds of Southlanders attended the grand opening last weekend of Royal Crest, new three and four-bedroom development in Garden Grove. This is one model.

Royal Crest Terms None Down to Vets

Knights in armor and mounted on steeds with ornate saddles, directed hundreds of home-seekers to Royal Crest in Garden Grove during last Sunday's grand opening.

Lances bearing the Royal Crest flag pointed the way to the 3 and 4-bedroom "country estate plan" community.

Available to veterans on no down payment terms, the homes are built on extra-wide lots and are priced at $61 per month, including principal and interest.

As a especial offer, buyers will be given a $100 gift certificate redeemable at any May Co. store to help furnish the new home.

Those purchasing new Royal Homes also are given a choice of a built-in Roper gas range and oven in color, a built-in Hotpoint automatic electric dishwasher, a Westinghouse automatic clothes washer or a Rheem-Wedgewood automatic clothes dryer. The appliance is included in the purchase price of the particular plan selected.

Interiors of the homes feature 20-foot walls of glass, natural brick fireplaces with log lighters and ash receptacles, genuine oak hardwood floors, sound-absorbing ceilings, breakfast nook areas, covered Laminart sink tops, forced air heating with summer conditioning and built-in television antennas.

Other features—Waste King Garbage Pulverators, 40 or 50-gallon water heaters, double porcelain enamel sinks, exhaust fans, spacious patios, extra heavy natural rock roofs and over-size garages. Purchasers receive one-year signed warranties on the construction of the homes.

Six models furnished by the May Co. may be viewed by those taking the Santa Ana Freeway from Los Angeles to Harbor Blvd.; turn right on Hazard to Royal Crest.

From Long Beach, follow Westminster past Stanton, then turn right on Newhope to the model homes. Milton Gordon Co. is sales agent.

Few Homes Remain in Harmony Manor

A warning was issued yesterday by the Heftler Construction Co. that only a few Harmony Manor homes with the unique "Jack and Jill" rooms remain to be sold.

Spokesmen for the developers gave credit to the special children's rooms and other features such as built-in ranges and ovens, walls of glass with sliding doors, and built-in serving bars for the steady sale of the three-bedroom, two-bath Garden Grove homes.

Louis Lesser, sales agent for the new residential community just off the Santa Ana Freeway at Magnolia Ave. and Ball Road, explained that the whole family appreciates the "Jack and Jill" rooms, which save separate sleeping quarters for two children and a common play area. There is a separate entrance from the outside, too, permitting youngsters to run back and forth without tracking through the rest of the house.

While liberal terms are given non-vets, vets may move in immediately without paying a cent, he said, adding that these special terms for vets of no cash down, not even for costs and impounds can apply only to homes built or building due to the recent ruling of the Veterans Administration. Monthly payments for vets are $61.35 for principal and interest.

Other features of Harmony Manor which is located in a well-developed area near schools, churches, shopping and recreation centers, are covered breezeways, electric garbage disposers, natural finish hardwood kitchen cabinets, aluminum louvred windows, and large two-car garages.

Model homes furnished by C. Tony Pereira are open daily and Sunday. Visitors from Los Angeles should follow the Santa Ana Freeway to Magnolia Ave. Harmony Manor is south of the freeway on Magnolia at Ball Rd.

Landscaping Is Provided for Ranchos

At Fairview Ranchos—newly opened D. & E. Corp. home development on Bristol St. at Fairview Ave. in the new residential "miracle mile" of Santa Ana, the minimum of three verdant, bearing orange trees and full-grown shade trees planted where necessary have been enthusiastically received by home buyers and visitors alike and will in the height of their beauty and effectiveness the weekend, according to spokesmen for Pioneer Land Co., sales agents.

Planned as part of the completely landscaped gardens of their conventionally constructed homes, appropriately called "California's Garden Homes," complete front and rear lawns are planted and growing except the playground area in each patio, which has been specifically set apart for children's play equipment.

Landscaping in each of the basic areas—lawns, ground cover, patio garden, play and service areas—is registered and detailed on a comprehensive "plot plan" given each buyer at the time of purchase, sales officials explained.

Centered in the rear garden area is a 120-square-foot concrete patio with decorative redwood dividers, and an attractive redwood planter box and seat facing the patio.

Surrounding the entire garden area is a 5½-foot-high redwood basket weave fence with a decorative gate, assuring patio privacy.

Available to veterans for nothing down except costs and impounds, Fairview Ranchos homes are attractively priced from $12,850, with monthly payments that range from $65.11 including principal and interest, Pioneer officials explained.

Development is easily reached from Long Beach via 7th St. (Garden Grove Blvd.) to Bristol St. in Santa Ana; turn right on Bristol to model homes open daily and Sunday from 10 a. m. to 9 p. m. for the convenience of home-seekers employed during the day. Three distinct types of interior decor—modern, Early American and California Contemporary—are featured in the exhibit homes, which were decorated by C. Tony Pereira.

Throngs Attend Opening of New Midland Meadows

Brisk sales accompanied the grand opening of Midland Meadows in Fullerton last weekend when large crowds viewed such style-setting features as full-sized masonry fireplaces, built-in ranges and ovens, 5-feet wide sliding walls of glass, a spokesman for the builders, Midland Properties, announced.

A steady stream of visitors passed through the 4-bedroom, 2-bath "Young Executive" model homes, he reported, adding that the display models remain open daily from 10 a. m. to 8 p. m. at West Orangethorpe and Richman Aves. Furnishings are by the Four Star Furniture Co., Whittier.

As an extra feature, he said, Midland Meadows homes have an olive tree on each lot, shrubs, and lawns at no additional cost.

Milton Gordon Co., sales agents, announced that non-vets are buying on liberal terms, while vets pay nothing down except costs and impounds with monthly payments of $74.68 for principal and interest. Vets earning $375 a month net may qualify, they added.

Planned by architects Palmer & Krisel, A. I. A., to allow buyers to choose from a wide variety of exterior stylings and floor plans, Midland Meadows is located in smog-free Fullerton, close to schools, churches, shopping areas, and transportation. Los Angeles Civic Center is 45 minutes away.

Forced-air heating, paved patios, and outdoor barbecues are popular features, according to the sales agents. Others are exposed rustic beam ceilings, center hall plans and rear living rooms, interior ash planters and doors, parquet laminated block oak flooring in entry hall, living and dining areas, stall showers with glass door and ceramic tile floor and walls, and large 2-car garages with storage space.

Visitors are directed to follow the Santa Ana Freeway to Orangethorpe Ave. Midland Meadows is approximately three miles east at Richman and Orangethorpe Aves.

Sees Big Gain in Air Travel

BURBANK (UP)—An aircraft executive predicts that by 1956 air travel will jump 125 per cent and piston-engine planes still would carry a majority of passengers.

FHA Finds Few Vacancies Here

The Federal Housing Administrator has completed a survey of the vacancy situation in multi-family rental projects with FHA mortgage insurance in force and located within the jurisdiction of the Long Beach insuring office.

In announcing the results of this sixth annual occupancy survey, H. V. Davidson, director of the FHA office, with responsibility for supervising all FHA activity in the southern part of Los Angeles County and all of Orange County, stated that of the units covered by the survey approximately 1.9 per cent were identified as vacant at the end of March.

This compares with a ratio of 7.1 per cent reported at the end of March 1954.

Davidson pointed out that these figures cover FHA-insured projects in his entire jurisdiction and would, of course, be subject to variation among the various localities in the area.

Norman P. Mason, Commissioner of the Federal Housing Administration, recently announced that for the nation as a whole this survey covered over 517,000 dwellings units of which less than 23,000 or about 4.4 per cent were reported as vacant.

This national vacancy ratio of 4.4 per cent under all of the rental project insurance programs combined, represents an increase from the 3.5 per cent reported for the same date in 1954 and the 2.8 per cent reported in 1953.

Mason pointed out, however, that this latest rate was below the 7.2 per cent reported in 1950 and the 5.8 per cent reported for 1951.

Dale Park Selling in Fast Pace

Closeness to Long Beach, and ease of driving to and from the popular beach cities of Long Beach, Huntington Beach, Newport and Balboa have been strong factors in the fast selling pace established in Unit No. 2 of Dale Park in the west side of Garden Grove, reported spokesmen for Walker and Lee, sales agents for this new Murray-Sanders "Achievement Home" series of modernly-styled 3-bedroom, 1-bath and 4-bedroom, 2-bath residences located just minutes from a library, post office, park, bank, major shopping center and school area.

Offering 14 contemporary exteriors with as many variations of 3 basic floor plans, and positioned on its lot to capture a maximum of sunshine, create privacy and distinguish it from its neighbor, Dale Park homes boast an individuality appreciated by today's homeseekers, sales agents point out.

Luxury features included in all models are natural beechwood kitchen cabinets; kitchen ventilator fan; semi-automatic dishwasher; formica and textolite GE sink tops; birch-paneled wall in living room; garbage disposers; large workshop and storage area off double garage; concrete garden patios; colored bathroom fixtures; rockwool insulation; TV aerial lead-in plug; electric and gas refrigerator connections, and tub and shower in each bathroom.

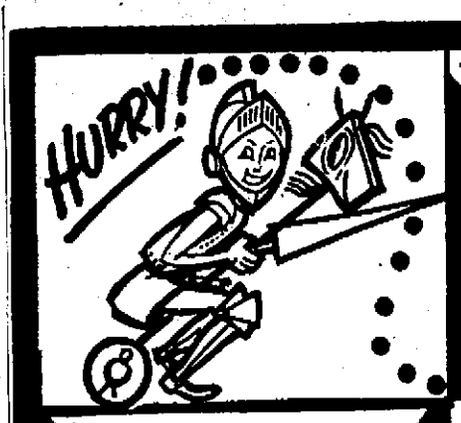

Encompassing all the benefits of modern, contemporary design and construction, homes are available to veterans who can qualify for a VA loan for nothing down except impounds and closing costs. Prices range from $9,688 to $10,971, and payments are from $49.96 to $56.65 including principal and interest.

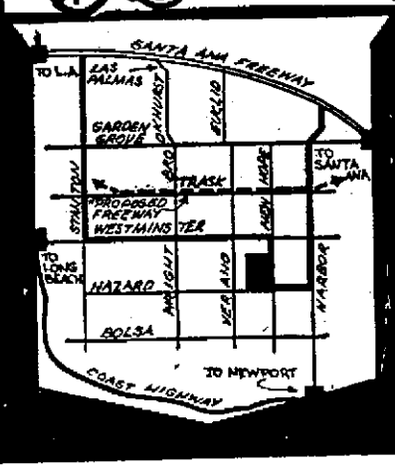

Conveniently located approximately 15 minutes from Long Beach, Dale Park may be quickly and easily reached by driving east on Seventh St. to Huntington Beach Blvd. (Highway 390; turn left (north), and go to Chapman Ave., then turn right and drive approximately 200 yards to furnished model homes open from 10 a. m. to 9 p. m. each day.

MORE NEON ON AUTO ROW

Expects Price Hike on Appliances Soon

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—James H. Carmine, president of the Philco Corp., said recent price increases in steel and other raw materials probably will result in higher retail prices for appliances, especially refrigerators and air conditioners.

In a telegram sent to the company's distributors and field personnel, Carmine said:

"Higher prices have had to be paid for steel, aluminum and other raw materials. These, plus higher wages, are contributing to another round of higher production costs. It will be impossible for manufacturers of finished goods to absorb these increased costs.

"This applies especially to refrigerators and air conditioners, which are heavily plated with steel and copper, which is in extremely short supply.

"The values offered today may never be duplicated. As soon as the materials and components bought at today's prices are fabricated, their higher costs inevitably will be reflected in higher prices to the consumer."

Weymouth Knolls Sales in Palos Verdes Soaring

More than half a million dollars in sales was noted last week at Weymouth Knolls, distinctive Palos Verdes community, by Pelton and Zahler, builders.

The executives explained that a panoramic view of hillside and harbor sets the keynote at the development, which is located adjacent to the stylish Miraleste district.

These deluxe dwellings are open for immediate occupancy, and are available to veterans without down payment except costs and impounds.

Decorated in a modern motif in line with the contemporary theme of the development, a model home is on view daily and evenings. Frank Brothers of Long Beach furnished the styling.

Highlighting features are raised-hearth and floor-to-ceiling type fireplaces, forced-air heat, select oak floors, exceptional closet space, sliding glass doors, folding doors, abundant built-ins, disposals, central hall plans, insulated roofs, and landscaping.

Completely smog-free, Weymouth Knolls escapes much of the usual coastal fog. Just a few block's walk from Peck Park, the community is conveniently close by shopping districts, churches and schools.

To see Weymouth Knolls, drive from Long Beach west on the Pacific Coast Highway to Western Ave., then south on Western approximately 3 miles to Crestwood, right one block to MacArthur St., then 2 blocks to models.

Report Good Week in Villa de Flores

Featuring all-electric Hotpoint kitchens including built-in comfort-level ovens, range tops and electric dishwashers, Villa de Flores, Brainard Construction Co.'s new development of 108 custom-styled California modern and ranch-type 3-bedroom-and-a-den and four-bedroom residences, just off the Santa Ana Freeway on Flower St. in Santa Ana, today enters the second week of its grand opening with sales already past the one-third million-dollar mark, according to officials of Walker and Lee, sales agents.

Priced from $14,500 to $15,400, qualified veterans may move in on terms of nothing down except impounds and closing costs, with easy FHA terms also available for non-veteran buyers, they explained.

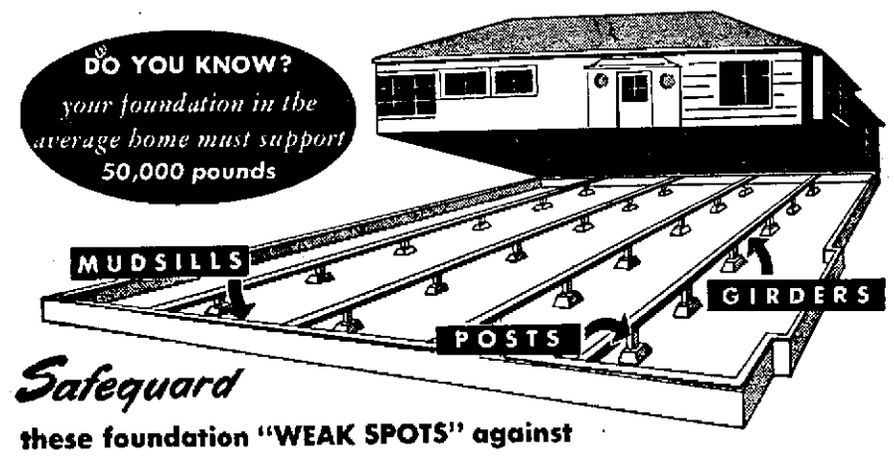

The all-electric kitchens also feature copperized range hood and large ash hardwood cabinets. Other luxury appointments are floor-to-ceiling real log-burning fireplaces offered in a choice of used brick, Roman brick or slumpstone; sliding glass doors; genuine plaster walls; conventional foundations and sub-floors; oak hardwood floors; forced air heating; walk-in wardrobe closets; convenient separate service porches; asphalt concrete driveways and concrete walks; and big, 2-car garages with 309 cubic feet of storage space.

With 3 basic floor plans and 9 exteriors from which to choose, scientific room coordination has been achieved by "zoning," builders state. All models have 2 large baths, it was noted.

Furnished exhibit homes, open daily from 10 a. m. to 9 p. m. may be reached by driving out the Santa Ana Freeway to Folwer Street; turn right to the first street (Orange Road), then right again to Villa de Flores. New community parallels freeway on the west.

Build your home on a SOUND FOUNDATION with BAXCO PRESSURE TREATED LUMBER!

Safeguard
these foundation "WEAK SPOTS" against
TERMITES · WOOD-ROT · EARTHQUAKE DAMAGE

WHY PRESSURE TREATING?
Only pressure treating, which drives and deposits the chemical preservatives deep into the wood cells, results in maximum protection. Over 100 years experience in pressure treating railroad ties, telegraph poles, bridge timbers and dock piling has proven its effectiveness. Building Codes stipulate "pressure treating" for approvals.

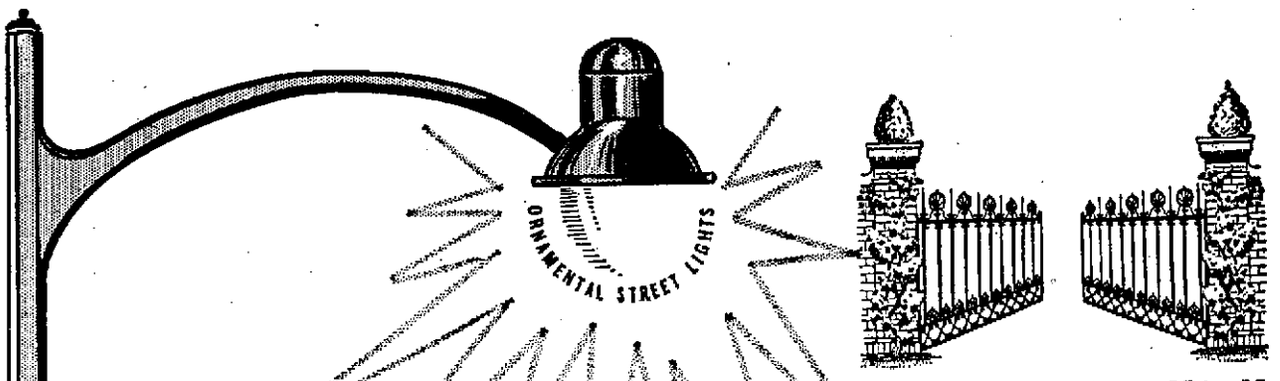

Every year thousands of home owners are faced with huge, sudden repair bills, caused by termites or decay. Working unseen these wood destroyers often go undetected for years . . . then damage repairs can run into hundreds of dollars.

BE SAFE—and insist on Baxco Pressure Treated "Chemically Preserved" Foundation Lumber up to and including the first floor joists—it will add less than one half of 1% to your total building cost.

BE SURE—if your home is built on a concrete slab, laid on the ground, that all sills are pressure treated—it will save you money in the long run.

Magnolia Estates Opens Another Unit

Grand opening of the "Forward Series," new third unit of custom-styled homes at Magnolia Estates in Anaheim today will mark the completion of $150 million worth of quality dwellings in the last two decades, it was reported yesterday by Richard H. Doremus, vice president in charge of planning and construction for Exhibit Homes, Inc.

Commenting on the newest group of Exhibit Homes, which are rising on Magnolia Ave., south of the Santa Ana Freeway, between La Palma and Crescent Avenues, Doremus noted:

"Veterans and non-veterans alike will have their choice of 122 three and four-bedroom, two-bath homes in this new third unit—homes which contain all the features proven to be most desired by buyers in all our recent surveys.

"To be able to include these features, plus other new ideas, required more than a year of consultation with architects—time which our firm considered well spent, indeed."

Describing Anaheim as "now the center of fine home building," Doremus cited that Magnolia Estates is most fortunately located in a highly desirable section, close to all community conveniences.

Designed by Architect Daniel L. Dworsky, the homes are typified for visitors by four model dwellings tastefully furnished by C. Tony Pereira. Terms for vets are nothing down but costs and impounds and $63 a month, for principal and interest, while non-vets pay $995 down, plus costs and impounds, with small monthly payments.

R. H. DOREMUS
Announces New Unit

Among the many special features are thermostat-controlled forced-air heating, all metal sliding glass doors, steel sash windows, lath and plaster construction, picture windows and stall showers with ceramic tile floors, large dining areas, rock-wool insulation, chrome bath fixtures, 40 to 50-gallon automatic gas water heaters, natural-finish kitchen cabinets, ceramic tile counters in the kitchens, and pantry closets.

Cox Refrigerated Homes Sales Termed Phenomenal

"The modern woman is keenly aware of the importance of comfort and conveniences in the home to assure the health and well-being of the family," Morris Crawley, sales manager for the Henry C. Cox organization in Garden Grove commented. "The phenomenal sales of Lifetime Modern Refrigerated Homes during the past week reflect the homemaker's influence in choosing a home that offers the maximum in easy and comfortable living."

Spacious and refreshingly unique, these 3 and 4-bedroom homes at Champan and Brookhurst, Garden Grove, provide cool comfort throughout by means of a Weathersphere air conditioning unit that doubles as a forced air heating unit. This "climate-conditioning" plus judicious use of floor space, excellent construction and the finest of built-in equipment are factors that have special appeal to prospective buyers.

Large, inviting living rooms feature fireplaces and indoor planters. Glass gables and sliding glass walls provide dramatic daytime lighting and enhance the sense of spaciousness. Other features include Touch-Plate lighting, aluminum framed sliding windows, ultra-modern built-in electrical ranges and two lavishly tiled baths plus stall shower.

Qualified vets may purchase these unique homes on terms of no down and $73.50 monthly, including principal and interest. FHA terms of $1,850 down are available to nonvets.

Visitors are invited to inspect the furnished model homes at Chapman and Brookhurst, Garden Grove.

Excelsior Village Vet Terms Attract

The low monthly payment of $64.39 which includes principal and interest has met with the approval of the score of vets who are selecting Excelsior Village as one of the most outstanding home values of Orange County, Don Coleman, sales agent, reported this week.

The low move-in costs combined with the low monthly payments, and ideal location have been received enthusiastically by vet buyers.

The homes, which include forced air heat, built-in range and oven and Fire-Bell Alarm system are part of a completely planned community with a centrally located school and shopping area with parking. A school already in existence is within walking distance of the homes.

Excelsior Village is the most modern development nearest the Long Beach area, says Coleman.

To see the furnished models, visitors from Long Beach may drive out Westminster Blvd. to Brookhurst Ave. or out Garden Grove Blvd. to Brookhurst Ave. Turn south on Brookhurst Ave. through Garden Grove to Excelsior Village.

IN EXCELSIOR VILLAGE

Shown is a portion of the spacious living area of the Excelsior Village homes and Orange County planned community. The low monthly vets terms of $64.39 which include principal and interest make these one of the outstanding home values ever offered in this area, according to Don Coleman, sales agent.

Buena Berry Park Offers Easy Terms

Just 20 minutes driving time from Long Beach, and 25 from downtown Los Angeles, Buena Berry Park's close-in location is proving a main sales factor, according to Don Coleman, sales agent for the Moss Building Corp.

Low monthly terms, starting at $58.92, are an added inducement, he said. No down payment is asked of qualified veterans, and non-vets also are in line for special financing.

Buena Berry Park is located just one block east of famous Knott's Berry Farm, in Buena Park. The 3 and 4-bedroom, 2-bath homes have a contemporary theme.

The much-acclaimed model homes at Buena Berry Park boast imported Scandinavian furniture. Decorated by Mogensen Combs of Brentwood, they have Danish, Swedish and California modern motifs.

De luxe features are headlined by raised hearth fireplaces, thermostatically controlled forced air heat, built-in oven and range, and central hall plans in some models.

There are natural wood beamed ceilings, breakfast bars, glass sliding doors to the terrace, exceptional closet space and many other items.

Landscaping at Buena Berry Park is enhanced by full-grown, fruit-bearing Valencia orange trees, which are found on every lot.

Drive from Long Beach out 7th St. (Garden Grove Blvd.) or Carson Ave. to Huntington Beach Blvd. (Hwy. 39). Turn left about one-fourth of a mile north of Carson Ave. to the models.

Futura Homes in Anaheim Are Priced From $12,900

The new "Futura Homes" of Brookhurst Plaza are ideally located in desirable and fast-growing Anaheim, Frank R. Hart, sales manager for Walker & Lee, Inc., pioneer Lakewood Realty Company, said.

Priced as low as $12,900 with payments from $66.44, these 3 and 4-bedroom, 2-bath homes are a real investment in quality construction and a future of good living, Hart explained.

Built by R. & W. Construction Co., Brookhurst Plaza incorporates all the excellent features home buyers of today seek. Included in these "Futura Homes" are: built-in Western Holly oven and ranges, natural birch cabinets, electric exhaust fans, G. E. garbage disposals, double compartment sinks and breakfast space in the kitchens.

In the bathrooms there are colored fixtures, Pullman lavatories, tiled showers with glass enclosures, Terraza bases and electric heaters. Inlaid linoleum with top-set bases is in the baths and kitchens.

Double sliding wardrobes are provided in the large master bedrooms. There are No. 1 hardwood floors with 2-inch tongue and groove sub-flooring, insulated ceilings and weather-stripping throughout.

Three-bedroom homes have 75,000 BTU furnaces, with 100,000 BTU in the 4-bedroom homes. Sliding windows with French doors lead to patio areas, and there are wood-burning fireplaces in the living rooms. Roofs are No. 1 cedar shingles and Dolomite, and there are two-foot overhangs, decorator colors inside and out, two-car garages, and landscaped front yards.

New FHA financing gives non-veterans 30-year terms, and veterans can move in with nothing down.

Brookhurst Plaza is on Brookhurst Ave., just north of La Palma. From the Los Angeles-Lakewood area viewers may drive out the Santa Ana Freeway to La Palma, then east to Brookhurst and north to the model homes. From Long Beach, drive out Carson (Lincoln Highway) to Euclid Ave., turn north, cross the Freeway to La Palma, west to Brookhurst and north to the model homes.

U. S. Gls in England Out-British British

LONDON (AP)—The Evening Standard says American servicemen at U. S. Air Force bases in Southern England are beginning to look "more British than the British."

They are joining local tennis, lawn bowls and rowing clubs so they can wear—off duty—a British club tie with matching handerchiefs and scarves. Real neat, with their British blazers. The local English lads are wearing hand-painted American ties.

TV Tele-Vues

by TERRY VERNON

This is the day that Disneyland opens to the press for a special preview and also the day that 90-minutes of entertainment will come from the huge amusement center near Anaheim.

Starting at 4:30 p. m. the telecast will tour the park, pick up many stars who'll be present, and in general give viewers a chance to see Disneyland park and what there is to do there.

Irene Dunne will christen the paddleboat "Mark Twain," Art Linkletter will be co-host with Walt Disney; Fess Parker and Buddy Ebsen, the Davy Crockett and friend, will be on hand at Frontierland; Danny Thomas and his TV family, Jean Hagen, Rusty Hamer and Sherry Jackson will be seen in action; and there'll be many other notables around during the tour.

They'll be using 24 cameras to cover the show and the whole thing starts off with Disney and Gov. Knight chugging up in one of the famous little trains that Disneyland built to scale. There'll be six spectacular parades, some 500 children from Anaheim Sunday schools opening Fantasyland, plus visits with many of the top movie stars who'll be present.

There is just so much planned for the hour-and-a-half that it takes some 50 pages to list all so just tune in and get the whole thing (7) at 4:30 p. m.

THE SUMMIT—A special commentary on the Geneva conference is set (4) at 5 p. m. with Romney Wheeler and Joseph C. Harsch being flown in from Europe just for this show. The hour-long explanation of the Geneva conference and its background will also feature a scale model of the hall where the international conversations will take place . . . Over on 2 at 6:30 p. m. there'll be a report on the conference with Howard K. Smith in charge of the show. Movie film will be used to show the principals in the conference and the hall in which they'll meet.

UNIVERSE PARADE — At about 3:45 (11) they'll take a break in the "Jalopy Derby" to switch to cameras set up on the lawn of the Wilton Hotel for coverage of the Miss Universe Parade. Sort of a hit-and-miss deal with the parade coming in between races. Better tune in at 2:30.

DRAMA—Warren Stevens has the starring role in a baseball story on TV Playhouse at 9 p. m. (4). At the age of 34 a ball player wants to get into the major leagues and has to face the taunts of his wife and the reality of his own advanced (for baseball) years. The manager of his minor league team double-crosses him in a way and the results are not quite what anyone expects when a scout comes looking for a big league replacement. . . . A mother who professes she is not prejudiced is tested to the core when her GI son returns home with his Japanese war bride on the Cameo Theatre at 10 p. m. (4). . . . The pilot of a small commercial plane, fighting a heavy storm over the Rockies, momentarily forgets his peril when he hears over his radio that an armed desperado has escaped from prison. He has three passengers and any one could be the man on "Appointment With Danger" at 10 p. m. (2). . . . Howard Duff has the lead in "The Whistler" story (11) at 10 p. m. He is released from jail and is followed by a girl. When he realizes this and catches her she tells him her reason for tagging his every step.

GUESTING—Ethel Merman will substitute for vacationing Ed Sullivan on "Toast of the Town" at 8 p. m. (2) and one of the guests will be Mrs. Catherine Kreitzer of "$64,000 Question" fame who'll read from the Bible. She has been signed by Sullivan as a regular on the show and beginning in October will appear each Sunday. Other guests are Russell Nype, Gloria Lane, Professor Backwards, the Rhythmettes from Las Vegas, the Pierce Brothers jugglers and DeLarge and Shirley, magicians. . . . Jacob Lateiner, American pianist, will be the star on the final "Television Recital Hall" at 8:30 p. m. on (4). . . . Elroy "Crazylegs" Hirsch will be the guest on "Teen Age Trials" at 4 p. m. (4) and Judge Leroy Dawson will be the jurist.

TELE-TIPS—"Gordon's Garden" (7) at 4 p. m. will be devoted to showing the horticulture at Disneyland park. Gordon Baker Lloyd will use photos to show the flora and fauna collected for the park. . . . There'll be an abduction of a girl on "You Asked for It" at 7 p. m. (7) as Art Baker stages a kidnaping just to show how easy it can be done. . . . "Let's Take a Trip" (2) at 2:30 p. m. will feature a visit to the "long lines" department of the telephone company in New York. This will tell just how "long distance" works. . . . The signing of the Declaration of Independence will be seen on "You Are There" at 6 p. m. (2).

Words and Music

By JOHN B. CALLAGHAN

After a few days of fussin' and fuedin', Tom D'Andrea and Hal March, co-stars of the new "The Soldiers" TV show, made up and decided to stay together as GI buddies. Hal is also emcee of the suspenseful $64,000 Question Show and pal Tom thought he wasn't devoting enough time to the new GE project which has a tremendous potential. March will commute between Hollywood and New York each week, between the comedy series and the big money quizzer.

Television producer Ivan Tors, a stickler for authenticity, demanded real live insects for "The Termite Story," an episode in the Science Fiction Theater TV series. He bought 500 jars of termites in Chicago for $15 a jar . . . and then worried for weeks for fear some of them would escape and bring the TV studio down on top of him.

One of Britain's leading Shakespearean actors, Laurence Harvey, does the first dramatic show when British TV goes commercial Sept. 1. His co-star will be Margaret Leighton. British TV has one unique practice . . . it goes off the air from 6 p. m. to 7:25 p. m. every night . . . giving viewers

It's the popular special sedanet and if you don't like dynaflow you'll like this 'cause it hasn't got it! However it does have the big radio and heater. Just came in on trade and after driving it we decided that with a paint job and whitewall tires we would have a perfect car to sell. We're planning to paint it black but if you get here in time we'll paint it any color you desire. The car is perfect mechanically. Remember—you buy it, the paint job, whitewalls and all for only $505.

Turncoat Afraid to Name Others Seeking Return

YOKOHAMA, Japan (U.P.)—William C. Cowart, "spokesman" for three American turncoats, said Saturday other former American soldiers who want to leave Red China would be "doomed" if he identified them.

Cowart, of Dalton, Ga., said he was "responsible for the lives of many Americans." He said he would reveal the names of other turncoat Americans who want to get out of Communist China only to the "proper authorities in Washington."

Phones to Learn About Own Fire

ALTON, Ill. (AP)—When Mrs. Donna Ramsey, Alton Telegraph switchboard operator, heard a fire truck siren, she took the routine step—a call to the police switchboard to ask, "Where's the fire?"

"It's at the Telegraph," Mrs. Maude Koch at the police switchboard told her.

The fire was news to everyone at the newspaper. A passerby had turned in the alarm. The blaze was confined to a chimney.

Strike Halts Auto Ferries in Michigan

ST. IGNACE, Mich. (U.P.)—Ferry crewmen at the Straits of Mackinac went on strike for 15 hours Saturday, leaving many vacationers stranded in Upper Michigan for hours.

The workers—who want higher pay—finally agreed to return to their jobs on the state-owned ferries after the State Civil Service Commission agreed to meet next week to listen to workers' demands.

The ferries provide the only means of transportation across the seven-mile straits which divide Michigan. The walkout left many motorists without any way of getting from Lower Michigan to Upper Michigan, or vice versa, without driving hundreds of miles out of their way.

Cars backed up for miles here and across the straits at Mackinaw City. The impatient motorists, most of them not realizing what was happening, set up a bedlam of tooting horns and yelling, demanding that service be resumed. Most of the cars had been ferried across the straits by late afternoon.

Douglas to Build $4 Million Plant at Culver City

CULVER CITY (AP)—Douglas Aircraft Co. has announced plans for a four million dollar building program on a 10-acre site which was formerly the Culver City Stadium.

The company yesterday filed a building application for two subassembly plants which it estimated would cost two million dollars. Bids for the new plants will be taken July 21, the company said. Other plants will be built later.

The company is expanding its production line in order to fill an order for 225 twin engine planes, it was announced.

Ghost of Little Eva Enthralls Argentina's Faithful Peronistas

(Editor's Note: Almost three years ago, one of the most dynamic and controversial female figures of modern times died in Argentina. She was Eva Peron, blonde and beautiful wife of President Juan Peron. Here is the story of this remarkable woman whose influence still makes itself felt, above the political turmoil).

By SAM SUMMERLIN

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—The telephone buzzed impatiently in the dim newspaper office. Outside, a half-moon glowed.

"Evita!" an excited voice blurted in a reporter's ear. "Evita! her face!"

La Prensa, Argentina's once-great newspaper, listened to many similar calls that evening. All claimed the same vision—the likeness of the late Eva Peron etched on the moon.

The morning edition said the face was cast by a curious combination of shadows. Mused La Prensa:

"The people, who show in every detail their profound respect for the martyr and who keep indelible her memory, saw in these outlines the beloved image of Eva Peron."

That moon has faded, but Eva Peron, a one-time actress as dramatic in death as she was in life, still smiles down on Argentina's millions. The public sees at every turn the picture of this pale-skinned, dark-eyed beauty with straight blonde hair drawn back in a tight bun.

Alongside her handsome husband, Juan Peron, dictator, general and president, she adorns street and subway walls, government offices and vestibules, store windows and private homes.

Eve's name is never out of sight. La Prensa carries a daily "Eva Peron Labor Page" decorated with a profile drawing and her oft-quoted pledge: "Alive or dead, I will always be with the workers."

And Democracia, staunchest press friend of Peron, displays on its front page masthead a profile ringed with a wreath of her words: "A thousand times, I would do it for Peron and for my people."

La Plata, a city of 300,000 and capital of Buenos Aires province, was renamed Eva Peron. And Eva Peron is the name of a province, an oil well, uncounted streets, school houses, parks, soccer championships, a luxury passenger liner—and unending stream.

Her birthday, May 7, is "Saint Evita's Day." Across the land, her faithful lay fresh flowers at the foot of countless busts and statues of the woman who loved to be called "Evita" (Little Eva).

Eva once declared: "Without fanaticism, one cannot accomplish anything." Imbued with this spirit, the vibrant, 5-foot, 2-inch figured stormed out of poverty to prominence on the screen and radio and on into the arms of a husky army colonel, Juan Peron. Ten years ago they wed and moved on to the nation's "Pink House" to start a man and wife reign probably unmatched since Ferdinand and Isabella.

EVA PERON . . . Her Face on the Moon?

At the pinnacle, Eva seized all Agentina—richest country in South America—as her stage. She played the role to the hilt for seven years. And the ghost of Eva Peron carries on, keeping the curtain up on her strange drama.

Juan Peron, ending a tragic vigil, snapped off the light beside her bed at 8:25 the eevning of July 26, 1952. Eva Peron, at the age of 30, had been cut down by cancer, tasting defeat for the first time in her young life.

As the light went out, a nation wept. Queen Elizabeth cabled her condolences to Peron at "the premature death of your brilliant and devoted partner." The Pope sent his sympathies.

Tens of thousands thronged the cold, wet streets of Buenos Aires, waiting up to 10 and 12 hours in Argentina's mid-winter to pass her bier.

July 26 became a day of national mourning. Torches by the thousands light yearly memorial processions through the capital. On the 26th of every month, her worshippers gather at the Eva Peron shrines. And every weekday night of the year, all the nation's radio stations switch to a government announcer at 8:25 and he gives the news "at the hour in which Eva Peron entered immortality."

Eva's critics chuckled the Monday night after Argentina's bloody June revolution. The government broadcaster came on the air five minutes later than usual, skipping for the first time in almost three years the traditional mention of her passing. The army sat in the saddle during those early post-rebellion days and this incident—too delicate to be a mere oversight—sparked speculation that Eva had slid into the shadows with her husband.

But both Perons bounded back by the next nightfall. Juan Peron regained his coveted dominance. And the nation's radio listeners heard the government announcer as of old at 8:25, honoring the hour of Eva's death.

It is a mystery where her body lies now. But the tallest funerary monument in the world is rising in the heart of Buenos Aires as a tomb for Eva Peron. The 460-foot memorial will tower higher than St. Peter's in the Vatican, New York's Statue of Liberty or Egypt's pyramid of Cheops.

Many of the nation's youth may never have had the chance to see Eva, but they will not soon forget her. Her autobiography, "The Reason for My Life," was required reading in all the nation's schools for three years.

In her book, Eva skirted the early years. She saved her pages for the life she shared with the magnetic, sports-loving "Strong Man" for whom she rallied the workers on an October day 10 years ago in a sudden, startling show of force which swept Juan Peron out of prison and to the threshold of power.

Eva wrote adoringly:

"Peron is God for us and we cannot think of Heaven without Peron. He is our sun, water and air. Peron is life to our country and people. I cannot commit the heresy of comparing him with Christ, but I am sure that imitating Christ, Peron feels a profound love for humanity and this, more than any other quality, makes him great, magnificently great."

Her only wish, she penned, was to have history say:

"There was at Peron's side a woman who was dedicated to carry to the president the hopes of the people."

He lives in Los Alamitos with his wife and four children. Upon retirement from the service he plans to publish a paper.

Negroes Ask Schools Delay Integration

MATADOR, Tex. (AP)—At the request of Negroes, schools in this west Texas city will not be integrated until next year.

Superintendent of Schools Bert Ezzell said the Negroes want to continue, for this year, their practice of opening their schools early so that time can be taken from classes later for cotton-picking. Ezzell said one Negro father also told the school board he can't afford now to buy clothes for his children so they won't feel conspicious among white children.

CAFE'S OWNER WILL FILL NEXT 48-EGG ORDER

PIERRE, S. D. (AP)—Chris Dam has ceased being a skeptic.

A stranger came into his cafe Friday and ordered four dozen soft-boiled eggs and a cup of coffee.

Dam suggested that the kitchen crew start with a dozen. The customer polished them off with dispatch and demanded the rest of his order. Before he was through, he bought and paid for three dozen. He was willing to forgo the fourth.

Crop Surplus Perils GOP in Corn Belt

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Agriculture Department issued a crop production report this week that indicates possible trouble for GOP campaigners for farm votes next year in the corn belt.

The report forecast a corn crop that would be the second largest of record and bumper harvests of other livestock feed grains. These crops would come on top of large supplies in storage from past years.

These big crops could well carry to the corn belt a bitter taste of surplus problems that have been centered heretofore largely in cotton and wheat producing areas. They could bring greatly reduced feed grain prices and much lower incomes.

The midwestern farm vote has figured prominently in many recent national elections. It was credited with giving President Truman an upset victory over Thomas E. Dewey in 1948.

At that time, farmers were disgruntled with a drop in grain prices. The Democrats charged the Republican-controlled 80th Congress was to blame because it failed to provide storage facilities for surplus grain that had no place to go except to markets where it depressed prices.

This week's forecast of the big feed grain crops came shortly after the department reported a sharp expansion in hog production is under way. This expansion, government economists say, is expected to be followed by severe reductions in hog prices.

In last year's congressional elections, Republicans fared well in rural districts in the big corn-hog region extending from Ohio west to Nebraska and embracing Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, and Minnesota. Hogs were riding high pricewise.

But there is the possibility that by late this year, hog prices will drop to levels where farmers will complain and possibly demand government action to improve their markets. The government does not maintain price supports under hogs.

There are supports for corn, but many midwestern growers will be ineligible for this type of government asssitance because they did not comply with the department's corn program. This agency allotted planting shares in an effort to hold down corn production. Only those farmers who complied with their allotments will be eligible for price support assistance.

Hawaiian Urges Central Control of Schools Here

LOS ANGELES (U.P.) — Dr. Hubert V. Everly of the University of Hawaii Saturday recommended centralized control and financing of public schools to avoid "double-shift" attendance in California.

Everly, an associate professor of education teaching at the University of Southern California summer school, said such a system worked in the islands where there was a population problem equal to that in California.

"Hawaii, with its centralized financing, has an average per pupil expenditure that is one-third less than that of California," Everly said.

Trend Grows Toward More Home Privacy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Labor Department reported Saturday the trend is increasing toward more home privacy.

Construction of one-family housing units was up 28 per cent during the first three months of 1955. Apartment building unit construction, on the other hand, was down 10 per cent from last year.

For the first half of this year 679,000 dwelling units were put under construction. This is 19 per cent above the 569,500 units started during the first six months of 1954 and only 4 per cent below the January-June volume in the record 1950 home-building year.

Housing starts declined seasonally last month to 129,000, but exceeded June, 1954, by 11 per cent.

The Veterans Administration reported a 25-per-cent decline in June in requests for appraisal of proposed new homes, but said only a slight decline from May figures was shown in requests for appraisal of existing homes.

South Sea 'Magic' to Cast Spell for Bachelorettes

LOVELY WAHINES, Beverly Scott, Mary Halbert and Lee Ann Shumway, cast a little island magic of their own as they practice a hula in preparation for the Bachelorettes' informal charity dance Saturday, July 30, at White's Point. South Sea islands will provide the motif at the gala party when couples will dance from 9 p. m. to 1 a. m. at this attractive setting along the ocean's edge. Mary Kukura is in charge of arrangements for the event.

AGAINST a backdrop of fresh tropical flowers and island decor, Bachelorettes and their guests will dance Saturday, July 30, at picturesque White's Point along the ocean's front near San Pedro. This annual summer charity dance highlights activities for the social group during the warm months. Above, Joan Fisher, Virginia Abell, Mary Kukura and Joan Parks, from left standing, and Jeanie DuBrock, seated, get in the proper island mood for this benefit event. Bids may be obtained from members of Bachelorettes.

Gay Southland Informality Captured at Coffee Hour

Mrs. George Paap opened her gracious home at 275 Nieto Ave. Wednesday and, with Mrs. Lynn Hossom as co-hostess, entertained at a delightful coffee hour—during the late morning hours—capturing perfectly the informal spirit of the Southland.

The hostesses used delicate and cool bouquets of white daisies and green Bells of Ireland in basket arrangements on the refreshment table as well as on the quartet tables placed invitingly around the pool in the garden. Umbrellas, tilted at gay angles against the slant of the sun, protected the 85 guests bidden who chose to chat and enjoy the party's delicacies outdoors.

Asked to assist Mrs. Hossom and Mrs. Paap were the Hossom daughters, Sherry and Linda, as well as Miss Harriet Odell of Palo Alto, Mrs. Seth W. Smith of Van Nuys and Mmes. George Trammell, Joseph Ball, George Badenhuasen, Ansel Olson, Stillman Loveren and Jonah Jones.

Charity Inspires Annual Dance

Star-studded skies, a full moon and a warm tropical breeze have been ordered by Bachelorettes for Saturday evening, July 30. This is the date set by the popular social group for the annual summer charity dance.

As in the past, Bachelorettes again are staging this successful event at picturesque White's Point along the ocean edge near San Pedro.

The South Seas will provide the motif for the decor. Fish netting entwined with colorful flowers will fall from a palm tree and extend over the dance floor to the water. Twinkling candles will glow along the hillside and around the dance floor, and fresh tropical flowers will provide a backdrop for dancing.

As guests arrive, Bachelorettes will present them with leis to complement their casual dress attire. Music for dancing from 9 p. m. to 1 a. m. will be provided by recording artists from Hollywood studios.

Arrangements for the event are being completed under the supervision of the vice president, Mary Kukura. Beverly Scott is in charge of publicity and Virginia Garvin is handling decorations.

Preceding the dance, several members including Marilyn Van Dyke and Beverly Scott will entertain at cocktail parties.

Bids may be obtained from members or at the door. Besides members, alumnae and candidate members home from college, the public is invited.

Dual Parties Planned by Two Hostesses Tuesday

Hand-etched invitations, conversation pieces in themselves, have been received by friends of Mrs. John Rowe and Mrs. Mildred Brayton bidding them either to a brunch in the morning or a tea during the afternoon on Tuesday in the Rowe home, 17 Temple Ave.

The brown and yellow invitations, reflecting the Rowes' attractive brown home with its friendly yellow front door, bore either the likeness of a coffee pot and a gay invitation in rhyme to the morning affair or an etching of Mrs. Brayton's handsome antique silver tea service with its matching rhyme bidding those who received them to be present during the afternoon.

Informality will mark the morning brunch which will be enjoyed both indoors and in the gardens. A rose and white checkered tablecloth will cover the dining room table which will be centered by an arrangement of fresh fruit. Yellow and white checked cloths will be used in the garden where Mrs. Rowe is planning to officiate at the making of fresh, miniature doughnuts in the patio while Mrs. Brayton greets the guests at the door.

The afternoon tea will change gracefully to more formal decor with a snow white cloth to be used on the refreshment table centered with a bouquet of garden blossoms.

Asked to assist the hostesses have been Mmes. Robert McClain, A. C. Malone and Robert Ritner for the brunch and at the tea, Mmes. Harry Pritchard, James Kiepp, Theodore Miles and Frederick Kellogg.

FISH NETTING entwined with colorful flowers will fall from a palm tree and extend over the dance floor to the water at the summer charity dance to be given Saturday, July 30, by Bachelorettes at White's Point, San Pedro. Above Margaret Cortenson, Patty Morgan and Stephanie Boylan, from left, arrange tropical decorations for the affair which promises to attract many of the Long Beach younger social set. Music will be provided for dancing from 9 p. m. until 1 a. m. Cocktail parties will precede this social event.

Coffee Hour Will Honor Active DGs

Mrs. Ronald W. Heath will open her lovely home at 5454 East Ocean Blvd. Saturday morning at 10:30 a. m. for a Long Beach Delta Gamma alumnae coffee hour honoring active Delta Gammas in this area who are home from their college chapters for the summer.

Actives expected to attend are Misses Sue Merritt and Joan Kerr from the University of Oregon; Ann Moore and Barbara Bakken from UC, Berkeley; Louise Tripeny and Patricia Ulrich from UCLA; Sandra Hubbell and Mrs. Don K. Wells from USC; Marilyn Van Dyke from San Jose State College; Andrea Herreid of Westminster from Colorado College, and Patsy Lee Powell who is attending Long Beach State College

Chairman of the event is Mrs. Charles P. Lupher. She will be assisted by Mrs. Richard Pearsall and Mrs. Harold J. Reed. All senior and junior Delta Gamma alumnae are invited to attend. Reservations may be made with Mrs. Lupher.

CHARITY-MINDED Bachelorettes have scheduled their annual summer benefit dance Saturday, July 30, at White's Point, San Pedro. All proceeds will go toward philanthropic projects. Above from left, Mary Lou Cahoon, Marilyn Lawson, Beverly Kreitzer and Marge Swanson discuss the party which will feature a South Sea island theme. Bachelorettes will present guests with colorful leis to go with the casual cotton attire. Alumnae, candidate members home from college and the public have been invited.—(All photos on page by staff photographer H. S. Melvin.)

Bid Farewell to Durnins With Cocktails and Buffet

The patio of Dr. and Mrs. William Rhorer's home at 5330 El Prado was bubbling with excitement Wednesday evening when the Rhorers and co-hosts, Dr. and Mrs. Lee Wiltse, entertained at a cocktail party and buffet supper for Dr. and Mrs. William Durnin.

Talk centered around the Durnins sojourn in the east where Dr. Durnin will do research work at Harvard Medical School. They plan to leave around Aug. 1.

Guests at the party were orthopedists and their wives. And so the hostesses arranged decor to carry out the appropriate theme. Invitations showed a bandaged man badly in need of the guests' services, and the centerpiece was a maze of crutches and other orthopedic appliances.

Bidden were Drs. and Mmes. Harry Alban, Gustavus Bock, Edward Thorstenberg, J. Gordon Bateman, Seymour Alban, M. John Rowe, Edward Wiater, Arthur De Nio, Todd Mulford, Donald Blanche, Richard Hall, Owen Walker and Dr. Lewis Newman.

Visit Mexico

Mr. and Mrs. Bud deCannis 3967 Knoxville Ave., have returned from a three-week trip to Mazatlan and Acapulco. They travelled on the SS Mazatlan.

Compliment Miss Shank

Balmy summer breezes gently playing through the lovely garden added to the relaxed mood in evidence Friday morning when Miss Margaret Shank whose marriage to Allan D. Scherer of Milwaukee, Wis. will be solemnized on July 29, was complimented at a linen shower.

Co-hostessing the delightful brunch for Miss Shank in the Francis B. Settle home, 4412 California Ave., were Mrs. Settle, Mrs. Fred B. Clarke and Mrs. Jay Reed.

Festoons of pink and white wedding bells on the front door greeted guests as they arrived for the party, and were repeated over the doorway leading into the garden.

Southern Visitors

Talk — southern talk — fills the home of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Andrews of 229 St. Joseph Ave. Their house guests include Mrs. Andrews' mother, Mrs. Hartwell Oliver Cook of New Orleans, La., and her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Stewart Moffett and daughter, Mary, of Pensacola, Fla.

Wild Waves Say

By IOLA MASTERSON

THERE'S A GREAT WAILING and a fearful gnashing of teeth in many sections of town and the cause of it all—Mary Jane and Bill Durnin—haven't even attempted to look contrite about it! The two, drat it, are moving themselves—lock, stock, barrel and children—away from here for a solid year. And a solid year, unlike other years, such as 1954, is a long time.

Naturally when a popular couple like the Doc and M. J. let loose a lightning bolt like "good-by now," there are plentiful parties of farewell in their honor and among them will be the coffee hour Stella Kellogg will hostess in her home, 5830 Bayshore Wk., Wednesday for all the peninsula gang.

Invitations, hand designed by Corcoran, were among the smartest yet with a perky drawing of the Durnin station wagon toting their trailer. Depicted tumbling (or almost) out of the windows of the car were the two youngest Durnin boys with the older children peeking out in more decorous manner. In one corner were sea shells and beach, indicating Long Beach, and in the other fir trees and a sketch of the skyline of Boston, for whence they leave Aug. 1. Bill will do six months medical research at Harvard and then the Durnins will travel for another six months in Europe before returning here.

Assisting Stella with farewell coffee-hour duties will be Betty Wentworth, Elizabeth Jones, Midge Sink and Bea Vincent.

WITH SALT TABLETS, sun helmets and quizzical what-in-heaven's-name-are-we-doing-this-for? expressions on their faces, Mary Lou and Dick Zehms and house guest, Bill Martley of Grass Valley, plan to leave tomorrow for Scorch Hollow, sometimes referred to as Las Vegas. Bill, who is editor of the G. V. Union (formerly owned by W. F. Prisk), and Dick have remained close friends since those days when they fought the battle of the Persian Gulf together during World War II. They figure four days in the desert will be enough, then they'll head for cool mountain meadows to end their vacation.

THIS IS THE STORY of a big game hunt. Only the native porters and the sound of their drums-that-talk are missing. The names you are about to read are true except for the villain, who shall remain anonymous to protect his relatives! Besides, he wouldn't give us his initials. He was dead.

Bob White was stacking firewood at his Palos Verdes home last Sunday when, yikes! The biggest rattlesnake he'd ever seen lay coiled at his feet, beady eyes all threat and malice. Quick, man, think! What to do? Of course! Call neighbor Paul Westerlund—cool, level-headed Paul. Good, old Paul. He does own a gun, doesn't he? Yep. Here he comes now, eyes like a hunter's, at half-mast in the sun, anyway, it's a little early for Sunday. 30-30 in hand, Paul sizes up the situation, raises the gun—

FROM THEIR BAILIWICK on the peninsula, one of the coast's envied vacation territories, Betty and Palmer Wentworth are trying on an "at home vacation for size and discovering it fits beautifully! Loafing, swimming, fishing and growing sleek and tan in the process.

INCIDENTALLY, ABOUT that rattlesnake. Paul killed the snake. Got it dead center pop between the eyes. Said it was all in a day's work for an attorney and good practice for next year when he plans a real safari into deepest Africa.

THERE'S SO MUCH pulchritude in town right now it hardly seems worth getting up in the morning for some of us. Not as far as Amanda West Lewis, Miss New York (j.g.), is concerned. Sweet as Pepsi-Cola, this charmer is here visiting, carefully chaperoned by her parents, Gary and Laurie Lewis. Amanda, debonair in the manner of a 5-month-old, has been dividing her time between grandmother Ginny Melton's home and Hattie and Hal Lewis, 3851 Linden. But tomorrow her parents are taking her home to New York. Imagine! Even before Miss Universe competition begins.

TEATIME TODAY will find the Brightman home gay with young voices and pretty faces as Helen and Lath's daughter, Martha, with co-hostesses Nancy Nettleman and Joyce Griffiths, entertain at a patio tea party and miscellaneous shower for sweet Joan McMillen Butler with 65 of their sorority and school friends bidden. Tonight Janie and Gil Brown's home will reverberate likewise with excited young voices as their daughter, Sally, and Maryce Brightman are co-hostesses at a linen shower for Elore Herbert, who has a wedding date with Paul Merrill end of August.

ARE THEY HERE? Have you seen them? Barbara and Lt. Frank Schlosser were expected yesterday by Barbara's parents, Olive and Leslie Smith, on their way to Monterey where Frank has been selected to attend the Navy's Post-Graduate Engineering School for a three-year course. Barbara and Frank, who will visit here for a few days before continuing up the coast, have been living in Groton, Conn., while Frank was attached to the USS Spikefish. Three-and-a-half-year-old Johnny and three-month-old David will stay with Olive and Les until their parents find a home and get settled up thataway.

LUXURIATING in a lovely mountain apartment on the spacious and exclusive Hamilton estate, Hamiltaire, at Lake Arrowhead, have been Nancy and Bill Brooks, who are due home today from three weeks of just lazing in the sun and pampering their mile-high appetites.

LETTING CALIFORNIA drizzle all over them and loving it are Anne and Daulton Lee, back after a year in New York while Daulton interned. They returned last week end with the children, Lucinda, Daulton and Mary Anne. They're looking for a house while staying at the Clarke family manse on E. Ocean Blvd. before Dr. Lee begins duties as assistant pathologist at Seaside.

BUFFET PARTY last Sunday was wonderful fun for guests of Mickey and John McWhinney when they entertained in a farewell gesture for "Doc" Wilson, who left Tuesday with all the other boys in blue for the Far East with Admiral Tyree. Now Rosemary Wilson is keeping her fingers crossed, along with all the other fleet wives, hoping he'll be back by September—er, October—ah, November? Well, Sam, make it at least by Christmas!

WITH WHOOPS of "surprise!" party planners descended on Vonda and Al Cassidy's new home on 64th Pl. last week end to give their cute place a first-class housewarming. Peg and Neal White, the sly ones, invited the Cassidys out for dinner and that was the gimmick to keep them home till the gang arrived. And among those who brought casserole dishes and stuff were Bunnie and Bev Riley, Mary and Ray Copeland, Lou and Claire Dingler, Perry and Helene Rutherford, Hortense and Wayne Sloss, Jane and Gil Brown, and Margaret and Sam Chase.

PEOPLE WERE SNIFFING the air in the neighborhood of 790 Santiago Ave. last Sunday like beagles on the prowl and what was causing all the snuffling was the delicate, delicious aroma of barbecuing chicken wafting from the patio of Marietta and Walt Jordan's home as they got the family together for a big back yard do. Inspiration for the gathering was Marrietta's "kin," Edith and Hadley Limbaugh, here for a visit from Idaho, and invited to join the fun were her mother, Mrs. Mary Limbaugh; Walt's folks, Mr. and Mrs. Newell Jordan, as well as Ray and Lois Limbaugh and son, Richard; the Ronald Limbaughs, and next door neighbors, Norma and Bill Harris. Figured they better include the Harrises. Bill is a master chef with chicken over charcoal and he'd have come over anyway to make sure Walt was doing it right, invited or not!

MEET THE HANSSENS

Two months in Long Beach and already the Win Hanssen family is acclimated to Southern California living! Win is new manager of the Municipal Auditorium and Stadium. Jean, 8, stands before her mother, while the other two-thirds of the younger Hanssens consists of Suzanne, 11, and Vicky, 5. The family came from Waterloo, Ia., and are making their home at 2441 Ostrom Ave.—(Staff Photo.)

We Welcome . . . . .

Iowa Family Follows Sun West

By JEAN MOORE

Probably the only persons in town wishing the Miss Universe contest were over are three little girls and their mother. LeahBelle Hanssen and her blond daughters, Suzanne, Jean and Vicky, want to see more of Southern California. They want to help paint around their house at 2441 Ostrom Ave., too, but the person who is best at driving a car and who is handiest with the paint brush is all tied up with the production and management end of the beauty pageant.

He is Win Hanssen, new manager of Municipal Auditorium and Stadium, husband of LeahBelle and father of the three blonds who look like future Misses Welcomes to Long Beach themselves.

There has hardly been time for golf and bowling since Win got out of the Air Force after serving three years. Just as he has become immersed in Long Beach pageants and conventions since his arrival April 30, so was he embroiled in long hours as public relations director for the National Dairy Cattle Congress and the manager of the Hippodrome in Waterloo, Ia.

Climbing the rungs of achievement, Win began his career with study of journalism and agriculture at Iowa State College in Ames. He was a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity on that campus.

He left school to become managing editor of a weekly paper in Cherokee, Ia. Continuing in the field of communications, he had a stint of radio announcing in Marshalltown, Ia. Then followed an affiliation with Dun & Bradstreet in Des Moines and Cedar Rapids, before the service sent out its feelers for him.

That he has an affinity for his present work was demonstrated last year in Long Beach when the annual meeting of the International Assn. of Auditorium Managers voted him one of its two outstanding managers of the organization.

Eagle Grove, Ia., was LeahBelle's home town, and until this week was home to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Hudgins. Like many an Iowan, they are due to arrive soon in the Long Beach area to establish permanent residence.

LeahBelle was a nurse for several years at Des Moines' Methodist Hospital after completing training there.

"If I have any hobbies at all, I guess they would be sewing and cooking," she says. She makes dresses for her little girls, which pleases them. But they go into ecstacies over her hot breads. Mama doesn't use a package mix. They can tell the difference. Any variation of hot rolls, especially the cinnamon twists, brings shrieks of delight from the little Hanssens. They are beginning to help with the kneading and baking.

Suzanne is 11 and will enter the seventh grade at Stanford Junior High School in the fall. Jean, 8, will study at Emerson Elementary School and Vicky will be joining her at that school, branching off to the kindergarten class.

Church groups, PTA and Girl Scout leadership interested LeahBelle during her midwest residence, while Win was active in Kiwanis, Masonic orders, Boy Scouts and American Legion before pressure of his schedule.

Courses in advanced sewing and ceramics now intrigue LeahBelle. She hasn't enrolled yet, but has it uppermost on her must-do list.

On Sundays the Hanssens attend Lakewood First Presbyterian Church.

Travel Memoirs Fascinating

"And now we are on our way home," pens Mrs. Earl Burns Miller, prominent local socialite and author, from London, Eng. Mr. and Mrs. Miller, who are no strangers to world travel, are completing a four-month tour of Europe which will end upon return to their Long Beach home next Sunday.

Continues Mrs. Miller in the lilting style of the accomplished writer: "We have followed the spring month and everywhere we have found flowers—from the brilliant red poppies of Italy to the little white wild anemones beyond the Artic Circle. Everywhere we have found church steeples and everywhere we have found friendly people. With flowers and churches and friendly people, there surely must be hope for the world!"

The Millers began this trip very early in April and before going overseas paused in New York to enjoy that city's fabled Easter Parade where, still in memory, the sight of a French poodle wearing a straw hat trimmed with huge red poppies poised rakishly over one eye persists.

Mid-April found the travelers in England and in Stratford-on-Avon where Mrs. Miller's diary record reveals: "This afternoon, near Woodstock, we drove through a triumphal arch and saw 'the finest view in England'—Blenheim Palace across a lake. On the dresser of the room in which he was born were displayed some little curls from the head of baby Winston Churchill. Someway, I had never thought of him as a baby with red-gold hair."

By May Mr. and Mrs. Miller were in Italy—at Paestum where "we saw, against a gray sky, beyond a fence covered with pink roses the softly golden Grecian temple of Neptune in all its perfection—Doric columns, wonderful in proportion—the soul of the architect written in stone. It was built about the time of Parthenon by the colony of Greek Sybarites."

"May 23, Paris. We flew from Milan today. Unforgettable experience, flying over the Alps with their mile upon mile of jagged white peaks rising above a sea of clouds. We rode serenely over Mt. Blanc and saw the tracks of the capricious wind in the snow. May 25. Cocktails and dinner with Della and Lester Lawson at the Ritz then on to Ciro's where we were surrounded with violin music. A Hungarian gypsy girl with coal-black hair and chalk-white face danced in a swirl of vivid draperies. Our attention was divided between her and the Duke and Duchess of Windsor who sat with two friends at a table or so away. They look a little worn, a little weary of night clubbing."

Note-sketches from Mrs. Miller's diary are picked up again as she and her husband visited Amsterdam. "Visited Rembrandt's home in the old Jewish quarter. Many of his etchings are there, a revealation to us who had thought always of his marvelous paintings. One etching of the feet of Christ, pierced by the nails, cupped in the hands of Mary (who was trying to ease the pain, we thought) haunts me."

By June 7 the diary picks up again, this time in Odense, Denmark. "In a small low-ceilinged room of Hans Christion Andersen's birthplace we saw mementoes of his life. Among them were pressed flowers given to him by a little beggar girl at Paestum and a trick mirror from Jenny Lind whom he hopelessly loved." In Copenhagen she wrote, "Gray, rainy day. Ruth Craig Merrell and Jack Merrell's friend, Gorm Bremmer, took us across to the site of the Vikings' settlement of 1,000 years ago at Trelleborg. Now, within the stony outlines of excavated barracks, sheep graze peacefully, undisturbed by the ghosts of former warriors, the once proud conquerers of England."

"June 18. Stockholm. Earl and I wandered through Riddarholm Church, the "Westminster Abbey" of Sweden. In a little chapel we found the tombs of Carl Johann (Charles XIV) and Desidera (Desire, of book fame) as founders of the present dynasty. Imagine the little French girl in such regal splendor! June 19. In old Uppsala this morning we entered a small church on a site where Odin used to be worshipped. Just within the vestibule was the very spot where sacrifices were offered to Odin and Thor.

In Oslo Mrs. Miller found much of interest. "We taxied to the hills overlooking the fjord. Thousands were walking or riding to hilltops for a view of the midsummer night bonfires, blazing on the mainland and the small islands. It is an annual custom to welcome summer by burning away the debris and darkness and snow of winter. It was beautiful—pine tree branches silhouetted against the pink-rose of the sunset; the color of the sky and leaping flames reflected in the water. And radiant the look on the faces of the people."

In Bergen on June 24 she penned: "Wonderful ride on the train from Oslo—waterfalls everywhere, snowcapped peaks, frozen lakes, birch trees with trunks gleaming white among the firs. Most wonderful surprise for us! At Al, Haldis Hertzog's native village, four of her relatives met us at the station—a cousin and his wife wore the gorgeous embroidered costumes of Hallingdal (at Haldis' request!). We could not understand their language, nor they ours, but our hearts were warmed with their smiling friendliness. We boarded the train laden with beautiful gifts of Norwegian handicraft and a nosegay of daisies from Haldis' sweet aunt."

During the third day of Mr. and Mrs. Miller's North Cape cruise, which began late in June, Mrs. Miller wrote in her diary: "At 1:30 p. m. we passed Hjalmoy, the bird sanctuary. The cliffs and a high pillarlike rock were covered with birds, thick as snow. As the ship's deep-throated voice awakened the echoes, clouds of them—gulls sea-maws, terns and puffins—flew out from caverns and away from ledges to circle and then drift back to their respective places."

These are but brief excerpts from a store of rich memories which the Earl Burns Millers will bring home with them to share, in retrospect, with their friends.

Summer Tea Is Epitome of Gracious Entertaining

Gracious summer entertaining was blithely accomplished by Mrs. Harold W. Harris and Mrs. Julius C. Molina recently when they were co-hostesses at a tea given in the home of Mrs. Harris' mother, Mrs. Merritt Gordon Snyder, 4242 Pacific Ave.

Majestic yellow daisies flanked by gleaming silver candelabra holding white tapers centered the tea table. The yellow theme of the daisies, gladioli and bells of Ireland was carried throughout the home and into the garden where bright umbrellas and graceful white wrought iron tables and chairs dotted the lawn. The glass topped garden tables served as clear pools beneath which guests viewed delicate garland lacings of miniature ivy wired arrangements.

Bidden to enjoy the party either indoors or out, the 75 guests found the rose garden at the height of its fragrant bloom, a delightful background for casual conversation.

Assisting the two hostesses during the party hours were Mrs. Frank Vessels Jr. and Mrs. Irving Smith Jr., who presided at the tea table; Mrs. Philip R. Dowds, at the punch table in the garden; and Mrs. John Turner and Mrs. Charles Hughes greeted the guests at the door.

For the occasion Mrs. Molina and Mrs. Harris presented the assisting hostesses with corsages of dainty stephanotis concealing tiny demitasse spoons as gay "thank you" mementoes.

Candlelight Vows for Pair

Before an altar silhouetted against a large white double satin heart edged with fern and centered with a multitude of dainty sweetpeas, double rings were exchanged by Grace Bryan and David Lewis in recent candlelight services at the Compton First Brethren Church.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Brooks Bryan of Compton, chose a gown of white nylon lace tiered over taffeta. Matching lace edged her fingertip nylon net veil. A large white orchid centered her bouquet of mixed orchids and lilies of the valley.

In pastel taffeta and net dresses with full hooped skirts were bridal attendants Donna Harrison, maid of honor, and bridesmaids Marlene Lutz and Virginia Wright.

Others of the bridal party included Bill Quier, best man, ushers Bill Ratliff and Bob Bryan, flower girl Linda Caruthers, ringbearer Donnie Bartron and candlelighters Mrs. Betty Quier and Miss Pat Harrison.

The bride is a graduate of Jordan High School; her husband, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wylie Lewis, Compton, attended Compton Junior College. They will live in Compton after a honeymoon in Las Vegas and Palm Springs.

Couple United in Garden Ceremonies

The lovely gardens of El Adobe in San Juan Capistrano formed a romantic setting for the recent marriage of Anne Marie Gahry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Gahry of 357½ Orange Ave., and Lt. William Brayton Collins, USN.

Gowned in a dress fashioned from white satin, brocaded with a delicate orchid design, which was brought from Hong Kong by the bridegroom, the bride was given in marriage by her father. She carried a bouquet of white carnations and orchids. Her headpiece, outlined with seed pearls, caught a filmy illusion veil.

Dorothy Gahry, the bride's sister, was maid of honor in a forget-me-not blue dress of lace and nylon tulle. She carried pink carnations and wore a tiny blue lace hat. Serving as best man was a former shipmate of the bridegroom, Wilson B. Dakan, of Del Mar.

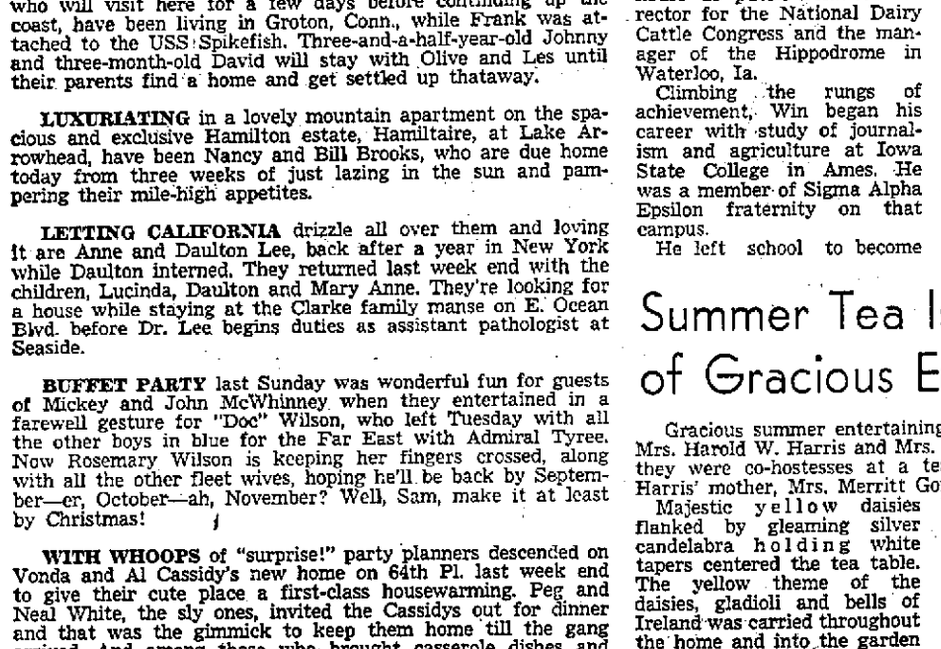

The newlyweds greeted their guests in the garden following the nuptial ceremonies.

The new Mrs. Collins is a member of the National Secretaries Assn., serving two years as treasurer; Desk and Derrick Club, and is active in Girl Scout activities. Her husband, a native Californian, received his flight training at Corpus Christi, Tex. He is the son of Mrs. Helen Collins of Costa Mesa and Capt. William H. Families Witness Heyde-Shirey Vows

Thirty members of their immediate families gathered on the morning of July 9 in Lakewood Village Community Church to witness an exchange of nuptial vows by Joan Lee Shirey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond W. Shirey, 4450 Olive Ave., and John Albert Heyde of 1020 E. Carson St. Rev. W. R. Hall read the lines.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was charmingly gowned in cocktail length pink organza with a matching hat, and carried white orchids on a prayer book.

Attending the bride as matron of honor was her sister-in-law, Mrs. Raymond W. Shirey Jr. She wore blue lace with a matching hat and carried pink peonies. Capt. Richard Heyde, brother of the bridegroom, was best man, and guests were escorted to their seats by Charles Saunders.

A wedding breakfast followed the ceremony in the home of the bride's parents. The newlyweds will be at home in Long Beach on Aug. 1 following their return from a honeymoon trip to Lake Tahoe and San Francisco.

Mrs. Heyde was graduated from Polytechnic High School, the University of Nebraska and Long Beach State College. She is a member of Pi Beta Phi and Chapter FJ of PEO. Her bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Heyde of Riverside, received his early education in Scotts Bluff, Neb., and was graduated from the New Mexico Military Institute and the University of Arizona. He is an affiliate of Theta Nu Epsilon, AIME and AF&AM.

Rhine Journey Highlights European Vacation Trip

An all-day trip down the Rhine was the high light of their trip, say Mrs. Hal Webster (Bess Settle Webster), 305 16th St., Seal Beach, and Mrs. Nina Burroughs, 4623 Livingston Dr., who returned by plane Wednesday from three months in Europe.

"We ate enough spaghetti in Italy to last us the rest of our lives—and enough asparagus," they say, "and it is good to get American coffee again. In Europe and England they gave us thick black stuff, served with pitchers of hot milk."

The two report they did not see a bathing suit or pair of slacks on their trip. "The women abroad just plain don't wear pants." They say many men and women hikers, with packs on their packs, especially in Austria and Germany. And saw foreign newspaper stories about the Miss Universe contest "in Los Angeles."

They attended services in St. Peter's Cathedral, in Westminster Abbey, and heard Norman Vincent Peale in New York.

They also visited Lisbon, Madrid, Barcelona, Palma, Nice, Genoa, Rapello, Rome, Florence, Venice, Milan, Lucerne, Montreux, Salzburg, Badgastein, Munich, Cologne, Amsterdam, Paris and London. A number of their spirited accounts of their travels appeared in the Independent and Press-Telegram. Mrs. Webster is former women's editor of the Independent and Press-Telegram.

The bride, escorted to the altar by her father, wore a gown of ice blue bridal satin with bouffant skirt. The fitted bodice was set off by a Chantilly lace collar edged with seed pearls. Her circular fingertip illusion veil of ice blue tulle was held in place by a tiny coronet of lace and pearls.

Her bridegroom, a graduate of Rio Grande College, Rio Grande, Ohio, will enter the Northern Baptist Seminary in September to continue his studies for the ministry.

Three Pairs Note Silver Anniversaries

A host of friends joined together to help three couples celebrate their silver anniversaries. This unusual occurrence was the incentive for a gala dinner party recently at Allen Center.

Honored couples were Messrs. and Mesdames Alvin L. Benson, R. Lee Chamness and Edward N. Halsey—all of whom are celebrating their 25th wedding anniversaries within this month.

Hosting the occasion were Mr. and Mrs. Harold A. Thompson, Mrs. Mildred Morris and Mr. and Mrs. Albert K. Mills.

The affair got under way with a cocktail party after which dinner was served. A huge white cake circled by gardenias around its base, tall tapers and arrangements of daisies and magnolias carried out the white and silver theme. The group presented the honorees with clever little gift packages each containing twenty-five silver dollars.

Vacations Scatter Suburban Families

By GERTRUDE STOFFELS

Travel tours within the States and Canada have held top interest with Bellflower and Artesia families. Mr. and Mrs. John De Vries and son, Billy, of 9428 Mayne St., Bellflower, and Mr. and Mrs. Pete Vander Maarl of 11928 E. 167th St., Artesia, with their son, Tom, have left their homes to travel together for the next two weeks touring through Northern California, Oregon, Washington and on to Vancouver, B. C. There they will visit with Mrs. De Vries' aunt, Miss Zientje Vander Meide, who will return here with the local group to spend six weeks at the De Vries' home.

On their trip the group will visit with relatives in Northern California, tour the city of San Francisco and visit in Grants Pass, Ore., at the homes of Mr. and Mrs. Gerban Stellingwerf and Mr. and Mrs. Dick Ross, and in Washington at the home of various relatives.

Returned here Thursday from a three-week vacation trip were Mr. and Mrs. Garrett Terpstra and daughters Henrietta and Marilyn of 11658 E. 166th St., Artesia. The family enjoyed a leisurely tour through various Northern States and Canada, visiting with friends in Linden, Wash., and returning via Montana and Salt Lake City, Utah. During their travels, Mrs. Terpstra kept in touch by telephone with friends who were staying at their home during their absence.

Mrs. Fern Francom and son Glen have returned to their home at 9904 Arkansas Ave., Bellflower, from a three-week stay with relatives in Utah. While there, Mrs. Francom attended a leadership course in church work at Brigham Young University. While here, the visitors are enjoying sightseeing trips through Southern California and are visiting with friends and relatives in near-by cities. The Grahams also have spent a day with relatives in Ventura.

Entertaining at a family party Saturday evening with a dinner at Knott's Berry Farm on the occasion of their 25th wedding anniversary were Mr. and Mrs. Harry Vanden Hoek of 18015 S. Alburtis Ave., Artesia.

The Vanden Hoeks are married 25 years today. Their marriage took place in Bellflower, where she has been raised and schooled. The pair, who have no children, are now residents of Artesia.

Celebrations Head Busy Lomita Area Calendar

By MARIE SWENSON

A clap of the hand and swirling skirts bring delightful memories to merge with present activities in the Old Fashioned Dance Club for Mr. and Mrs. George Wanee, long-time Lomita residents of 25841 Eshelman Ave., who were honored recently by both the club and their son on the occasion of their 50th wedding anniversary.

The couple were recipients of a gold candy dish and presided over the cutting of a gold-decorated cake in the club of which Mr. Wanee is now vice president and a member for over 20 years. Harbor area square dancers invariably invite him to be caller for a real hoe-down in a professional manner but with an ever-present twinkle in his eye.

Mrs. Wanee, who worked for the Los Angeles Board of Education for 27 years, retired in 1952 from her clerk-post at Fries Ave. School, where she served three years.

Married in Denver, Colo., on June 22, 1905, the couple have been residents of Lomita since 1923. Recently, an afternoon and evening open house hosted by their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Victor Wanee, at 26309 Ozone St., Harbor City, had more than 70 relatives and friends gathered to offer felicitations, including another son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Lessley Wanee, and grandson, Ronald, all from Sacramento.

Prior to coming to Lomita, the Wanees lived in San Pedro where he was associated with the post office department.

Featured during the festivities were golden candlesticks, yellow candles, yellow roses and yellow gladioli, surrounding a white-frosted cake topped with yellow roses.

With daughter Marilyn, and son, Andy, as host and hostess, about 35 members of the immediate family were present to congratulate Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Spaan, of 1609 W. 252nd St., on their 25th wedding anniversary. The couple, who were married in Lomita Presbyterian Church by Rev. Dr. Harold Ingersoll a quarter of a century ago, were recipients of a silver tree trimmed with crisp new one-dollar bills, and a beautifully decorated cake, appropriately inscribed, served from a silver appointed table.

Farewells and hellos were combined with the Spaan's preparing for a fishing excursion and vacation in Bridgeport, and Marilyn enplaneing for Michigan to attend the Mortar Board Society convention at Lansing as newly-elected president of the Occidental College Chapter where she is studying medicine. Brother Andy returned to UCLA where he is completing work toward his teacher credentials for his new career to begin this fall.

Attending the family celebration were Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Bosser, newlywed visitors from Tilden, Neb., who are spending a honeymoon trip as houseguests of their aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Steve Spaan, 2112 W. 238th St., Torrance.

Double birthdays were celebrated last Sunday by Mrs. Clarence Creery and her son Bud at their 1428 W. 255th St. residence in Harbor City. A spaghetti dinner in their patio had a table-roundup of guests including Messrs. and Mmes. Jerry Shoemaker, Jack Bolander and children, Caryn and John; Steve Cramer and son, Gary; Mrs. Diane Laney and daughters, Linda and Cinda of Garden Grove; Mrs. Creery's mother, Mrs. Jim Sowdon of Long Beach; and Bud's buddies, Teddy Martizia and Denny Richards of Harbor City.

While son Dean went to Yosemite, Edith and Delbert Bench of 1620 W. 256th St., Harbor City, motored down to visit daughter and son-in-law, Naomi and Howard Whitter, in San Diego where they went motoring some more all around Chula Vista.

Harbor City and the local Community Singers are bemoaning the loss of sweet Nora Titus from their midst since she has moved to Needles, Ariz., with her hubby, Will. They will stay with their daughter, Helen Dunham, to compare California sunshine with the Arizona "blaze." Nora was presented a hand-made purse from the group of singers headed by Mrs. Mildred Taylor before she left and the members are planning a real party for her when she comes to visit again.

Summer Sociality Keen in Downey-Paramount

By GERTRUDE HAGOORT

A poolside party at the Downey home of Mrs. Edgar T. Penfold, 7723 E. Second St., was one of several delightful garden affairs sparking that community's social scene during these pleasant midsummer days. Lending attraction to the setting were the colorful umbrella tables centered with garden bouquets of dahlias and other varicolored blooms serving as decor for a midday luncheon which preceded an afternoon of swimming, music and the playing of cards.

Mrs. Penfold is chairman of the garden section of the Downey Woman's Club and her guests were members of that group. In charge of planning the affair were members of the executive board, Mmes. Florence Gillings, Glenn Curtis, H. Curtiss Cassill, G. H. Fuehrer, Lloyd Lynd, Lyle Barcus and Gus Rizzo.

A lovely patio dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Hollenbeck, 8821 Tweedy Lane, was given in honor of the Hollenbeck's houseguests, her mother, brother-in-law and sister, Mrs. June Packwood and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Johnson of Oakdale, Neb.

Other guests included Mrs. Leota Bell of Los Angeles, Jay Crane of Anaheim, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Myers, Mrs. Lottie Myers, the Misses Melinda and Marilyn Myers, Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Hollenbeck and Mr. and Mrs. George Stang.

The attractive setting of the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Sweeney was the site of the lawn dinner given in honor of Mrs. Sweeney's parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Bailey, on the occasion of their 57th wedding anniversary. Participating in the outdoor event were four other sons-in-law and daughters of the honorees, Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Kinkade of Bell, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Kinkade of South Gate and Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Wilhite of Rivera. Also present were a granddaughter and great granddaughter, Mrs. L. D. Casey and Miss Sylvia Casey of Norwalk, and the Sweeney's daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Defibaugh and children, Larry, Judith and Lynne of Downey.

The preceding week, the Sweeney's entertained as their houseguests, another daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Foster and children, Jo Dean and Betty Lu, from Port Orchard, Wash.

Houseguests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Carter of 8361 E. Fifth St. has been their son and family, Maj. and Mrs. James Carter and daughter Nanette of Charleston, W. Va., where Maj. Carter is stationed with the U. S. Air Force National Guard. While here, the guests also visited at the home of his sister and family, Mr. and Mrs. James C. Shull and children of 7843 Bairnsdale, Downey.

The Paramount home of Mrs. Arnold Sorensen at 13653 Racine Ave. served as the setting for a pre-nuptial affair given in honor of Miss Dorothy Nichols, bride-elect of Pat O'Dell. Co-hostessing the affair with Mrs. Sorensen were Mrs. Howard Brown, Mrs. Dave Miller and Miss Rosemary Chaney. Green and white were the colors carried out in the decorations for the event, at which the honoree was the recipient of many lovely gifts. She will be married on August 22 in the First Baptist Church in Paramount.

Interesting houseguests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Fuehrer at 7811 E. Harper Ave. this past week have been his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Fuehrer and son Jeffrey, from Phillipsburg, N. J. The visitors, who have stopped at many scenic places on their tour across the country, have entertained their hosts by showing many lovely colored slide pictures taken during their trip. They also have taken many pictures while visiting places of interest in Southern California, which they will take back as mementos.

Engagement Told

A summer, 1956, wedding is being planned by Kay Coker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Barney Coker of Anaheim. She is engaged to John Lee Kinsman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Kinsman of Garden Grove. They plan to be married in the temple of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints in Salt Lake City, Utah.

Lange-Joy Engagement Highlights Norwalk News

By JUNE BRIDGE

High light of the social news this week is the announcement by Mr. and Mrs. David B. Joy, 14409 Benfield Ave., of the engagement of their daughter, Glenna Marie, to Kenneth G. Lange. Lange is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Gust Lange of Medford, Wis.

Miss Joy was graduated from Excelsior High School June 17, where she served as student body president during her senior year. She is the first girl to have held that office in the 50-odd years of Excelsior's existence. Lange is now serving in the U. S. Navy. No date has been set for the wedding.

Glenna Joy

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Siville, 14320 Crossdale, entertained members of the Monterey Park 20-30 Club and their wives at a swimming party and barbecue Saturday afternoon and evening. Guests arrived at 3 p. m. to enjoy swimming in the Siville pool. The hungry swimmers then filled up on hamburgers, potato salad and baked beans.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Newbrough, of 14803 Dalwood, and children, Christine and Bobby, have just returned from a camping trip at Greenhorn in the Sequoia National Forest. Fishing wasn't so successful but the family had fun trying.

Members of the Norwalk GNO club enjoyed another potluck dinner and evening at canasta. This time in the new patio of Mrs. Leonard Wallen, 13500 Stanbridge, Bellflower. Birthday guest of honor was Mrs. Al Lavers.

Turning the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Frederick, 15439 Piuma, into a gaming casino, the Junior Woman's Club held a "Little Las Vegas Night" at the Frederick home. Mrs. Cecil Hammack was chairman of the affair.

Twenty-seven members and guests had a gay time at the miniature roulette, black jack, poker and crap tables. Needless to say, all "gambling" was done with play money.

By ESTELLA CARPENTER

Diverse activities are on the agenda in the Hub City; tired and sun-tanned vacationers are returning home; social and club activities are being planned for patio, and the outdoor setting is refreshing to all gatherings. Joan is a graduate of Compton High School and attended Compton Junior College, where she was a member of Delta Kappa Phi. A surprise baby shower for the minister's wife, Mrs. Paul Imschweiler, was attended by a large group of the Christ Lutheran women of the church at their recent monthly meeting. Filling a baby crib and bathinette were many lovely and practical gifts for the baby-to-be. Adding to the enjoyment was a playlet enacted by the members of the Junior Mission group.

Silver Year Celebrated

To celebrate the silver anniversary of Beta Sigma Phi, the sorority's California Kappa Pi chapter will form a new chapter in Compton within the next few months. The Hub City is joining with 4,200 others throughout the world in presenting a new chapter as a silver anniversary gift to the founder, Virginia Young, representative of the international offices at Kansas City, Mo., met with Kappa Pi members at the home of Hazel Olsen when plans were made. Kappa Pi's president, Iona Hogelen, with Erlene Walker and Betty Rice are co-chairmen of the silver anniversary project.

All art roads, as the saying goes, lead these days to Laguna Beach for the 20th annual Festival of Arts and Pageant of the Masters which opened Saturday night and will continue through Aug. 14.

Six acres of Festival grounds, in Irvine Bowl at the mouth of Laguna Canyon, become a cultural center for the 30 days and nights of the Festival of Arts. Hundreds of gaily decorated booths, panels and working exhibits display paintings, sculpture, photographs, ceramics and handicrafts.

Highlights are an all-California exhibition of contemporary painting; a junior artists' exhibit; "free-for-all art classes" for small fry artists who are furnished equipment and smocks and encouraged to express themselves in color and line.

A fascinating adjunct is the Puppet Theater in which Don and Ivy Wilson guide their "little people" through daily performances gay with fantasy and impudent with satire.

Men, women and children of Laguna Beach act as living models to create mankind's great heritage of painting and sculpture, ranging from Leonardo da Vinci, to Norman Rockwell, in the Pageant of the Masters at 8:30 every night. Three different programs (A, B and C) are presented on successive nights.

Members of the Spectrum Club will sketch and paint today at the Bolsa Chica Club. The club has a new show in the Lafayette Hotel.

"Evening Glow," which won an award in the recent Glendale show, highlights an exhibit of 12 paintings by Darwin Duncan in the Bank of Belmont Shore, 5354 E. 2nd St. Others include "High Sierra," "Breath of Spring" and "Channel Boats."

Child Care

Pajama Parties Need Adult Supervision

By MILTON I. LEVINE, M.D.
and
JEAN H. SELIGMANN

(Q) "My 13-year-old daughter wants to have a pajama party. Before I send out invitations I want to be sure if it's proper for a girl of this age to have such a party, and if it's all right to invite some of her 10-year-old girl friends. What are my duties that night?" —MRS. J.M.

(A) Pajama parties, which are given by girls for girls, are perfectly proper. Usually the party consists of the girls having supper together, sleeping together and having breakfast with one another in the the morning. It is planned so that they all sleep in one or two rooms with cots, couches or mattresses on the floor supplying the extra accommodations. They stay awake until very late talking, so that it probably would not be particularly advisable to include 10-year-olds.

Occasionally boys will learn through the grape-vine about these parties, and will try to crash them. Parents should stay around in order to discourage any such invasions. And parents should be at home for other reasons, as well. Even though your daughter may feel that they can manage without adults in the house, it is always reassuring for young people to know that an adult is there to help when needed, and to keep things under some sort of control. You can see to it that they don't get over-excited. You also can make sure that no one child is left out in any way. And you can hopefully suggest when it is time to go to sleep. This doesn't mean, of course, that you have to be around the girls all evening. Just be there in case of neccessity.

As for your other duties as mother of the hostess, your daughter can tell you more than we can. She most likely would like you to help her with the arrangements, serving of food, and so forth. Most girls love these pajama parties, and the affair should be a lot of fun.

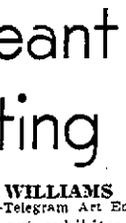

This feature appears daily in the Press-Telegram.

Degree of Honor Courtesy Night

Courtesy Night, with guests from lodges throughout Los Angeles County filling the chairs, is planned at 8 p.m. Thursday by Degree of Honor Lodge 108 at 728 Elm Ave. Gene Graham will preside. A program is planned, and refreshments will be served by Elsie Tipping and her committee.

Olson-Boaz Vows Said in Fullerton

Wearing a white lace and taffeta ballerina gown designed and made by her bridegroom's grandmother, Peggy Boaz, daughter of Mrs. Mary L. Boaz, Whittier, repeated nuptial vows with Richard I. Olson of Belmont Shore July 9 in the First Christian Church of Fullerton. The single ring evening services were read by Rev. Frank L. Purnell, with Rev. Carlton C. Buck assisting.

Given in marriage by her brother, Robert Boaz of Santa Barbara, the bride wore a long-torso gown of white lace over taffeta fashioned by Mrs. Adalaide McElrath. A crown of matching lace with seed pearls and sequins caught her fingertip illusion veil. She carried a white Bible with a white orchid nestled in stephanotis. A pearl choker and earrings, a gift from the bridegroom, were her only jewelry.

In lilac crystalette ballerina dresses styled similar to the bride's gown were bridal attendants Mrs. Richard Stults of Riverside, matron of honor, and bridesmaids Mrs. Robert Boaz of Santa Barbara, Mrs. Richard Shook of Yorba Linda and Mrs. Rex Guggisberg of Fullerton. Dainty carnation bouquets and headpieces completed their ensembles.

John Kelly of Belmont Shore served the bridegroom as best man. Ushering the guests were Donald Boaz, the bride's brother of Whittier, John Vosburg of Garden Grove and Donald Kelly of Whittier.

White gladioli and candelabra graced the reception at the church with Miss Edna Welton, Mrs. James Grieves, Mrs. Cyril English, Mrs. Andrew Martin, Mrs. Kenneth Brunot, Mrs. James Craig and Mrs. O. E. West assisting.

The newlyweds will live in Belmont Shore upon their return from a week's honeymoon at Lake Arrowhead.

Schooled in Sacramento, the bridegroom attended Fresno State College and served with the USMC for four years. Son of Mrs. Ralph Brooks, 26 Sicilian Wlk., and E. A. Olson, Galveston, Tex., he is presently a student at Long Beach State College. His bride attended Fullerton Junior College and San Jose State College.

Visit in Iowa

Mr. and Mrs. Frank C. Buckman and son Franklin of 4133 Gaviota Ave. returned recently from a three-week visit in Marshalltown, Iowa, with their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Don Edsall, and their grandson, Kenneth Edsall and family. Enroute home they stopped at Cedar Rapids and the Grand Canyon.

Sandra Welker Becomes Bride of C. G. O'Malley

In the presence of 250 wedding guests, Sandra Welker of 3448 Montair Ave. exchanged rings and vows with Charles Gerald O'Malley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul James, 2707 Eckelson Ave., in evening ceremonies at the Methodist Church, California and Bixby.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Welker of Woodland Hills, the bride was escorted by her father. For the services officiated by Rev. Claude Young, she wore a gown of tulle over taffeta with a full lace train. The Chantilly lace bodice was set off by a Queen Anne collar. White orchids comprised the bridal bouquet.

Mrs. Sue Thornton, matron of honor, was gowned in blue crystaline and carried pink sweet peas. In yellow crystaline and holding orchid sweet pees were bridesmaids Barbara Didwidie, Patsy London and Judy Rupert. Marie Rodden was flower girl.

something to talk about . . .

Just a word this week about summer beauty. The way we feel about it, there's no season that calls for so much personal care as the good old summertime.
It's a good time of the year to try new exciting refreshments—like Lucien LeLong's new talc. This talc can be your guarantee of personal freshness all summer long, because a new ingredient has been added that renders perspiration absolutely odorless, yet doesn't interfere with its soft lasting fragrance.

But deodorants are important too! Don't take them for granted. Explore the possibilities of the many types available to you today—and watch them work for you—you may discover some are more effective than the ones you are now using.

Then perhaps you are the gal that has only a few minutes a day to give to your looks, so we'd like to suggest one way to make the most of those minutes. "Fragrance" and bathe at the same time! How? With Lucien LeLong's lovely soap—just step into the tub hot and bothered—step out fresh and fragrantly delightful in a scent that lingers all day long.

The good old summertime that is full of pleasures is also full of physical penances, among them more care for your hair. Dorothy Gray has solved this problem, however, with Hot Weather Shampoo—lots and lots of suds and it cleanses every strand, leaves your hair easily manageable, gives you that fresh feeling.

All in all—for a few hour's shopping time and a few minutes each day, you can have that certain summer air—its freshness.

Now that we've got you all freshened up—we will just have to find some place to go—and where else in the summertime but the beach! But don't go without our new "dazzle" beach bags and caps! You've never seen the likes of these! Stark white caps and bags literally ladened with rubber flowers! Rubber because they won't wilt, rumple or lose their fresh, real look—even in the water.

These are the things that make your summer a pleasure, they're all found on Walker's Street Floor of Accessories, so come in—browse around —find lots of new conveniences for summer freshness.

Richard McMichaels Return Today From Honeymoon

Returning today from a honeymoon trip to San Diego are Mr. and Mrs. Richard Dean McMichael (Judith Lynn Baker), who exchanged wedding vows and rings July 10 at First Lutheran Church. The pair will reside at 5701 E. Second St., Belmont Shore.

The marriage lines were read by Rev. E. V. Oelschlaeger in an afternoon ceremony attended by 170 guests. Given in marriage by her maternal uncle, Roy D. Carrigan, the bride wore a chapel length gown of white nylon tulle, fashioned with a hand clipped Chantilly lace over satin bodice and bouffant skirt. Her headpiece was of lace and pleated nylon seeded with pearls and opalescent sequins, and held in place an elbow length veil of illusion. Her bouquet held white roses and stephanotis surrounding a pair of white orchids.

Mrs. Jay D. Baker, sister-in-law of the bride, was matron of honor and bridesmaids were Anita Solomon, Jenny Weitzel, Patricia Chemi and Laura Casella. The attendants all were gowned in pastel shades of tulle over satin and carried carnations dyed to match. Claudeen Carrigan and Lauri Sebern were flower girls, and Patrick Bates carried the rings.

The bridegroom was attended by Larry Cossairt as best man, and guests were seated by Charles Grady, Richard Carmichael, William Griffith and William Paulson.

The church social hall was setting for a reception following the service, with Barbara Greenwood, Mrs. Victor Pargee and Mrs. Roy Carrigan as hostesses.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Mihelich, 2505 E. Third St., was graduated from Polytechnic High School and attended City College where she was an affiliated of Mahabharata, and also attended a Long Beach modeling school. Her bridegroom, son of Mrs. Bernice Sutton, 2315 Fashion Ave., received his schooling in Taft, and served with the Air Force.

Yellow Roses Form Bouquet

A cascade arrangement of yellow rosebuds against the all-white loveliness of her gown made a striking picture as Norma James was escorted down the aisle of St. Bartholomew's Catholic Church by her father to become the bride of Donald Buzbee. Rev. John Cummings officiated.

The bride's gown was fashioned with a lace bodice over taffeta, and a bouffant skirt scattered with seed pearls studded lace rosettes. Her fingertip veil was held in place by a lace tiara.

Bridal attendants, June Herman and Evelyn Ellis, were gowned in pastel net over taffeta and carried carnation arrangements contrasting with their gowns. Howard Fisher was best man, and guests were seated by Paul Reed and Earl Ellis.

A reception followed at the 101 Ranch House in Seal Beach. The newlyweds will reside at 247½ Sixth St., Seal Beach, on return from a Santa Barbara honeymoon trip.

The bride, daughter of Leo L. James of Seal Beach, was graduated from Huntington Beach High School and Orange Coast Junior College. Her husband, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Buzbee, 122 Tenth St., also was graduated from Huntington Beach High School and attended Orange Coast College.

Pink Roses Grace Altar for Wedding

Delicate pink roses graced the altar of St. Matthew's Catholic Church on Saturday for the wedding mass uniting Patricia Lucille Farrelly, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Philip J. Farrelly, 380 Grand Ave., and Albert Jordan Kuhn, son of Albert J. Kuhn, 1107 Rose Ave., and the late Mrs. Kuhn.

Rev. James P. Lynch officiated at the double ring ceremony. The bride's gown was of imported Chantilly lace molded in princess lines with a draped boat neckline and a cathedral train of lace with three tiered tulling around the train. She carried a sheath of pink roses.

Bridal attendants, Mary Beerling, maid of honor and Carol Sauter, bridesmaid, wore pink taffeta fashioned in long torso lines with waltz length bouffant skirts. Kathleen Moore, cousin of the bride, was flower girl and carried a basket of white roses. Michael Glabb served as ring bearer.

Raymond Champagne attended as best man and ushers were William J. Teagarden, James R. Sandy, Thomas Clarkson and Charles Milner.

A reception followed with Mmes. Paul Glaab, Harry Moore and Ned Mitchell as hostesses. Mrs. James Block was in charge of the guest book.

The newlyweds will make their home in Long Beach on return from a wedding trip to San Francisco. The bride attended St. Anthony's High School and Long Beach City College where she was affiliated with Mahabharata. The bridegroom attended Polytechnic High School and City College and served for two years with the armed forces.

Local Pilots Assist Club in Torrance

The privilege of serving as installing officer of a new Pilot Club fell to Hazel Blair of the Long Beach club Thursday evening when she served as officiant for the newly formed Torrance Club at a dinner meeting conducted at the Palms restaurant in Torrance.

Other Long Beach Pilot members in attendance at the memorable evening were Long Beach president Ruth Tay as well as Mildred Morris, Edith Klein, Lucinda Kalmbach, Virginia Rogers, Lucy Harvey, Lorene Yett, Dorothy Rees, Margaret Fenwick and Jacqueline Grunest.

At the last meeting of the Long Beach Club in the Lafayette Hotel Phil Hattery was guest speaker, following the Pilot slogan, "Women of Service, This Is Your City," for his topic. This same slogan will be the basis for the program at next meeting Wednesday when Dr. Frank Harnett will be principal speaker. The program will pinpoint city recreational facilities.

Among Career Women

No Summer Hiatus for These Clubs!

By ANNE GILCHRIST

From stem to stern and back again, 75 members of Desk and Derrick Club plus their guests (making a total of 150 people in all) toured the luxury ocean liner, SS President Wilson, last Sunday prior to the ship's sailing on its regular run to Honolulu, Yokohama, Manila and Hong Kong.

Divided into groups and led by ship's officers, they promenaded on the promenade deck, sunned on the sun deck, ah'd on the A deck and goggled on the boat deck! Their tour of the Wilson included careful scrutiny of such quarters as the writing rooms, library, lounges, bars, beauty shop and recreational facilities aboard —the most popular being the swimming pool. They also viewed the suites and first class passenger quarters as well as the "poodle" quarters for the Fifi's who travel—all of which are air conditioned.

After the conducted tour, open house was declared and everyone was given uncurtailed liberty of the ship with the chief attraction for most being the Marine Room overlooking the pool.

Much reminiscing will naturally go on at the club's regular monthly meeting this coming Wednesday when they meet in the Supper Room of the Lafayette Hotel at 7 p.m. At this time, members will hear J. T. Streger, California division manager, and R. M. Brazier, liaison engineer of B. J. Service, Inc., who will show recently released sound and color movies on oil well cementing processes. The film was made by the University of Texas using B. J. Service equipment.

Zonta Club

The importance and great privilege of international relations were uppermost in the minds of Long Beach Zontians —and their emotions ran the gamut from gay fun to profound thoughtfulness at their luncheon Friday at the Hotel Lafayette in honor of Miss Hillevi Rombin, Miss Sweden of 1955, and her roommate, Miss Merlin Grace Garcia, this year's Miss Louisiana. Also present were Mrs. Elly Stromgren of Uppsala, Sweden, who accompanied Miss Rombin to the Miss Universe Beauty Pageant, and Mrs. Breta Raby, local hostess for both girls.

Of all the cities, towns and perhaps villages in Sweden, Miss Rombin lives in the city of Uppsala, the home of one of the largest Zonta Clubs in Sweden, and the club assigned to the Long Beach Zontians for special fellowship on foreign soil. Hence, was born the idea of "adoption" by Long Beach Zontians of Miss Sweden and her roommate, Miss Louisiana.

The event was fittingly opened as guests sang our national anthem and colors were presented under the direction of Lt. Phyllis McAlpine, USN, assisted by Color Guard representatives from the 5th Signal Corps, USMCR. It was brought to a close by the dipping of the Swedish flag and the singing of that country's national anthem.

Following the luncheon, Myranna Coon, by special request, sang "The Lord's Prayer," with the Sadler Twins furnishing an obbligato. Their mother, Mrs. Winifred Sadler, accompanied at the piano.

As a reminder of their visit in Long Beach Miss Rombin and Miss Garcia were each presented with pearl and gold bracelets by President Vivian Showalter, with the names and dates engraved on gold medallions. To the Uppsala Club was sent an ebony gavel with personal greetings to them from Long Beach Zontians engraved on a gold band.

Vivian Showalter presided during the entire affair, Lucille Murdock, local chairman of International Relations Committee, introduced the special guests, and decorations, which carried out the theme "universe," were beautifully designed and executed by Gladys Christensen and Mary Noonan.

Insurance Women

Traditionally each summer Insurance Women of Long Beach have one "out of town" meeting and this year it took place at the Imperial Restaurant of Garden Grove with new president Marie Eckles in charge. Highlight of the evening centered around the "welcome home" to the 16 members of the local club who had attended the national conclave of the National Association of Insurance Women's Clubs in San Francisco last month.

Reports of both the social and business aspects of the convention were heard and included news that Miss Elizabeth F. DeCesari of Woodbury, N. J., had been elected new national president. The "sunny" California weather of the Bay area was enjoyed—and joked about—by 612 delegates. The National Association now has 208 clubs with a total membership of 12,000. Of these, 16 clubs joined within the past year—two of them being Canadian groups.

Three Long Beach members, Hazel Struthers, Ann Tscheu and Louise Owen Campbell, went on from convention to spend the remainder of their vacation in Hawaii. A large number of east coast delegates joined the local members in this trip to the Islands and all were royally entertained by the Honolulu Insurance Women's Club.

National Secretaries

First meeting of the 1955-56 club year of Queen Beach chapter of National Secretaries was called to order at Hoefly's, Lakewood, by president Marie Wells recently who chose this time to announce that Madaline Ferguson has been selected to serve on the state nominating committee and Jeanne Hissner has been chosen to head the state ways and means committee.

Program for the meeting was provided by Marvin B. Froeckmann and Reigh Gross of International Business Machines who described latest office equipment and then illustrated with a film, "The Right Touch."

During the brief business meeting all committee chairmen gave thumbnail sketches of plans for the year and these indicate busy months ahead. Door awards were taken home by Esther Crowley, Wilma Conde and Betty Bainter.

Another National Secretaries meeting of interest was the first board meeting of the new club year conducted in the home of Marilyn Hart, 5331 Daggett St., Lakewood. President Marie announced committee selections of the year include Cal Holmes, social; Marilyn Hart, ways and means; Jo Maes Knoerr, membership; Phyllis Trepinski, scholarship; Madaline Ferguson, employment; Rosemary Garmong, scrapbook; Betty Mahoney, parliamentarian; Grace Oakley, achievement; Vervyl Sumrall, public relations; Wilma Conde "Channel Chat" (the club's monthly news sheet); and Elma Braid, publicity.

Hotel Greeters

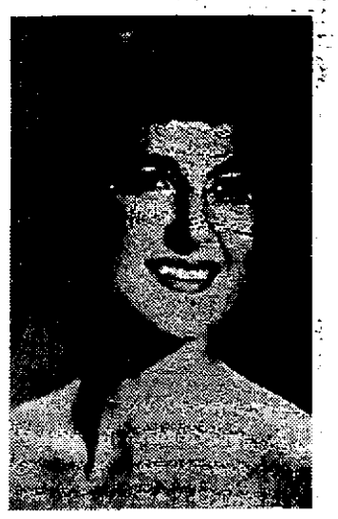

Forty members of the Hotel Greeters of America, Long Beach Division and Charter 65 came to order at the regular monthly meeting conducted in the Lafayette Hotel recently with Charter President John Reidy (Lafayette Assistant Manager) and Division President Mary English jointly presiding. It marked the first meeting of the new club year and, with reports in order, Yolande Booth and Dewey Herrington told of the national convention in Miami Beach, Fla., and a trip to Europe, respectively.

Another recent activity of local members was attendance by 22 of them at the Los Angeles Division No. 30 installation party in the California Room of the Statler Hotel.

Still with intercommunity spirit uppermost, Mr. and Mrs. William Welty and Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton Booth (Windsor Hotel) attended the quarterly dinner meeting of the Orange Charter and Division No. 60 at Glen Ivy Hot Springs during the same week. In all, it proved to be a "greater Greeter" week than any in some itme.

New officers of the local chapter among the women are Mary English, president; Beatrice Keating, (Brooklyn Arms Apt.-Hotel), first vice president; Bess Cook (Ambassador Hotel), second vice president; Delia Monroe (Dolly Varden Hotel), secretary-treasurer; Maudeen Fisher, sergeant-at-arms.

Lucinda Kalmbach is home from a buying trip to New York where, between rain and lightning storms, she reports she found exciting new styles to bring back for the coming seasons. Lucinda, a busy career woman herself, says business women will love the fall's new costume suits and dresses—that they will be versatile and wearable throughout long working hours and on into evenings of social importance.

Church Members Appreciate Tangible Ways to Serve

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

Case O-348: Dr Paul Hortin, aged about 46, is a famous clergyman in St. Petersburg, Florida.

Recently he developed a printed list of various needs in his church. It covered a host of items, such as Sunday school teachers, youth leaders and dozens of others.

One entry on his chart stated the need for somebody to look after the church shrubbery and the lawns. One day an elderly man came up to Dr. Hortin and said he would enjoy taking over the responsibility for the shrubbery and lawns.

"I don't have much money to contribute to this wonderful church," said this parishioner. "But I have worked with shrubbery, so I'd be delighted to look after the grounds."

Dr. Hortin gladly accepted his generous offer. "And that meant more than many folks might realize," Dr. Hortin added.

"For we had obtained estimates from local firms as to what it would cost us for them to handle our grounds and shrubbery.

"The lowest bid we had received had been $75 per month. So this parishioner thus made a contribution equalling $900 per year in cash. I was very happy to accept his offer in the interest of our church."

Frequently I have urged clergymen to prepare a "gift list" or itemized page of the various needs of their local church.

For there is a certain amount of fascination in running down such a list and picking out something that is within the ability or the pocketbook of the members.

Many of you readers are familiar with the restaurant menu cards on which you order breakfast according to a certain number.

Number 1, for instance, may involve orange juice, toast and coffee, with a price tag of possibly 50c.

Number 2, may include those same items, plus one egg, with a price of 75c.

Number 3, may include the orange juice, toast, coffee and two eggs, with a slice of bacon, for $1.00, etc.

The patron runs down the menu to find what fits both his hunger and his purse.

We need to adapt this "menu card" technique to our churches, for there is a vast reservoir of untapped talent, as well as money, available in every church, if we can stimulate people adequately.

People also take a greater interest in a church when they can participate in its activities. But parishioners prefer specific projects where they can actually see the definite results of their efforts.

A cash contribution to general church expenses is not as productive of ego inflation, as a specific gift of 100 song books for the young people's society, or a sandbox for the nursery school, or a TV set.

For when we make tangible and specific gifts, we can see them afterwards and feel good inside at the continuing help which they render to toddlers, teen-agers or even adults.

Besides, ideas are the father of deeds, so a definite "gift list" stimulates the thinking. And before income tax deadlines, many people may find they have an extra $5 or $50 or even $500 available.

"Where shall I give it so I can see it will do some good?" is a frequent query which I receive.

So prepare a "gift list" for your church. Then circulate it widely.

This feature appears daily in the Independent.

Her Story Has a Happy Ending

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

You receive so many letters from unhappy people, I thought maybe mine would be a change.

Three years ago I married a tough hardboiled police officer. I spent almost two horrible years with him. Then I became pregnant and he left me, saying he didn't think I was good enough to bear his children. Alone and very afraid I got a job caring for children to help me pay for my coming blessing. Then in my eighth month of pregnancy I met a wonderful guy. He took me to shows and for long rides to pass my time. Then after he'd known me only one month he spent seven and a half hours walking a hospital floor until my son was born.

We had to wait eleven months until my divorce was final and then we were married. My son calls him "Daddy" and loves him as much as I do. We have been married nine heavenly months and are expecting a second baby in late July.

My husband is the most wonderful man in the world, kind, thoughtful, loving, and always a good provider. I just wish all of the women who have unhappy first marriages could be blessed with the happiness and contentment that I have now. —A DEVOTED WIFE.

DEAR WIFE:

Well, what a happy ending to your story! I'm using your letter because I have so much mail from unhappy wives whose husbands have deserted them, that it always seems to me a good idea to hold up an example of a happy ending like yours. Only, I don't very often have the chance.—M. M.

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

I hope you are able to help me with the following situation.

My husband has a 7-year-old son by his former marriage. The child lives with his mother.

My husband and I kept company for two years prior to our marriage and were married this past December. Incidentally, my husband was divorced a couple of years before I met him. During the two years we went together we had his son in our company on several occasions. Since our marriage he has only been with us once, but in the future he will be with us more often.

He always enjoys himself when he is with us, in fact he never wants to go home, and he wants to know when we will have him again.

Our problem is what should he call me? Up to the present time he has never called me anything. His mother's first name and mine are the same but my husband doesn't like the idea of him calling me by my first name. Since he lives with his mother we do not know whether or not he should call me mother.

I am only 24 years old. Would that have any bearing on what he should call me?—MRS. M. T. P.

DEAR MRS. M. T. P.:

I know that a lot of people are deadly opposed to children calling adults by their first names. I'm not—especially where there is a camaraderie between adult and child. What would you think of letting the little fellow call you "Mary" or "Margaret," or whatever it might be?

If this idea appalls you—and I know it would a lot of people—then you might consider "Aunt Mary" or some such. Of course he might come out with a perfectly normal nickname that would solve everything if you give him time.—M. M.

Miss Universe Is Theme for Gala Breakfast Today

Members of the Southern California Council of Beta Sigma Phi International Sorority will be guests of the Long Beach City Council today at 10 a. m. at the Lakewood Country Club for their July breakfast meeting. Newly-installed Southern California Council president, Mrs. John L. Evans of Los Angeles, will conduct the business meeting. A special welcome will be extended to the mothers of members as honored guests of the sorority by Mrs. John Lundigan, vice president of the Southern California Council.

The timely "Miss Universe" theme will be carried out in the programs, name tags and party decor. A parade of miniature bathing beauties on floats will adorn the tables, and as special guests, several of the contestants in Long Beach's beauty pageant, including Miss Greece, Miss District of Columbia and Miss Universe of 1954, Miriam Stevenson, will lend to the interest and beauty of the affair.

Mrs. Lyle B. Walker, Long Beach, is serving as chairman of the affair, with the following Long Beach chapter chairmen assisting her: Mmes. Harold Mathews, reservations; Ralph Genese, Frank Patrick and Miss Joan Boelter, invitations; Miss Lucylle Kuecks and Mrs. Kenneth Schleismayer, programs; Mmes. A. W. Anderson, V. W. Baker and Harry Schildwachter, table decorations; Mrs. Ralph Gillbreath and Miss Helen DeJarnette, entertainment; Miss Lois Ward and Mrs. Donald Wysong, awards; Mrs. Dale Wagner, publicity; Mrs. Chenia Newberry, name tags, and Mrs. Floyd Seymour, favors.

Under the direction of Mrs. Ralph Gillbreath, Eta Tau Chapter of Long Beach will provide the musical entertainment, including a skit and dance numbers by members and several selections by the Tri-City Four of Westminster. Another highlight of the occasion will be the distribution of numerous exotic gifts from foreign nations throughout the world.

The Long Beach City Council of Beta Sigma Phi is composed of 14 chapters with over 400 active members. Its officers are Mrs. Ralph Gillbreath, president; Mrs. Marvin A. Mussell, vice president; Miss Lois Ward, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Harry Lee, recording secretary; Mrs. Dick Heneise, treasurer, and Mrs. Vic Baker Jr., past president. The philanthropic efforts of the Council have resulted in generous contributions of time and funds to the Sister Kenny Polio Hospital at El Monte and to the Cystic Fibrosis Research Fund of the Children's Hospital at Los Angeles.

Beta Sigma Phi is an international sorority, philanthropic, cultural and social in scope. It is now the largest Greek letter organization in the world since its inception in 1931 at Abeline, Kan., with only seven members. It now boasts a membership of over 150,000 members and more than 4,000 active chapters around the world.

Chef of the Week

Otto Beck's 'Con Carne' Es Muy Bueno, Senoras!

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
Independent, Press-Telegram Home Economics Editor

His enthusiasm is no bubble of fantasy—it wears well and endures from year to year, whether it pertains to his own business, a civic project or a sports event in which he participates. Fact is, Chef of the Week Otto J. Beck even got off to a special start—he held the record for many years of being the smallest baby born in Los Angeles County who lived.

As a child, Beck's parents moved to San Francisco — but they must have been psychic, for they returned to the Southland just prior to the San Francisco earthquake.

By the time our "chef" had reached the status of a Poly High freshman, he had graced the halls of three grammar schools. The old Pine Avenue School was condemned and torn down, so he moved over to the American Avenue house of learning. It burned down, so he proceeded eastward to the Atlantic Avenue School.

Following graduation from Poly, he spent the next 24 years in the automobile industry, during which time he extolled the merits of the Paige, Graham-Paige, the Jewett, Hudson-Essex, Terraplane, the Packard and finally the Cadillac. With a keen knowledge of automobiles and an aptitude for mechanics, Beck then opened his own repair shop at 4th and Alamitos.

At present he is the owner of three stores at Long Beach Blvd. and Carson — the Beck Furnaces, Television and Appliances.

The proud owner of a membership pin presented to him for outstanding service in the YMCA, Beck is a past president of the Native Sons of the Golden West and of the Uptown Optimist Club. He also holds a life membership in Optimist International. It was he who arranged the Native Sons Centennial Parade in 1947, and the Long Beach Equestrian Parade in 1950.

Secretary of the Long Beach Sports Boosters, Beck is a charter member of the El Bekal Shrine, is a Shrine Greeter, a member of Palos Verdes Lodge No. 389, California Knights Templar No. 40, and other well known Masonic bodies.

Interested in sports of all kinds, he played with the first basketball team organized by the Long Beach Recreation City League. He was with them for 25 consecutive years.

His memories of early Long Beach take him back to a chicken ranch atop Signal Hill, which he and his mother could have bought for $250. It later "housed" one of the most lucrative gushers ever brought in in these parts.

Our "chef" is allergic to paint or repair jobs at home — but when it comes to collecting, he still can produce theater programs dated 1910, his first sack of marbles, and newspaper clippings from the old Long Beach Press, vintage 1913. His recipe for Mexican Chili Con Carne looks well worn and a little threadbare, but here it is:

BECK'S MEXICAN CHILI CON CARNE

1 lb. beef cut in small pieces
¼ lb. beef suet, (ground fine) or 2 tbsp. lard
1 to 2 tbsp. chili powder.
¼ small garlic, minced
1 onion, minced.

Add water and boil until thoroughly cooked, but do not add chili powder until the meat is almost done.

The gravy from this Chili Con Carne is fine for macaroni, spaghetti and vegetables. If beans are wanted, use any good red bean, Bayos, Pinks, Pinto or Red Kidney bean. Boil beans separately and add beans to Chili Con Carne when serving.

Why Grow Old?

Men Judged by Their Wives

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

We wouldn't believe it except that we know it is true—how often folks nibble at the egos of those they are close to, how hectic they make their most important relationships because of sensitiveness, hidden or open resentments or lack of understanding.

Marriage is an extremely important relationship for most women, yet many of them seem to have a fatal attraction for doing just the opposite of what they should to make a happy marriage, and with the best intentions!

Nothing hits home so hard or so deeply undermines the foundation of individual ego as the feeling that one is not attractive, desirable or successful in the eyes of one's wife or husband.

So, many wives go along keeping a near perfect house, with three nutritious and attractive meals a day for 365 days a year. They fulfill their responsibilities as a mother with intelligence but cut their own throats as well as their husband's with a dreary, hectic, critical attitude.

For many years now big business has realized that it is wise to bet on a man whose wife builds him up rather than tears him down. When it comes to top notch executive positions some companies look the wife over very carefully before promoting the husband.

They do this because they know that she will have to be able to carry her weight in company relationships at top level, and also because they know that no man can give his best to his job when he has a wife who depresses him rather than encourages him, who is demanding, who adds emotional turmoil to his life.

While many women do not realize just how important a role they can play in their husband's attainment of success, more and more companies are becoming convinced that moral support from the wife for the man of the house is one of the key factors in the degree of success he is likely to achieve.

Our Children

Caution in Choice of Home

By ANGELO PATRI

Many young people are marrying this summer and are looking for the best place to establish their homes. This requires very careful thinking. So many elements enter into the choice. First the house must be priced within possibilities of paying for it. And well within possibilities.

Young people have little knowledge of those possibilities, so they should seek advice from disinterested people like their fathers and mothers, who know all about the maybes of life: illness, loss of jobs, the coming of babies and their costs, insurance, taxes and upkeep of the place. All these should be considered and to some degree be provided for, or against.

After settling the cost of the purchase, the next most important point is the kind of neighbors the new family will have. The more congenial the neighbors will be, the happier everybody will be—so the religion, the kind of work, the social habits, the standards of education of all concerned are weighty elements in the selection of the development.

Nothing can be more disquieting than discovering that one is not wanted in the neighborhood. To have to live among unfriendly people is to know misery. To live among one's own kind, among people who are sympathetic to one's feelings, standards and ambitions, is to have one big lift toward successful living.

Young people starting to rear a family should not try to live in a neighborhood of retired people. Nor should they try to settle in a group preponderantly of a religion different from their own. One hears a great deal about brotherhood, but practical living discloses that it is hard to come by — so a likeness of standards of all sorts is best for newly married people. They will have plenty to think about and the less they have to contend with the better.

The new generation soon will be along. With them come the problems of neighboring. If most of the families have little ones they form a bond of understanding. Mothers have sympathy with one another, are willing to help each other. When three-year-old Bobby trespasses on a neighbor's yard, there will be no battle in consequence, just a mutual understanding that children are children.

The Katkow Kibitzer enables this far-flung family to keep in touch

by ESTHER KATKOW BROTMAN

STACKED-UP volumes of bound Katkow Kibitzers serve as a rostrum for the author, flanked by seated parents. Other Katkows (l. to r.) are Minnie, Sallie, Albert, Herman, Ann, Lee.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

Our family newspaper, the Katkow Kibitzer, started out like many a youthful project which goes full steam for a while — until interest flags — and then quietly dies. Not so with the Kibitzer. After 18 years of publication, our little mimeographed hearthside weekly is still going strong!

On February 11, 1937, when the first issue went to press, my youngest sister, Minnie, then 21, and two younger brothers, Albert, 20, and Herman, 18, were still living in Baltimore with our parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Katkow. I and my four other sisters — Dorothy, Lee, Sallie and Ann — had moved to Washington, New York and Kansas City; and only Lee wasn't married with children of her own.

We Katkows had been more closely knit than most families — perhaps by virtue of economic necessity during the Depression, when Father, a tailor, could get only part-time work. So we individually began to feel as deeply saddened as our parents that the family circle was slowly drifting apart. Then the younger children came up with their idea for the Kibitzer.

Minnie assumed the position of editor, with Herman as assistant editor and Albert general rewrite man and "Poet Laureate" — he composed special verses for birthdays, anniversaries and other memorable occasions. They wrote the rest of us asking for contributions: personal anecdotes, accounts of family incidents, bright sayings of children, news of births and birthdays and original poems and photographs. The thrill of seeing one's own name and brain child in print uncovered a bonanza of unsuspected talent among us. And what started out as merely a news letter soon blossomed into a literary publication.

When Minnie became Mrs. Joseph Kaplan and moved into a home of her own, the Kibitzer evolved into a Kaplan project. It still is, with Joe running the mimeograph machine and their two children, Ellis, 12, and Hinda, 9, folding the two-to-six stenciled sheets, addressing envelopes and pasting on stamps. The Kaplans devote the whole of Thursday evening every week to getting out the Kibitzer.

The publication's current circulation is only 15 copies a week, but each issue is eagerly awaited by a total of 43 Katkow children and grandchildren, spread from Orlando, Fla., to Lexington, Mass., and from Monmouth, N. J., to Liberal, Kan. Subscriptions used to be free, but now each subscriber contributes $3 a year toward the cost of postage, stationery and greeting cards — which the editor sends out in behalf of "All the Katkow Kibitzers" on anniversaries, holidays, etc.

Even a War Correspondent

During the war, when my brothers were in service, the Kibitzer even boasted a foreign correspondent, for Albert frequently sent in dispatches with French and Italian datelines. Herman didn't get out of the country, but he kept us posted on his activities at various U. S. air bases and installations.

Some years ago, it was decided to bind past issues of the Kibitzer in covers containing three years each. Today, as a result, there is a stack of fat volumes through which older family members can bemusedly browse, and in which their offspring can look up accounts of their births and early adventures.

Our family has been, by the grace of God, extremely fortunate in experiencing a minimum of sadness over the years. On the few occasions of tragedy, a one-page Kibitzer has been sent out, containing the news; and usual items were postponed, out of respect, until the next issue.

The last time we Katkows were all together was in 1951 when, for the first time in 20 years, we gathered in Baltimore to celebrate our parents' 50th wedding anniversary. Wishing that we could see more of one another and realizing that that is practically impossible, we feel fortunate in sharing our little paper — an ever-fresh bond in common, which keeps us continually in one another's thoughts and hearts through the passing years. ■

"BOY" TO BOY

● At left, Detroit Tiger manager Bucky Harris places a paternal arm around the shoulder of Al Kaline, slugging young right-fielder who is the major league's new "boy wonder." Harris, of course, knows a "boy wonder" when he sees one — he was the original, the title being handed to him when he managed the Washington Senators and Detroit Tigers in the '20s and '30s at a tender age. Now back in the Motor City, Bucky has a young team sparked by Kaline. For more on this newest boy wonder, see page 12.

Everybody's going on a picnic!

...and Cut-Rite goes along to keep everything fresh

Save work! Pack up all the sandwich fixings in Cut-Rite—cheese, cold cuts, buttered buns . . . and let folks "make their own" right at the picnic. Cut-Rite's waxed-through to keep everything deliciously fresh.

A good trick to keep sandwiches from getting soggy is to wrap tomatoes and lettuce separately, put them in just before you eat. Do your slicing and sandwich making on extra-heavy Cut-Rite to save washing up.

Cooking out? Shape hamburger patties ahead of time and put in ice cube trays—separate them with waxed-through Cut-Rite. Freeze the hamburgers . . . you can even take them along to the picnic right in the trays.

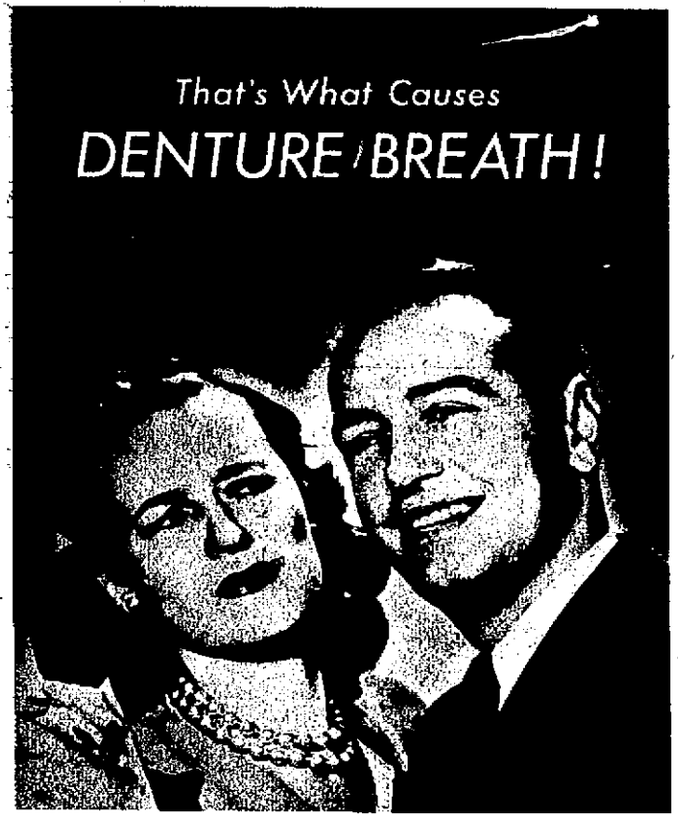

Keep them crisp, keep them moist! Wrap celery, radishes, deviled eggs, in Cut-Rite. Cut-Rite doesn't split or break even when you twist it. And its famous cutting edge tears easily, neatly.

Extra heavy...waxed clear through...a real economy!

Outboards, built for summer fun, get jolting safety tests

WINTER HAVEN, FLA.

Every summer, more and more Americans find their fun sailing or cruising. This year, some 20 million are at it — with more to come.

Two reasons why are the sassy models shown in these photos and on today's cover. They were built by Bob Switzer, of Crystal Lake, Ill., who has been building and racing boats since he was 15. Now 23, he turns out one Switzercraft every three hours at the Switzer family factory.

Photos taken on Lake Eloise here show the craft undergoing one of their toughest "road tests" — cutting across the wake of another boat at 35 mph. Safety-designed on aerodynamic principles, the boats leaped out of the water but didn't capsize.

But Bob warns boat owners: DON'T ever try this. It's for testing only. "The sensation," he says, "is like sitting on a chair that isn't there." ■

"Window test" proves blue Cheer washes so white you can see the difference!

because only Cheer has the Blue-Magic whitener!

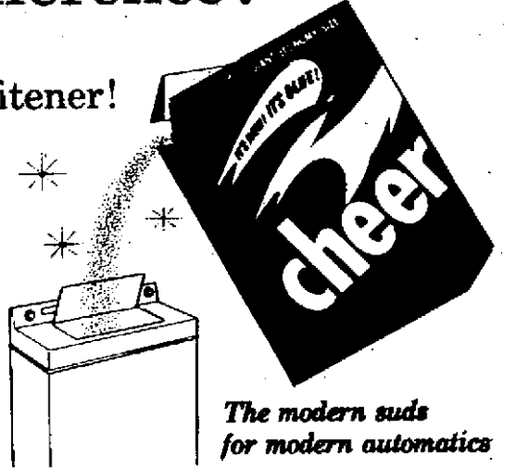

Cheer's Blue-Magic whitener is not just a bluing . . . it's more than a bluing . . . it's a new, better whitener for all your wash.

One look tells you . . . blue Cheer brings a new whiteness to your wash. And this simple yet dramatic "window test" proves it.

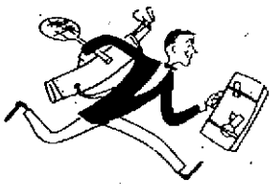

Just take some Cheer-washed clothes to your window. In that revealing light (or even on a gray day), you'll see a startling new whiteness in all your wash. And on hardest-to-whiten things like nylon, you'll see a real difference in whiteness never possible before Cheer.

What's more, blue Cheer washes dirtiest work and play clothes crisply clean, adds new brightness to colored washables, too. And you really know Cheer's in a class by itself when you see the difference in whiteness Cheer gives you.

TRY CHEER in your automatic washer. Remember that blue Cheer has the active, hard-working kind of suds recommended by leading makers of automatics and preferred by 8 out of 10 women who own agitator automatics.

Are We Losing Japan?

A Congressman asks a startling question — and gives some grim answers

RED-LED RIOTS, like this one in Tokyo, indicate strength of Communists in Japan.

by REP. THOMAS J. DODD

CONNECTICUT CONGRESSMAN;
MEMBER, HOUSE COMMITTEE ON COMMUNIST AGGRESSION

The U.S. is in real trouble in Japan. The onetime enemy we had counted upon as the chief bulwark of freedom in the Far East is drifting farther and farther from the free-world camp, closer and closer to the Communists and the neutralists. This was apparent in the recent Japanese election, when an assortment of left-wing, Communist-directed parties picked up enough seats to defeat our hope of Japanese rearmament. Now we are confronted with a rising tide of anti-Americanism, plus Russian-Japanese conferences that may drive a deeper wedge between the two nations.

Shocking things have been going on in Japan since World War II ended — things that have been kept from the American people by military government and censorship. As a result, our position on the critical Asian front is in jeopardy.

On the basis of personal conversations with informed Government officials abroad, testimony before Congressional committees and statements of Japanese, here are the facts as I see them:

- Japan could be completely paralyzed within 24 hours by a Kremlin-called general strike.
- Of 5,000,000 organized workers, 3,500,000 are under the control of Communist-dominated unions. They are all in key industries and are directed by Moscow-trained experts.
- Communist influence in education ranges from nearly 100 per cent control of elementary-school teachers to 10 per cent of the university graduates.
- Japanese Diet (parliament) members who have been wooed and won on visits to Red China would take a neutral or anti-American stand in a crisis.
- Japanese prisoners of war held for years by the Reds were given super-Communist training and are one of the best-trained Party cadres in the world.

All these Communist gains were scored while our Army of Occupation controlled Japan. How? Responsible members of government say the infiltration began when we permitted Russians aboard the U.S.S. Missouri for the signing of the Japanese surrender. That was the signal for Kremlin-directed agents to move in. They have made their biggest strides in the fields of labor, education and propaganda.

Under the noses of Gen. Douglas MacArthur and his staff, the Reds wormed into the labor unions on the pretext of broadening the base. This "broadening" process has now reached the point where 70 per cent of organized labor is Communist-dominated. Only the farmers have resisted, and even with them the Reds have made headway. Their left wing "Japan Farmers' Union"—partly through confusion with the conservative "Old Japan Farmers' Union"—now has almost half a million members and rivals the older union in numbers.

The most tightly controlled Red union is the Japanese Teachers Union. Its devoted members, with practically complete control of the schools, drum into children the lessons of the party line: Japan wants peace—but the U.S. is an enemy of peace and the Chinese Nationalists have "sold out" to the enemies of peace.

The teachers further use their positions to electioneer, instructing children to urge their parents to vote for left-wing, pro-Communist candidates. This tactic helped the Reds gain strength in the recent Diet elections.

In the propaganda field, more than 20 of Japan's most popular and widely read publications are sponsored, published, owned or controlled by Communists. Thus, the two primary sources of education — schools and the press — are under Kremlin control.

Can we halt Japan's leftward drift, or even reverse it? What is the best the U.S. can hope for in Japan?

We can control the Red threat only by meeting it where it began—on the local level. Our propaganda program in Japan—and throughout the Far East—should be improved and increased. Truth is our strongest weapon. We should present it so that the teeming millions of Asia can understand it.

There is a vague hope that the recent upheavals in Moscow may reflect themselves in a struggle for control of the Japanese Reds. But that is wishful thinking. We need a positive, vigorous program that will help bring about economic recovery in Japan with resulting financial and political stability. Something must be done right now to take up the slack in heavy industry created by the recent election loss of the rearmament program.

A Japanese Marshall Plan?

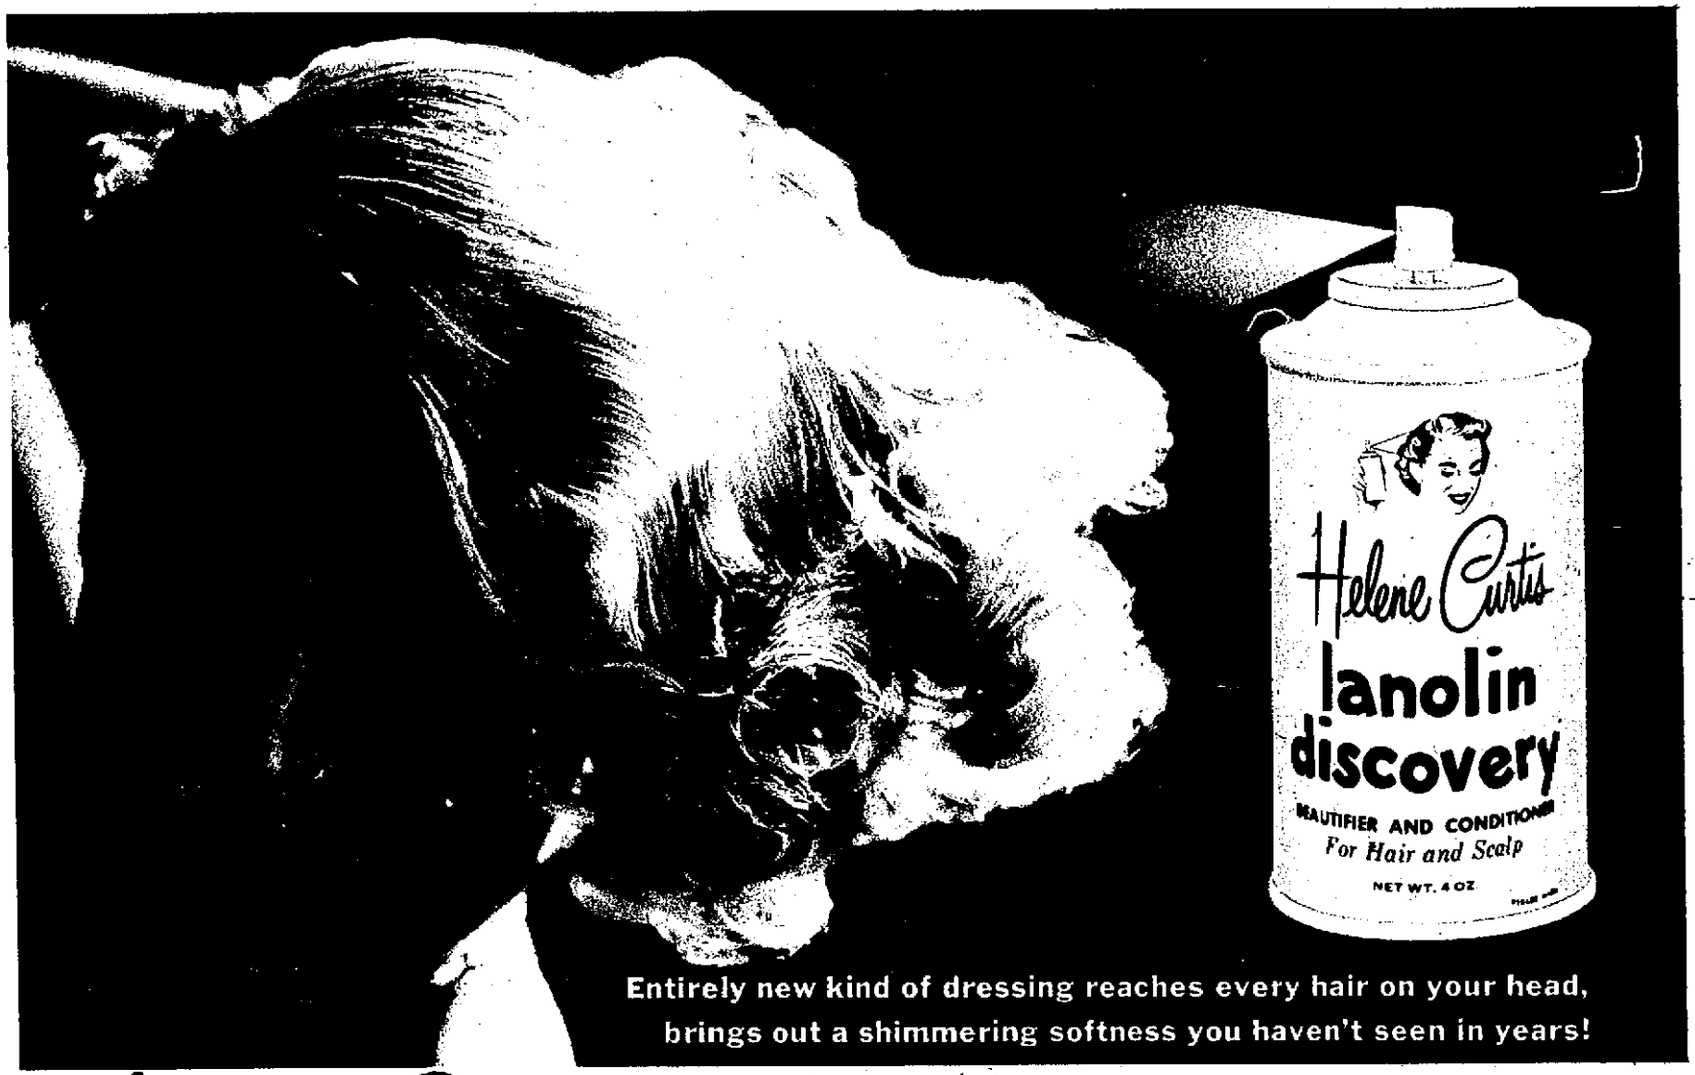

If the Marshall Plan could meet and defeat Communism in Western Europe, a similar plan can do it in Japan. We must start thinking and working now toward the day when Japan will be able to take her place in the South East Asia Treaty Organization.

Another weapon in our battle for Japan is the tariff. Recently, Congress gave President Eisenhower the power to lower tariffs over the next three years. Perhaps, in the great need to rehabilitate Japanese economy and trade, he will find that special measures must be taken to defeat Communist expansion there.

And the turbulent political situation in Indo-China also affects Japan, for that country long has been Japan's breadbasket. Now that half of Indo-China has gone to the Communists and the other half is menaced, the problem of Japanese Communism is tightly tied to the problem of Communism in Indo-China. The fall of Southern Vietnam to the Reds might nullify all the progress made in Japan since the war.

I believe that we have the ability, the courage and the know-how to save Japan from being neutralized or, worse yet, turned against us. But time is running out. While we mark time, Communist propaganda goes unchecked and the Red octopus spreads its tentacles ever farther into the economic and social life of Japan. ■

JONESBORO, TENN. Tapering down from Guy Lester, 21, to Ivan Huston, 3 months, the long blue line of overalled boys at left represents the chief crop raised on Emory Harrison's farm here: sons. Harrison's 13 boys are believed to make up the biggest all-male family in the U.S. (Science has no explanation for the predominance of one sex in a family; the odds against 13 successive boys or girls are about 100,000 to 1.)

And boys by the baker's dozen mean problems in proportion. One sample: Mrs. Harrison, who does all the baking, uses 50 pounds of flour a week. Yet, surprisingly, the family spends only $12 to $15 a week for food. Their 70 acres of mountain farmland 100 miles northeast of Knoxville keep them provided with vegetables, wheat, potatoes, corn, meat. The only cash crop is tobacco, which brings in $500 to $1,000 a year. Harrison stretches this income by making butcher knives and footstools. He also is a local county constable.

Life is not easy for the Harrison boys. Besides fetching wood and water, each must raise and care for his own animal. When their father developed a heart condition, a few years ago, several of the older boys gave up their schooling to operate the farm. In spite of hard work, all are healthy; Harrison boasts that he has spent less than $50 on medical bills in 22 years of married life.

To make things easier on the boys, Harrison tries to teach as many skills as possible; several of them, for instance, are excellent cooks. They also are exposed to Harrison's homespun philosophy. "A good run," he may tell the boys, "is better than a bad stand." A lesson all must learn is to help one another, and the older boys keep a watchful eye on the younger ones. Despite her staggering cooking, washing and cleaning chores, Mrs. Harrison finds time to help her neighbors. Recently this paid off for the Harrisons; when their home burned, the congregations of 12 churches chipped in to buy and build them a new and more modern home.

Harrison would like to see more of his sons, particularly the younger ones, get more formal education. One boy was an excellent self-taught pianist, but the family couldn't afford training. His piano was destroyed in the fire, hasn't been replaced. And the father would like to take some of the drudgery out of the place by installing a pump from the farm spring. But he sees nothing remarkable about his family. "Why, my grandfather had 27 children," Harrison says. "He had it a lot tougher than this."

DETROIT'S DARLING

Tiger fans love Al Kaline, a young outfielder who suddenly grew muscles

by LYALL SMITH
SPORTS EDITOR, "THE DETROIT FREE PRESS"

DETROIT.

It has never happened before, say ticket sellers at Briggs Stadium here. Finicky fans, they swear, want seats far out in right field for Tiger games. "This season," says one, "we're getting more requests for them than we are for seats back of home plate."

The reason is a lean, 20-year-old rightfielder named Al Kaline. To Tiger fans, the impact of this young athlete from Maryland on the world of baseball seems to be stirring up almost as much excitement as the recent Guaranteed Annual Wage negotiations did in local auto-making.

Tiger fans have reason to be excited. This year it took American League pitchers 26 games to cool down Kaline's bat to where he was only hitting an even .400. And even after they managed to hold him below that figure, his sensational fielding and throwing kept enemy batters mumbling to themselves.

"The kid murders you with his speed and arm," growls the Yankees' Casey Stengel. "Used to be I could tell if a line drive would be a hit, but now I'm jumping out of the dugout every time a ball goes to right. He's made some catches I still don't believe. He'll hit you too. I sorta hate to think what'll happen when he grows up."

Kaline has a lot of growing up to do yet. Just two years ago he graduated from high school in Baltimore, receiving a $30,000 bonus for signing with the Tigers. Under baseball law, all bonus players must be kept for two years, but Detroit has never shed a tear about having to keep Kaline. He finished out the 1953 season as a bench-warmer, but came back in '54 to capture the right-field job. He hit .274, startled experts with his fielding grace (astonishing since he had never played a day in the minor leagues).

At the end of the 1954 season, the 6' 1" Kaline scaled 153. He came back this year — well fed by a loving bride — at 175. And that made the difference in his hitting. He equaled his homer production for the entire '54 season (4) in the first 10 days, doubled it 20 days later. On April 17 he smacked three in one game and two in one inning — only the fourth player in A.L. history to turn that trick.

Detroit, long a baseball-crazy city but much calmer in recent years because of tepid teams, went wild over young, shy Al. When the Detroit Free Press tossed out a three-paragraph request for a suitable nickname for the kid, the response was a mailman's nightmare. Hundreds and hundreds of letters poured in. An example of the fans' fervor came from one amateur poet:

". . . He flavors every game he plays, no nickname is so fine
As Salt, for everybody knows that Salt means Al-Kaline."

All this adulation has done nothing to the size of Kaline's cap. He's still modest, talkative as a piece of granite. But from a word here and there, his early life takes shape. He started playing ball at Westport Grammar School in Baltimore, plucked off his first headline when he won a contest by throwing a baseball 173½ feet.

Then came a long string of headlines. In high school he racked up averages of .333, .418, .469 and .488 to become the first player since Charley Keller to make four Maryland All-State teams.

Bums' Rush

Al was only 5'7" and weighed 115 pounds as a freshman. His .333 average, however, got him an invitation to a Brooklyn Dodger tryout camp. "They took one look at me," says Kaline, "and sent me away. Said I was too small."

But his Baltimore friends had no doubts about Al. They once made bets — not on whether Al would play in the majors but on which team would grab him first.

The Tigers cast a speculative eye on Al when he hit a homer in a game of high-school all-stars in New York. Watching was Charley Gehringer, a long-time Tiger second-base star and now a front-office executive. He came back raving about the kid from Baltimore, assigned scout Al Katalinas to watch him further. Katalinas flashed back glowing, sometimes near-hysterical, reports. Example: "The boy stood out [in the game] like a cat's eyes in a dark room."

Other times, however, Katalinas was more cautious — but still optimistic: "Not much power yet, but he is still young and growing. He has small wrists, a small neck, but his speed always will make up for any lack of power . . . even if he doesn't develop into a long-ball hitter, which he could when he adds a few more pounds."

Katalinas all but moved into the Kaline home, regularly visiting Al's father (who works in a Baltimore broom factory). On Kaline's graduation day, scouts from every big-league club were on hand, but in Katalinas' hand was a check for $30,000 and Kaline became a Tiger.

"I needed that money," says Kaline. "My folks knew that I had always dreamed about being a big-league ball player and though they never had much money, they wouldn't let me get a job while I was going to high school. They knew I wanted to play ball all I could. When I signed, I really didn't want to be a bonus player—you usually sit on a bench for two years—but I figured my folks deserved the money. And they got it."

Tip from the Top

The lure of the majors, strong though it was in the 18-year-old Kaline, wasn't too strong to make him forget his friends. He refused to sign his Detroit contract for 10 days so he could play for his sandlot team in a tournament.

He reported to the Tigers on June 24, 1953. Fred Hutchinson, then the Tiger manager, sent him to bat 28 times that season; Al picked up seven hits, including his first big-league homer (off Cleveland's Dave Hoskins).

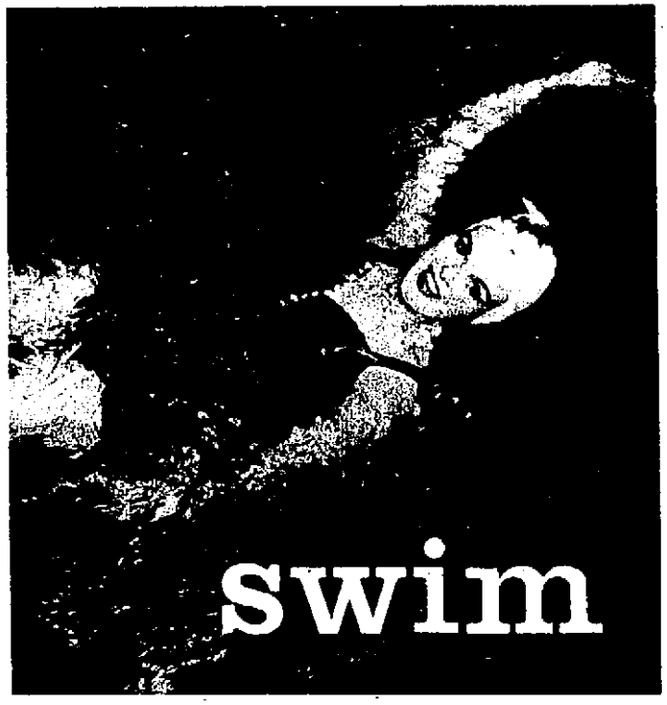

Hutchinson was high on the boy. Late in the season he asked his good friend, slugger Ted Williams of the Red Sox, to give Al some advice. Williams took one look at the willowy Kaline and suggested:

"Do what I do during the winter. Get a heavy bat, twice as heavy as the standard 34-ounce ones. Swing that maybe a half hour a day all winter. And carry a baseball around with you and try to squeeze the stuffings out of it."

That winter Kaline got a job as a clerk in a Baltimore sporting-goods store, swung the bat and squeezed the ball with gusto every chance he got. He claims now that it helped develop his hands, wrists and swing. He did the same thing last winter, when he also took himself a bride — pretty Louise Hamilton, his high-school sweetheart. Her cooking — in all or in part — pushed skinny Al to a hard-hitting 175.

Growing with Al is baseball fever in Detroit. Attendance in 1953, the year he joined the Tigers, was a poor 884,000. It jumped to 1,079,000 last year. This year the young, speedy club — spearheaded by Kaline and slugging shortstop Harvey Kuenn — is making threatening swipes at the pennant, and attendance may hit 1,200,000.

And most of them, to the despair of the ticket sellers, will want seats that give a good close look at the amazing Mr. Kaline. ■

. . . any time of the month

Dive right in. Splash around to your heart's content. You can go swimming—even on "those days"—when you're wearing Tampax.

Remember!—Tampax was invented by a doctor! He realized that if "time-of-the-month" was handled by internal absorption, women could indulge in normal activities without any of the chafing, irritation and other discomforts associated with external pads. So far as swimming is concerned, Tampax is not only invisible when properly inserted . . . it doesn't absorb any water! Users even wear Tampax in their bathtubs with complete security and comfort.

However, if you spend the Summer in a hammock, Tampax would still be a blessing. It prevents odor from forming by preventing exposure to the air. It's easy to dispose of, even with the unruly plumbing that sometimes exists at vacation resorts. (Both the Tampax and the applicator flush away.) And it's by far the daintiest kind of protection . . . why, your hands needn't even touch the Tampax during insertion or removal.

Make this the Summer you'll enjoy from first to last. Get your supply of Tampax at any drug or notion counter. Choice of 3 absorbencies: Regular, Super, Junior. Month's supply goes into purse; economy size gives more than an average Summer's supply. Tampax Incorporated, Palmer, Mass.

EMPTY PODIUM fails to halt Symphony of the Air in rehearsal (above) or concert.

The orchestra that refused to DIE

by DAN PAONESSA

On the evening of October 27, 1954, an orchestra of 92 musicians began tuning up in routine fashion before a jam-packed audience in New York City's famed Carnegie Hall. But this was not a routine concert. In fact, it was a unique performance: the conductor's podium was empty; the orchestra would perform without a leader.

To begin the concert, the first violinist merely nodded his head. At this almost imperceptible signal the orchestra broke into the opening bars of the Roman Carnival Overture with breath-taking precision. And thus the concert continued — in stunning brilliance. At its close the audience rose in mass tribute. Next day Olin Downes, the venerated music critic of the New York Times, typified the unanimous praise of reviewers when he called the performance "a miracle of instrumentation."

As heartwarming as any of the reviews, however, was the experience of one of the musicians as he left Carnegie Hall. "How did we sound?" he asked the doorman.

"You were magnificent!" the doorman beamed. "Why, I felt that Toscanini was still there."

The Maestro's Creation

For this orchestra that performed without a conductor was the former NBC Symphony, which, under the relentless, perfectionist direction of Arturo Toscanini, had been unequaled anywhere in the world in its virtuosity. Since its beginning 17 years before, a generation of young Americans had grown up listening to its Sunday-afternoon broadcasts. Short-wave programs and tours through North and South America had spread its fame until it had become almost a personal possession to millions of listeners. It was one of America's greatest cultural institutions.

Then in April, 1954 Toscanini decided to retire. He was 87, and wanted to spend more time in his beloved Italy. The National Broadcasting Company decided to disband the orchestra. Without the maestro it was felt that the magic of its performance would be gone.

Soon the musicians drifted apart. One man, a violinist, retired. Another got a job selling shoes. A percussionist went to work at a filling station. Some, of course, got other orchestra jobs. But years of hard work and devotion to a single ideal seemed to have been wiped out. It was as if this superb orchestra had never existed.

Some weeks later one of the bass players, Michael Krasnopolsky, took out Toscanini's last Christmas present to his men—his recordings of Beethoven's nine symphonies.

"As I listened that lonely night," Krasnopolsky recalls, "the quality of the music was so great and fine that I suddenly knew that our orchestra simply could not be permitted to die."

So, one night, a group of the older members gathered in Krasnopolsky's basement to talk things over. After hours of fruitless discussion they decided that if all the musicians got together they could perhaps find some way of keeping this orchestra alive. A formal meeting was called for two weeks later, June 17, for all 92 men. And that night they voted their orchestra back into existence. Don Gillis, former producer of the NBC Symphony and a noted composer, was voted in as chairman of what was vaguely called the "steering committee."

"Half the time I didn't know where I was steering," the young composer says.

The steering committee, consisting of six members, several of them jobless, began meeting daily to scheme up ways of raising money. They wrote letters to major industries, seeking sponsors. They made appointments with radio and television executives, and officials of recording companies.

Meanwhile, they debated possible names for the orchestra; they couldn't be just "the former NBC Symphony." Then someone—no one remembers who—pointed out that the orchestra was a child of radio, that its broadcasts had been heard over the air by some 10 million Americans. What better name could there be, then, than "Symphony of the Air"?

Now they had a name, but they were a long way from having an orchestra.

"If we hadn't been so serious, it would have been fantastic," Gillis says, grinning. "We didn't know from one day to the next if we could even raise enough dimes for phone calls."

Faith Pays Off

What happened next was almost miraculous. Word had apparently spread as to what the orchestra members were attempting, and letters and contributions began to trickle in. Newspapers played up the story of the orchestra that refused to die. As the weeks went by the trickle became a flood.

Soon dimes and dollars were pouring in from all over the country, and from places as far off as Venezuela, Greece, Egypt, Formosa, Germany, England. On September 1, a little more than four months after the NBC Symphony was declared dead, the newborn Symphony of the Air took its first firm step: it leased an office in Carnegie Hall for $1,500 a year.

In gratitude to their well-wishers all over the world, the men gathered one midnight at Carnegie Hall and made three recordings: the Roman Carnival Overture, Tschaikowsky's Nutcracker Suite and the last work which the maestro had conducted — the overture to Wagner's Die Meistersinger. This record album—"a gift to the giver"—was made for those whose contributions had kept the orchestra alive. A collector's item, it is still being given for donations of $10 or more to Room 1101, Carnegie Hall, New York City.

It was time now for the cold plunge—a concert debut. Arrangements were made for obtaining Carnegie Hall for October 27. Rehearsals were scheduled. But one problem remained: Who would conduct? Suddenly, Michael Krasnopolsky had an inspiration. "Why have a conductor at all?" he asked. "In what better way could we prove that we aren't just another orchestra than by playing before an empty podium?"

The question horrified the members. For nearly 100 musicians to plunge into a major musical work without a leader would be as hazardous as taking a ship to sea without a captain. The split-second mistake of only one man, the failure to hold a certain tempo, could throw the performance into chaos.

But for 17 years Toscanini had hammered

these men into a single, integrated instrument of rare beauty. "Toscanini had given us a way of thinking that was unique," says Concert-master Daniel Guilet. "He didn't interpret the music, but taught us to play a piece 'the way the composer intended it to be played.' "

The men set to work and rehearsed day and night, sometimes until three or four in the morning. Together, the whole group decided on the pieces to be played. Together they laid out the scores and discussed every problem of tempo, balance, dynamics.

In the beginning much of the burden fell upon first-violinist Guilet who, as concert-master, had to guide each section through the technically troublesome spots. But as rehearsals went on, every man made an effort to anticipate all possible difficulties.

"With the baton of a conductor to lead him, a musician is concerned merely with knowing his own part," says Guilet. "Now that we were without a leader, all of us had to know every part. We had to listen carefully to the phrasing and tempo of the whole orchestra, in order not to get lost."

The group borrowed money to pay for advertisements. They had tickets printed and sent out.

On the evening of October 27 many people went to Carnegie Hall out of sympathy —and many out of curiosity. They felt that a conductorless concert would be at best a brave stunt. They applauded politely as the musicians filed in and sat before the empty podium.

An Orchestra Is Reborn

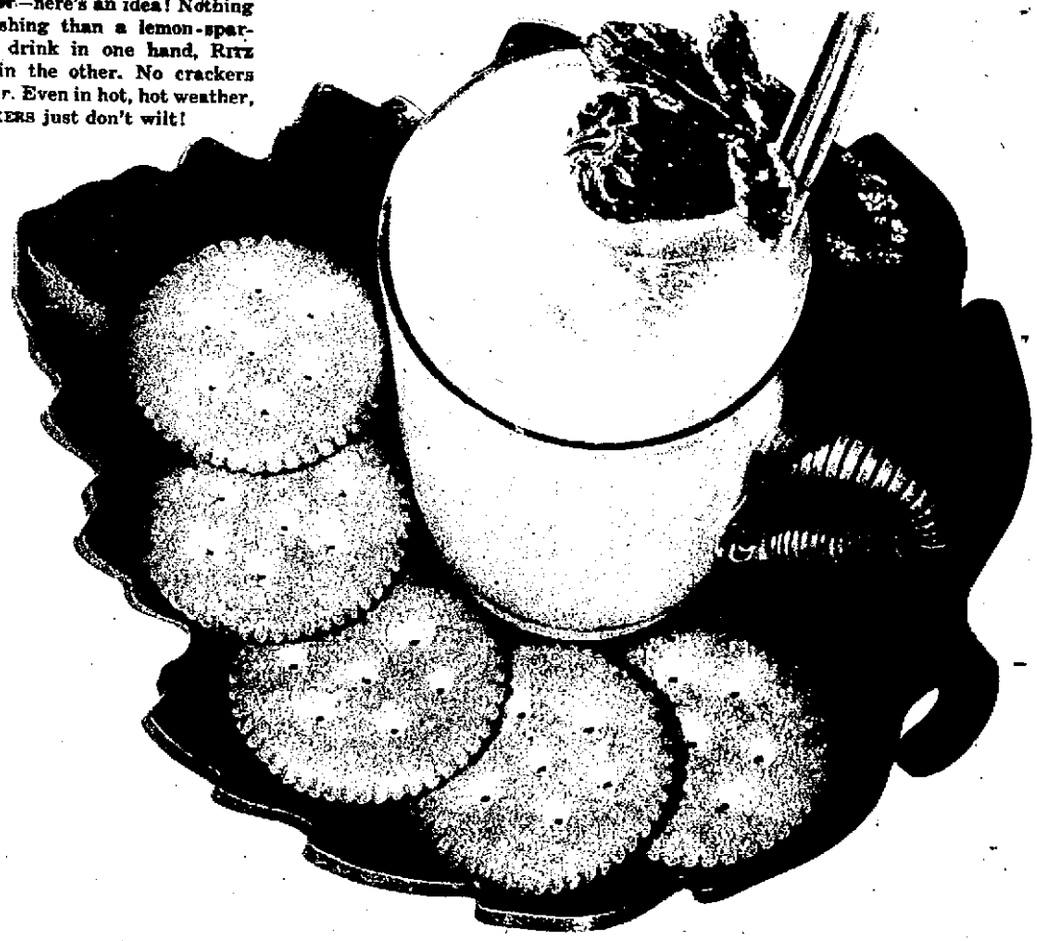

Now a stillness settled over the packed Hall as the musicians, their faces drawn and tense, fixed their eyes on the concert-master. Guilet, his violin poised, gave a slight nod —and the tribute to the beloved maestro began.

As the men played, they began to relax and the guiding genius of Toscanini once again seemed at hand. What the skeptical audience heard was the rebirth of a great orchestra, an overpowering concert of defiance by 92 men who had refused to quit. Critics called the performance "one of the most exciting events in New York's musical history."

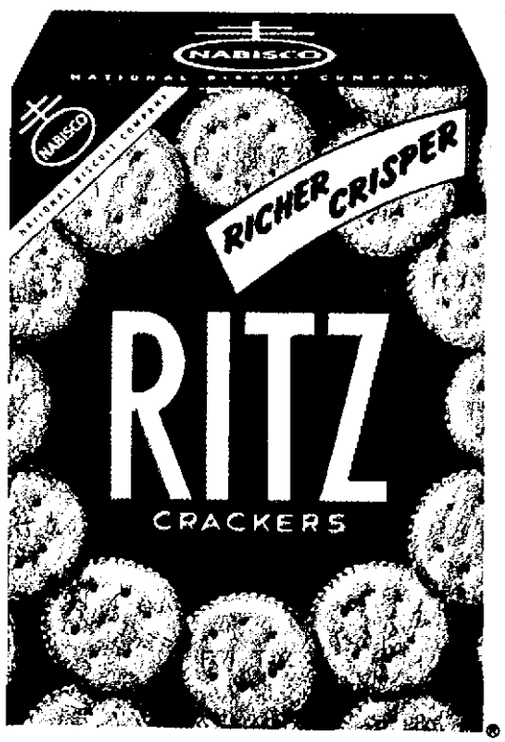

While the future of the Symphony of the Air is still unknown, the men face it with confidence and determination. Donations, ranging from dimes to a $5,000 gift from David Sarnoff (chairman of the board of the Radio Corporation of America, NBC's parent organization), have provided more than $50,000, and they have contracted for $500,000 worth of employment. Moreover, the world's finest artists have joined in the battle by working with the orchestra.

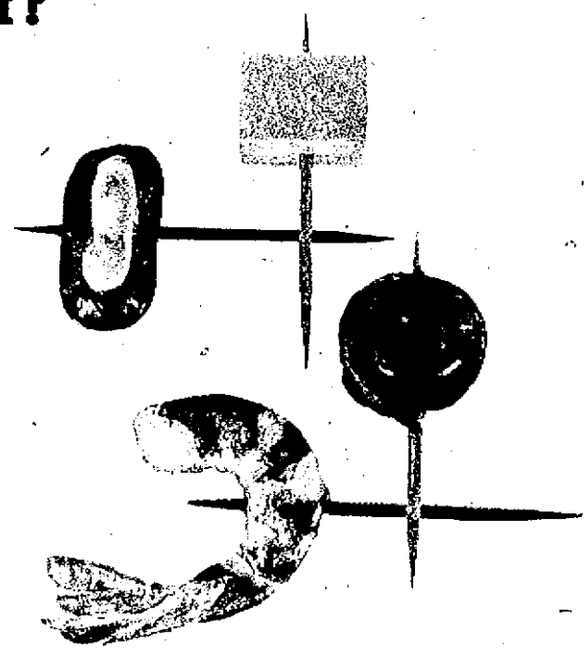

But the musicians are proudest of the fact that this year the Symphony of the Air was selected by the International Exchange Program of the American National Theater and Academy to represent America in a two-month tour of Asia — the first time a major orchestra has toured the Orient. The tour was a resounding success. And the participants feel it was the final recognition that Toscanini's orchestra will live on. ■

What is middle age?

A Chicago scientist asks—and provides surprising answers to—a question about the least understood period in our lives

PROF. SLOTKIN divides adult life into the five main "ages" listed on the board above.

CHICAGO.

Is there a "middle age"?

When do we reach it? At 35? 40? 45?

Is it the same age for everybody?

What is the "middle-aged feeling" like?

How do most people react to it?

New light may be thrown on the least understood period in life through a special study by James Slotkin, Associate Professor of Social Science at the University of Chicago here.

"Middle-aged" (42) himself, he recently began asking people the questions above — and found that, with the exception of popular descriptions and scientific papers on "middle age problems," there is little known about the period itself.

Borrowing methods he had used as an anthropologist to study the Menominee Indians of Wisconsin, Slotkin tackled the basic idea of defining middle age. His conclusion: except in terms of life span, there probably is no such thing.

Since Shakespeare's time, most people have divided man's social life cycle (in most societies) into seven "ages": birth, infancy, childhood, adolescence, marriage, parenthood and old age. Middle age, as such, is missing.

Turning for a clue to the Menominee Indians, Slotkin noted that they have no such thing as a "middle age problem." This traces to one fact: among the Menominees, the lifetime goal is growing old and having grandchildren.

Our Own 'Carrot'

"Every society," Slotkin points out, "has some sort of carrot to dangle before you as a lifetime goal. This is 'normal.' Psychopaths don't have a lifetime goal. Among the Menominees, you don't get the carrot until you are an old person. In our society, you can get the carrot when you are still middle-aged in point of years. Finally, it struck me that that is the key to helping us define what we mean by 'middle-aged.' Actually, what we have to do is examine ourselves in terms of striving for our goals, rather than in chronological age."

Slotkin found a yardstick in studies made in the 1930s by Viennese psychologists, who divided adult striving into five stages. As revised by him to fit competitive American society, they are:

1) The exploratory stage—between the ages of about 15 and 27, when we've finished school and are trying to decide on our lifetime goal.

2) Selective maturity — between about 28 and 42, when we decide on our goal and put all our efforts into trying to achieve it.

3) The testing stage — beginning at about 43, when we start to reflect on our lives to determine whether we have achieved our goal, and to wonder if things have turned out as we had planned.

4) The indulgent stage — beginning at about 48, when we try to concentrate on getting the maximum satisfaction and gratification out of the "prime" of life.

5) Completion — from about 65, when we look back on life, begin to live in the past and usually stop seeking a further goal.

Interviewing many "middle-aged" people in the 42-and-up brackets, Slotkin tried to fit their lives into the proper categories. He found some discrepancies. Many Americans (baseball players and movie stars, for instance) hit their peak years at an age when most people are still trying to find their goals in life. By "middle age," they are already past their prime. Others (doctors, lawyers, professors) may be just getting started when the baseball players are facing retirement and often keep going when athletes and entertainers are forgotten. Still others (artists, the self-employed) have no timetables but themselves.

Because Stage 3 has commonly been associated with middle age through books like Walter Pitkin's Life Begins at 40, Slotkin examined it minutely. "For most people," he maintains, middle age is a role. You can look at it chronologically, but what middle age means in our society is not your chronological age, but rather the time you begin thinking in terms of ending your occupational career. You have worked like a dog in the second, or selective, stage. Now you begin to think, 'Am I getting what I was looking for? Is this what I wanted?' "

To one degree or another, the individual starts evaluating his life. Broadly speaking, he will find himself falling into four categories: successful, partly successful, failure, or undecided.

"I want to stress that it's not only the objective factors that count but the subjective as well," says Slotkin. "A person who is considered successful by every standard of our society may decide that the whole thing isn't worthwhile, that the game isn't worth the candle. Or, on the other hand, he may decide that he is sitting on top of the world."

Success and Failure

According to Slotkin, only about 5 per cent of us feel that we are outright successes or failures. The rest are unable to decide.

Among the 5 per cent, only a small number are right, judged objectively. Some years ago, a top baseball player committed suicide. He was batting over .300 but, in his own mind, he was a "failure."

How do most people react? Failures, claims Slotkin, are of two main types: those who acknowledge failures and those who take a grandiose attitude towards their failure to reach the goal. "Few people," he says, "have the guts to acknowledge failure. They try to escape and 'adjust' one way or the other. It is a lot more comfortable to look for another 'life goal' — in effect, to revert back to the exploratory and selective stages of earlier life." In competitive American society, this isn't easy.

The grandiose failure, typified by a mediocre painter Slotkin interviewed, becomes embittered, has a grudge against the world — and keeps it for the rest of his life. He never develops either the courage or the ability to really examine himself. He grows older spitefully.

The successful and the partly successful make up the rest of the 5 per cent. "The successful," says Slotkin, "fall into two types: the satisfied and the dissatisfied. The satisfied success is the individual who believes that he has achieved his original goals, and that these goals are gratifying. He has gotten what he wants. It fits him to a 'T' and he enjoys it." He has no "middle age problem."

The dissatisfied success can be as puzzled as the failures. "He is the poor devil who reaches the top and finds that all is ashes in his mouth," says the Professor. "He's made a mistake in his original life goals. His dominant desires still remain ungratified." He, like the failure, can wind up with serious neuroses, go back to find another goal, or (more usually) go ahead to Stage 4 and concentrate on finding an answer in pleasure. He has found it relatively easy to pursue his life course. It is too late to change.

Ninety-five in a hundred of the estimated 25,000,000 Americans who find themselves at the chronological "middle age" of the 40s fall into Slotkin's inconclusive type. "Most Americans like these," he says, "think that they will finally get that new car, that new home, security, the chicken in every pot, success in their job or profession. They keep plugging away after the carrot.

"The inconclusive person doesn't try to evaluate what he has. If he did, he'd have to evaluate what he doesn't have. He almost always feels that he 'still has a chance' — that he'll get through his original life goals even though they somehow continue to elude him."

How an Actress Adjusted

If he becomes embittered, despairs of ever getting what he wants, desperately looks for a new start, or gives up trying, he is no longer middle-aged but actually in another "age" group.

Slotkin, who has already written a study of human adjustment (Personality Development — Harper & Bros.) thinks that someday he can complete research that will help make middle age adjustment easier for all.

Meanwhile, the best adjustment may be that of a middle-aged actress. "I wanted to be a big star," she told him, "but now I won't be. So I just want to be a darn good character actress."

"That's the only healthy adjustment," says Slotkin. "If you can't be a star, settle for a planet!" ■

THE NEW GARBO?

Sweden's Anita Ekberg wants to act

by LLOYD SHEARER

HOLLYWOOD.

Anita Ekberg, whose provocative photos appear on these pages, is currently being given the Hollywood build-up by her imaginative press agent as "The New Garbo." In truth, leggy Anita and reclusive Greta have one factor in common: the geographical accident of Swedish birth. The similarity stops there.

At the moment, all of Anita's talents lie in her buxom curves, which measure 39, 22 and 37, respectively. These, more than anything else, are responsible for her mounting popularity with photographers, her present movie contract with John Wayne's independent film company, Batjac Productions, and her recent loanout to Paramount for the fitting role of a model in the forthcoming Artists and Models.

Like most glamor dolls, however, 26-year-old Anita insists she prefers drama to cheesecake.

"Because I am big beautiful girl," she modestly explains in her Swedish accent, "people think I am only pinup material. So tired I am of posing in bathing suits, I think I scream.

"Comes every day my press agent, Milton Weiss, with new idea. 'On Monday,' he says, 'you are Queen of Beaux Arts Ball. On Tuesday you are Miss Mermaid of 1955.' On Wednesday I am Girl Most Likely.

" 'Milton,' I say, 'I am sick of being Girl Most Likely. I want to act.' "

John Wayne, who signed Anita at $100 a week last year, recently gave her a non-glamorous bit part in Blood Alley, a story of refugees escaping from Red China to Hong Kong. In this film Anita, clad in a burlap bag, plays a bedraggled, papoose-carrying refugee.

"This part," she claims, "will prove that I am no playgirl, but a serious actress who can act."

Press agent Weiss recently told newsmen: "This girl's development has been sensational. Four years ago she came to Atlantic City as Miss Sweden. Came from Malmo, a farmer's daughter. Could hardly speak English. Today the biggest guys in the country are throwing themselves at her feet. But she's not interested in marriage. She's interested in her career. She is an actress of beauty, power, sensitivity, and rare perception. She is The New Garbo."

At this, even the confident Anita gagged slightly. "That Milton," she told me. "Every time I go to the powder room he makes it sound like Lindbergh's first flight across the Atlantic." ■

GRACE: Anita is svelte in her rehearsal costume of sweater and slacks.

ALLURE: Donald O'Connor discovers it in lunch-hour chat.

CHARM: She radiates it as Queen of the Beaux Arts Ball.

TALENT: Learning acting, she gets her first screen slap.

THE TERRIBLE-TEMPERED MR. TALBOTT

WASHINGTON, D. C.

More than a year after it happened, Air Force officers still speak with awe about the time their civilian boss, Harold E. Talbott, almost broke up a House Appropriations Committee hearing. Unimpressed by the fact the Committee controls Air Force purse strings, Talbott became annoyed at the questioning and demanded: "What's special about this committee?"

This was merely a passing storm in the career of Air Force Secretary Talbott, Washington's most explosive official. When Talbott loses his temper — and it happens often enough that he is known around the Pentagon as "The Terrible-Tempered Mr. Talbott"— his eyes narrow to blazing slits, his voice takes off with a roar like a jet engine and he sprinkles profanity like confetti.

A few minutes of this, however, and he subsides into another person — a tall, trim, handsome gentleman who loves horses, flowers, bridge and cafe society. And, incidentally, a man who has won solid respect for his handling of the million-man Air Force, where he is responsible for every decision, every order and every action.

He Totes a Big Load

As Secretary, Talbott must chart or pass on all Air Force policy and see that it is carried out. (He gives his subordinates wide latitude, however.) He spends much of his time acting as a "front man" for the Air Force before the public and on Capitol Hill. And he represents the Air Force point of view in backstage dealings with President Eisenhower and Defense Sec. Charles E. Wilson (for both of whom he has a deep loyalty and respect).

With a tall order like that, perhaps a safety valve to let off pent-up steam is a necessity. At any rate, Air Force men take a certain perverse pride in recalling the details of Talbott's tantrums.

He is inclined to make snap decisions, throw himself headlong into projects. Often he grows impatient with his advisers, particularly his lawyers, when they try to restrain him. "You guys are too - - - - cautious," he tells them. "You're always telling me why I can't do something instead of how to do it." Sometimes, events will prove their go-slow approach the right one, and then he will sheepishly thank them for slowing him down.

Repentance likewise sets in after one of his outbursts. However, Talbott is no more likely to reform than his teen-aged son, John. Once, after a flareup between father and son that almost shook the rafters of the Talbott home (it started when John wouldn't drink his milk and his father threatened to send him to boarding school), John's mother chided the boy about his temper. "But, Mother," John protested, "I like to lose my temper."

So, his subordinates suspect, does the Secretary. Once, during a Talbott dressing-down, a general rebelled and lit right back into him. Talbott was genuinely shocked. "What are you so mad about?" he asked in a hurt voice. "Can't I lose my temper without your getting stiff-legged about it?"

About a year ago, he tried to put a governor on his language by fining himself $5 a cuss word and dividing the proceeds among his secretaries. But the project cost so much he abandoned it after a few days.

The Talbott staff is devoted to him in spite of these sporadic explosions. He takes a real interest in them, bringing the girls useful souvenirs from his overseas trips. It was characteristic of him to add to a busy schedule and act as best man for his mother's Negro chauffeur, Harvey Howe, in Dayton, Ohio, last year.

Talbott stands up for each man in the Air Force the same way—causing one airman to remark that "the Secretary's not over us, he's with us." For instance, most Americans recall the case of Lt. Milo Radulovich, whose commission was to be revoked last year because close relatives allegedly had Red ties. It was Talbott who, defying security officers, reinstated Radulovich.

ANNUAL VISIT to Greenland's Thule air base finds Secretary Talbott guffawing at Bob Hope jokes during New Year's Eve show for troops. With him is Mrs. Talbott.

by JACK ANDERSON and FRED BLUMENTHAL

PARADE WASHINGTON CORRESPONDENTS

When Talbott visited the Limestone, Me., air base, he was shocked to find the commander of a $250 million installation living in a small, flat-roofed house with no garage and no storage space. The Secretary roared, "How in the devil can we expect to keep good men if we don't give them a decent place to live?" On his return to Washington, Talbott saw to it that the C.O. got a garage with storage space.

Similarly, when his generals recommended only a 3 per cent pay raise for themselves, he snapped, "That's the trouble with you men. You're being too modest." He doubled their recommendation and it was approved. Recently, he sent a husband-and-wife team around the world to give him a first-hand report on living conditions and to collect gripes of servicemen and their wives. He himself has flown more than 300,000 miles visiting the world-wide posts under his command. In Alaska, he wouldn't leave until he had checked each remote radar station.

He has a soft spot particularly for the 4,500 men (the only women there are five nurses) at the cold, bleak Thule air base, on the edge of the Greenland ice cap 900 miles from the North Pole. He and Mrs. Talbott make a point of spending each New Year's Eve there.

Secretary, Meet Queen

Last year, they spent hours at Thule taking names and addresses of wives, mothers and sweethearts. On their return they phoned each one. At first Talbott would open the conversation: "Hello, Mrs. Jones. This is Harold Talbott speaking. I'm the Secretary of the Air Force, and I've just seen your husband up in Greenland." Too often, this was greeted with a wisecrack like, "You're the Secretary of the Air Force? Well, I'm the Queen of England."

Talbott then revised his opener: "Hello, Mrs. Jones. I'm a civilian working for the Air Force. I've just seen your husband at Thule and have a message for you." Many of the wives still don't know what job that nice civilian held.

Harold Talbott comes by his love for aviation naturally. He grew up in Dayton, home town of the Wright brothers, and often would take his bicycle to their shop for repair. He was the passenger on Orville Wright's last flight as a pilot. He wasn't noted for especially high grades in school. A handsome boy, he started early as a ladies' man — coached, no doubt, by his seven sisters. His mother kept a diary chronicling the stages of his growing up, and on his 17th birthday she wrote: "There is little hope for Harold's future. All he thinks of is girls, girls, girls!"

Incidentally, Washington says he retains his eye for the ladies. It's agreed that his office has the best-looking secretaries in the Pentagon. And he is solicitous about the welfare of Air Force wives.

After attending Yale, Talbott worked two years to pay off a college debt, then entered the aviation business. In 1916, his father helped Orville Wright organize his business into the Dayton-Wright Co. and began manufacturing planes. Harold became president with Orville Wright as vice-president and chief engineer. When General Motors took over the firm, Talbott remained as its head. Later, he moved to New York to become a director of Chrysler Corp., and also served as board chairman of North American Aviation Co. He was one of the original organizers of the parent companies of both United Airlines and TWA.

In both world wars he was involved in aviation. During World War I he served as a major in the Air Service of the Signal Corps. For the first year of World War II, he directed aircraft production for the War Production Board — a job he left because, in his own words, of "a row with Donald Nelson," the boss.

One of the Republican's big money raisers in the 1952 campaign, Talbott was one of the backstage committee who recommended officials for the new administration. He came up with two names for Air Force Secretary, but Attorney General Herbert Brownell and Gen. Lucius Clay disregarded his recommendations and insisted Talbott, himself, was the man for the job. He said he wanted to be sure he was the President's and Secretary Wilson's first choice. Reassured, he accepted and moved his family from New York to Washington. The family now consists of his slim, energetic wife, Peggy, and their twin sons, Harold and John. Two daughters are married and the Talbotts have three granddaughters.

In Washington, the Secretary's day begins at 7 a.m. There's often a "business breakfast" at his home at 7:30, and he arrives at his desk at 8:10. Luncheon is nearly always served in the dining room adjoining his office. Evenings are often given over to social life, which Talbott relishes.

An ace polo player in his youth, Talbott still follows the horse world avidly. Recently he skipped a "command" reception at the White House to keep a prior commitment to address the Thoroughbred Racing Association. He's also a good shot, but only a fair golfer.

A staunch Republican (he was GOP national finance chairman in 1948-50), Talbott reserves the right to like Democrats and dislike Republicans as he pleases. One of his office walls has a picture of President Eisenhower, in the approved tradition, But in place of the usual accompanying portrait of Secretary Wilson, the wall sports one of his old friend Robert Lovett, Defense Secretary under President Truman.

He Tells Off Congressmen

Talbott has no use for the Washington custom of kowtowing to congressmen (although he has deep respect for their decisions). For example, he once told a certain state's congressional delegation he "would never build a base in your God-forsaken country."

Yet Talbott gets along well on Capitol Hill. Most congressmen like his refreshing frankness and honesty. Beneath his gruff exterior, they have found, is a sincere — even soft — heart. Although he describes himself as a "black Republican," he told a Little Rock, Ark., Chamber of Commerce group of his admiration and respect for their Democratic Sen. John McClellan, adding that it was their duty to return him to Washington.

To Talbott, his greatest achievements have been 1) putting the Air Force on a more businesslike basis and 2) establishing the new Air Force Academy. The Air Force, however, admires him for his deep appreciation of the individual airman and officer — and for his successful fight to raise pay and improve housing and living conditions.

Why has "The Terrible-Tempered Mr. Talbott" such a terrible temper? So long as he keeps his present job, at least, the answer lies in his own words: "When I leave the Air Force, I want it to be bigger and better than when I came in. I want it to be the most efficient force in the world." With that goal in mind, no amount of verbal fireworks would seem to be too great. ■

Tips on TIPPING

Something we all should know is whom to tip, when and how much. Here are some letters on the subject.

Q. Please give the current rate of tipping in first-class New York hotels and night clubs.—H. K., Peoria, Ill.

A. If the doorman of a fashionable hotel or restaurant gets you a cab, tip him 10 to 50 cents, depending on the difficulty he encounters. The standard tip for a bellhop is 25 cents for each trip he makes with luggage. If much service is expected of the same bellhop, it is easier to give him 25 to 50 cents when he first appears than to give him 10 cents each time he makes the trip. A waiter receives 15 to 20 per cent of the bill. You are not obligated to leave more than a dime on a checkroom counter to retrieve a hat, even in New York.

Q. We are going to vacation at a lodge at a rate of $10 per day per person, including meals. What is the correct amount to give the waitress assigned to us and the bus-boys? Should we leave a tip for the chambermaid? — E. Z., Wichita, Kan.

A. Ten dollars per couple per week for the waitress. Bus-boys need not be tipped. Your chambermaid should receive two dollars a week.

Q. A woman friend and I went to a resort hotel and occupied a room for two. Should we have left separate tips? Do you tip if the service is poor? How much should we have tipped the head-waitress?—Mrs. R.J., Williston Pk., N.Y.

A. You tip as a couple would. I do not believe in tipping even the expected amount when service is bad. A head-waitress in a hotel is not usually tipped — unless she has been particularly considerate.

Q. For what services do you tip a filling-station attendant?—S.W., Locust Valley, N. Y.

A. A tip of 25 cents should be given for services such as checking the oil, water, battery, tires and for washing the windows. A regular customer should give attendants a quarter from time to time. Filling-station owners should not expect a tip for any of these services.

Fall furniture forecast

The new styling is conservative, comfortable — and convenient

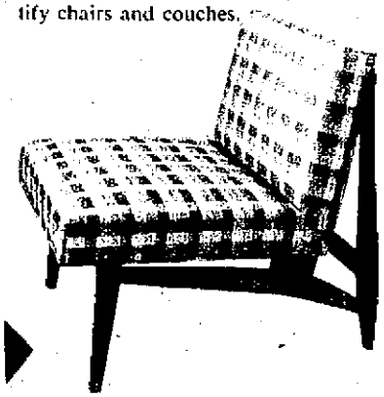

ITALIAN PROVINCIAL mahogany chest is oversized to allow storage space. Finish is canyon gray.

What's new in furniture? Answer: Easy-to-live-with designs to meet the needs of modern American homes. Emphasis on conservative, comfortable styling is apparent in the examples shown here from collections soon to be seen in stores.

A yardstick tells part of the story. Much of the new furniture is scaled for comfort and convenience. Upholstered pieces, for example, are tailored in several lengths to fit varying room dimensions. Some sofas are finished to serve as free-standing room dividers. Chests and tables heed the cry for more storage space by stretching to include another bank of drawers.

To free floor space for furniture, more accessories, such as magazine racks and cabinets, hang on the wall. Into many a light-looking desk is tucked a standard-sized file drawer for household records.

Finely detailed hardware points up the rich, hand-rubbed finishes on wood. And luxurious fabrics and unusual color combinations help beautify chairs and couches.

THE AMERICAN GEOGRAPHICAL SOCIETY invites you to discover

A New Way for You and Your Children to Learn About

Our Wonderful World

Your children will be greatly enriched in mind and spirit by this new educational hobby the entire family can share

ITALY — Home of the famous, much-visited Leaning Tower of Pisa, where the astronomer Galileo is said to have tested the speed of falling objects.

EGYPT — Arabs in prayer turning toward Mecca before the Great Sphinx, which guards entrance to Nile Valley.

SIAM (Thailand) — Image of "Emerald Buddha," festooned with golden ornaments and jewels, stands in chapel of Bangkok's White Marble Temple.

HERE is an exciting way for young and old alike to become intimately acquainted with the many lands and peoples of OUR WONDERFUL WORLD. This revolutionary new program in home education, sponsored by THE AMERICAN GEOGRAPHICAL SOCIETY, is like a "guided tour" around the world, conducted by outstanding authorities on each region's history — geography — trade — customs — landmarks — native crafts — flags, stamps, currency — and many other subjects.

The FREE GIFT described below (value, $1.00) will introduce you to this wonderful new program without cost or obligation.

How Your Family "Visits" a Different Land Each Month

Each month you receive a set of full-color photographic prints and a highly informative, illustrated guidebook-album with spaces for mounting the color prints. By means of these prints and albums, prepared under the guidance of American Geographical Society experts, you and your family "visit" a different country every month. You explore the country's famous landmarks and natural wonders. You go sight-seeing in the strange cities. In quaint little villages you stop to observe native costumes, customs, and crafts. An expert on the history of the region spins stories of the great battles, the national heroes, the ancient legends. You pore over maps showing the principal cities, rivers, mountains. You actually learn MORE than many casual tourists do!

Helps Children in School — and in Later Life, too

In this delightful, "painless" way, your youngsters will absorb and retain far more essential knowledge about their world than they probably ever would from dry-as-dust textbooks. Each picture will receive individual, careful attention as it is lovingly mounted in the album. And this, in turn, will kindle the youngster's curiosity and make him eager to read the fascinating, simply-written text. Thus, without any coaxing or enforced "homework," your child can accumulate a distinctly above-average store of information about the world we live in. This knowledge will give him a tremendous advantage over others — not only in many different school subjects, but also in later life, as he grows up in a world where other countries are only a few hours away by air.

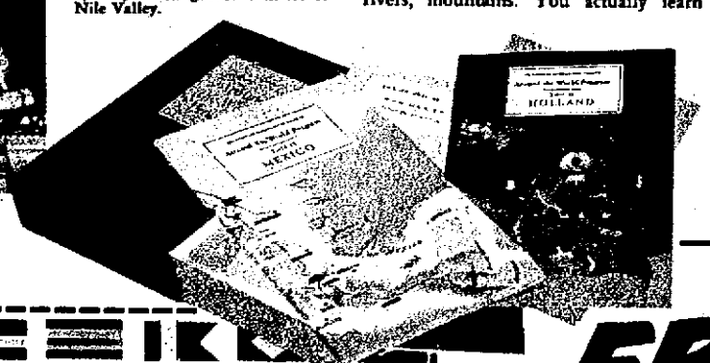

Best of all, here is an educational hobby that will draw the whole family together — for there's something in it for everybody. Grade school children will enjoy the pictures and captions; yet high school students will find much of the text a valuable supplement to their studies in history, geography, social science, etc. And Mom and Dad will find it an enjoyable way of planning real trips—or re-living memorable journeys already taken.

Mail Coupon — Without Money — for FREE Set

To acquaint yourself with this new project, send for the free set of full-color prints and guidebook-album described below. There is absolutely no cost involved, and no obligation to continue receiving monthly sets — this is merely a free "demonstration" set. If, however, you are delighted with your free set and do wish to continue on your "trip around the world," you pay only $1 for each month's "tour" thereafter. And you may cancel at any time.

But do mail the coupon right away. The demand for free sets may exceed original expectations; and requests will be filled on a first-come first-served basis.

PAUL HOOVER
A Whale of a Halibut

A WHALE of a good fish dinner is delighting the patrons at the Southland's two Paul restaurants — Paul's of Lakewood at Carson St. and Bellflower Blvd. and Paul's of Santa Fe Springs on Telegraph Rd. at Orr and Day Road.

No, it isn't grilled whale.

It's much better.

It's Grilled Whale Halibut. A lot of fish experts have probably heard of whale halibut previously but it's a new item as far as I'm concerned. And for others who may not have heard of it, let me explain that a whale halibut is a tremendous fish caught in Alaska waters.

Whale halibut comes by its name honestly, growing as large as 300 pounds. The fishermen throw back the little ones—those 80 pounds and under.

Paul Hoover, owner of Paul's restaurants, describes whale halibut as the finest tasting fish in the world. The meat has a wonderful flavor because the fish live in cold, deep water.

Paul's chefs dust the whale halibut delicately in cracker meal and then grill it. Each patron gets a half-pound portion, completely boneless, served with soup, a large salad with roquefort dressing, hot rolls and choice of mashed, French fried or baked potatoes. The charge for all that is $1.75 per patron—a fine bargain.

PAUL'S restaurants are also famed for another specialty. This is old-fashioned chicken and dumplings, served only on Sundays and Thursdays. The chicken is as tender as a baby's cheek and the dumplings are as large as volley balls. The meal includes choice of California fruit cocktail or tomato juice, choice of soup or green salad; vegetables, hot rolls, choice of beverage and choice of dessert. The tab for the whole works is just $2.25.

The restaurants serve a splendid shish kebab on skewers and also specialize in marvelous prime rib and choice steaks.

In Long Beach's modern skyline are 13 major structures built in 1921—the year of the skyscrapers. That was 33 years after the city was incorporated.

The Year of the Skyscrapers

By Helen Smith

PERSONS living in Long Beach, even those who have resided here as long as 30 years, perhaps cannot imagine the city without the tall buildings which make up its skyline — an impressive sight when viewed from either land or sea.

Long Beach, however, was an incorporated city for 33 years before the business section started to make much of a dent in the stratosphere.

Then, in just one year — to the staccato tune of the riveter's hammer — the steel girders began to rise floor by floor into the salt-tinged air, making the city appear much as it does today.

It was in 1921 that the skyscrapers grew.

This postwar boom year found building permits issued for the following structures:

Eight-story City Hall, $600,000.
Nine-story Artaban Apts., $450,000.
Eight-story Blackstone Hotel, $500,000.
Seven-story St. Regis Apts., $375,000.
Ten-story Sovereign Apts., $625,000.
Ten-story Omar Hubbard Bldg., $555,000.
Nine-story Farmers & Merchants bank, $600,000.
Twelve-story City National Bank, $850,000.
Four-story YMCA, $350,000
Four-story Pacific Home Apts., $200,000.
Six-story First National Bank, $400,000.
Long Beach Bath House, $350,000.
Five-story Chamber of Commerce Bldg., $100,000.

This budding metropolis which was to become the fourth largest city in California had its beginnings around 1866 with the sale of Rancho Los Cerritos to Jotham Bixby by John Temple for $125,000.

FOURTEEN YEARS LATER, according to historians, W. E. Willmore obtained an option on a part of the property, to which he gave his name. A realistic dreamer, he visualized the tourist possibilities of the long stretch of strand combined with the balmy climate.

Unfortunately his dream did not materialize in time for him to take up the option and he spent his remaining days in the county poor farm until friends removed him just before death. Only a monument in Signal Hill Cemetery is left to commemorate the man who founded Long Beach.

In 1884, the subdividing firm of Pomeroy & Mills of Los Angeles bought the initial site of 4,000 acres for $24,000 and in no time the town began to grow.

MRS. W. W. LOWE, wife of the first postmaster and mother of pioneer resident Mrs. Charles L. Heartwell, said, "We will call our city Long Beach for the miles of sandy shores."

With the city successfully established, and as the upsurge of activity commenced in the downtown area, the population began to strain at the boundaries. So subdividers moved in again.

Virginia Heights, now known as the Los Cerritos sections, was one of the first to be developed. Many attractive homes were built in the area adjacent to the Virginia Country Club. Living here was considered as fashionable as residing on Ocean Blvd. and on Signal Hill. The many mansions on the Hill were abandoned, however, when the discovery well gushed in and sprayed oil over their stuccoed exteriors at 4 a. m. on the morning of June 23, 1921.

There was also Willowville, located at Willow St. and Long Beach Blvd., and another development called Silverado Tract, described as being in North Long Beach. Actually, while it may have been the northern extremity at that time, the North Long Beach sector as we know it today was originally Virginia City.

ONE OF THE MOST ambitious subdivisions was called, with associations reminiscent of the recently ended World War I, "Chateau Thierry." It was located around the Wardlow Rd. and Atlantic Ave. area, then considered ideal for country living.

All of this building cost totaled more than $13,000,000 in 1921. Many of the less optimistic citizens viewed the boom with disfavor and were of the opinion that the "city is over-building."

Thirty-four years later, building permits valued at several times this amount are issued yearly. In outlying flat lands very few of the acres once used for growing beans and carrots are now available to the promoter.

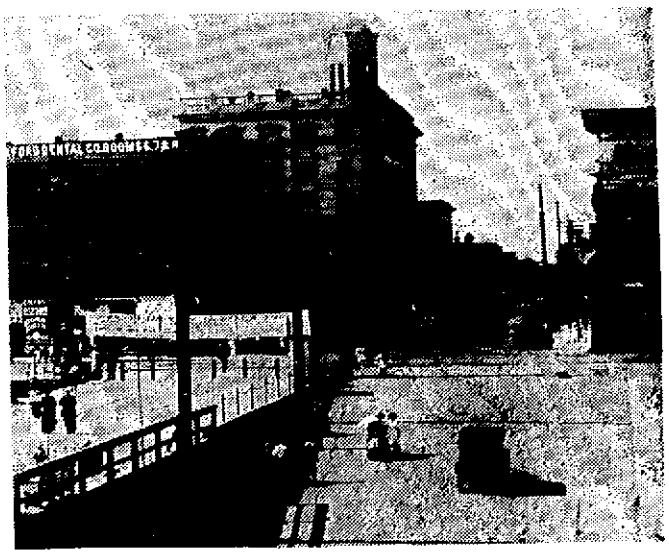

To the original stand of skyscrapers has been added the Wilton Hotel, the Jergins Trust Building, the Pacific Coast Club and the dominating spire of them all — the Villa Riviera.

The growth of Long Beach is still in progress.

HECTIC LAST WEEK ENDS, AND

Disneyland Is Ready for Curtain Time

By Dorothy Fisher

WHEN THE CURTAIN goes up tomorrow on Walt Disney's fabulous new entertainment world of Disneyland, 60 acres of happiness for young and old will be completed and ready for an expected five million visitors a year.

But behind the scenes, an equally fabulous story of the hectic, time and overtime-consuming hours of preparations to ready Disneyland in completed form has been going on for weeks.

It is an exciting story of the fantastic efforts of men and machines. It has its heroes too numerous to mention, men whose efforts will provide enjoyable entertainment and relaxation for millions.

IT IS A TALE of painters, gardeners and sign hangers; of ride builders, office personnel, and even totem pole carvers.

Only a week ago, hundreds of man hours of work remained to complete Disneyland. Planting, building, paving and a complex of other problems still existed. But today, Disneyland is ready.

And it was just a year ago that the whole 160-acre park site was nothing but a neat pattern of orange groves!

But back to the story of the past week.

Anywhere you looked at Disneyland, workers were frantically putting the finishing touches on the world's most fantastic entertainment park.

In the Plaza, the center of the park, and in Adventureland, gardeners were busily planting shrubs, trees and grass, which today look as plush as if they had been there for years.

DOWN THE FULL LENGTH of Main Street, U. S. A., sign men were working overtime to hang the names of all the park's lessees over the shops which tomorrow will open for business in the manner of stores of the turn of the century.

At the same time, inside the stores carpenters were sanding cabinets, building shelves and putting doors in place. And electricians were installing wiring and lights; painters were prettying up the cabinets in gay colors, and locksmiths were going about their work as soon as the doors were in place.

Merchandise was arriving at Disneyland's warehouses by the truckloads, awaiting only the completion of the stores before it could be moved again. Builders completed the Snow White, Mr. Toad, Peter Pan and other story book rides behind the walls of Sleeping Beauty's Castle, and safety checked all the equipment.

Cement was being poured by the ton in Tomorrowland, where the Autopia Freeway of the Future neared its finished product.

Special carpenters chipped away at thick logs to produce Indian totem poles for Frontierland.

MEANWHILE, through all the confusion and detail of authentic construction, rehearsals for the largest television coverage ever attempted anywhere, the press premiere of Disneyland to be carried this afternoon from 4:30 to 6 o'clock over ABC-TV, were in full swing almost daily. A maze of television wiring, camera and other equipment was being installed amid the sounds of hammer and saw.

Employes were being tutored in special classes for the services they will give to the public in coming months.

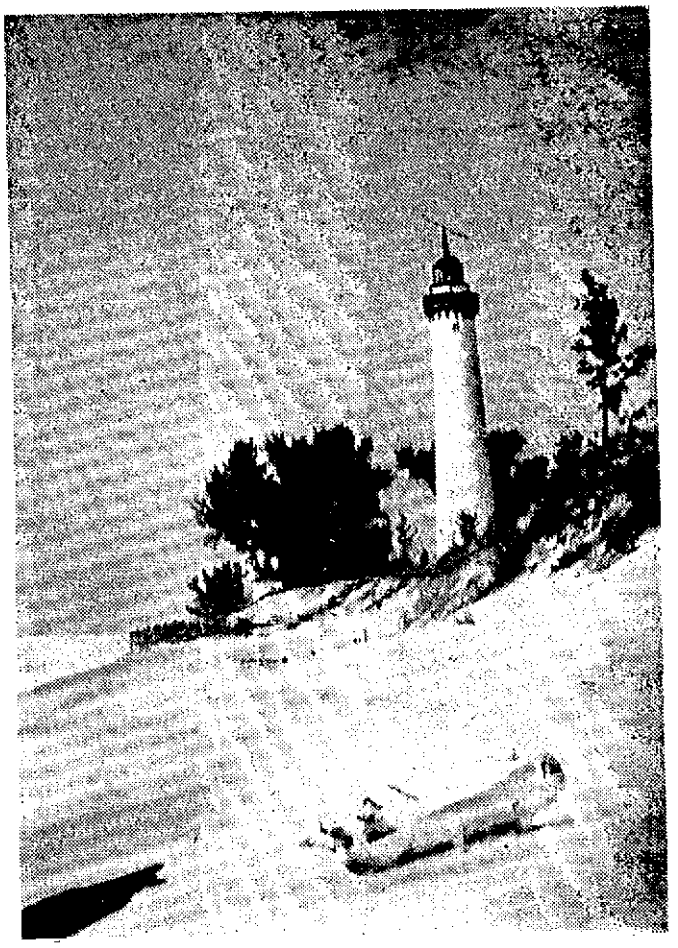

And through it all, Disneyland's phone operators had their hands full with more than 9,000 calls that poured into the park's overloaded switchboard daily.

But today, the efforts of man and machine have borne a fabulous finished product, and tomorrow — minus the sounds of hammers, saws and heavy equipment — Disneyland will open its gates to an eagerly awaiting public.

Student photographers of Polytechnic High School have shown a masterful touch in the handling of camera and darkroom technique in the past year of study. Best efforts of the classes was represented in a display before professional judges and first, second and third and three honorable mention awards were selected. Each of the pictures was exposed, developed, printed and mounted by a pupil in the high school photographic class. Judges were Frank Lindgren, school board photographer and Long Beach City College instructor; Isabel Connor, school art supervisor, and Julian Hiatt, commercial photographer and teacher of photography. Here are the winners.

"Heat," by Keith Kartz, second honorable mention.

"Old Age," Larry Stacy, 3rd hon. mention.

"Redundancy and Rain," Tom Thompson, 2nd.

"Defense," Bonnie Florine, 1st hon. mention.

Hunting That First Job

By Betsy O'Hara

Drawing by Parker Markle

If asked for a test of skill at taking dictation, do not try to balance your notebook on one knee.

IF YOU ARE seriously looking for a job you must work at it. Remember that employment managers and interviewers in agencies see hundreds of people in a month. Since they have such a large choice, you must be outstanding in some way in order to be chosen. You must have something to offer, some reason why an employer will choose you instead of another person. You must get them to connect YOU with YOUR card. One way is to give them a small non-glamorous photograph of yourself, but be sure it's a good one. Another way is to wear the same clothes for the first few visits, being sure that they are spotlessly clean each time.

In the agency which got me my first job and where I subsequently worked for a while, each applicant had a file card. While interviewers were talking with the new job seekers, they were doing what seemed to be "doodling" across the top of the cards. Actually, they were writing code numbers or letters for classifying the applicant's neatness, pleasant voice and facial expression, poise, posture, grammar, personality, intelligence, and courtesy. These marks stayed on the cards permanently. In other words, first impressions are lasting.

Supposing you are starting out on your first day. Your clothes are modest, neat and simple—no ruffled dresses, easy on the makeup (unless you are looking for a job in a night club), some smart comfortable shoes (you're going to do a lot of walking and waiting in line), no gum chewing, of course; a full fountain pen, a record of schools attended and the dates; and a notebook. You have picked out several places where you think you would like to work, having made previous inquiries about those places, for instance about what they actually do or sell and what kind of workers they need, or use in their employ.

WHEN YOU COME to the first place, walk in and ask to make application for employment. Fill out the forms, wait until someone interviews you, try to keep calm and don't tell your life's history to his secretary.

Try to find out his name in advance and when you walk in say "Good morning, Mr. Smith." You hand him your application if the secretary hasn't already done so. Let him start the interview and answer his questions directly. For example, "Have you had any experience?" This is always asked.)

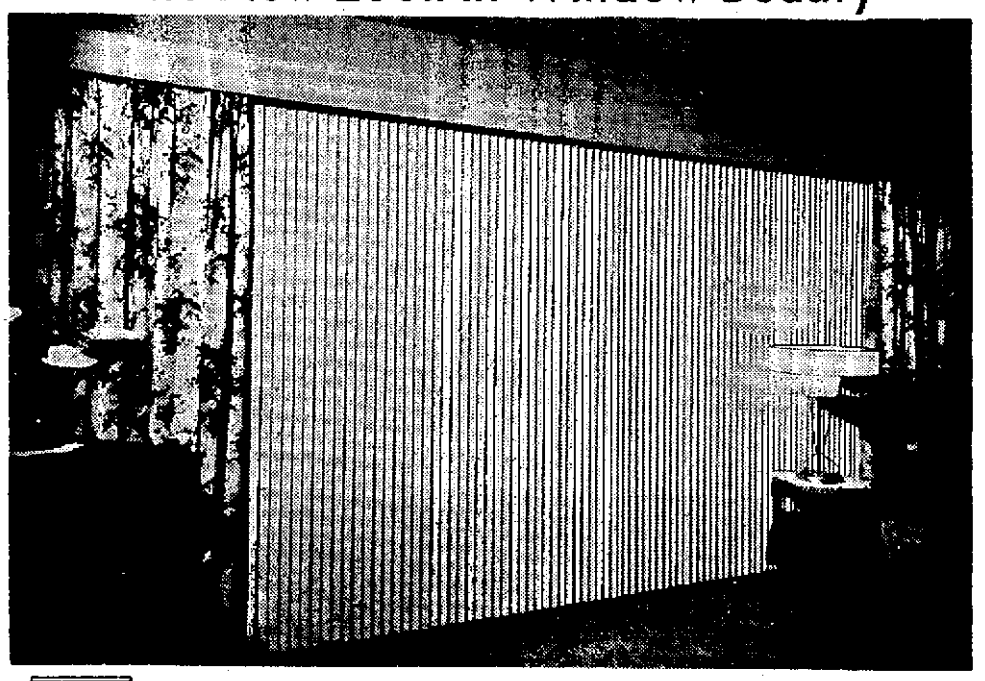

"No sir, but I can type 50 words a minute and take shorthand at so many words a minute."

How you answer him tells him a great deal about your manners and personality.

"Quite frankly, we don't have any openings right now for in-

Uncle Sam's Arsenal of the Sky

BACK IN 1910 when the nation's first air meet was held at Dominguez Junction, two of the 15,000 spectators on hand were Bernard Bernie and Charlie Day of Long Beach.

The meet sold them on aviation and in May of that year, they built themselves an airplane.

It was the first airplane built in Long Beach.

During World War II alone, Douglas Aircraft Co. turned out just under 10,000 aircraft at its Long Beach plant.

The manufacture and sale of airplanes in Long Beach runs somewhere near $150,000,000 a year.

THE AIR AGE has made a decided impact on Long Beach. There is the rapidly developing Municipal Airport. There is the multi-million dollar Douglas Aircraft Company plant at the airport. Within a few minutes drive are the North American Aviation plant at Downey, Los Alamitos Naval Air Station and the Torrance plant of Douglas Aircraft Co.

The Long Beach plant of Douglas Aircraft alone means some 125 million dollars a year to Long Beach. Its payroll is about 110 million dollars annually and the company spends an additional 12 million dollars a year with local firms for supplies and services.

The first aircraft manufacturing "plant" in Long Beach was the old Virginia Hotel on Ocean Blvd. between Magnolia and Chestnut Aves. In 1912, Earl S. Daugherty and Frank Champion, pioneer Long Beach pilots, built a plane in the hotel basement.

In the next few years, this basement was to see the creation of several aircraft.

IT WAS A FAR CRY from the assembly line at Douglas Aircraft here today.

The first spadeful of earth on the 142-acre tract at Lakewood Blvd. and Carson St. was turned Nov. 22, 1940, by Donald W. Douglas himself. It was officially dedicated less than a year later and on Dec. 23, 1941, the first airplane was delivered to the Air Force — a twin-engine C47 cargo transport.

During World War II, the Long Beach plant turned out 4,285 C47s, 3,000 of the famed B17 Flying Fortresses, 999 twin-engine A20 attack bombers and 1,156 twin-engine A26 attack bombers. The A26s were redesignated B26 and won fame as recently as the Korean War. The 452nd Light Bombardment Wing, Long Beach's own Air Force Reserve unit, flew B26s in Korea.

From a peak of 42,000 wartime employes, Douglas dropped rapidly as peace came and Americans thought they no longer needed war planes. In recent years, faced with the threat of new aggression and with demands for increased airpower, Douglas employment has climbed to about 21,000.

IN 1950, the local plant began building the giant, four-engine C124 Globemaster. When the last one was delivered to the Air Force last May 9, local workers had built 445 of the big cargo planes.

Last year, the Long Beach plant began building the swept-wing, twin-jet B66 bomber, and company officials have announced that the C124 will be succeeded by a turboprop C133 cargo plane that will be the "largest transport in military service."

The Torrance facility of Douglas is a comparatively new operation. The aircraft company took over a plant from the Columbia-Geneva division of U. S. Steel. Some 10,000 employes are building component parts for the Navy's F4D Skyray and AD Skyraiders.

Although North American Aviation is probably best known for its F86 Sabre and F100 Super Sabre jet fighters, its Downey plant is one of the nation's leading facilities for advanced electronics, guided missiles and atomic energy programs.

In August, 1952, the plant placed into operation the first atomic energy reactor in California. Its NATIV (for North American Test Instrument Vehicle) has reached altitudes of 10 miles at supersonic speeds. The 13-foot missile is used as a test vehicle for aerodynamic research.

AT THE HUB of all these activities—and of particular interest to Douglas Aircraft whose local plant is on a portion of the land—is Long Beach Municipal Airport.

Nearly 800 acres within the field itself and more than 500 acres outside the field to protect runway approaches are available for further development.

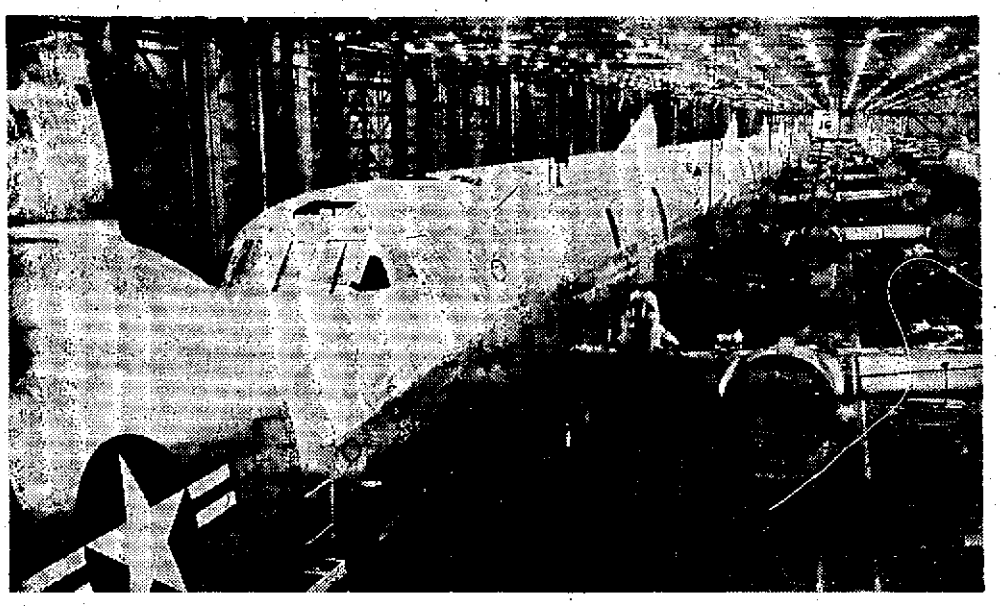

The airport already boasts five runways—the longest 6,900 feet—and a recently remodeled and enlarged control tower. The City Council has approved plans which call for extending the main runway to 10,000 feet and making considerable additional land available for private aircraft and commercial operations.

Ground surveillance radar is being installed and a major air freight terminal has been approved in principle. Within five years, the local field could be one of the finest in the west.

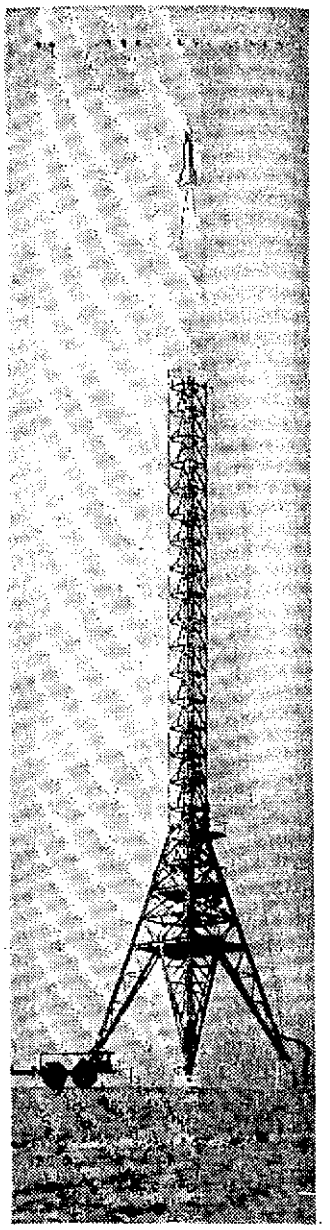

The government announced earlier this year that the aircraft industry is the largest manufacturing employer in the United States. In 1954, total sales amount to about $8.6 billion dollars—a gain of 100 million dollars over 1953.

Long Beach, active in aviation for 40 of the 52 years of the air age, intends to play an even more important role in this important field.

By Don Brackenbury

Far cry from the first efforts at plane building in Long Beach is assembly line at Douglas plant. This view is of C124 planes undergoing construction.

Blazing a super hot trail into the sky, North American Aviation guided missile leaves the launcher.

experienced people, but we'll keep you in mind." You'll get used to hearing this so try to keep smiling. It's your cue to stand up and get ready to leave. However, you will have a better idea of what kind of employes they want if, when leaving, you smile and say "Thank you, Mr. Smith, for giving me your time. I wonder if you could give me a few hints about getting a job. What should I learn to do to make my chances of getting a job with your firm better?"

Most personnel managers will give you hints. Some are brusk, some just smile and say "Keep trying!" You may find out that they hire only college graduates so just cross that place off your list. You thank Mr. Smith again leave without further ado. Never be apologetic or self-pitying.

ONE PERSONNEL MANAGER who was trying politely to get rid of me (I later realized) told me that the only opening they might have was for someone to fill in for about two months while all the office staff took turns going on vacation.

"Of course," he said, "you wouldn't be able to do that job because you would have to know how to run a P.B.X. (telephone switchboard) a teletypewriter, dictaphone, adding machine, typewriter and do filing and shorthand!" I went to daytime extension school and night classes for courses in shorthand and typing, and in between learned to run the other machines. The most important thing I should have done, I failed to do through ignorance, and that was to take a vocational guidance test.

When I finally showed up and told him what I had done, he looked astonished but being a gentleman he said, "Well, let's see how you take shorthand!" He handed me a pad and pencil and started dictating a letter. I balanced the notebook precariously on my crossed knees (like they do in all the cartoons) and proceeded to take a letter. Between trying to balance the book, being so nervous, and not being too sure about my shorthand, I simply couldn't get the whole thing.

He looked so relieved! Finally he said, "You should never try to take shorthand in a book on your knee. It belongs on the desk. Also, I should have told you at our first interview, you aren't the type of girl to work in an office. Why don't you just marry some nice fellow and have a bunch of kids?" He was so right, but I didn't know it then and left in tears. Later I found my niche as a millinery buyer and salesgirl. A test in the beginning would have saved all the time, energy and money I spent trying to learn something for which I was not suited.

In an employment agency you get in line and wait your turn. When it comes, walk in and say "Good morning Mrs. So-and-So." Wait for her to indicate that you should sit down. Let her ask the questions (she's already started writing down her impressions of you). Answer her clearly, don't mumble. She wants to know if you ever worked before. Just think about the times you worked in the school office, did Christmas extra selling at the drugstore, did all the marketing for your family for six months; sold greeting cards over the phone or raffle tickets for your church. She might ask you what you would really like to do.

For heaven's sake don't utter those fatal words "I don't know, but I'd be willing to learn."

Suppose she says "Will you take temporary work until we can get you something permanent?" Say "yes" because in this way you can get experience and a little cash, but keep on plugging for a permanent job—its much better than flitting around.

YOU ARE NOW competing in an adult world and it will require all the character, determination and good training you have had up until now to carry you through. Above all, don't get discouraged. If you have consistently done your best to get a job and have failed, perhaps there is some simple thing in your appearance or manners that makes a bad impression. Take advantage of all the free courses in vocational guidance, ask for advice, make use of your public library — take out some books about job hunting and it wouldn't hurt you to read "How to Win Friends and Influence People."

For the person still in high school, I recommend getting down to the business of learning how to do one thing well. It goes without saying that you will finish high school if you hope to have any future in the world of competition for the better jobs. Many helpful courses are offered free of charge. For the person who has already graduated and is still able to live at home without paying his share, I say by all means go to night school or business college and get yourself some tools for future work.

If you loathe arithmetic don't try to be a bookkeeper; maybe you would be better at selling. Perhaps stenography has no appeal—try running a P.B.X.—it's lots of fun, but if you are nosey or don't know what you are doing you can lose a job in a hurry.

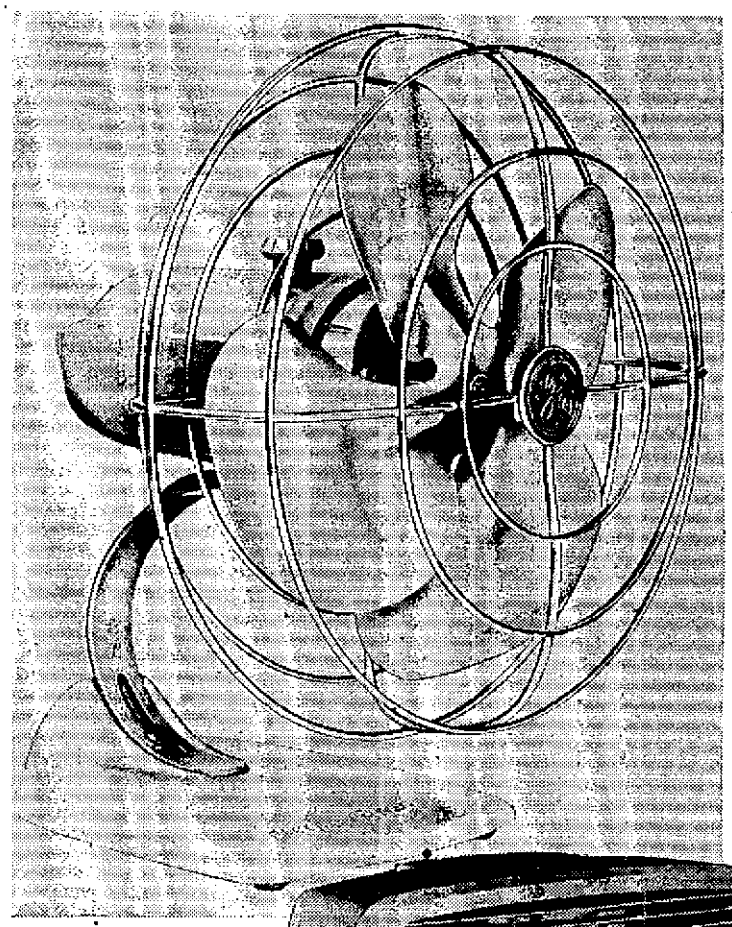

Use the positive approach. Say "I am a truck driver. Do you have something in my line?" instead of "You don't have anything for a truck driver, do you?"

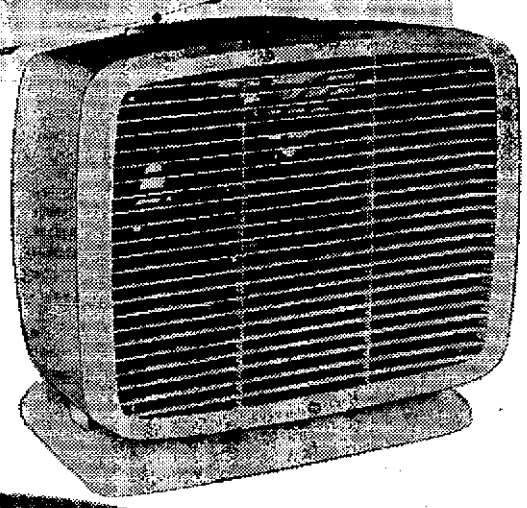

Don't rely on pull to get a job, but on the other hand do not refuse help from older people.

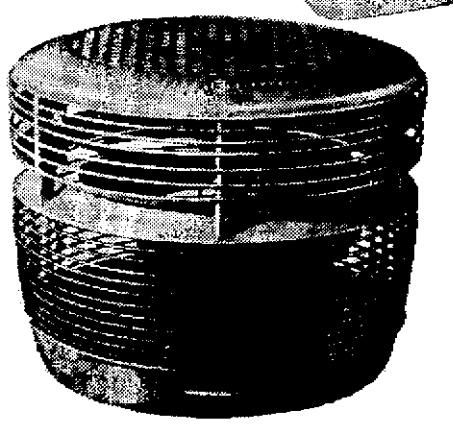

I feel that agencies are about the best place to go because they have the contacts for jobs and can save you days and months of tramping around. Of course, you have to pay them a percentage of your earnings for a little while, but you probably will have more pay and a better job, so it's worth it. Go to your State Employment Service first—that will get you a job for free. However, really big companies quite often have personnel offices and hire their own applicants, and very small companies sometimes advertise in the newspapers or put a sign in the window.

Your jobs should improve as your experience grows, but it all depends on you—if you are willing to earn your pay check or just drift along. One thing to remember is that you can never go up by dragging someone else down. Keep your personal remarks to yourself — be cheerful and work hard and you are bound to be on your way up.

"Some time ago you mentioned how to get a Borsalino hat from Italy by mail. I have misplaced this article . . ."

WRITE TO FABRIZI, 407 Via del Corso, Rome, Italy. The kind I was getting is called a featherweight. Rolls up in your suitcase, if you want. These used to be $8 plus $1 for mailing, but that was several years ago, so maybe you'd better ask before you send any money.

There will be some duty on this, but I really don't know how much. If you have a friend in Italy, he can send it to you duty-free as a gift. There is no duty on a gift under $10. But here's the rub: it has to be purchased as a gift overseas.

"I am studying Esperanto, the international language. I have contacted Esperanto groups here and learned that in every country in Europe there are people who speak it and it is widely used by airlines, railroads and transport organizations in advertising. Have you ever used it?"

NO, NEVER USED IT, never heard it, never saw it on any advertising by transport companies. I wasn't looking for it, though. Maybe they do.

Most usable language in Europe, in my opinion, is a little French. When taking off for a new country, I try to get a small pocket guide to the language and read it over on the airplane.

Skip the parts about hotel rooms. The desk clerk always speaks English. So do the waiters usually. It's the taxi driver and the hotel maid and the train conductor that are the problem.

You ought to learn to say "how much?" "bring me the bill," "is this the train or plane for Timbuctoo?" "another beer," "where is the gentlemen's lounge, please?" and "thank you."

On top of that, if you can read the menu, you are operating. If you don't learn the above, you soon will. Believe me, you will.

"I am interested in a trip in the Caribbean, covering as many islands as possible, even if just part of a day . . ."

YOUR BEST BET is to book through Pan American. They have a Convair that island-hops places like Guadeloupe, Antigua, St. Lucia, Martinique, as well as better known islands. Ask them also about their Costa Rica subsidiary, LACSA. I think it is. Has some little-known island stops that I hear are very inexpensive and well worth while. I was told about this by a newspaper friend of mine who's living in Costa Rica.

I think this would give you a circular tour — down one way and up another.

Seeing Sights in Las Vegas

Colorful Las Vegas, a seven-hour drive from Long Beach, continues to be the destination for many weekend vacationists from the Southland. There's always plenty to do and see—like Rita Rae, Los Angeles TV and fashion model, who's seen here stretching out in the sunshine at the Royal Nevada Hotel pool.

New York Fete

New York City hotels are taking an active role in plans now being formulated for the 1955 Summer Festival which runs up until September 5. The program for the coming summer will be more ambitious than last year, when thousands of added visitors to the city sent retail sales up 4 per cent over the preceding summer. During the festival season, New York stores will offer special values and a principal feature of the summer program will be an elaborate fashion show, scheduled to be the world's largest. Other special events will include concerts of every kind, from symphony to swing, sport spectacles, art exhibits, and stage and motion picture world premieres.

Going to Israel?

Travel to the Middle East shows a marked increase the first four months of 1955. Over 2,215 tourists traveled to Israel in February, a 40 per cent increase over the same month last year. New hotels are rapidly being constructed to take care of visitors.

JEWELRY and ornaments of every race tell an interesting story of originality in the use of metals and precious or semi-precious stones. Certainly no less original are the jewelry makers of today who transform gorgeous rocks into exquisite jewelry with original settings.

There are scores of rock hounds in the Long Beach area —some of them members of the Long Beach, Mineral and Gem Society — who combine their hobby with jewelry making. And the number is growing each year.

The Making of a Doctor

"Not as a Stranger," one of the best-selling novels of recent times, is brought to the screen for United Artists release with such top players as Olivia de Havilland, Robert Mitchum, Frank Sinatra, Gloria Grahame, Broderick Crawford and Charles Bickford in the principal roles. The story concerns a medical student, Lucas Marsh (Mitchum), who dedicates himself to his future profession to exclusion of other interests. He berates his father (Lon Chaney) for worthlessness, marries a beautiful nurse (Miss de Havilland) for money, is infatuated by rich, lonely Harriet, is unable to save Dr. Runkleman (Bickford) who set him up as country medico and is taught the greater values of life, being forgiven by his neglected wife. Here are some scenes from the movie which show some of the major incidents.

Here is Mitchum as Lucas Marsh, excluding all personal values to study to be a doctor.

Needing money, Lucas consults father; berates him for alcoholism and worthlessness.

He's accepted by head operating nurse (Miss de Havilland), solving his money problem.

Lucas' infatuation with worldly wise Harriet comes to end when she sends him away.

Losing fight to save Dr. Runkleman, who succumbs to heart ailment, brings Lucas to senses. He perceives other values, is forgiven by expectant wife.

proud of. She still enthuses over the ornament she fashioned into a gift for her mother-in-law. Because her amethyst stone was formed like a grape cluster, she designed a silver grapeleaf with tendrils to hold the purple "grapes." Such an unusual pin was appropriate, for the recipient is a midwest grape grower.

Alice and James McGinley are rock collectors. "The rocks got us started making jewelry," said Alice. "I didn't want to be a rock hound. On my first trip to the desert, I thought, 'these CRAZY people in THIS heat. . .' Then I found a marvelous piece of jade at Monterey. On another trip to Horse Canyon, I picked up a superb moss agate. That converted me."

Her husband cuts and polishes their rock finds.

ANOTHER GEOLOGY HOUND, Bill Pearson, made an impressive number of pieces since class began in the fall. He took care of his Christmas list by making gifts like the silver cuff links set with diplodocus, dinosaur bone to you. The stones were in blended shades of warm browns and moss green and dappled with the tiny sparkles of bone crystals.

Another jewelry maker, Margaret Redfield carefully fits her paper pattern around a slim piece of pink and black rhodinite. When she has it symmetrically pleasing, she will place the paper pattern on her sheet of sterling silver and carefully saw it out. It will soon become a smart free-form pendant.

Gem enthusiast Kathryn Lee Matthie is making plans to mount a huge amethyst in a ring. She purchased the stone in Cairo when she was stationed there. Now she wishes she had gotten more gems when she had the chance.

Others who are not rock hounds like to work in gold, silver, copper wire or the sheet metals. There is an unlimited field for designing the contemporary style of ornament, which is the particular gift of Ruth Murphy. Rock hounds declare that no particular talent other than an interest in this hobby is necessary because it is very easy to learn.

Rachael Jameson is making novel earrings and buttons of polished abalone shell, besides making a pair of cufflinks for her granddaughter. This hobby is equally appealing to men and women. Those who work often spend their evenings at this fascinating occupation.

Roy Riegels wishes people would forget his whacky run.

He Galloped Wrong Way

(Editor's Note: As a center for the University of California, Roy Rigels brought more than 70,000 spectators screaming to their feet in the Rose Bowl some 26 years ago. Here's how he did it and what he thinks about the whole thing today.)

By Joseph Lipper

AP Newsfeatures Writer

ROY RIEGELS is one famous personality of yesteryear who prefers to be a forgotten man today.

He's the University of California center who recovered a Georgia Tech fumble in the Jan. 1, 1929 Rose Bowl game and ran 64 yards — the wrong way — before a teammate tackled him on the Cal one-yard line.

The play — before 71,104 howling spectators in the Pasadent oval — set up a Tech safety for the two points which proved the edge the Georgians needed to win, 8-7.

The incident came early in the second quarter after the teams had switched directions.

"That was a long time ago," the 47-year-old Riegels says today, "and the more people forget me, the better I like it."

Now a successful sales executive for a large cannery, the husky ex-lineman says his job, his two young sons and his hobby of puttering around his suburban home keep him too busy to think much about football.

"I get to a couple of California games each year," he adds, "but it's been a long time since I went back to the Rose Bowl as a spectator."

MOST ANNIVERSARIES of his famous run go unnoticed.

Once in a while, sports writers telephone him and ask if the incident dogged his life.

The stock answer: "No."

The fact is, he played great ball after the first-half boner, he was captain of the team the next year and, in business, his territory extends from Michigan to the west coast.

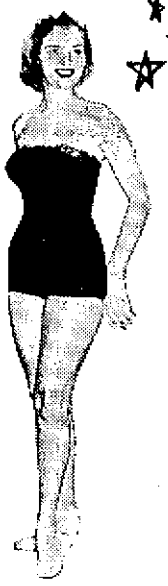

Riegels seldom hauls out the scrap books with clippings chronicling his backward fame and other football feats.

"My boys, David and Richard, are 11 and 8," he said. "They are young now. But as they grow up, they may start asking questions and I suppose we'll blow the dust off the books and take a look."

Faith Domergue plays the role of a beauty who can transform herself into a cobra in her latest film.

Hollywood Paradoxes

Motion pictures produce many paradoxes. For instance, there's lovely Faith Domergue, who won her current starring role in "Cult of the Cobra" at Universal-International because she realized the dramatic effectiveness of paradox. The film is a fantasy in the realm of terror fiction and Faith's role is that of a beautiful woman who can change herself into a deadly cobra and back again into a human being. If that were not paradox enough, Faith appeared for a test in simple but smart gown and with nothing in hair styling or makeup to indicate that she was anything more than a normal, well-groomed woman. She felt that this would heighten the effect of the eventual transition. She won the role over 20 other actresses who competed in slinky gowns and coiffures and makeup calculated to give a reptilian effect. Another paradox is Marjorie Main, who attempts to acquire the exotic charm of an island maid in "Ma and Pa Kettle in Waikiki." Waikiki quakes when Marjorie shakes!

Marjorie Main shimmies and shakes in her latest Ma and Pa Kettle picture with Hawaiian background.

Tennessee Ernie Ford did so well as George Gobel guest, a repeat visit is to be on schedule soon.

TELEVISION

Luckily He Went Broke

By Terry Vernon

Independent Television Columnist

NOBODY LIKES to go broke, but Tennessee Ernie Ford is thankful for the one occasion when he ran out of cash.

After the war, Ernie and his wife, Betty, had decided to homestead in Alaska. They bought a car and were en route towards their first crop of snowballs when they ran out of cash at San Bernardino. It was Betty's home town, so Ernie decided to try his luck at the only thing he knew besides farming —radio announcing—at which he had taken a whirl when he was 18.

He grabbed a part-time job to build up some getaway money, and after a month was offered a regular spot as a hillbilly disc jockey.

Alaska, as far as Ernie was concerned, went back into the geography books, and today Tennessee Ernie Ford is potentially one of the big stars of show business, with a five-a-week 40-minute CBS air show, a Monday-through-Friday half-hour NBC telecast, hit Capitol records and national prominence after several guestings on "I Love Lucy," "Toast of the Town" and a stint with comic George Gobel.

Ernie was born in Ford Town, Tenn., on Feb. 13, 1919, and was christened Ernest J. Ford. Later his family moved to Bristol, Tenn., where he attend school. After working in a dry cleaning shop and as a grocery clerk, he started to hang around the local radio stations and finally was hired as a staff announcer in 1937 for $10 per week.

Meanwhile, he was taking private singing lessons. At the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music he developed his voice for serious music.

It was a month after the San Bernardino incident that Ernie became a hillbilly disc jockey for KXLA, Pasadena.

There he met Cliffie Stone, who, after listening to him sing, signed him for his Saturday night program of western music.

So I Built It Myself

By Roberta Nichols

THIS IS AN ESTIMATE for a simple little patio and a few plants? $1250? I didn't ask for a replica of the Taj Mahal. Just a simple little patio and some plants — nothing fancy. Look at this item. Labor $750! Why for 2 cents I'd do the job myself. What special skill? OK, I will do it myself.

Yep. Did it all myself — well practically. Anybody is a fool to pay what those contractors ask. Do it yourself and save. That's my motto. How much did I save? Well now I don't happen to have the figures handy — but plenty, you can just bet. No, dear. NO. You needn't go get them. Mr. Oglethorpe isn't that interested. Oh, all right, show him. But just remember the satisfaction a man gets from creating something.

He Went Broke

This was the beginning of Tennessee Ernie.

Since 1949 Ernie's life has been a regular Horatio Alger story. He's a regular on television and radio, and on the night club wheel, has played top spots like the Copacabana in New York and the Thunderbird and Last Frontier in Las Vegas. He holds the distinction of being the first western entertainer to play the London Palladium.

Ernie has had several records which sold over a million.

More recently he sang the song behind the title and credits for the movie "River of No Return," starring Marilyn Monroe and Robert Mitchum.

UNLIKE MOST stars, Ernie wants no part of the plush living in Beverly Hills or the valley. Instead, he spends hours commuting between his ranch-style home in Whittier and the studios. He feels the time is well spent because it gives members of his family the freedom they love.

Ernie and Betty have two boys, Jeffrey (Buck) Buckner, 5, and Brion Leonard, 2.

Buck was delighted when his father added "Ford" to his professional name recently. The boy said he finally had a last name like everyone else.

California Was Too Darned Tough for Judge Roy Bean.

Judge Bean Was a Sissy

By C. B. Popes

JUDGE ROY BEAN was "Law, West of the Pecos" and a terror in Texas, but he just didn't have what it takes in California. As a matter of fact, one might say he was run out of the state.

He came to San Diego by way of Kentucky and Chihuahua, Mexico. That was in 1848 and he is said to have left Mexico in a hurry with the law on his trail. He had killed a man in self-defense.

It was a good although a sudden move for when he landed in San Diego in 1850 he found his brother Joshua was the alcalde and a prosperous citizen. It was a free and easy town with something happening all the time to keep a young man occupied: Racing, cock fighting, parties and gorgeous girls. Bean immediately entered into the spirit of the times.

ROY BEAN was said to have been a real dude. He adopted the slashed-bottom pants, kerchiefs and most of the startling effects of the Californians. Everything was glorious until he got in a dispute with a Scotchman named Collins. Each thought he was the better shot.

"Let's do some target shooting and stop all this arguing," said Bean.

"All right by me," said Collins. "Name your target."

"You and me," said Bean. "We'll ride down Main St. at full gallop and shoot at each other."

Collins was startled but he accepted the challenge. A great crowd gathered next day to see the shooting match. Bean was the best shot and he proved it by winging the other man. They both landed in jail.

He was there several weeks, for his brother had moved to San Gabriel where he was major general in the state militia. Bean didn't like the jail, so one night he broke out.

He said later that it was a one-man break with the aid of a beautiful senorita. (All the girls in his stories were beautiful.) San Diego historians say he went out through a tunnel with 23 Indians. The Indians dug the tunnel.

WHEN ROY reached San Gabriel he found his brother was running the Headquarters Saloon, near the San Gabriel Mission. Roy put on an apron and served drinks as well as carrying on his social activities.

Southern California was a rugged place then and most of the hard cases appeared at the Headquarters Saloon at one time or another. There is a well verified story of a quiet, well dressed little chap appearing at the bar one day. He was in such startling contrast to the other patrons that he was immediately spotted.

One of the tougher patrons, well in his cups, approached the little man and said, "Say a word and I'll blow your head off."

Bean immediately interceded. He didn't like paying customers being killed. The little man said, "Don't bother about me. I'll handle this character."

He then pulled a derringer from the lining of his coat and backed the hard case against the wall. He lit a cigar and after getting it going well he thrust it up a nostril of the erstwhile bad man.

Roy liked a place like that.

His brother Joshua was killed by an assassin, so Roy took over the operation of the bar. Maj. Horace Bell tells of visiting Bean at the Headquarters. He found him standing at the door laughing and chortling. He was admiring a hanging that was taking place at a nearby corral.

"Ain't that rich?" he asked Bell. "That's really good." He couldn't resist getting closer so he asked Bell to watch the place, "so no damned scoundrel will steal my whiskey" and rushed out to participate.

THERE IS SOME MYSTERY about Roy's departure from California. It is certain he left broke and it is equally certain he carried his head canted to one side. He couldn't turn his head. He had to turn his whole body.

When he was mellow and around friends he would loosen the bandana he wore, part his whiskers and show a welt around his neck. "I got hung once out in California." He then told of difficulties over a beautiful senorita, a jealous Army officer and a rope too long. The latter allowed his toes to touch the ground and prevented his being strangled.

He appeared in Mesilla, N. M., ragged, dirty and hungry and leading a lame horse. There he found his brother Sam who was a local tycoon. He remained in New Mexico until the Civil War when he became an irregular Confederate soldier with a troop called the Free Rovers by some, and the Forty Thieves by others. He then moved to an alkai plain in Texas where he dispensed justice, lined his pockets and made up laws as he went along.

Southern California was too rough and tough for Roy Bean. Texas must be where Southern California used to send her sissies.

Barbecued Pot Roast

By Mildred K. Flanary
Press-Telegram Home Economics Editor

Delicious barbecued pot roast in the making, with Mrs. Charles P. London supervising and her son and daughter, Steve and Diane, savoring the aroma.

FOOD, sans personality and graciousness, might be likened to a buggy without a horse — it's just "no go!" Too much food, too much hurry, too much hovering over your guests, is equally bad also.

Entertaining must be fun, even for the hostess. Warm weather entertaining, to be fun, needs a bit more careful planning to make less work, less confusion and be completely casual.

The Londons at 4701 E. Ocean Blvd. are rated "tops" as hosts. An invitation to their home always means fun, relaxation and excellent eating. The reason: All of the family — Charles, Phyllis, Diane and Steve — get into the act. The actual menu is no doubt planned by Phyllis with something from the barbecue as a focal point.

A barbecued pot roast is one of their favorites. Fact is, they enjoyed it so very much at the home of a friend that they "borrowed" the recipe. As of today, each of you may "borrow" it, too.

Kitchen Tip:

A dash of salt on juice that runs over in the oven will absorb the juice and stop smoking.

Phyllis explains that Charlie usually mixes the sauce, and is quite sure that he never measures — "just adds . . . so these measurements are just 'by guess and by golly.'"

Diane and Steve like this just as well as hamburgers, and all of the last-minute fuss is avoided. For the children and their friends, Phyllis serves roasting ears, a green salad and plenty of olives, with ice cream cones for dessert.

Mrs. London's Barbecued Pot Roast

Use 7-bone or round-bone roast. Tenderize with meat tenderizer the day before using, and marinate with barbecue sauce at least six hours. The coals should be well burned down and not too hot since the meat cooks quite a while. (About 1½ hours.)

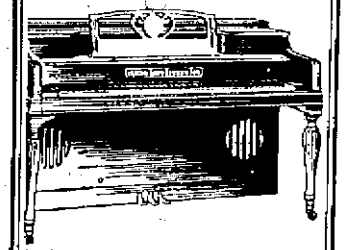

BARBECUE SAUCE

1 cup catsup
Dash tabasco
½ cup Worcestershire Sauce
1 clove garlic (minced)
Onion salt
Fresh ground pepper (good teaspoonful)
1 cup salad oil
1 tablespoon vinegar
½ teaspoon liquid smoke

Mrs. London adds no salt because the meat tenderizer is sufficient for her family's taste. She says the basic recipe for the barbecue sauce can be varied by adding prepared mustard, tomato paste, chili powder and other ingredients to taste.

California Designed

By Eileen Ball

"CALIFORNIA DESIGNED" —a label rapidly gaining world-wide recognition — designates the display of manufactured items in home furnishings and equipment now attracting attention at Municipal Art Center, 2300 E. Ocean Blvd.

The exhibit, said Director Sam Heavenrich, may be seen Tuesdays through Fridays from 2 to 5 p. m., and Sundays from 1 to 6 p. m.

The fact that California is a leading exponent of casual living has been known nationally for years. Not so well known is the role its native designers have played in contributing furniture, fabrics and accessories compatible—even necessary—to the casual mode of life.

Furniture designed with simplicity of detail and near-classic design, hand and machine-loomed fabrics of earth tones livened with shots of pure color and accessories existent to serve specific functions around the house are included in museum-type display.

A first-hand acquaintance with the manner in which Californians love to live and entertain out of doors prompted Russell Bayly of Pasadena to create a novel and wonderful practical hibachi table. Entered in the Art Center display, it is causing considerable comment and enthusiastic approval.

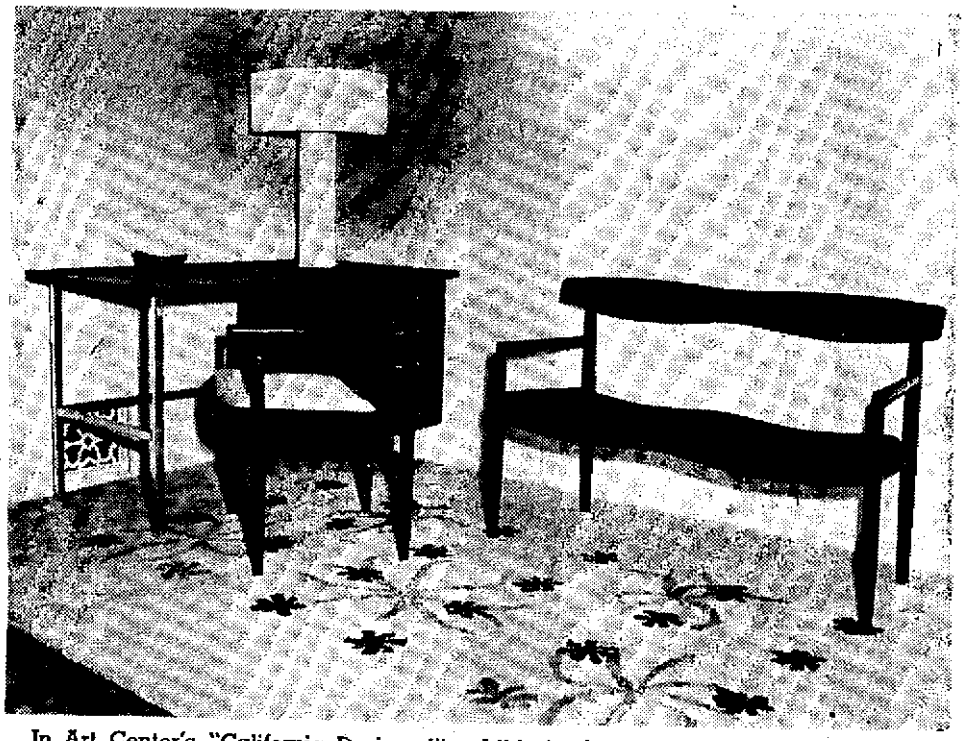

SET INTO A FRAME of sturdy common angle iron, the table top is composed of a slab of concrete bordered by a natural walnut liner which rests in the iron frame. Centering the table is a well designed to accommodate a cast iron hibachi, a squat charcoal brazier of the sort used throughout the Orient for heating as well as cooking purposes. Set into the middle of this ingenious cocktail or serving table, the little stove provides the perfect answer to the problem of how to enjoy an evening on the patio when the breeze grows chill. Guests may draw up to the table and enjoy the warmth of the glowing charcoal.

Another item on prominent and handsome display is a chair designed by the local decorator and designer, Stanley Young. Young has been a prolific and successful contributor to the market of fine contemporary furniture for many years. This chair, an interesting high-backed upholstered piece faintly reminiscent of the classic wing chair, is upholstered in a hot orange fabric.

Typical of the multi-purpose, mobile trend in casual furniture is the bar-buffet designed by John Keal of South Gate. This good looking piece of case furniture is composed of pale mahogany topped with a serving surface of sturdy white micarta.

THE FUNCTIONS such a cabinet could perform are virtu-

cabinet is the manner in which it conceals the storage of six handsome serving trays. Brass legs unfold to give the white, plastic-topped snack tables sturdy support.

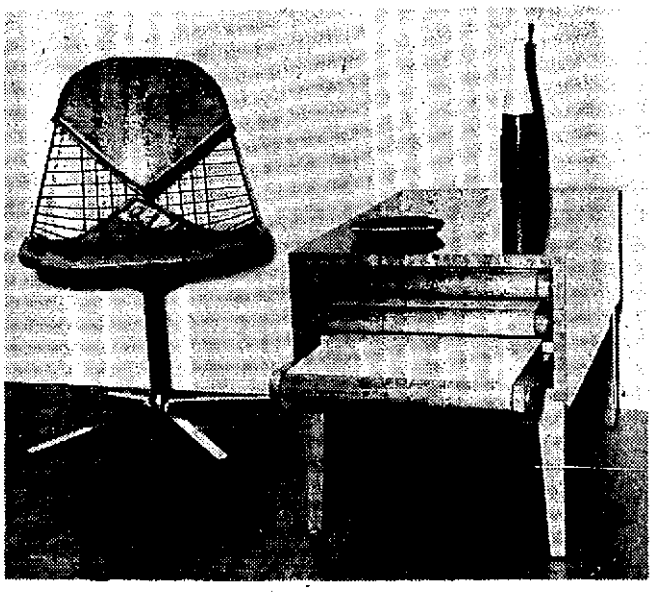

Indicative of the economy and function that are so often happily teamed in contemporary accessories are the tables designed by Albert Clarke. Natural burlap laminated with clear plastic forms the round "pie pan" shaped incidental tables. Lightweight, scuff, burn, and moisture proof, these inexpensive little service tables portray all that is best in the new trend.

In an era when room dividers — especially mobile arrangements—are in such demand the screen designed by Henri Yakahashi of San Francisco poses as one of the potential hits of the show. Using a semi-oqaque Japanese paper encasing butterflies and interesting arrangements of pressed leaves and fern, this shoji screen provides a light, easily movable and attractive background.

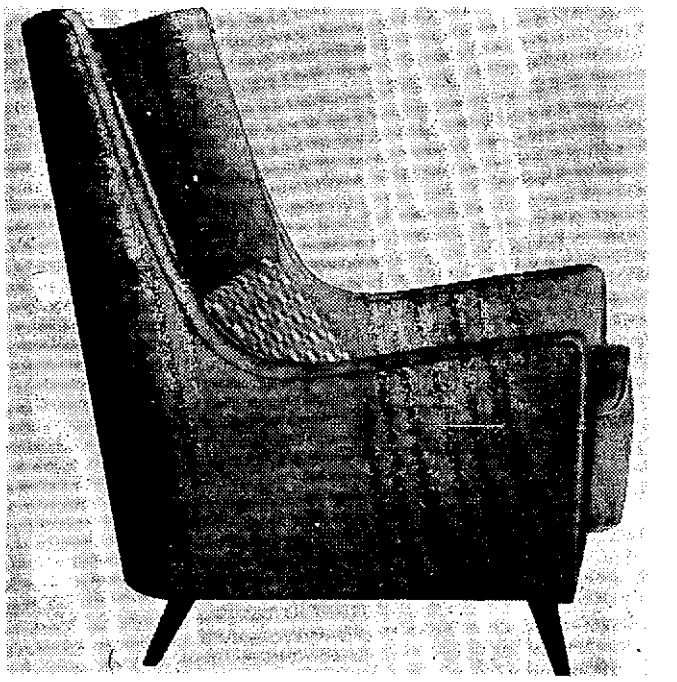

CALIFORNIA ARTISTS specializing in ceramic and sculptured art recognize Malcolm Leland as one of the most outstanding representatives of their field. On display at the Art Center is a Malcolm Leland contemporary garden lamp created of terra cotta clay. Composed of a series of hollow spheres stacked one upon the other, each unit is designed to house a squat votive candle.

Innovations in tableware and accessories include entries by Edith Heath, creator of the famous Heathware. Allan Adler, contemporary silversmith, has offered unusually lovely salt and peppers created of silver and jade enamel.

Certain to stimulate such comment throughout the show is the provocative portable fireplace designed by George Kosmak of San Francisco. Created from a hollow sphere of black steel, it is readily adaptable for use in situations where a more conventional masonry fireplace is impractical.

Pivot chair of plastic over steel is by Charles Eames. Nest of mahogany tables is by John Keal.

Stanley Young of Long Beach designed this high-backed armchair, reminiscent of classic wing chair.

Teen-Ager With Ideas

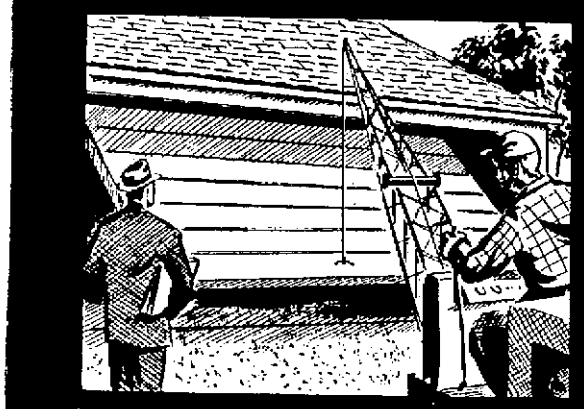

By Katherine Csiki

"BUT — IT has no personality!" Joanne Beaulieu turned away from the door of the room which had just been assigned to her in her new home.

Stepping to the door beside Joanne, I had to admit that at the tender age of 16, I'd probably have thought the same thing.

BOOK REVIEWS

Vicissitudes of a Minister's Wife

MINISTER'S WIFE: Margaret Echard's new novel, "The Unbelieving Wife" (Longmans, Green, $3.50), is a human tale with spiritual impact. Though she was in love with Bruce Cameron, Vicki Sanderson rejected him when she learned he was to become a minister. Bruce, after his return from war, was thrilled to see the gold lettering on the bronze plaque of the sanctuary: "Grace Presbyterian Church, Rev. Bruce Cameron, Minister." Later, Vicki, when she realized the two were meant for each other, was married, and began her life as a minister's wife.

Miss Echard, in this smoothly flowing novel, relates with admirable clarity and keen perception the problems of a wife, devoted to her husband, who is devoted to his work for Christ. At times fun-loving Vicki finds her problems almost too difficult to handle, but handle them she does. With her minister husband, a richer life begins.

The humanitarian concern is here, and a heightened spirituality; and with more and more people turning to the churches, this tale of a Presbyterian minister and his loving and proud wife should be read by people hungry for religion and for the better novel. Miss Echard's work rises several levels above much of the fiction being published today.—J. J. K.

MIKE GARGAN was a top used car salesman, both for the unscrupulous O'Hara—who specialized in loading customers up with junk heaps and extra charges—and later for himself when he opened across from O'Hara under the name of Laughing Mike. And in the process he came very near making a tramp out of Pat Clark, an unworldly but lovable little redhead from a small town near by. That's the gist of "Take All You Can Get," a hard-bitten, entertaining novel by Steve Fisher, Hollywood scenario writer (Random House, $3.50). —F. T. K.

HIGH FUN ON HIGH PLANE: J. B. Priestley's "Low Notes on a High Level" (Harper, $2.75) is a briskly moving comedy about musician Alan Applerose and others who make of a broadcasting network one of the world's fascinating businesses. Mr. Priestley's business is humor in the cerebral manner, and if it is escapist literature, it is work of a high order by a serious craftsman who seems to be writing for the fun of it.

ADVENTURE: If you like strange adventure in far places, try "Expedition Tumuc-Humac" (Doubleday, $4), a well told and excitement-packed account of a

ELINOR GLYN

One of the truly fascinating literary figures of the century was Elinor Glyn, author of "Three Weeks" (a novel which sold five million copies), the movie "It" (which starred Clara Bow), and other stories which will forever document the Jazz era. Now, as fascinating as this woman herself comes her biography, "Elinor Glyn," written by her grandson, Anthony Glyn (Doubleday, $4.50), and it will bring nostalgic memories to the older generation, delightful reading to the young.

GARALD LAGARD

Author of Scarlet Cockerel

A novel of the Civil War with a new and unique setting: a traveling tent show in Georgia in 1863. "A rattling good show, with easy good humor, a zesty, crackling, free-swinging yarn that's the best of its kind in a long time. It makes melodrama not only palatable but chucklesome." — Harnett T. Kane, N. Y. Times. "A vivid, vigorous story loaded with love and hate, simplicity and intrigue, and not without some amusing, well-turned humor. MORROW

Her Face Is 'Perfect'

Barbara Rush, says Bud Westmore, ace Hollywood makeup man, is the girl with the perfect face.

By BUD WESTMORE
(Director of make-up for Universal-International Studios)

A MOVIE make-up man's life would be a bed of roses if all the glamour queens had faces like that of Barbara Rush.

Lots of women — film stars among them — manage to look attractive from a certain angle. Catch them on their bad side and it may be quite another spectacle.

In preparing Miss Rush for her starring role with Rock Hudson in the CinemaScope Irish adventure story, "Captain Lightfoot," I had occasion to appraise her features from every conceivable view.

A make-up artist has to put himself in the position of the camera lens. It's his job to know ahead of time how an actress will appear in any move she may be called upon to make.

Miss Rush, I discovered, is that much-to-be-envied creature — a girl with a perfect face.

I think every woman can learn a lesson from Barbara's approach to make-up. She believes in being as natural as possible, which means the use of a minimum of cosmetics or other artificial aids.

LET'S LOOK at her face analytically — just as we might in the make-up department.

To begin with, she uses her own eyebrows, instead of penciling them in. They are permitted to retain their natural shape, instead of being contoured into some incredible arc.

She seldom uses rouge, but when she does she applies only a dash — a brush of faint color — which is blended so carefully that there is no hard, red line anywhere.

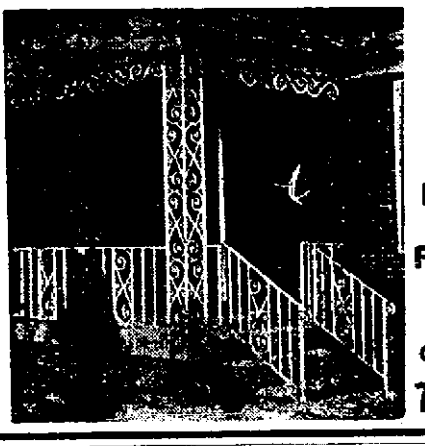

For her lips she relies on a light-hued application, sparingly applied, with the natural line of the lips being retained.

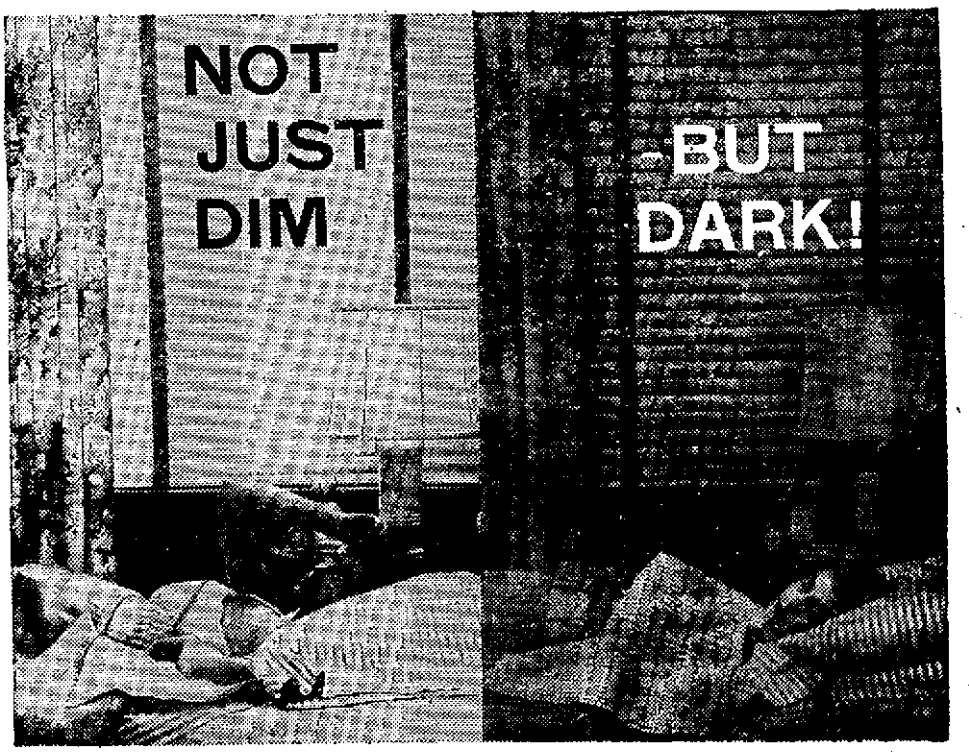

She uses no powder.

Her hair always looks lush and glistening because it is meticulously groomed.

Not every woman may possess these flawless features, but almost everyone interested in personal beauty can benefit by Barbara's practices.

TEEN IDEAS

The walls of the room were a sickly green, the floor was deeply scarred by its former occupant and the bedroom suite fairly shrieked that its secondhand price of $35 had been more than its true worth.

"That bed and vanity — not to mention the old-fashioned highboy — look like they came out of the Ark!" Joanne cried. "And their peeled-brown-paint look goes perfectly with those horrible walls." She looked back at the scene bleakly.

Less than a month later, the room couldn't have been recognized. What is more, the renovation cost less than $20.

Two quarts of rose-colored paint put a soft glow on three sides of the room. Another quart of gray paint on the fourth wall added depth. Joanne painted the old-fashioned woodwork cream color, then carried out the color scheme by painting the sad-looking bedroom set the same color, using plastic paint on the furniture.

THE FOLLOWING DAY there was inexpensive linoleum laid from wall to wall on the scarred floor. She had chosen a light wood-color, with a conservative pattern which looked like narrow board flooring.

The room was soft looking and cozy now, and I thought that it was finished. But next day, Joanne was busily engaged with pencil, carbon paper and a coloring book, tracing pictures on dresser drawers.

"I'm doing the 'theme.'" She flourished a page, torn from the coloring book.

The theme was a delightful array of ballet dancers, taken from famous ballet scenes. Joanne transferred these from the 10-cent coloring book to the drawers of the vanity dresser and chest of drawers. Using 35-cent bottles of rubber enamel bought at a hobby shop, she stenciled the ballet figures in black. Then, she added small dabs of Chinese red and dashes of Prang gold paint to sashes and flounces, lips and long lashes so that the scenes stood out vividly against the cream-colored background.

New Ideas in Doors

Have you noticed your front door lately? It is probably the most prominent moving part of your home—and often the least noticed by the owner. It provides comfort and security for your family and welcomes the arriving guest.

Door styles, dormant for years, were revolutionized by the advent of the slab, or flush door which instantly became popular. It is made with either a solid or hollow core faced with a pleasing variety of foreign and domestic plywoods. Its unbroken surface and clean lines blend perfectly with modern design.

If you're building a new home or remodeling an old one we'd like to show you the latest ideas in doors.

second and successful attempt by a party of three -- including author Francis Maziere — to explore the remote Tumuc-Humac mountains which form a part of the Brazil-French Guiana frontier deep in South America. With Maziere were Vladimir Ivanov and Dominique Darbois, the latter a woman, and they took many pictures to document their contact with Indian tribes, a liberal number of which are reproduced.

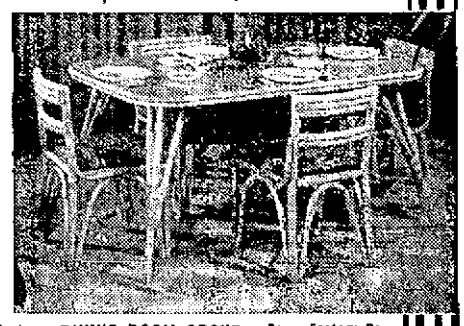

CALIFORNIANA: Historians and collectors of Californiana will welcome "Palou's Life of Junipero Serra," translated and edited by Maynard J. Geiger, OFM, of Old Mission Santa Barbara and published by the Academy of American Franciscan History. Palou is the source into which writers and others dip for accurate life story of the Father of California Missions. The new edition explains Palou where his text is not self-explanatory.

ETIQUETTE: Good manners and good breeding never change, but modes of living do. This is the premise upon which "Etiquette," by Emily Post, has gone into its newest and ninth edition (Funk & Wagnalls, $5). With the coming of the airplane, development of newer services in train and steamship travel; with radio and television changing old ways, hundreds of little courtesies become necessary in the lives of men and women of good manners. The author brings her readers up to date on changing social usages.

CRYSTAL CLEAR: Amanda Benjamin Hall, contributor to The New Yorker and many quality journals, proves in her sixth book, "Frosty Harp" (Golden Quill Press, Francestown, N. Y., $2.50), that she has grown above her former high level. The poet shows depth and gaiety, common sense and aristocracy; and that rare quality, magic, creeps between her crystal clear lines. Published by the firm that publishes the Book Club for Poetry selections, in white cloth and blue jacket, the volume is one of the year's most attractive books. Happily, the pieces shine with the same lovely sturdiness.—J. J. K.

Light Makes Your Snapshots

It's the light on the subject that counts; camera user could be in complete darkness and still get a picture.

By the Shutterbug

HAVE YOU EVER thought about how important a factor light is in taking pictures? As a matter of fact, there would be no picture at all without it. For it is the light entering your camera when you open the shutter that creates the image on the film — light that is reflected from the subject, into your camera, and onto the film.

In taking pictures, the lens and shutter of your camera act just as the human eye does. The iris of the eye admits light, which in turn registers an image on the retina. Just as the iris adjusts automatically to brighter or weaker light, your camera lets you accomplish the same effect by means of its adjustable lens and shutter.

To obtain exactly the right quantity of light every time you take a picture, you soon learn to mix a little observation with a little mechanical help. The easiest mechanical assistance for you to have is the exposure table packed with most film — or perhaps you'd prefer one of the 25-cent pocket-size guides which allow you to dial the proper ex-

And They Bought a Dog

By Eleanor Avery Price

NO SHETLAND SHEEPDOGS are more beautiful or more charming than the Blackthorne dogs owned by the Powell family, 4209 Blackthorne Ave., and this family's success story with these fine dogs started all because an understanding mother, who didn't even care for dogs in the beginning, permitted her oldest school-age daughter, Helen Faye, to own a puppy.

Mrs. Powell insisted, however, that the dog be a purebred and

Fuchsias Give Year-'Round Joy

By Bob Gilmore

Fuchsias are abundant bloomers, easy to grow. Here they are in pleasant contrast to the white pillars.

IT IS POSSIBLE to have fuchsias blooming in Long Beach gardens during every month of the year. You can do this by selecting an assortment of varieties and by pruning back at different periods. Some fuchsias may be cut back as early as August while others should be cut in February and March. No Southern California garden should be without at least a few fuchsias for these colorful shrubs flower with zest and may be used advantageously both indoors and outside.

In Southern California fuchsias serve a utilitarian as well as an ornamental purpose. Some varieties will be found most attractive for covering walls and fences. They may be used as specimen plants, for the patio and conservatory. Fuchsias are also one of the most valuable subjects for potting to be found in this section. If you have never grown a fuchsia then a real gardening thrill awaits you.

Close to the coast fuchsias may be grown in the sun but inland a shady spot will be found more to their liking. The plants have come to be known as shade lovers largely because they cannot stand a full exposure to hot sun at mid-day or during the afternoon. A northern or eastern exposure suits them quite well, and then you will not have to worry about protecting them during July, August and September. The single-flowered varieties seem capable of tolerating more abuse than the double forms.

Fuchsias are close to home in this area, many of them being native of Mexico, others coming from South America and New Zealand. Many amateur gardeners identify the fuchias as a shrub of average proportions. Actually a few varieties attain tree-like dimensions and in time may reach a height of twenty feet or more. They may be trained to form pillars or pyramids and as such lend themselves to formal arrangements. The foliage is quite soft and most varieties react favorably to light pruning or shaping up all during the year. Young plants should be pinched back to encourage a more compact habit of growth.

THE MAJOR PRUNING should take place after the plants become dormant. This is usually during the winter season. In regions of extreme cold it is best to postpone pruning until all danger of frost has passed. All weak branches should be removed and the remaining wood cut back rather sharply. This treatment encourages a healthy growth and is essential to heavy production of flowers for the following season. Old established fuchsias that have lost their shape should be pruned thoroughly. A heavy whacking will pop them up.

Fuchsias will be happy only if well fed and watered. They must not lack for moisture during the summer months. In fact they seem to do best when grown in a fairly humid environment. Conditions very much to their liking are along the coast where it is cool and foggy. From time to time during the summer give your fuchsias a shower bath. This treatment washes away any dust accummlation and helps to clear the atmosphere. It is also believed that a thorough syringing is of some value for controlling garden pests. Fuchsias prefer a soil that is on the acid side so don't try to grow them on land than has been heavily limed.

LONG BEACH CAMERA GUILD has won further recognition for its work in color photography — this time in a national organization, the Photographic Society of America. This past week the PSA had a final windup of color slide judging a contest in which the top five slides in all groups at showings throughout the year were entered. Long Beach Camera Guild belongs in Triple A class, and for her entry in this class, Elva Hayward, of the local club, was awarded a silver medal. Her slide was a pastoral scene taken in Colorado. Judges were Fred Archer, Hon. Fellowship Photographic Society of America; George Brauer, Associate Photographic Society of America; Leo Moore, APSA; Mel Phegley, APSA, president-elect of PSA, and Chet Taylor, past president of Southern California Council of Camera Clubs.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA Council of Camera Clubs, with which the Long Beach Guild is affiliated, will have a summer outing Sunday, July 24, at Paradise Cove, on the Coast Highway 6½ miles north of Malibu Pier. The cove is ideally located for picture taking.

EARL EVERELY will be host at the annual meeting of the Long Beach Cinema Club Wednesday evening at his home, 4228 Rose Ave.

House Plants Can Go Outdoors

By Henry Pree

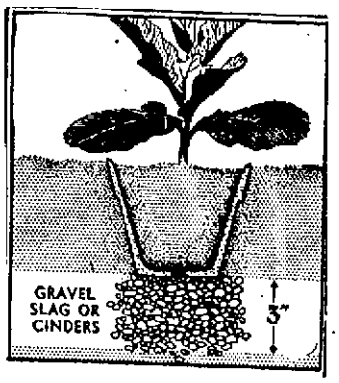

HOUSE PLANTS, especially the heavily foliated plants like ivies, pandanus, sansevieria, rubber plant and dracena migrate to the garden each year.

Semishaded spots receiving morning sunshine and protection against strong winds suit them best, and you must provide them with an ample supply of water.

To lessen the chore of watering, and make it possible for the gardener to go on his vacation, the pots should be buried to their rims in soil. The base of the pots should rest on a two or three-inch layer of gravel, slag or cinders to provide free drainage to discourage roots from emerging through the drainage hole, and to repel earthworms.

Treat amaryllis to a summer in the garden where they may finish leaf growth before "resting."

Dust and spray in anticipation of insect and fungus attacks. The all-purpose mixtures are effective against a wide range of insects, rust, mildew and other diseases. Where aphids are a serious menace, spray or dust with lindane, malathion or blackleaf 40.

Resting base of pot upon gravel assists drainage.

Continue to make small plantings at two-week intervals of gladiolus bulbs to insure a long season of bloom. Remember that they are gross feeders, and need cultivation and plenty of water.

Do not let thrips get the better of the plants; dust or spray the bulbs before planting with DDT, and continue the DDT habit every week from the time the first green sprouts appear until the flower beds show color. Give applications of liquid fertilizer every two weeks as soon as the plants are growing vigorously — increasing the amount when flower spikes begin to show.

Set out dahlia tubers. Insert the stakes firmly, then lay the tuber on its side, about six inches deep, with the eye or sprout turned upwards next to the stake; cover with three inches of soil to which superphosphate has been added. As the plants grow, level the hole with soil.

EARLY-SOWN or planted vegetables are making rapid growth by now. The gardener must keep the hoe or cultivator busy to prevent the weeds from taking over.

The hard crust that is formed on the soil by the rains must also be broken up by your favorite cultivating method. Regularity of cultivation in the garden will make this task much easier to do than if the ground is left to become hard and packed.

Side dressing is recommended, especially where plants are making a slow growth in poor soil. This should be applied after the crop has commenced to make fair growth and the roots are large enough to assimilate the extra plant nutrients.

Choose a quick-acting fertilizer, one which will dissolve in water. But be careful not to drop any on the tender foliage as this might cause injury. Dissolve four ounces of the fertilizer to each gallon of water and sprinkle with a watering can near the plants.

. . . AND THEY BOUGHT A DOG

that Helen Faye and her sister, Vera Ruth, part with their cat. So the cat rode off in a bakery truck to a new home that welcomed it, and Helen went to a dog show to find the breed she would love the most.

Helen stayed a long time admiring the many fine breeds on display in both the show and obedience rings. When she came home, she announced she wanted a Shetland sheepdog.

A puppy was purchased and traveled with the Powells from Ohio to California. The family loved the dog and was grief stricken when it and a number of other dogs in the neighborhood were mysteriously poisoned.

A second puppy was purchased soon after and was shipped here from North Carolina. The dog turned out to be considerably over-sized, so a third was bought. His name is Tiny Tim, and he is the forerunner of many of the fine dogs that followed, for the Powells decided to raise puppies as well as buy an occasional good one.

Ruling out sentiment, they kept the best in the litters and worked diligently to improve the temperament, conformation, intelligence and health of their stock. Since Shetland sheepdogs are best when not produced in quantities, and since, indeed, a "Sheltie factory" is virtually impossible, the going may have seemed a little slow, but the good results of the Blackthorne dogs are very apparent.

Helen is pictured on Page 35 as she is today with two of her fine dogs, on the left, five-year-old International Champion Blackthorne's Firebrand, who took Best of Breed in the past three Harbor Cities Kennel Club Shows in Long Beach, and on the right Champion Blackthorne's Golden Nugget, aged three.

The Shetland sheepdog is referred to as a collie in miniature, but the Powells say it is erroneous to call him a toy collie.

HOW TO Stretch Decorating Dollars, Add Utility to Your Home

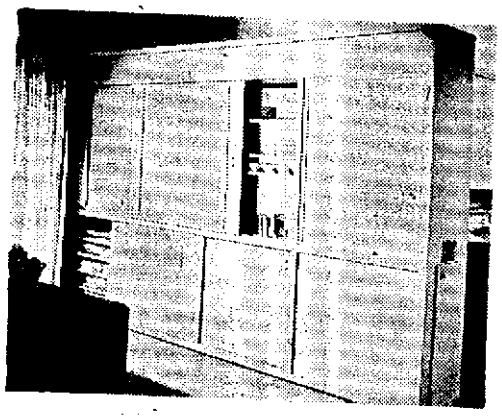

1. DISTINCTIVE SLIDING doors to a bedroom decorate this small hall. Wood design, repeating that used for the railing around stairway, was copied from a design found in a Korean book. Decorative design of doors is backed by burlap, which is painted a bright red for accent and mounted on removable panels. It can be changed when the color scheme is changed.

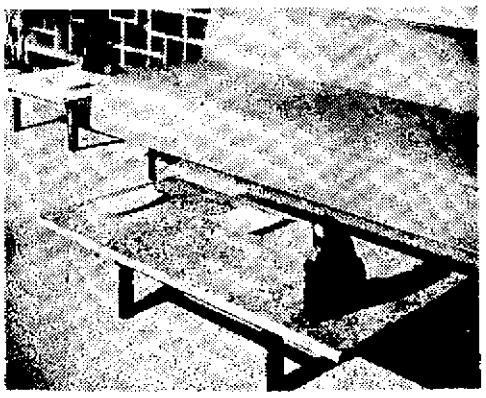

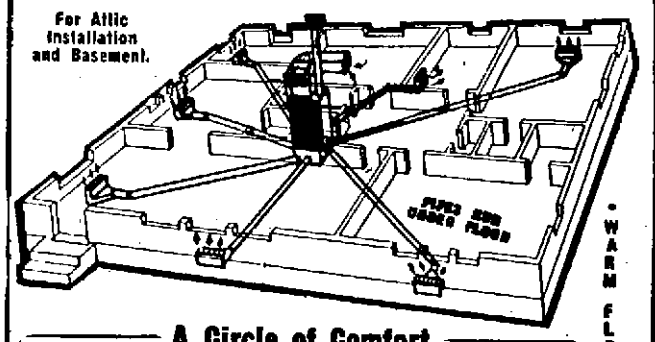

2. HANGING WALL divides breakfast room and utility area from kitchen. Note how a "wall" is created for the range. Drop-down shelves double as breakfast counters and a place to sort laundry on washing and ironing days. As this is a "family only" part of the home, the owners decided to have fun by painting the "mural" on the back of the hanging cabinet.

3. STORAGE WALL, which opens on both dining and kitchen sides, saves space. Again burlap is used on the sliding doors, plus double strips of wood to add an interesting design touch. Burlap is now available already sized, so it's easily hung like wallpaper. It comes in pretty colors, or you can paint it to suit yourself.

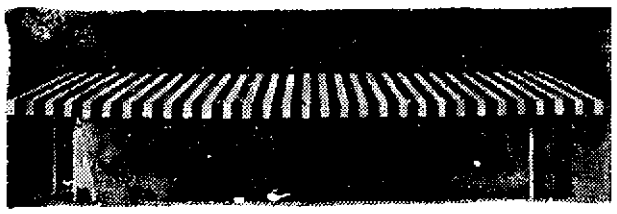

4. MARBLE PLACED on "what was handy" made this distinctive table. Coffee table base was a vanity bench with a wicker top. Wicker was removed, frame cut down and painted flat black. The large piece of salvaged marble simply rests on top.

LANCE

WARREN TUFTS

FOR twelve hours running, Lance plods after Loud Thunder and his renegade Sacs . . .

Finally, the heat of the day forces a halt. Lance decides to rest out the afternoon, then press on during the night while the Indians camp.

Meanwhile, far uptrail, Loud Thunder too calls a halt . . . but for a different reason! He needs followers for an uprising . . .

. . . and he is certain to be hailed a brave and mighty chieftain for THIS deed! A party of wandering Sioux—hated enemies—crosses the meadow. Loud Thunder orders his companions to fall back as he takes up position...

The party numbers four: two old men, a buck, and a young squaw . . .

. . . The musket roars from ambush and the buck drops from his pony! The old men are slow and before they sense what has happened the brave and mighty Loud Thunder overruns them . . . !
